PRAYER USED AT THE ANNUAL MEETINGS OF THE SOCIETY, AND AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE GENERAL COMMITTEE.

ALMIGHTY and most merciful FATHER, we give Thee humble thanks for the light of Thy Gospel. Make us more grateful for this Thy mercy, and more zealous for the salvation of all mankind.

Visit in mercy the Church of Christ; enrich it more abundantly with the grace of Thy Holy Spirit; and bless its endeavours to make known Thy Truth. Unite, as one man, all who are truly labouring for Thee. Disappoint the designs of Satan. Let all Christian Societies live in harmony and love; give them wisdom in all their plans; perfect Thy strength in their weakness; and direct their labours to Thy glory.

The harvest truly is great, but the Labourers are few! O Thou Lord of the Harvest, send forth labourers into Thy Harvest! Fill with Thy Spirit those whom Thou hast sent forth; and enable them faithfully and boldly to preach, among Jews and Gentiles, the unsearchable riches of Christ. Keep them from the snares of the world, the flesh, and the devil; deliver them from all evil; and make them wise to win souls.

Upon all the Native Converts whom Thou hast gathered to Thyself, through Thy labouring servants throughout the world, pour out Thy Holy Spirit, that, as Thou hast begotten them again unto a lively hope, so they may ever be followers of Thee as dear children. Deliver them from all remaining darkness and ignorance; destroy and abolish in their hearts all that remains of Satan's kingdom; grant that their faith, and hope, and love may grow exceedingly; make them to be ready to every good work, and more especially to exert themselves for the salvation of those around them; that so, by their zeal and faithful testimony, by their holiness and fruitfulness, they may glorify Thy name before their countrymen, and bring in unto Thee, from the midst of them, such as shall be saved.

Have compassion, O most merciful Father, on all those who have come under instruction, though they be not yet altogether Christians. Convince them effectually, by Thy Word and Spirit, of their sinful and miserable state; pour upon them the spirit of grace and supplication, and draw them to Jesus.

Take away blindness from the Jews. Let them receive Thee, O Jesus, as their Messiah, and proclaim Thy saving Name among the Gentiles.

Deliver all Mohammedans from the delusions of the False Prophet! O Thou True Prophet of Thy Church, enlighten them by Thy Holy Spirit, and bow them down at the foot of Thy Cross!

Pity blind Idolaters who are kept in cruel bondage by the god of this world. Turn them from idols, that they may serve the Living and True God.

O Thou Almighty Saviour, Who by the right hand of God art exalted, and hast received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, shed forth His light and grace on this dark world!

Cause all Christians, we beseech Thee, to sow bountifully; that they may reap also bountifully. O Thou that lovest a cheerful giver, let all grace abound toward them, that they may minister liberally of their substance to the making known of Thy Name!

With these our humble prayers, we join our praises and thanksgiving for what Thou hast already done in making known Thy salvation; perfect Thy work, O Lord; shortly accomplish the number of Thine elect; and hasten the coming of Thy Kingdom.

Be present with us, O Lord, at this time. Give us all a single eye to Thy glory. May Thy blessing rest upon our meeting; and may all our hearts be this day quickened and encouraged to fresh and persevering efforts in Thy Service.

We ask these mercies for the glory of Thy Name, through the merits and mediation of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; and would ascribe to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, Three Persons in One God, everlasting praise. Amen.

Our Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, The power, and the glory, For ever and ever. Amen.

PRAYER USED AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE.

Almighty God, our heavenly Father, Who hast purchased to Thyself an Universal Church, by the precious blood of Thy dear Son, we give Thee hearty thanks that it hath pleased Thee to call us to the knowledge of Thy grace and faith in Thee, and to appoint our lot in an age and country where the true light shineth. We bless Thee that Thou hast awakened us in some measure to feel our responsibilities. We praise Thee for what we have seen and heard of the power of Thy Word among the Heathen, we adore Thee for Thy many servants who have gone out from amongst us to toil, and suffer, and die in making known Thy salvation; and we thank Thee that Thou dost allow us, unworthy sinners, to unite together in this work of faith and labour of love.

We humbly confess our past lukewarmness in this Thy service, notwithstanding these Thine inestimable benefits and mercies. For our Lord Jesus Christ's sake, forgive us our past negligences, and so endue us with Thy Holy Spirit, that we may more earnestly seek Thy glory in the salvation of souls.

Grant us, we beseech Thee, Thy very present help at these our meetings. We ask, most gracious God and Father, for a constraining sense of the love of the Lord Jesus, and for wisdom to direct us in all our endeavours. Increase upon us the spirit of power, and of love, and of a sound mind. Give us faith and courage; give us zeal and patience; give us a single eye to Thy glory, and help us to bear and to forbear. The silver and the gold are Thine, O King of kings! Supply us with what is needful for Thy great work, and make us faithful stewards of Thy bounty, for proclaiming to the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ.

We pray also for all who are united with us in the direction of this sacred cause.

May Thine especial blessing rest upon our Committees, with their Secretaries, throughout the world. Bestow on them the help that we feel so needful for ourselves. Enable them to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, and ever to find favour in the sight of all with whom they may have to do.

Especially we beseech Thee to look, O most merciful Father, upon our Missionary brethren. Draw out our hearts towards them more and more; and while they are bearing the burden abroad, give us grace to help and succour them by our sympathy and prayers at home. Bless every letter written to them from this house, and all our intercourse with them. We pray for them that they may be filled with Thy Spirit. Grant that the same mind may be in them which was also in Christ Jesus. Let them never lose their first love. Raise them above the cares of this world. Help them to deny themselves and to endure all things for the elect's sake. Give them the tongue of him that is taught. Clothe them with humility. Teach them to follow peace with each other, and with all men. Support them under spiritual distresses, temptations of the adversary, bodily sickness, domestic anxieties, and hope deferred. And so confirm Thy word from their lips by the power of the Holy Ghost, that through them multitudes may be turned from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto Thee, our God.

We commend to Thee the Missionaries' children entrusted to our charge. Bring them all to a saving knowledge of Christ Jesus. Defend them with Thy heavenly grace that they may continue Thine for ever; and daily increase in Thy Holy Spirit more and more, until they come unto Thy everlasting kingdom. Give all needed grace to those who have the direction of the Home in the discharge of the arduous work with which Thou hast been pleased to entrust them.

We most heartily thank Thee, O Lord, for those whom Thou hast already sent forth through this Society; and we pray for a yet larger outpouring of a Missionary spirit on our younger Clergy, on the members of our Universities, on those who are elsewhere preparing for this holy work, on the young men of all ranks and orders throughout our land. And herein do we implore Thy special favour on our Training Institutions, that their numbers may be replenished continually: and that none may go forth from them but such as shall be able ministers of the New Testament, Full of Faith, and of the Holy Ghost.

We praise Thee, O Thou God of all grace, for the Converts, the Native Catechists, and the Native Clergy, whom Thou has granted to us in our several Missions. As Thou hast raised the Native Churches thus far, bring them, we pray Thee, to full ripeness and perfectness of age in Christ. Pour out upon them Thy Holy Spirit. Stablish, strengthen, settle them, and so enlarge their liberality, that they may both maintain Thy Word among themselves, and may make it known to the regions beyond them, till all the Gentiles hear the glad tidings of Thy love.

And now, O Lord God, be Thou in the midst of us to-day. Give us a constant sense of Thy presence, and may all our undertakings be begun, continued, and ended in Thee, to the honour of Thy great Name, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

LAWS AND REGULATIONS

OF THE

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY FOR AFRICA AND THE EAST.

(As revised at a Special Meeting of Members of the Society, held on July 2, 1890.)

I. THIS Institution shall be designated "The Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East;" and shall be conducted by a Patron or Patrons, a Vice-Patron, a President, Vice-Presidents, a COMMITTEE, and such Officers as may be deemed necessary, all being Members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland.

II. The office of PATRON of the Society shall be reserved for Members of the Royal Family; and that of VICE-PATRON for His Grace the Primate of All England, if, being a Member of the Society, he shall accept the office. The PRESIDENT shall be such Temporal Peer or Commoner as may be appointed to that office, and VICE-PRESIDENTS shall consist of all Archbishops and Bishops of the Churches of England and Ireland, who, being Members of the Society, shall accept the office; and of such other persons as, being also Members, shall be appointed thereto.

OF MEMBERS AND GOVERNORS.

III. Annual Subscribers of One Guinea and upwards, and if Clergymen Half-a-Guinea, with Collectors of Fifty-two Shillings, and upwards, per annum, shall be Members of the Society during the continuance of such Subscriptions or Collections. Benefactors of Ten Guineas, and upwards, in one sum shall be Members for Life.

IV. Annual Subscribers of Five Guineas shall be Governors during the continuance of such Subscription; and Benefactors of Fifty Pounds, and upwards, in one sum, shall be Governors for Life.

V. Subscriptions and Benefactions shall confer the same privileges, whether paid to the Society direct or through an Auxiliary or Association.

VI. The COMMITTEE may appoint such persons as have rendered essential services to the Society, either Honorary Members for Life, or Honorary Governors for Life.

OF GENERAL MEETINGS.

VII. An Annual Meeting of the Members of the Society shall be held in London, on the Tuesday next before the first Wednesday in May; when the proceedings of the foregoing year shall be reported, the Accounts presented, and the Treasurer and COMMITTEE chosen. And whenever any vacancy in the office of Treasurer shall occur, the COMMITTEE may fill up the vacancy, for the interval between the occurrence of such vacancy and the next Annual Meeting.

VIII. The COMMITTEE may summon a Special General Meeting of the Members of the Society, at which not less than Thirty shall constitute a Quorum, at any time, and they shall do so on receipt of a requisition in writing, addressed to the Secretaries, and signed by not less than Fifty Members of the Society, and specifying the object of the Meeting. Ten days' notice shall be given in Three London Daily Newspapers, and in two other Newspapers, of any such intended Meeting, and of the purpose for which it is called; which shall be deemed sufficient publicity.

IX. None of the Laws and Regulations of the Society shall be repealed or altered, nor any new ones made, but at the Annual Meeting or at a Special General Meeting called for that purpose.

X. An Anniversary Sermon shall be preached at some Church in London, by a Clergyman appointed by the COMMITTEE. An Annual Report of the Society shall be printed for the use of its Members.

OF THE COMMITTEE.

XI. The COMMITTEE shall consist of the following, being members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland:—(a) Twenty-four Lay Members of the Society elected at the Annual Meeting. (b) All Clergymen who are Members of the Society and have been so for not less than one year. (c) All Honorary Governors for Life, and all such other Governors as have been so for not less than one year. In every year so many of the elected Members shall go out of office as, with the vacancies, if any, occurring among them during the preceding year, will make six vacancies, and shall not be re-eligible until the following year. The COMMITTEE shall decide which Members go out of office in each year.

XII. The COMMITTEE shall elect, at their First Meeting in every year, either from among themselves, or from the other Members of the Society (being members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland), a Committee of Patronage, a Committee of Funds and Home Organization, a Committee of Correspondence, a Committee of Finance, and a Committee of Estimates, and shall have power to fill up vacancies. Each of the said Committees shall keep Minutes of its Proceedings, and shall make such reports of its proceedings to the COMMITTEE as the COMMITTEE shall require.

XIII. The office of the Committee of Patronage is to procure patronage and support to the Society; and to nominate to the COMMITTEE proper persons as Patrons, President, Vice-Presidents, Honorary Life Governors, Honorary Life Members of the Society, and preachers of the Anniversary Sermons.

XIV. The office of the Committee of Funds and Home Organization is to circulate information respecting the Society; to adopt means of obtaining Subscriptions, Benefactions, and Collections in Churches, Chapels, and at Meetings; to take a general oversight of the Associations; and to nominate, from time to time, to the COMMITTEE, suitable persons to act as Agents and Representatives of the Society for these objects.

XV. The office of the Committee of Correspondence is, to seek for proper Missionaries, to nominate them to the COMMITTEE, to superintend their instruction when necessary, to recommend their location, and to correspond with them when sent out, and generally to direct the foreign work of the Society. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, the Committee of Correspondence may delegate any of their duties to Committees elected from among themselves, and may authorize such Committees to report directly to the COMMITTEE, and may fix their Quorum.

XVI. The office of the Committee of Finance is, generally, to superintend the accounts and financial affairs of the Society, and from time to time to note and to report to the COMMITTEE how far the expenditure corresponds with the sanctioned Estimates.

XVII. The office of the Committee of Estimates is, to prepare and submit to the COMMITTEE an estimate of the probable expenditure of the Society.

XVIII. The Committee of Correspondence shall appoint from among themselves, at their First Meeting in every year, a Clerical Sub-Committee, and may appoint at their discretion other Committees, for the examination of Missionary Candidates.

XIX. The COMMITTEE may make regulations as to the conduct of business by themselves and by the other Committees, and subject to and so far as not inconsistent with any such regulations for the time being in force, the COMMITTEE shall receive and deal with the Reports of the other Committees, shall decide upon the countries where Missions shall be carried on, and shall superintend and control the affairs of the Society in general. The COMMITTEE may authorize any Committee appointed under Law XII., and with the consent of the Committee of Correspondence any Committee appointed under Law XV. to deal with and dispose of any matters and classes of matters the consideration of which falls within its province, reporting its action to the next meeting of the COMMITTEE. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, every Committee may make Bye-laws for its own government, and may appoint Sub-Committees and fix their quorum.

XX. The COMMITTEE shall have power to appoint such Officers and Assistants as they shall deem necessary for the well-conducting of the affairs of the Society, subject, in the case of the appointment of Secretaries, to the approbation of the next Annual Meeting. One, at least, of the Secretaries shall be a layman. The COMMITTEE shall also have power to acquire property of every description for the purposes of the Society, and to invest the funds of the Society as they may deem expedient, and to vest all or any portions of the property and funds of the Society in such Trustee or Trustees, or corporate body, as they may in each case think fit.

XXI. The COMMITTEE shall meet on the second Tuesday in every month, and oftener if needful. The other Committees shall meet as often, and at such places, as shall be by them agreed on. All Committee Meetings shall be opened with reading a Form of Prayer composed for that purpose, or one or more suitable Prayers selected from the Liturgy.

XXII. The Patrons, Vice-Patron, President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer and Secretaries shall be considered, ex officio, Members of all Committees.

XXIII. Five Members shall be necessary to form a Quorum of the COMMITTEE; and Three of each of the Committees provided for in Law XII.; in each case exclusive of the Secretaries. In cases of equality of votes, the Chairman shall be entitled to a second or casting vote. Every Committee may act notwithstanding vacancies.

XXIV. All payments on account of the Society shall be signed by Three Members of the COMMITTEE, in Committee, and the Lay Secretary, or in his absence by one of the other Secretaries.

XXV. The accounts of the Society shall be audited and reported upon by Public Accountants appointed by the COMMITTEE, and Five Honorary Auditors, Members of the Society (of whom not more than two shall be Members of the COMMITTEE), shall be appointed annually by the COMMITTEE for the purpose of considering the Reports of Public Accountants, and of making recommendations thereon, and generally on the Accounts to the COMMITTEE once at least in every year.

OF MISSIONARIES.

XXVI. Every offer for Missionary Service shall be referred by the Secretaries either to the Committee of Correspondence or in the first instance to the Clerical Sub-Committee or other Committee appointed under Law XVIII. to which it shall belong under rules laid down by the Committee of Correspondence; and the Committee of Correspondence shall have power to deal with the offer, both as to the training and as to the nomination as a Missionary of the Candidate. Provided that no one shall be sent out as a Missionary without having been approved by the Committee of Correspondence; and without, as a general rule, having appeared before them.

XXVII. Candidates nominated by the Committee of Correspondence, and accepted by the COMMITTEE, shall receive instruction in such parts of knowledge, and be prepared in such a manner for their future employment, as the Committee of Correspondence shall judge expedient.

XXVIII. Candidates shall consider themselves engaged to go to any part of the world, and at any time that the COMMITTEE shall decide, and be subject to such regulations as may be established by the COMMITTEE for the direction of the Missionaries: respect, however, being had to their personal circumstances, or to any previous stipulation made by them with the Society.

XXIX. Men who have been duly prepared and finally approved for Missionary work, shall go out, either ordained or unordained, at the discretion of the COMMITTEE.*

XXX. The Missionaries who go out under the direction of this Society shall be allowed to visit home, permission having been previously obtained from the COMMITTEE; and after having laboured in the cause of the Society, to the satisfaction of the COMMITTEE, at the Stations committed to their care, until age or infirmity prevent further exertion, such provision shall be made to render their remaining days comfortable as in the judgment of the COMMITTEE is suitable. The COMMITTEE shall have the power to assist also, in particular cases, the dependent Relatives of those Missionaries, who, by devoting themselves to the service of the Society, are prevented from contributing to their support. The COMMITTEE shall be further empowered in special cases to make such arrangements with those employed by them as they may think fit.

GENERAL.

XXXI. A friendly intercourse shall be maintained with other Protestant Societies engaged in the same benevolent design of propagating the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

XXXII. All questions relating to matters of Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline, respecting which a difference shall arise between a Bishop of the Church of England abroad and the COMMITTEE, shall, in the absence of any tribunal having legal cognizance of the same, be referred to the Archbishops and Bishops of the Provinces of Canterbury and York, whose decision thereupon shall be binding upon the Society and its agents, and representatives. The proposed reference shall be made by the COMMITTEE, through His Grace the Primate, accompanied by such explanations and statements as the COMMITTEE may deem advisable.

XXXIII. The object of the preceding Law being only to provide a mode of settling questions relating to Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline as to which no provision has yet been made by the Society, it is not to be so construed, as in any other respect to alter the principles and practices of the Society, as they are contained in its Laws and Regulations.

XXXIV. It is recommended to every Member of the Society to pray to Almighty God for a blessing upon its designs; under the full conviction that, unless He "prevent us, in all our doings, with His most gracious favour, and further us with His continual help," the Society cannot reasonably hope to meet with persons of a proper spirit and qualifications to be Missionaries, or expect their endeavours to be crowned with success.

* The Bishops of the Church of England under the authority of the law of the land ordain and send forth [ecclesiastically speaking] the Society's Missionaries; and in the event of their being appointed by the COMMITTEE to labour at stations within the jurisdiction of a Bishop of the Church of England abroad, it is the practice of the Society to apply to the Bishop for licenses in which are specified the districts to which the Missionaries have been assigned. This is done on the understanding that licenses will neither be refused nor when granted be withdrawn from the Missionaries during their connexion with the Society, except for some assigned legal cause.

STATIONS, CLERICAL AND LAY MISSIONARIES, BUSINESS AGENTS, AND NATIVE CLERGYMEN,

ON JUNE 1, 1905.

 A STATION is the place at which a Clerical or Lay Missionary is stationed, or at which Native Christians are located under the superintendence of a Native Ordained Pastor in connexion with the Society. The post-town of each Station, when it is known, is given in parenthesis after the name of the Station in the following list, except in cases where the Station is itself a post-town. Where not otherwise stated, it may be assumed that the Stations which are indented have the same post-town as the main Stations under which they are placed. In Palestine, where there is no delivery of letters, it is desirable to address letters intended for the Stations which are indented to the "care of" one of the missionaries at the main Station.

The figures after the Names of the European Labourers show the year of their first sailing for the Society's Missions, or of their reception into connexion in the field. Their University or College is indicated thus: Oxford, "Oxf."; Cambridge, "Camb."; Dublin, "Dub."; Durham, "Dur."; Edinburgh, "Edin."; Glasgow, "Glas."; London, "Lond."; Archbishop of Canterbury's Degree, "Lamb."; Islington, "Isl."; London College of Divinity, "Lond. Coll. Div."; King's College, London, "K.C.L." After the names of men trained at the Society's Preparatory Institution, formerly at Clapham, but now at Blackheath, the word "Clapham" or "Blackheath" is placed. In the case of ladies trained at "The Willows," Stoke Newington, at "The Olives," South Hampstead, or at the Society's Highbury Training Home, the words "The Willows," or "The Olives," or "Highbury," occur after their names. The letter D. after the name of an ordained man, whether European or Native, indicates that he was a Deacon at the above date. The word "Nurse" after the name of a Missionary denotes that she is a trained nurse.

The terms "Hon." and "partly Hon.," in parenthesis, after the name of a Missionary, mean that such Missionary draws no allowances, or only a portion of the usual allowances. Where Missionaries are supported wholly or partly, as regards personal allowances, from contributions to the Society's funds appropriated to that use by individual friends of the Society, or by Associations, or other bodies, the fact is indicated. In the case of the Colonial Associations (N. S. Wales = New South Wales, Vict. = Victoria, New Z. = New Zealand) the Missionaries have been selected, and, when necessary, also trained by the Associations, by which likewise they are supported in the field. In nearly all the instances referred to the Society is responsible for all other than personal allowances, as well as for the expenditure which is involved in the maintenance of the work.

*This mark * denotes that the Missionaries to whose names it is prefixed are in Local Connexion, i.e. that their offers of service were accepted by the Society's representatives in the several Missions.*

The Names of Native Clergymen are printed in Italics. The figures after their names show the date of ordination as Deacon. The mark ‡ denotes that the name to which it is prefixed is that of an Agent supported by Native Church Funds, which are in most instances aided by the Society.

The Maiden Names of Wives of European Missionaries, and the year of marriage, when known, are given in parenthesis. In the case of each lady who was a Missionary of the Society before marriage, the Mission in which she laboured and the year of joining it are given; and in the case of ladies who were Missionaries of other Societies, the initials indicating the Society ("C.E.Z.M.S." = Church of England Zenana Missionary Society; "Z.B.M.M." = Zenana Bible and Medical Mission; "F.E.S." = the late Female Education Society) are given, as well as the country and year of joining. Wives of Missionaries are always expected by the Society to lay themselves out to do good among the native women in every practicable way, such as by cultivating familiar intercourse with them, educating children, and instructing the adult women.

The Names of all Missionaries in the field are placed under the station at which they were working on June 1st, 1905. The Names of those who on that date were at home or on the way home or on the way out are placed under the station at which they last resided, unless, in the case of those on the way out, they have been definitely assigned to some other station. The Names under each station are printed in order of date, without reference to nationality, sex, orders, or other difference; except that the Secretaries of Missions are placed first in order at the Stations where they reside, and wives of Missionaries are placed immediately after their husbands.

PROCEEDINGS AT THE ONE-HUNDRED-AND-SIXTH ANNIVERSARY.

At the Annual Meeting of the Church Missionary Society, held at Exeter Hall, London, Tuesday, May 2nd, 1905, being the Society's One-Hundred-and-Sixth Anniversary,

THE RIGHT HON. SIR JOHN H. KENNAWAY, BART., C.B., M.P.,

President, in the Chair,

AFTER READING OF SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER,

"The General Review of the Year" was read, after which, on a motion by the Chairman, seconded by the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Manchester, it was resolved—

That the General Review of the Year which has just been read, together with the Report, of which an abstract has been presented, be adopted, printed, and circulated under the direction of the Committee; that the thanks of the Meeting be given to the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Derry, D.D., for his Sermon before the Society last evening, and that it be printed and circulated; that Colonel Robert Williams, M.P., be the Treasurer of the Society; that the Committee be appointed for the ensuing year, with power to fill vacancies; and further, that this Meeting, while expressing its deep regret at the serious deficit shown in the Society's finances, approves the Committee viewing the fact not as a warning that the Divine purpose demands a reduction of the work committed to the Society, but rather as a call to more systematic, sustained and self-denying efforts by Christian people who are in the enjoyment of so great privileges and opportunities as those of the present time.

And that this Meeting, humbly and heartily thanking God for the revival of spiritual life manifested in many places both at home and in the Mission-field, earnestly prays for a still wider and deeper extension of the gracious influences of the Holy Spirit, that so the Gospel may be preached for a witness to all nations, and the way be prepared for the coming of the Lord.

The following Meetings were also held in London on the same day in connexion with the Anniversary:—

At the CHURCH HOUSE, Westminster, S.W., at 11 a.m., Colonel R. Williams, M.P., in the Chair.

At QUEEN'S HALL, Langham Place, W., at 3.30 p.m., for Ladies, Lady Dodsworth in the Chair.

At ROYAL ALBERT HALL, South Kensington, at 7 p.m., the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of St. Alban's in the Chair.

And on May 4th, at QUEEN'S HALL, Langham Place, W., at 7 p.m. (Medical Mission Auxiliary), the Ven. the Archdeacon of London in the Chair.

Addresses were delivered at these Meetings by Right Rev. Bishop Cassels (of Western China), the Right Rev. Bishop Ingham, the Right Rev. Bishop Ridley, the Very Rev. the Dean of St. David's, the Rev. Canon Denton Thompson, the Rev. J. Rooker, Jun., the Rev. C. W. A. Clarke (S. India), the Rev. W. E. S. Holland (United Provinces, India), the Rev. Dr. M. Mackenzie (Fuh-Kien), the Rev. Dr. C. Neill (Ranaghat Medical Mission, Bengal), the Rev. S. R. Smith (W. Eq. Africa), the Rev. C. J. F. Symons (Mid China), the Rev. W. A. Rice (Persia), the Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht (Punjab), Dr. J. H. Cook and Mr. H. O. Savile (Uganda), Dr. A. Neve (Punjab), Mr. T. F. Victor Buxton, Mr. R. Maconachie, Mrs. G. R. Blackledge (Uganda), Miss M. P. V. Gregg and Miss D. S. Wynne Willson (Japan), Miss S. R. Tanner (Uganda), and Miss G. M. Walford (S. India).

NOTE ON SPELLING OF NATIVE NAMES.

In the year 1896 the Council of the Royal Asiatic Society adopted the system for the Transliteration of Oriental Alphabets which will be found in the Journal of that Society for October of that year; and, on December 8th, 1896, the General Committee of the Church Missionary Society passed the following resolution relating to the same subject:—"The Committee recommend the use of this system, and hope that the Missionaries of this Society who are engaged in translational or other literary work in the Roman character in the languages referred to in the Royal Asiatic Society's scheme or in those connected with them, will employ it; and that it may be used in transliterating the names of persons and places in all communications with the Committee, except those well-known and familiar names which it would be unwise to alter."

This system for spelling Native Names is, therefore, recommended to the Society's Missionaries generally for adoption in their letters and reports. It should not be applied, of course, to those well-known places of which the spelling has become so fixed that it would be mere pedantry to disturb it; as, for instance, Travancore (Travankur), and Lucknow (Laknau). Other well-known names, spelt correctly according to this method, are not pronounced accordingly by English residents. For example, the a in Lagos is always pronounced by English residents, when speaking English, as in the word make.

The powers of the vowels are as follows:—

a as in "*a*bout."
ā usually as in "f*a*ther" (in North-Indian words as in "*a*ll.") e as in "p*e*n."
ē as in "f*ê*te."
i as in "th*i*n."
ī as in "p*i*que."
o as in "n*o*t," or as in the French "b*o*nne."
ō as in "n*o*te."
u as in "f*u*ll."
ū as in "tr*u*ly."
ai as i in "th*i*ne."
au as ou in "b*ou*gh."

It needs only to be noticed further that—

y always sounds as in "*y*ou."
g " as in "*g*o."
j " as in "*j*oin."
gn as in "poi*gn*ant."
ng as in "thi*ng*."

h has always a separate sound, except in ch as in "*ch*urch," and sh as in "*sh*e," th and dh should, therefore, not be used in South Indian names to express the dental t and d.

c, whether for k or s, being superfluous, is not used.

Doubled letters should each be pronounced distinctly, as in Italian.

THE ANNUAL SERMON,

Preached at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, on Monday, May 1st, 1905,

BY

THE RIGHT REV. G. A. CHADWICK, D.D.,

LORD BISHOP OF DERRY AND RAPHOE,

A Vice-President of the Society.

"UNTIL THE FULNESS OF THE GENTILES BE COME IN, AND SO ALL ISRAEL SHALL BE SAVED."—Rom. xi. 25, 26.

THIS is our aim and our ideal—the bringing-in of the fulness of the Gentiles. We are assembled here to seek, from prayer and exhortation, some new faith and zeal in this good work.

Refreshment and encouragement may well come to us as we look around. It is true, and a disappointing truth, that we are not yet able by regular and ordinary means, but only by special efforts, only by occasional heroic devices, to bring up our revenues to the level of our ever-expanding needs. But we may thank God for the very expansion which means that He is opening new doors before us—and for this, that the successes of our special efforts are proof that the resources exist and are in friendly hands, and, therefore, that they may be had, and ought to be had, and sooner or later, by God's blessing, shall be had through the normal agencies of our finance. In my opinion, it is the middle class which fails the least; and the upper and lower classes come short so much more flagrantly that our utmost efforts ought to be addressed to them.

Everywhere else I seem to discern large and bright sources of encouragement. Thank God for the salvation of unnumbered souls, for the planting of Churches now self-maintaining, for such an uplifting of whole tribes and races that we can well understand the Apostle's bold phrase, "He is the Saviour of all men," though "specially of them that believe."

Thank God for the increasing loudness and clearness of the witness borne to our work, alike by the secular Press and by the civil authorities abroad and at head quarters, a testimony which must surely rebuke into silence the flippant criticisms of the smart people who "Came and looked and didn't see it."

What, for example, can be more spirit-stirring than the invitation, addressed to us by Lord Cromer and the Sirdar, to occupy a great territory in the Soudan, which, if we consent, will be recognized as a sphere for us to work in? It is true that their official interest is only educational, but it is all the more significant that they turn to Christian missionaries for help, knowing well that we are concerned for whatever is pure and good, if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise. That invitation is at once a challenge and an opportunity; and therefore it is, like all opportunities, a responsibility as well. Never yet has the Church Missionary Society failed to rise to such an occasion, and I do not believe that it will fail now, when we have it in our hands to occupy the whole course of the Nile, from its long-concealed sources right down to the sea. Yes, it is a responsibility.

And what sort of responsibility devolves upon us by the sudden flashing upon the world, sword in hand and laurel-crowned, of the first great non-Christian Empire since the days of Constantine? Non-Christian, but not anti-Christian, visibly capable of being won for Christ, profoundly conscious of moral, and, indeed, of spiritual needs, for which you and I know that there is but one relief. And if capable of being won at all, then most of all by us, friends of three centuries ago, just to her in the days when she was sorely wronged and before her strength had been suspected. God knows, God only knows, what enormous issues, in secular politics as well as in religion, depend on our fidelity from month to month, and well-nigh from day to day, in striving to give Christ to Japan, and to bring Japan to Christ.

These things are a trumpet-call to us. They ask for an increasing revenue, solely to meet ever-expanding opportunities, which are God's gifts to man. They are also a loud call for living agents—a call which is less generously answered. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that He would send forth labourers into His harvest.

Now I have sought in vain for a text—I know of none—which ought more effectually to evoke our efforts and to reanimate our weariness than this declaration of the first and most illustrious of all missionaries, telling us that first the fulness of the Gentiles shall come in, and so all Israel shall be saved.

It is not at all the contrary, but it is the converse and the supplement, of our habitual way of thinking about Missions. And we cannot dispense with either aspect of the case.

We constantly regard our Missions to the Heathen as a work of charity toward them. And so we ought. We save their souls. Yes, and their bodies also: we illuminate and uplift their whole nature. Think what the coming of the Gospel must be to a soul in the dark. Apart entirely from the profound problem of the future of the unevangelized, what a difference now, what a banishment of night and chaos from the soul, what an inrush, like morning in the sky, of splendid hopes, exalting loves, dignified desires, what deep thoughts of one's self and of one's fellows cleanse the reason and purify the heart of the Heathen when he puts on Christ!

I can remember still the first time when, as a boy, I ever looked upon a really grand landscape—how, sweeping round the shoulder of a hill, there broke on us the far-off gleaming bay, the shadowy mountains beyond, and all the autumnal woods stretching in waves of sun-steeped foliage to the sea. But the reaper went on reaping; and the coachman urged his horses on. They were familiar with it, but to me it was a revelation. So are you familiar with the Gospel; but it is a new and amazing prospect to those whom St. Paul spoke of as "having no hope, and without God in the world."

We are not wrong, then, in thinking much of what the Gospel does for the Heathen to whom we send it. But we are very far wrong indeed in thinking of this only, in forgetting that this work has also large blessings for other souls.

In our text its evidential value is the first and most obvious, "so all Israel shall be saved." St. Paul was a devoted patriot. Upon his conversion, when given his commission to the heathen world, he did not welcome it. He pleaded his special fitness to persuade his own brethren; they knew his former violence, surely they would be impressed by his conviction now. But God answered, Depart, for I will send thee far hence to the Gentiles. And as he went he found his own race everywhere his bitterest opponents; they were such as he himself had been—blasphemers and persecutors and injurious. Yet for their sakes he could wish himself accursed from Christ; nor did he ever cease to love them, nor would he ever be persuaded to believe that God had finally cast them off. But he came to see that the breaking-down of their opposition, as it was the hardest, was reserved to be the last and crowning exploit of the Cross.

The Gentiles, and the fulness of them, must be gained first. Their conversion would be the conclusive demonstration of a Divine force at work, the irresistible evidence which should also convince the Jews. The fulness of the Gentiles should come in, and so all Israel should be saved.

Now, I ask you, could we have a more vivid presentation of the greatness of our missionary work than this, that the most stubborn of all human resistance to the Cross shall find its master in this work at last—the most obstinate stronghold of unbelief on earth shall surrender in the day of the consummation of that work in which God is visibly prospering us?

Such is the assertion of St. Paul; and it is an inspired assertion. But does it surprise you? Can you imagine a spectacle more impressive to a Jew than the gradual fulfilling of all the hopes of his race, the submission of continent after continent to a Hebrew sceptre, the sceptre of that Nazarene murdered long ago, His binding the world in one, His purging away its vileness?

Already the astonishing process goes so far that whereas there are, at the very utmost, five great persons known to history who have stamped their renown equally upon the imagination of the Eastern and the Western world, of whom two were born in the purple—Solomon and Alexander—and two more fought their way to crowns—Cæsar and Napoleon—(if indeed Napoleon should be reckoned with these greatest) the fifth, and immeasurably the most illustrious, the only one still powerful and well-beloved, was that executed preacher to Judæan peasants Who did not strive nor cry. Still He calls to all the weary, "Come unto Me, and I will give you rest"; and somehow the most diverse experiment does not prevent men from believing that His large promise is fulfilled. This it is, this universal offer, universally verified, which will at last convert the most obdurate.

Brethren and fathers, supporters of this Church Missionary Society, is it a small thing that God has given you a leading place—I say no more than all men will admit—a leading part in pressing this supreme demonstration home? What effort, what sacrifice, should we think too great for such a cause?

This promised evidence, so convincing to the doubter, involves a promise of supreme victory for the Church.

There is a way of speaking as if, during the present age, we sent our missionaries forth mainly for a testimony against the nations, as if they must of necessity spend their labour almost in vain, and their strength well-nigh for naught. If this only means that for the final shock and the consummate victory God has splendid reinforcements yet to come, and we hold the field for their arrival—for the arrival of our Lord—I have nothing to say, except that it ought not to be so stated as in the meantime to relax our nerves, or cloud our spirits, or make us forget that God has already done, and is doing, great things for us, whereof we are glad—things far in advance of our deserving.

It is enough, without discussing the time or the method of the final victory, that whatever we now obey our Lord in striving for, that we shall some day see.

Yes, we shall see it. Our warfare is unlike all secular conflicts, where even the victorious banner waves over thousands of corpses, dead for a triumph they can never share. In the day of our Captain's glory all who faithfully strove for Him shall God bring with Him. We shall see the fulness of the Gentiles come in; the little flock grown to myriads of myriads and thousands of thousands, the mountain of the Lord's house established upon the top of the mountains and all nations flowing unto it, as the stars of heaven, as the sands on the sea-shore innumerable.

> ". . . O, good and ill,
> When shall your strife its fated measure fill?
> When shall the tangled veil be torn away,
> And show us all that unimagined day?"

Nor is this all. It is not by the accumulation of numbers, however vast, that we can exhaust the meaning of this noble phrase: "the fulness of the Gentiles" is not merely the sum-total of them. Take any man, make as complete as possible your conception of his powers, yet you will not measure the capabilities of two men by simply doubling the quantity of that ascertained force. A second brings not only more force, but a variety of force—something individual and characteristic of himself. Or perhaps he does not bring it; perhaps it lies dormant, overlaid by greeds and sloths, so that he is not his real self; "the fulness" of that man is lacking. But they ought to vary in this direction and that; they ought to supplement each other, one contributing prudence and insight to the common stock, and the other energy and fire, so that each becomes more potent than when he stood alone. Think of a well-assorted husband and wife, of all the protection and boldness, all the softness and charm, which act and interact between them, so that

> ". . . Each fulfils
> Defect in each; and always, thought in thought,
> Purpose in purpose, will in will, they grow,
> . . . The two-celled heart beating with one full stroke, > Life."

From the little family carry your thought forward to the great family of man, and ask yourself, "How should I attain, by the mere piling-up of huge figures, to an adequate notion of the fulness of humanity, or even of the fulness of the Gentiles?" All the infinite range of races, temperaments, predilections, endowments, faculties, must be taken into account; the variety, as well as the multitude, must come into our great conception. And all these gifts shall some day be co-operant and consecrated in the harmonious and world-wide service of our King.

Does not the newest science teach us to think somewhat in this fashion, even of the material universe, even of what our fathers called "dead matter"? Are we not learning to think of it as a network of electric energies, as a tingling of reciprocal influences from star to star? The universe is but a parable of the Church: its mutual relations are weak and poor compared with hers.

Our faces, our voices are not more diverse than our souls.

And the Lord, Who loves us, values in each his differentiating speciality, as we value the features and tones of our beloved. None can replace another in His all-embracing, all-discriminating heart.

It is certain that St. Paul had this view of the Church as a vast organism wherein each contributes to the well-being of all. The whole body is fitly framed together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth. Its variety is its resourcefulness; for if all were an eye, where were the hearing? Can you suppose of such a thinker that when he saw the vision of a world-wide Church he was blind to the reinforcements, both of insight and of aspiration, which that great conception carries with it?

And thus we have attained the point where there emerges another impulse for our work, a motive which we should not overlook.

St. Paul felt, as he gathered into the Church the weak and foolish things of this world, runaway slaves, and even men of despicable character (for "such," he says, "were some of you"), that every one of these contributed something to the efficiency of the whole Church: that God had chosen these weak ones to confound the mighty: that the poorest of them could and should help even him, the great Apostle, if not otherwise, yet by prayer; and the hand of cunning workmanship must never say to the foot which treads the mire, "I have no need of thee."

Well, what is thus true of units is true also of the races and nations of mankind. Each has its own genius and characterization; and, without pressing the doctrine of race too far, it is certain that Germany could never have given us Calvin, nor France Luther. And to-day, as yesterday, the kings of the earth bring their various tributes into the city of God. You are searching out, for example, some problem of interpretation, and you open Luthardt. And you say, "What German profundity, what insight! How unlike the French!" But perhaps it is to Godet that you turn, and now you say, "What French lucidity! How perfectly he conveys his meaning! With what a needle-point he touches the vital issue to decide the question!" Or else it is Lightfoot, and then you say, "What British thoroughness and grip; what common-sense enriched by a wealth of culture!"

The point is that each nation has its peculiar gift, and all are needed; that if there are seven lamps, each church carries its own into the darkness; and each hears a message evoked by its own character and its needs; and yet that message is for all—"He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the Churches"—unto all the seven. And do you think that this, written of the Churches in Asia, in no longer true except of Europe? That Japan, when she is won, will turn for us no new page of theology? And India none? Why, Bishop

Westcott said that the adequate commentary upon St. John would never be written until India is converted. Surely, the dreaming, patient, subtle soul of Asia must have something deep and strange to tell us about the wisdom of Proverbs and about the Logos of St. John. It may well be that Missions—the inbringing of those new races, of the fulness of the Gentiles—are much like those explorations of Egyptian sepulchres and Syrian monasteries, destined to show us wonderful, mysterious, new aspects of the truth we love—new to us because we have not found them, but existent all along, and patiently awaiting recognition.

My friends, we have need of help and reinforcement. To-day the Church is grappling not only (as always) with new problems, but with vast and fundamental changes—deep, silent revolutions which are stealthily remoulding our conceptions of Nature and of life, of matter, even of the ultimate tests of truth. Some of us, in craven fear, are ready for a surrender of judgment, out of weariness and despair, to that loud voice which offers to relieve us all of responsibilities divinely imposed; and others, equally craven, are surrendering priceless truth at the first challenge of the new methods; and yet others, just as unwise, are closing their eyes and ears against all that our own wondrous age can truly teach us.

Are you sure that the hesitation, the bewilderment, which I seem to see everywhere, are not due to our lack of precisely what our missionary work would have supplied, if the whole heart of the Church had been thrown into it? It is not only that the invigorating sense of triumphs won for Christ would have steadied our nerves and braced our faith by noble experiences, by the consciousness of God working with us. It is not only the evidential force which we saw at our first glance upon the text, the confirmation of the work by signs following—signs quite as plain and sure as the healing of the sick and casting-out of demons.

I am now thinking rather of those intellectual and moral contributions which other races, had we evangelized them, might have given us, as the Colonies helped us in our last war—of the fresh, young, eloquent heart of Africa, so buoyant, so pathetic, so unsophisticated as she has already shown herself in music—of the multitudinous, reverential, metaphysical, brooding soul of India—of the industrious, obedient, affectionate, slandered Chinese people, who have already given to the Church martyrs as gallant as those of the first age, and I think at least as gentle.

To have won the races that are without would have secured that every problem should be sifted, every promise claimed and pleaded as they disclose themselves at other angles and to other faculties than ours.

And we who preach to individuals that they cannot expect miracles to avert the penalties of their own thriftless extravagance or sloth, shall we not preach it to ourselves? Is there no waste in our leaving these fields untilled, these gold mines unworked? If our God is humbling us before our enemies are there not grave and serious reasons, of which this is one?

So, then, the bringing-in of the fulness of the Gentiles will be to them salvation and blessedness, and to unbelievers at home the most overpowering evidence, and to the Church new joy and strength and wisdom.

And lastly, and above all, what shall it be to the Master? I think of that most Divine, most human heart of all—most human because most Divine—and of the day when He shall see of the travail of His soul, and shall be satisfied. How great, how world-wide must that redemption be which shall quite content His large and absolute love! First, the fulness of the Gentiles, and then of the Jews also, of whom the Apostle uses the same word, and asks, If their loss be the riches of the Gentiles, how much more their fulness?

The word implies that nothing shall be absent, nothing shall come short, of all that makes up the complete and perfect ideal of our race. It shall all be His. Every faculty shall praise Him, every energy, every idiosyncrasy of man.

The Roman and the British sway; the Greek, the Italian supremacy in art; the big and moody soul of Russia, brooding among her forest glooms; a hundred forms of humanity still unevoked—each has its own voice as truly as childhood with its ringing laugh, and age with its mellow wisdom, and all these voices shall yet swell that awful chorus, heard in the trance of the Apostle long ago as the voice of many waters and as the voice of mighty thunders, an exceeding great multitude that no man could number, out of all nations and kindreds and tongues and peoples, singing the anthems of emancipation and of redemption, the song of Moses and the song of the Lamb.

All disappointments, all discouragements that are endured in faith, do but speed forward that great day, that day of Christ.

"And if, the time ye toiled and sorrowed most,
The voice of your lamenting seemed all lost,
And from that land no answer came again,
It was because of that your grief and pain
A house was building, and your bitter sighs
Came thither as toil-helping melodies,
And in the mortar of the gem-built wall
Your tears were mingled, to the rise and fall
Of golden trowels, tinkling in the hands
Of builders gathered wide from all the lands.
O brothers, come, help, build!"

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE.

General Review of the Year.

(READ AT THE ANNIVERSARY IN EXETER HALL, MAY 2nd, 1905.)

"Our God hath not forsaken us . . . but hath extended mercy unto us . . . to give us a reviving, to set up the house of our God, and to repair the ruins thereof."—EZRA ix. 9, R.V.

So spake Ezra the scribe, in his touching confession of sin, in the name of the Jewish people. So may Christian England, in the midst of much sin needing to be confessed, thank God for what Ezra called a "reviving"—"a little reviving," as it is in the preceding verse. Just when the whole Church is staggered by revelations of failing attendance at public worship, crowds are brought under the sound of the Gospel. Just when fundamental doctrines of the Creeds are challenged, and people are beginning to wonder how much of the Bible they love will be left to them, the power of the simplest Gospel message is manifested in unexpected sudden conversions. Just when religious education is in peril, and when gambling in both high circles and low is bringing men and women to ruin, the Welsh Revival astonishes the world by its practical effect upon the daily lives of those influenced by it; the Bishop of London, taking up the old cry of the evangelists Moody and Sankey, tells us that "Jesus of Nazareth is passing by"; and the Archbishop of Canterbury calls the whole Church to "unite in special prayer for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit."

Religious revival at home,

And not at home only is it pleasing God to give these "little revivings." From several parts of the mission-field come tidings of revival seasons, showing every sign of genuine blessing from on high. Grateful appreciation is expressed of the special services held in China by Mr. Stuart Holden, a clergyman of the Church Parochial Mission Society, sent out by the Keswick Mission Council, and in India by Mr. Archibald, of the Children's Special Service Mission; also by Japanese evangelists, who are described as "Spirit-filled," and by Chinese lay preachers, concerning one of whom, in Fuh-Kien, a missionary writes that he has never met anyone who seemed to walk more closely with God. When, within a few months, in three high schools, in India, China, and Japan respectively, the elder students give unmistakable tokens of "repenting them truly for their sins past," of "having a lively and steadfast faith in Christ our Saviour," and of "amending their lives and being in perfect charity" with each other and with all, not even the most cautious observer can refuse to see the work of the Holy Ghost. And in some cases the blessing has come without any special efforts beforehand.

The Committee of the Church Missionary Society call upon all their friends to be strong and of a good courage. When the Church receives "power" because "the Holy Ghost has come upon" it afresh, then do Christ's "witnesses" go forth "unto the uttermost part of the earth." In the last two or three years the number of candidates for missionary service has been less than it had been; but the tide seems now to have turned, and it is with thankfulness and hope that the Committee are able this year to report a decided increase in the past few months. Although this revival has of course not yet added to the actual missionary staff, and the additions of the year (thirty-two men and forty-two women) are only just above those of the preceding year, it will doubtless bear fruit in years to come. While the majority of the men offering are of the class that require considerable training before going out, there is also a manifest revival of interest and zeal at the Universities; and Mr. Mott's remarkable campaigns at Cambridge and Oxford came just at the right time to bring men to the point. The Committee wish Godspeed to the plans now being set on foot to encourage the dedication of young lives to the service of God in the foreign field at a yet earlier age.

Candidates.

Among the missionaries added to the staff this year the Committee have especially welcomed the Rev. L. C. Perfumi, late of the Carmelite Order, who, when a missionary of the Roman Church in India, was led to question his position by the sight of the consistent lives of Indian clergy and people connected with the Society, and who, by a series of strange providences, was led to join the Church of England; also another son of the late beloved Hon. Secretary, Dr. Loftus Wigram, the fifth of a family of seven to join the ranks; also daughters of the lamented Bishops Hill and Poole; also three sons and three daughters of veteran missionaries, Archdeacons Moule and Phair, Canon Cole, Dr. Richards, Dr. Weitbrecht, and Dr. Van Someren Taylor. The return of Mr. Douglas Hooper to East Africa after an illness lasting several years is the triumph of a fervent spirit over a bodily frame shattered by African fever.

New Missionaries.

It is the Society's experience that slackness of offers of service and deficiency of funds generally come together, while a revival in the one direction is accompanied by a revival in the other. This experience suggests a hopeful outlook now. But, meanwhile, the Committee are conscious that much disappointment will be felt throughout the country at the financial statement now presented; though some indeed may have expected a considerable falling off from last year. The Society has made no attempt to repeat the special efforts then made; and a reaction also in the ordinary contributions would not be unnatural; besides which there has been financial depression in the country. The reaction, if it may be called so, is only from last year. The ordinary receipts are £14,000 more than they were in the year before last. But as compared with last year's exceptional total, the income is £58,000 less, while the expenditure is £12,000 more. The adverse balance on the year, £39,500, is distinctly serious and disappointing, and to this has to be added the deficit of £5,700 left uncovered last year. Although the year's deficit is little more than ten per cent. on the expenditure, it would be wrong to attempt to minimize its importance. If the Society is to pay its way and avoid an adverse balance at this time next year, its receipts for the year must be raised to about £420,000. Finances.

But, after such a deliverance from financial embarrassment as God gave the Society last year, it would be unbelieving indeed to yield to anxious fears of the work being permitted to stand still. It is twenty-five years ago this month since the Committee estimated the income at £185,000, and ordered the expenditure to be limited to that amount. The number of men added to the staff in that year was twelve, and all the Islington men just ordained were kept back for a while. The work now is at least fourfold in extent; and the expenditure and the income have doubled. Is there any sufficient reason why they should not double again? The increased activity of the Society's Home Department gives promise of abundant fruit. The first Conference of northern friends has been held; and the first Summer School. The new Study Scheme has been widely welcomed. Developments in the organization of the Local Associations are in progress. Work among children and schoolboys and girls is going forward. A new Laymen's Union is being formed. Other new agencies have been started. And the Committee are sure that the whole Society has rejoiced to welcome Bishop Ingham to the post of Home Secretary alongside Dr. Lankester. The Bishop's experience, formerly as a C.M.S. Organizing Secretary, afterwards in a missionary diocese, and in parishes in both the north and south of England, and as Hon. Secretary of the Board of Missions for the Province of Canterbury, has been manifold and unique. His name is submitted to-day for formal adoption as a Secretary of the Society, in accordance with Law XX. Appointment of Bishop Ingham.

While a Bishop has thus been brought into the Society's official service, three more of its missionaries have been raised to the Episcopate, making forty-four in all. Archdeacon Hamlyn has been appointed by Bishop Tugwell as Assistant Bishop for the Gold Coast; and as that territory was a field of the S.P.G so far back as the reign of George II., and that Society provides the stipend, the appointment has involved a transfer of Mr. Hamlyn's name from the C.M.S. roll to that of the S.P.G. The Rev. Charles Hope Gill, late Secretary in North India, has been appointed to the Diocese of Travancore and Cochin, and Archdeacon Holmes of Athabasca to the Diocese of Moosonee; the former by the Archbishop of Canterbury, in consultation with the Society and with the Metropolitan of India; the latter in accordance with the constitution of the Province of Rupert's Land, on the Society's nomination, by the Synod of that Province. The Committee are thankful that neither vacancy thus filled up was caused by death. Bishop Hodges has retired from his valuable work in Travancore and Cochin, to which, after fourteen years' important service as Principal successively of the Society's Colleges at Masulipatam and Kandy, he was consecrated in 1890, along with Bishop Tucker of Uganda. Bishop Newnham has been translated by the Synod of Rupert's Land from Moosonee to Saskatchewan. Another vacancy, caused by Bishop Ridley's retirement from his far-western Diocese of Caledonia, has been filled up by the appointment, by the Primate of Canada (Archbishop Bond of Montreal), of the Rev. F. H. Du Vernet, late one of the Secretaries of the Canadian Church Missionary Society.

Episcopal Appointments in the Missions.

The expansion of the Society's Missions in so many great mission-fields renders it year by year less possible to present, even in its briefest form, an adequate summary of the year's work. The "Annual Letters" alone, if printed in the C.M. Intelligencer, would occupy 3,000 columns. The reader of them wishes the whole Society could read them too, for only in this way is it possible to appreciate the services of the brethren and sisters who have written them, the real grounds of encouragement or of anxiety, the urgent need of more labourers, more self-denying contributions, more fervent prayer. And only in this way can be realized the immense change in the circumstances and prospects of the Missions since the Society, a few years ago, began to foster women's work and medical work. From many of its four hundred women missionaries have come reports of deepest interest. Some we see visiting African villages, sleeping in mud huts and lighting fires to keep off the lions; some conducting high schools for girls, in India and Ceylon, exercising such an educational and moral influence that even the Hindu or Buddhist promoters of opposition schools prefer to send their own daughters to teachers who are Christian; some winning the Mohammedan women of Palestine and Persia to believe that after all they have souls and that God loves them; some showing the Christian women of Uganda how to bring up their children in the fear and admonition of the Lord; some caring for the poor, and the sick, and the blind, and the leprous in China; some giving Japanese soldiers embarking for the war "new thoughts of God, new hopes of heaven."

Women's work and medical work are combined in the ten fully qualified women doctors, the many others who have received a partial training, and the forty trained nurses. The Society's thirty hospitals, with their two thousand beds, served by them and by sixty medical men, are influencing multitudes in Africa, Palestine, Turkish Arabia, Persia, China, and on the north-west frontier of India.

Not a few of the women missionaries may now be regarded as veterans in experience, with from fifteen to twenty years' service; but still more is the word "veteran" applicable to one who went out as a missionary's sister forty years ago—Miss Neele, who has only lately given up her important educational work at Calcutta—and also to many of the wives who were rendering valuable service long before the systematic employment of women was begun. Among the men Bishop Stuart, in Persia, after fifty-five years' service, Bishop Moule, in China, after forty-eight, Bishop Bompas after forty, are object-lessons to us all. Bishop Moule has visited all the stations in the Mid China Mission in the year, most of them more than once, and has travelled 3,000 miles in doing so. Frederick Alexander, after forty-eight years, still superintends extensive work in the Telugu Mission, each year reporting new villages visited, new congregations organized under native pastors, new schools opened. Archdeacon Wolfe, after forty-four years, reports just the same kind of expansion in Fuh-Kien; Dr. Hooper, also forty-four years, still uses his linguistic gifts in Bible revision in India; Theodore Wolters, also forty-four years, has just presided over the first Church Council for the Society's congregations in Palestine; and Archdeacon Moule, also with a retrospect of forty-four years since he first went out, is still a real power in China; while Archdeacons Buswell, Mackay, and Phair, T. R. Wade, A. H. Wright, T. Kember, and E. Sell still labour after forty years.

The mission-field Japan.

Almost every mission-field presents marked signs of progress during the year. Japan is no exception. The terrible war with Russia, besides exhibiting national qualities in the Japanese which have commanded the admiration of the world, has deepened the earnestness of the Christians and taught them fresh lessons. Why, asked a Japanese clergyman in a sermon, has God given victory to a non-Christian nation over a professedly Christian one? On the same principle, he explained, that God of old used heathen nations to chastise His people Israel; therefore let not Japan be unduly lifted up. Lately Bishop Awdry wrote: "A great religious revival is going on." He did not mean a Christian revival. The Shinto and Buddhist temples were crowded with earnest worshippers praying for the soldiers. But he added, "The movement towards Christianity grows in earnestness and volume." The war has afforded wonderful openings for evangelistic work among the departing soldiers and the wounded men returning. Miss Tristram's most touching account has been widely read. Another lady missionary thus sums up the work:—"Farewell meetings at the homes of soldiers leaving for the front; seasonable meetings at the depôts; distribution of Scripture portions and Christian literature on the military trains as they bore their crowds of soldier-passengers to one or other of the centralization points; short, bright meetings, with much hymn-singing, as the trains ran into the junctions and waited there for longer periods; visiting the military hospitals; giving lantern exhibitions for the convalescent wounded." Soldiers leaving for the front have begged for Gospels to carry with them, saying they know that only the God of the Christians can give them peace in death. And that peace some have found. One, who started careless, but read his Gospel afterwards, fell mortally wounded before the Russian entrenchments, saying to a Christian soldier who crept to him to bind up his wounds, "Don't mind me; I have believed in Jesus Christ." Wounded Japanese and Russian prisoners have alike been visited in the name of the Lord. Three Japanese clergymen have been summoned to military service as sergeants, one each from the three Missions—C.M.S., S.P.G., and American Church. One effect of the war will undoubtedly be the growth of that spirit of independence in Japanese Christendom which the Society has always hoped to see manifested in native churches. Bishop Awdry writes: "The question of complete ecclesiastical independence [i.e. in the Nippon Sei-kō-Kwai] may be nearer than we dare to hope. Let us be ready," he adds, "not to resist, but wisely to further this, while lending our influence and counsel in every large-hearted and legitimate way possible." The Committee heartily say Amen.

China: its awakening.

From China come manifold evidences of the awakening, at last, of that most conservative of nations. Japanese influence is rapidly increasing, probably upon the whole for good, though not entirely so. Five thousand Chinamen are studying in colleges in Japan. Railways and steamers, telegraphs and telephones, schools and newspapers, uniformed postmen and policemen are being introduced; English education is being sought after; foot-binding is already forbidden in some provinces. Christian missionaries are received in some parts with almost embarrassing honour, and Chinese Christians are respected. Bishops Moule and Hoare write warmly of the Chinese clergy, of whom there are now nearly forty in the C.M.S. Missions alone. A striking record has come from Trinity College, Ningpo, which was founded and carried on for over twenty years by Mr. Hoare before he went to Hong Kong as Bishop. Of its old boys, sixty-one are now working in the Mission, viz., fourteen in Holy Orders, twenty lay evangelists, and twenty-seven schoolmasters; while others have become leading laymen in the Church. Two of the ordained men, Mr. Nyi and Mr. Yü, lately, at Bishop Moule's request, set the papers—"stiff ones"—on Leviticus, Isaiah, Romans, and the Prayer-book, for two younger students, candidates for Orders. One of the latter, the son of another clergyman from the College, did, as the Bishop says, "really beautiful work." This College only serves the Mid China Diocese. The Fuh-Kien clergy are trained at the Fuh-chow College. Bishop Hoare, after a recent visitation of a portion of Fuh-Kien, wrote: "I have returned full of thankfulness to God for what He is doing there. . . . The large numbers and increased earnestness of the candidates for confirmation [over one thousand, at some thirty centres], the number and the well-attested qualifications of the candidates for Holy Orders [four deacons and seven presbyters], the solidity of the work done by the native pastors, the growth of the spirit of self-support and self-government—all are a manifest witness that the Holy Spirit is working with power in the Church." The great city of Kien-ning was famous a few years ago for resisting all attempts at occupying it, Chinese evangelists being hung up by their queues, and then tied together by the queues and turned out of the city naked, and one English doctor narrowly escaping death by suffocation in a pit of filth. In that city and district there are now over 300 Christians; and Bishop Hoare held in it last year confirmations at five centres and an ordination.

The Chinese clergy.

Great change at Kien-ning.

India, amid much that is prosperous and hopeful, suggests sad and solemn thoughts. Plague and cholera have continued their terrible ravages, and the missionaries have been called upon for active philanthropic and sanitary labours in connexion with the plague especially. And now the earthquake has brought mourning into many English and Indian homes. The Committee deplore the loss of Mrs. Däuble, widow of a faithful German missionary who was one of the last of the noble succession of men from the Basle Seminary, so famous in earlier days for their exemplary service in India and Africa. Mrs. Däuble herself was originally one of the ladies who for half a century have been sent to North India by a Women's

The earthquake.

Society at Berlin to work alongside the C.M.S. Mission. For many years she had been a true mother in Israel in the Kangra Mission, much beloved by the younger missionaries, one of whom was killed along with her. This was the Rev. H. F. Rowlands, an Oxford man of ten years' standing, one of two missionary sons of that devoted Ceylon missionary, the Rev. W. E. Rowlands, now Vicar of Bonchurch. The third victim, Miss Lorbeer, was also one of the Berlin ladies. The Committee deeply sympathize with the bereaved relatives, and thank God for the preservation of many others within the earthquake area.

The Society's India Missions are so numerous, and their regular operations so varied in character, that particular tokens of substantial progress are less conspicuous than elsewhere, though no less real. Fresh testimonies from such Anglo-Indians as Sir Charles Elliott, Sir W. Mackworth Young, Sir James Bourdillon, Colonel Broadbent, and Mr. R. Maconachie have appeared in the C.M. Intelligencer. The Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, Sir Charles Rivaz, opened the new Leper Asylum at Tarn Taran; and the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, Sir Andrew Fraser, laid the first stone of a similar asylum for lepers at Bhagalpur. When the Government arrange that each of twelve native regiments in the Madras Presidency shall include one company of 100 Tamil Christians, there is a change, indeed, from the days when the Sepoy troops were carefully guarded from the dangers of Christian teaching.

Testimonies from Anglo-Indians.

The adult baptisms in India, so far as at present reported, numbered in the year 2,821. While naturally the majority of the converts are from the lower castes and classes, accounts of Brahmans publicly confessing Christ and joining the Church in the face of painful social persecution come from all parts. The letters from South India are especially encouraging. The death of the leader of the Tamil itinerating band, a famous poet and musician, whose ancestors had been minstrels for generations, is a reminder of the excellent work done by native evangelists, of which, in the main, the 600 converts of the year in Tinnevelly alone are the fruit. The first report of the new Missionary Society started by the Tinnevelly Church relates the valedictory dismissal of its first missionary, who has gone to the Mohammedan State of Hyderabad, and is learning a new language (Telugu) in which to preach the Gospel there. A fine hall for meetings, holding 3,000 people has been built at Palamcotta by the Tamil Christians in commemoration of the C.M.S. Centenary. A still happier memorial is the increased spiritual life of the Madras congregations, which the Tamil pastor dates from their observance of the Three Years' Enterprise. Bishop Whitehead told that same pastor that the Church in Madras stands for two principles, "self-help" and the "priesthood of the laity." The Bishop's own journal of his visitation of the Telugu Mission presents a striking picture of an expanding work, and concludes by saying that the tour had given "abundant reason to thank God and take courage." Death has removed some of the best of the Indian clergy; but the succession will not be broken so long as we see one, a convert from Islam, drawing such crowds of Mohammedans to his Christian lectures that the Government refuse him a large hall in one chief city for fear of a disturbance, and so long as divinity students from both south and north take first classes in the Cambridge Preliminary. Illustrations occur also in the reports of the estimation in which leading Christian laymen are held. A Sikh farmer in the Punjab remarked that, while ninety-nine out of a hundred non-Christian officials were takers of bribes, the proportion among Christian munsifs (native judges) is just the reverse. Such a remark justifies the new Punjab Church Council recently started, in which, on an entirely new plan, Indians are now combined with Englishmen in the administration of the Mission. This is in one sense the crown of Robert Clark's work; and the opening a few weeks ago of a large Memorial Hall in commemoration of his services is a further reminder of what his fifty years' career did for the Punjab. These are a few of the "things as they are," not less real than the painful "things as they are" in a recent widely-read book.

Baptisms.

Progress in the South.

Indian clergy and laity.

The Committee are obliged in this brief Review to pass over, for this year, the Missions in Ceylon and Mauritius, and in the Mohammedan lands of Western Asia, Persia, Turkish Arabia, and Palestine, though much might be told of the work of the 150 missionaries labouring in those fields; also the extensive operations still carried on by over fifty missionaries of the Society in the great dioceses of North-West Canada. Even Africa, which has often occupied the largest allotment of space, must claim less this year. Concerning West Africa, the Committee can only notice the visit of the Alake of Abeokuta; the opening of new stations in Nigeria by missionaries both white and black; the patient labours of the pioneer band in Hausaland, and the baptism of the first Hausa convert; and the framing of a constitution for the unification and internal administration of Bishop Tugwell's vast and heterogeneous diocese. On the other side of the Continent, Bishop Peel's diocese is as vast and as heterogeneous as Bishop Tugwell's, and the Mission, though in a less mature state, has advanced into new districts in British East Africa.

on both occasions; higher education has been begun, and one of the fifty young Baganda already under training is a son of the chief who executed Mwanga's order to murder Bishop Hannington; while the general progress was testified to in the most striking manner by the Commissioner, Colonel Hayes Sadler, when he met the Committee last November. He said that before going out he had read accounts of the Mission "with amazement," and when he had seen the work he was "still amazed." The kind of quasi-episcopal duties which now fall upon the missionaries may be illustrated by the case of one of them, Mr. Baskerville. He superintends one of several districts. In his district are four pastorates, and in each of the four pastorates there are forty churches. This is in Uganda proper; but the Mission extends to remote parts of the Protectorate, and is now established far to the north in the Acholi country, which reaches almost to the confines of the Egyptian Soudan, and was itself formerly within the territories over which Gordon ruled.

The call from the Soudan.

It was to these great pagan territories that Gordon himself wished the Society to send a Mission; and the Committee have received with gratitude the definite invitation of Lord Cromer to occupy an extensive district on the Upper Nile, where the tribes are pagan, two other large districts being allotted by him to the American Presbyterians and the Austrian Roman Catholics. The Committee humbly look to the Lord to raise up the right men for this new and important service, and to incline His people to supply the necessary funds. Meanwhile, although open missionary work in the Mohammedan districts lying northward lower down the Nile is still not permitted, quiet Christian influence is being exercised in Khartoum, and it is not a small thing that the entire British community there, military and civil, attended the ceremony of laying the first stone of the Society's new school for girls. The door, now, as it were, only standing ajar, will assuredly, in due time and by the Lord's hand, be flung wide open. Thus the Church of England, as represented by the Society, will have a footing at four points in the great basin of the Nile, which stretches from the Victoria Nyanza to the Mediterranean, viz., in Uganda, in the new district on the Upper Nile, at Khartoum, and at Cairo. At and around Cairo itself good work is going on, evangelistic, educational, medical, literary, and a brave effort has been successfully begun to reach the educated Moslems by a weekly paper printed in Arabic and English. The work of influencing, however slowly and directly, the Mohammedans of Egypt is in the highest degree important. Cairo is a strategic point in the missionary campaign, and sympathy, prayer, devoted service, and self-denying liberality should be concentrated upon it.

Khartoum.

Cairo.

Reverting now to the text of this Review, what is the purpose of God's "revivings"? It is, in Ezra's words, "to set up the house of our God, and to repair the ruins thereof." The manifold operations of the Society, so imperfectly reported on to-day, are undertaken with that very object. At home and abroad we are building the spiritual house of our God, the living Church of redeemed souls, and repairing the ruins thereof. It is for every builder to serve during his own little span of life, and then to leave his work to others. Many faithful builders have gone Home to the Divine Master Builder in the past year. Revered Bishops like Bardsley and Perowne and Day, and like the veteran Hadfield of New Zealand, after more than sixty years in that country; honoured clerical friends like Lord Chichester, son of a former President of the Society, Canons Bernard and Gibbon, Prebendary Macdonald, Henry Brass, and Walter Abbott; lay friends no less honoured, like Lord Northbrook, Clarence Roberts, and Wingfield-Digby; energetic home workers like H. G. Malaher; sisters in the Lord, like Mrs. Bishop, intrepid traveller and fearless witness to the need and the success of Missions, and Mrs. Fox, true friend of the cause and of all its workers; missionaries in the field like Mrs. Harding, Mrs. Briggs, Katharine Wright (the second of Henry Wright's family to lay down life in India), and the young wives of W. E. S. Holland and M. Mackenzie; native clergymen like Archdeacon Oomen Mamen of Travancore and William Jones of East Africa; valued co-workers in other connexions like Dr. Murdoch of Madras. Faithfully in their various spheres they laboured "to set up the house of our God, and to repair the ruins thereof." Faithfully may we their survivors take up and carry on that great task. But to do this at all effectively the Church must set to work on a greatly enlarged scale, and every parish must be taught by its clergy the solemn responsibility lying upon every Christian. The Committee earnestly entreat their own friends not to fail in this duty. Let prayer and effort and self-denial be continually increased, until "all the building, fitly framed together, groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord," the redeemed of all nations and kindreds and people and tongues "builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit." To this end it is that "our God hath not forsaken us"; to this end "He hath extended mercy upon us"; to this end He has given the "little reviving." "O Lord, revive Thy work in the midst of the years!"

Divine purpose in revival: to build God's Church.

The Revival.

THE winter of 1904–05 has been marked by a spiritual movement which is bound to have its influence upon the evangelization of the world. Manifested in the revival in Wales, in the remarkable meetings held by Dr. Torrey and Mr. Alexander, the American evangelists, first in the Provinces and afterwards in the Metropolis, and in the Lenten Mission conducted by the Bishop of London in various churches in his diocese—the movement is one unparalleled of recent years, and it may be hopefully anticipated that it will be further stimulated by the prayer for the Holy Spirit offered by the whole Church at Whitsuntide in response to the appeal of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and that it will be followed by a real and even great forward movement, not only in connexion with offers of personal service in the mission-field, but also in connexion with the provision of the means for the more adequate prosecution of the missionary enterprise.

The year's financial statement.

The Society has experienced disappointment during the year under review in the latter of these matters. The year's accounts show a deficit of £39,477, to which has to be added one of £5,736 carried forward from the previous year. The position of affairs is shown in the following tabular statement :—

The amount of deficit brought forward was	5,736
The expenditure of the year was	377,211
Making a total to be met of	£382,947

The sums available for meeting this have been :—

(a) General receipts	261,917
(b) Appropriated contributions (including certain balances of previous years)	75,817
Adverse Balance		£45,213

The general receipts are £14,533 less than those of the year 1903–04, but are almost exactly the same amount, £14,479, greater than those of the previous year. The contributions paid through Associations show a falling off as compared with 1903–04 of about £10,000, and benefactions have decreased by some £10,500, while legacies, on the other hand, and other items show a rise of nearly £6,000. The expenditure, which in 1903–04 exceeded the ordinary receipts by some £13,500, has risen by about £11,000.

At their meeting on April 11th, at which an approximate statement of the accounts was presented, the Committee passed the following resolutions:— The Committee's resolutions thereon.

"I. The Committee receive with much concern the statement of the results of the financial position of the Society so far as at present gathered. They are not surprised that after the generous efforts made so widely last year there should be some re-action, especially during a time of much financial depression. On the other hand, they recognize that increased expenditure in the current year could hardly have been avoided after the severe restrictions of the two previous years. But they are conscious that the present statement will cause much disappointment to many friends; and they desire humbly to learn the lessons designed by their Heavenly Father, and to look to Him for guidance in so difficult a position."

"II. The Committee cannot, however, regard the situation apart from the remarkable circumstances in which they met a year ago; they recall with devout thankfulness the gracious deliverance from financial embarrassment which, through the mercy of God, they then experienced; and they cannot doubt that they were rightly led in taking it to be a sign of His will that they should continue on the lines which He had so greatly blessed, as expressed in their Resolution of April 19th, 1904."

"III. Having regard, moreover, to the considerable increase in the offers of service during the past few months, which have been reported to the Committee, and the remarkable openings and developments which have been recently brought before them, and which could not be disregarded without permanent injury to the Society's work, the Committee would rather see in the present trial a solemn call from God to more real consecration of life and to increased efforts at home than to any indication of the divine will that the course hitherto followed should be reversed and the Society's Missions be reduced or restrained." "A solemn call."

"IV. The Committee do not doubt that if by suitable encouragement and help all parishes and Associations supporting the Society came to be worked as energetically as some are, a very much larger income could be raised without difficulty or the least detriment to other Christian work; and they confidently hope that the vigorous efforts of the Home Department, and the new plans it is now setting on foot, will, by the divine blessing, be speedily successful in stirring up fresh zeal and diligence. They appeal earnestly to all friends to foster the development of those plans for promoting on more systematic lines study of Missions, prayer for Missions, and liberal support of Missions.

With respect to the supply of men and women to carry the Gospel to heathen and Mohammedan lands, the year under review has witnessed a slight improvement over its immediate predecessors. During the twelve months ending April 30th, 1903, the Candidates' Department of the Society was in touch with 590 persons (356 men and 234 women), in the following year with 525 persons (320 men and 205 women), and last year with 625 persons (383 men and 242 women), the advance in the past year having been greatest during its latter half. Many of the 625 persons who were in communication with the Department in 1904–05 only made inquiries, but 220 cases (93 men and 127 women) were dealt with by the various Candidates' Committees. Fifty-nine candidates, viz., nineteen men and forty women, eight more than in 1903–04, were accepted for training, of whom one man and four women sub- Candidates.

sequently withdrew or had their training discontinued. The number accepted for service was seventy-four (thirty-two men and forty-two women), as compared with seventy-one in 1901–02, and sixty-eight in each of the two succeeding years. Of these seventy-four, sixteen (fourteen men and two women) were already qualified when they offered; forty-six (fifteen men and thirty-one women) were acccepted after training; ten (three men and seven women) were accepted by the Colonial Associations or by representatives of the Society in the mission-field; and two were transferred to the Society from the C.E.Z.M.S. Nineteen of the thirty-two men were clergy, or to be ordained before going out, one of whom was also qualified as a medical man, while four of the thirteen laymen also had medical diplomas. Twelve of the men were graduates, one from Oxford, three from Cambridge, two from Dublin, two from Durham, and one each from the Universities of London, Glasgow, Sydney, and Melbourne.

The following lists give the names of the seventy-four accepted for service, together with their colleges or training institutions, the places from which they offered to the Society or the Colonial Association by which they were accepted, and in the case of those who sailed before June 1st, 1905, the Mission to which they were assigned :—

Training Institutions.

The figures quoted on the preceding page show that more than three-fourths of the candidates accepted at home for missionary service had received training under the Society. Most of the men not already qualified had a longer or shorter term of residence at Islington College, where forty-five were under training during the whole or part of the year 1904–05, many of whom had previously passed through the Preparatory Institution at Blackheath, where there were ten students during the year. The number of women candidates under training was ninety-six, nine more than in 1903–04. At the close of the March term there were twelve at The Willows, fifteen at The Olives, and fourteen at the Society's Highbury Home. At the same date sixteen others were being trained at the Medical Hostel, at the Medical Mission at Bermondsey, with clerical friends, or at Bethnal Green hospital. In December, 1904, the Committee received a memorial from a number of influential friends, including twenty-seven bishops, urging that the advisability of retaining the Preparatory Institution at Blackheath should be considered, and suggesting that the money saved by closing the Institution should be applied to assisting men from the public schools, hoping to offer to the Society, to take their course at Cambridge. The Committee felt that the work done at Blackheath could not be dispensed with, while in response to the suggestion about providing exhibitions at Cambridge they declared that the project did not appear to be one to which the Society's funds could be legitimately applied. At the same time they warmly encouraged the provision through private channels of means whereby men who contemplate offering themselves for missionary work may receive at least part of their training at one of the Universities. A little later an important meeting was held at Lambeth Palace to promote a somewhat similar scheme for providing exhibitions for public school men purposing to undertake Colonial or Foreign work. The outcome of this gathering was the appointment by the Archbishop of Canterbury of a Committee, with the Bishop of Hereford as chairman, to raise a fund for the purpose and administer it. The Society was cordially invited to co-operate, and while unable to make any grants for exhibitions, it has undertaken to refund to the Archbishop's Committee any outlay of that nature which they may make on candidates who shall eventually be accepted as C.M.S. missionaries.

Missionary Exhibitions at the Universities.

By means of the Home Preparation Union, help of a different character is already afforded to those who purpose eventually to offer their services to the Society for work in the foreign field. At the end of 1904, that Union had a membership of 413, of whom 151 were males and 262 females. These receive assistance either in classes or by correspondence, and a good proportion submit themselves to the examinations which are periodically held under the auspices of the Union. Twenty-three members were accepted as missionaries during the year under review, twenty-one of them (ten men and eleven women) by the C.M.S., one by the London Jews' Society, and one by the C.E.Z.M.S., and seventeen others were accepted for training. Since the Union was founded in 1897, eighty-two of its members have gone to the mission-field, seventy-three of them in connexion with the C.M.S. The summer gathering of the Union took place in the garden of The Willows, Stoke Newington, on July 10th, 1904, and addresses were given by Miss Andrews, Miss E. M. Bailey, Miss M. Stratton, of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh Mission, and the Rev. G. H. Ayerst, Vicar of Neasden. The winter meeting was held at the Church Missionary House on January 27th, 1905. The Rev. T. Tatlow,

Home Preparation Union.

Secretary of the British College Christian Union, gave an address on "The Study of Missions as Preparation for Missionary Work."

A great deal of effective work in behalf of the Society is accomplished by the various C.M. Unions. The oldest of these are the County Unions, and the earliest of them, that for Norfolk, which was founded by the Rev. E. Lombe, celebrated its Jubilee in June, 1904. Among the speakers on the occasion was the Rev. Canon Ripley, who began his work in connexion with the Union in the second year of its existence. Most of these County Unions hold two meetings annually, and they serve to bring together and strengthen by a sense of fellowship many isolated workers in country districts. County Unions.

Next to the County Unions in point of seniority comes the London Lay Workers' Union. As is the case almost every year, there are two or three special efforts, over and above the regular meetings of the members, to chronicle. Thus, at the twentieth annual meeting of the Union it was reported that about 1,500 addresses in nearly 400 Sunday schools had been arranged during the year, on the system of half-yearly simultaneous addresses. With a view to helping the speakers, four lectures, organized by the Rev. F. B. Hadow, of the C.M. House, on "Addresses to Children: What to say and how to say it," were given at the Church Missionary House in March and April, 1905. Another effort consisted in organizing, with the co-operation of the Church of England Sunday-school Institute, and the C.M.S. Clergy Union and Ladies' Union, a Conference of representatives of Sunday-schools on December 3rd, 1904, followed by a general meeting for Sunday-school teachers. Fully 1,000 persons attended the Conference, over which Prebendary Eardley-Wilmot, Vicar of St. Jude's, South Kensington, and Chairman of the Church of England Sunday-school Institute, presided. The Rev. W. H. Griffith Thomas, Vicar of St. Paul's, Portman Square, gave an address on the "Relationship between the Sunday-school and Foreign Missions," and his speech was followed by papers setting forth in detail the principles and practice of missionary organization in the Sunday-school. At the evening meeting the Bishop of St. Albans was in the chair, and speeches were delivered by Bishop Ingham, Canon Allen Edwards, Vicar of All Saints', South Lambeth, and the Rev. J. P. Haythornethwaite, Principal of St. John's College, Agra. Again, in March, 1905, the Lay Workers' Union successfully carried through a meeting for men with the object of bringing before them the appeal for the Soudan. The Right Hon. Sir John H. Kennaway, C.B., M.P., the President of the Society, occupied the chair, and the speakers were the Rev. E. A. Stuart, Mr. Eugene Stock, and Mr. A. B. Lloyd, of the Uganda Mission, who had Lay Worker Unions.

shortly before returned home through the country in which it is proposed to commence the Mission. Many of the Lay Workers' Unions in the Provinces work on lines similar to those adopted by that in London. The laymen of Bolton, for example, make themselves responsible for the management of the C.M. Depôt in their town, and give missionary addresses in the Sunday-schools, and also parochial lantern lectures.

Clergy Union. The Annual Conference of the Clergy Union was held at Exeter on June 1st and 2nd, 1904, some twenty delegates being present. After an administration of the Holy Communion, with a sermon by the Bishop of Exeter, the question "How can more offers of Service be called forth from the Union" was discussed. The other subjects considered were "Missionary Teaching in Day-schools," "Work in Grammar and other Secondary Schools," and "Parochial Missionary Organization," and the Rev. A. B. Fisher, of the Uganda Mission, and Dr. W. R. S. Miller, of Hausaland, gave accounts of their missionary work. As usual of late years the Clergy Union arranged for a C.M.S. breakfast during the Church Congress, which in 1904 was held at Liverpool. The Bishop of Durham presided, and the Dean of Waterford (Dr. H. M. M. Hackett) and Sir W. Mackworth Young were the speakers. Five members of the London Branch of the Union were accepted for foreign service; two of them under the C.M.S.; one as Principal of St. John's College, Rangoon; one, the Rev. St. Clair G. A. Donaldson, as Bishop of Brisbane; and one as Archdeacon of Lebombo. The two last-named are life members of the Union.

Ladies' Unions. Diversities of operations characterize the Ladies' Unions. That in London, besides organizing social evenings for Sunday-school teachers and others, maintains a work depôt at Bayswater which is a great help to promoters of sales of work in various parts of the country. The Norfolk and Norwich Ladies' Union has a secretary for each of the thirty-one rural deaneries in the district which it covers, makes grants to working-parties, and from time to time raises large sums of money from among its members. The Sheffield Ladies' Union supports a missionary in Palestine and another in Japan, and in the month of November, 1904, its members held a number of meetings in the villages near to the city.

Gleaners' Union. The eighteenth anniversary of the Gleaners' Union was held in Nottingham on Tuesday, November 1st. A preparatory prayer-meeting took place on the previous Saturday, and on the Sunday sermons in connexion with, or referring to, the anniversary were preached in many of the churches of the town. Monday opened with a devotional meeting. The subject dealt with was "The Work of the Holy Trinity in Foreign Missions: (a) The Purpose of God, (b) The Command of Christ, (c) The Work of the Holy Spirit." In the afternoon a Conference of secretaries of branches considered "How to raise the Standards of (a) Work, (b) Prayer, and (c) Giving." The evening was occupied with a public meeting, at which different speakers treated of "The World's Need," "The Salvation of God," and "The Believer's Responsibility." On the Tuesday morning the Holy Communion was administered in Holy Trinity Church, an address being given by the Rev. D. H. D. Wilkinson on Phil. i. 3, after which the Conference of secretaries was resumed, "The Study Scheme," and "Candidates: their Needs and Opportunities," being the subjects discussed. In the afternoon a meeting was held at which all the speakers were ladies. Bishop Ingham presided over the Annual Meeting in the evening, which took place in the Mechanics' Hall, and the speakers were the Rev. Dr. W. St. Clair Tisdall; Mr. R. Maconachie, a member of the Committee, who spoke on his recent tour in India; and the Rev. E. N. Coulthard, Vicar of St. James's, Bermondsey. The Annual Report read at the meeting stated that 7,900 new members had been enrolled during the year, and that forty-nine new or revived branches had been registered and sixteen disbanded, leaving 1,104 branches, all these figures being exclusive of India and the Colonies. Forty-seven of the branches support their "Own Missionary" either entirely or partially, and fourteen workers are maintained in the foreign field by the Union as a whole.

Student Volunteers.

Another Union which calls for mention, although it is not connected with the Society, is the Student Volunteer Missionary Union. Up to the end of 1903 the enrolments had numbered 2,200, of whom 920 had sailed for the mission-field, many of them under the Society, and 200 were still in training. As an indirect outcome of the work of the Union a special missionary campaign took place in Huddersfield in October, 1904, conducted by twenty-six men from Cambridge University. Thirty-three parishes were visited, and 260 meetings held; of these forty were for men and boys, fifty-six for children, thirty-six in day-schools, and four in private schools.

The 106th Anniversary.

Year by year the gatherings in connexion with the Anniversary of the Society become more numerous, and 1905 has been no exception to the rule. The proceedings of the One-hundred-and-sixth Anniversary of the Society began with a new departure in the form of special services for children and young people which were held on Saturday, April 29th, in St. Paul's Cathedral, in Southwark Cathedral, and, in consequence of the numerous applications for tickets for St. Paul's, in St. Bride's Church as well. The preachers were the Bishop of Dorking (Dr. Boutflower), the Rev. R. C. Joynt, Vicar of Christ Church, Gipsy Hill, and the Rev. A. Le Feuvre, of the Bengal Mission. On Monday,

Services for the Young.

May 1st, there was a Conference of laymen under the auspices of the London Lay Workers' Union, followed by the usual prayer-meeting in Sion College, and in the evening a service was held in St. Bride's Church, at which the preacher was the Bishop of Derry and Raphoe (Dr. Chadwick). The next morning there were Clerical and Lay Breakfasts, at which addresses were given respectively by the Rev. Canon Allen Edwards, Vicar of All Saints', South Lambeth, and the Rev. W. E. Burroughs, Vicar of St. Andrew's, Plymouth. At the Annual Meeting in Exeter Hall the chair was taken by Sir John Kennaway, and the other speakers were the Bishop of Manchester (Dr. Knox), Bishop Ingham, the Rev. W. E. S. Holland, of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, Mr. R. Maconachie, who spoke on his tour in India, and Mr. T. F. Victor Buxton, who described his visit to Uganda. A meeting was held simultaneously with the above in the Church House, Westminster, under the presidency of the Society's Treasurer, Colonel Robert Williams, at which the other chief speakers were Bishop Ridley and the Rev. J. Rooker, Junr., Vicar of Christ Church, Beckenham, and short addresses were given by six missionaries. Four meetings took place in the afternoon, viz., a Women's Meeting in the Queen's Hall, with Lady Dodsworth in the chair, and the Dean of St. David's (Dr. Allan Smith), Miss M. P. Gregg, of Japan, Miss S. R. Tanner, of Uganda, and Miss G. M. Walford, of South India, were the speakers; the Annual Meeting of the Clergy Union, at which the Chaplain-General, Bishop J. Taylor Smith, gave the address; a Conference organized by the Lay Workers' Union; and a meeting arranged by the Gleaners' Union. The evening meeting was held in the Royal Albert Hall, the Exeter Hall having proved of late years insufficient to accommodate the numbers attending, and the engagement of the more commodious hall was justified by the large gathering which assembled. The chair was taken by the Bishop of St. Albans (Dr. Jacob), and the other speakers included Bishop Cassels, of Western China, Canon Denton Thompson, Rector of Birmingham, the Rev. C. W. A. Clarke, of South India, and Mr. H. O. Savile, of Uganda. A novel feature of the anniversary was the exhibition, at the Albert Hall, of animated pictures of India, which were explained by Dr. Arthur Neve, of the Punjab. The Times estimated that the various gatherings on May 2nd were attended by an aggregate of 15,000 persons. The Archdeacon of London (Dr. Sinclair) presided over the Annual Meeting of the Medical Mission Auxiliary in the Queen's Hall, on Thursday, May 4th, and the speakers were the Rev. Dr. M. Mackenzie, of Fuh-Kien, the Rev. Dr. C. Neill, of Bengal, and Dr. J. H. Cook, of Uganda.

The evening meeting held in the Royal Albert Hall.

The Public Valedictory Meetings were held in the Large

Exeter Hall on September 29th and 30th, 1904. On the first day farewell was said to the workers proceeding to Africa, India (Punjab and Sindh, Western and Southern India), Ceylon, and Mauritius, Sir John Kennaway being in the chair. The four returning missionaries to speak were the Revs. S. R. Skeens (Uganda) and T. Walker (Tinnevelly), and Dr. T. Jays and Mr. J. N. Cheetham (Western Equatorial Africa); brief addresses were also given by the Revs. J. H. Linton and J. F. Snee, and Dr. L. E. Wigram, of the recruits. The Rev. W. E. Burroughs gave the closing address. The following evening the chair was taken by Sir Douglas Fox, and the countries represented were Egypt, Palestine, Persia, India (Bengal and United Provinces), China, and Japan. Among the speakers were Archdeacon W. Banister (South China), the Revs. A. I. Birkett (Central Provinces and Rajputana) and G. C. Niven (Japan), and Miss R. D. Howard (Japan) of the returning missionaries, and the Rev. B. Grundy, Mr. P. J. King, and Dr. Catherine M. Ironside, of those going forth for the first time. The devotional address was given by the Rev. A. R. Buckland, Secretary of the Religious Tract Society. Bishop Cassels, of Western China, was the preacher at the Holy Communion Service for outgoing missionaries and their friends in the morning of September 30th.

Valedictory Meetings.

A Conference of men missionaries on furlough took place at Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, in March, 1905. On each of the four days a devotional gathering was held, addresses being given by Bishop Ingham, Canon E. R. Bernard, and Prebendary Fox. The subjects considered were "The Function in the Missionary Enterprise of (a) Faith, (b) Hope, and (c) Charity"; "The Principles which should guide a Missionary in his Teaching upon Issues on which Christians, otherwise in close fellowship, seem to diverge"; "The Responsibility of the Missionary abroad towards Home Workers with respect to (a) The O.O.M. Scheme, (b) Appropriated Contributions from Private Funds, and (c) Reports and Annual Letters"; and "The Sphere and Functions of Assistant Missionaries." The selected speakers on these subjects were the Revs. I. W. Charlton and G. H. Bunbury, Mr. E. Fry, the Rev. W. St. C. Tisdall, Mr. Eugene Stock, and the Rev. F. Baylis.

Conference of missionaries on furlough.

The Rev. W. B. Tracy, M.A., Vicar of Osmaston-by-Ashbourne, has been appointed to the post of Director of the Missionaries' Children's Home at Limpsfield, which was resigned in 1904 by the Rev. A. F. Thornhill, after nearly eight years of untiring work, as mentioned in last year's Report (page 19). At the prize-giving on October 1st, 1904, when Sir W. Mackworth Young presided, Mr. Thornhill was presented with a writing-desk and other articles, and also an illuminated address expressing the grateful sense of the children's parents of his and the late Mrs. Thornhill's diligent and conscientious and loving discharge of their duties. The report presented showed that six of the girls gained Honours (four third class and two second) in the Senior Oxford Local Examination, one gaining distinction (seventeenth in all England) in Religious Knowledge, and another (second) in Music. In the Junior Examination one of the girls won the only distinction awarded in Music. Two boys were awarded scholarships at the South-Eastern College, Ramsgate.

Appointment of Bishop Ingham as a Secretary of the Society.

The vacancy in the secretariat caused by the retirement of the Rev. J. S. Flynn, of the Home Organization Department, has been filled by the appointment of Bishop E. Graham Ingham, formerly C.M.S. Association Secretary for Yorkshire, then Incumbent of St. Matthew's, Leeds, then for thirteen years Bishop of Sierra Leone, and after his retirement from his See, Rector of Stoke-next-Guildford. Since 1898, Bishop Ingham had also been Secretary of the Canterbury Board of Missions.

Home Organizing Secretaries.

Several changes have been made in the staff of Home Organizing Secretaries. Two new districts have been formed, one consisting of Birmingham and the neighbouring rural deaneries, and the other of the Archdeaconries of Manchester and Macclesfield, the Rev. A. E. Mansell, M.A., Curate of Iver, Bucks, being appointed to the former district, and the Rev. H. E. Stevens, who had previously been in charge of the Manchester and Carlisle district, to the latter. The Rev. P. B. de Lom, Organizing Secretary for the Diocese of York, has been transferred to the Manchester and Carlisle District, and his former charge has been attached to the district of the Rev. A. A. Parry, viz., that of Ripon and Wakefield, the Rev. J. Smith, Organizing Secretary for the Medical Mission Auxiliary in the North-East of England, being appointed Assistant Organizing Secretary under Mr. Parry. The title of those members of the Society's staff who are responsible for arranging sermons and meetings and generally furthering the C.M.S. interests at home has been changed from Association Secretaries to Organizing Secretaries.

Medical Mission Auxiliary.

On the recommendation of a special Commission appointed to investigate all questions connected with the home organization of the Society, the Medical Mission Auxiliary has been divided into two distinct departments. The one, responsible for the administration of the medical missions, is under the charge of the Rev. Dr. R. Elliott, the Secretary of the Medical Committee; and of the other, which is concerned with the collection of funds and the arrangement of sermons and meetings, and which has been made a section of the Home Organization Department, the Rev. E. J. Goldsmith, Curate of Bottesford in Lincolnshire, a brother of Dr. A. Goldsmith, who reinforced the Fuh-Kien Mission during the year under review, has been placed in charge. Two conversaziones for nurses took place at the Church Missionary House, each being attended by more than 300 nurses. On the second occasion, in March, 1905, receptions were held respectively by Lady Fox, Mrs. Ingham, and Mrs. P. Baker Wilbraham, at three, five, and seven o'clock. The library was arranged as a Japanese room, and a series of Japanese receptions were held by missionaries on furlough, while another room was temporarily transformed into a zenana. The membership of the Nurses' Missionary Union, which held its first annual meeting in June, 1904, had risen by that date from four to 150. The income of the Auxiliary for the year ending March 31st, 1905, was £26,606, an increase of five per cent. over that for the previous year. The expenditure amounted to £29,441, the cost of new hospital buildings being responsible for much of the increase. A deficit amounting to £14,527 has accumulated during several years in the accounts of the Auxiliary.

New Publications.

The principal new publications of the year were the following:—For Christ in Fuh-Kien, a new edition of the "Story of the Fuh-Kien Mission," largely re-modelled and re-written; a new edition of Japan and the Japan Mission, considerably revised and brought up to date; Christmas-Time in Many a Clime, a book for young people; Volume I. of Outline Histories of C.M.S. Missions; and Empire Builders, a book for boys. Mr. Eugene Stock's Short Handbook of Missions should also be mentioned, as, although published by an outside firm, it is practically a C.M.S. production, and has been widely circulated by the Society. A second edition of A Manual for Stewards at Missionary Exhibitions has also been issued. Of smaller publications, several additions have been made to the series of Handbooks on C.M.S. Missions. The Sheet Almanack for 1905 has been very successful. The first number of a new monthly paper, The Home Gazette, designed to keep the friends of the Society in the country more closely in touch with each other and with head quarters, was published in January, 1905. The Loan Department continues to render valuable service in the dissemination of information by means both of literature and of pictures. During the year 1903–04 it lent 2,031 books; it supplied sets of missionary diagrams 1,655 times; maps 1,431 times; curios, in lots varying from six to 400 objects, 656 times; and costumes 722 times. Sets of lantern slides were used at 3,744 meetings.

Cinematograph pictures

Extra work has been thrown upon the Loan Department by the new cinematograph pictures of India, which were shown for the first time in the Exeter Hall on January 24th, 1905, and have since been in great request. At Sheffield the exhibition of the pictures attracted a gathering of over 2,000 persons; at Bedford it drew together many who never attend an ordinary missionary meeting; and at Bristol a sum of £110 was received for tickets, and after paying all the expenses £50 was credited to the Society. Several missionary loan exhibitions were held during the year, notably one in Liverpool at the time of the Church Congress, which was attended by a number of Congress visitors. A fresh method of making known the needs of the work was adopted by holding a Summer School at Keswick from July 26th to August 2nd, 1904. Some 582 members joined, and meetings were held both morning and evening, the afternoon being given up to excursions, organized by those responsible for the School. Among the subjects considered were "The Responsibilities of the C.M.S. at Home," "The Parish in Relation to Missionary Work," "Missionary Study," "Aims of C.M.S. Unions," "Collection of Funds," "Work among Young People," "The Claims of Christ on the Individual," "Candidates," "The Support of Missionary Work," "Women's Work," and "Medical Missions." Mr. Eugene Stock delivered a series of addresses on "Lessons from the Development of the C.M.S.," and information was given concerning the progress and needs of the work abroad. In addition, every evening there were a couple of devotional addresses. The speakers included Bishops Cassels, Ingham, Morley, and Royston; the Dean of Waterford (Dr. Hackett), Canon Rawnsley, Prebendary Webb-Peploe, and Mrs. Carus Wilson. A verbatim report of the proceedings has been published, and over 600 copies circulated. A definite Study Scheme has been set on foot, which for the first session has enrolled over 450 members.

First C.M.S. Summer School.

Work among men.

An addition has been made to the various sections of the Home Organization Department by the formation of one which concerns itself especially with work among men. An effort was made in Lent, 1905, to reach business men in the City of London by means of services held during the dinner-hour in St. Michael's Church, Cornhill. The addresses, which were given by Mr. Eugene Stock, dealt with the various common objections urged against Foreign Missions.

Women's Department.

The Women's Department has unhappily been deprived for a large part of the year of the help of its Joint Secretaries—Miss Gollock and Miss M. C. Gollock, owing to the illness of the former. Four lectures on "Comparative Religion" were given to young ladies in June, 1904, by Mrs. A. Carus Wilson. Short addresses were delivered in ninety-one private schools at Malvern, Southport, &c., and one-day conferences were held at St. Leonards and Paddock Wood. In October a conversazione for head-mistresses of schools took place at 12 Queen's Gate Gardens, by the invitation of Sir Douglas and Lady Fox.

The endeavours to influence schoolboys were on an even larger scale than those to reach schoolgirls, for forty of the great public schools received a deputation from the Society, and in more than 200 other schools for boys, grammar, preparatory, and private, facilities were afforded by the principals for missionary lectures. In one large public school missionary addresses are not left to occasional deputations, for the head-master himself, in the course of successive winters, has lectured to his boys on each of the Missions of the Society. The Paper for Schoolboys, which is distributed in public and preparatory schools, has now a circulation of 23,000. Advantage was taken of the opportunities presented by the gathering of children at holiday resorts to bring the missionary cause before them and their parents. At Penmaenmawr and Bude, two of the seventy places where the Children's Special Service Mission arranges holiday services, deputations were received, and at the former place a missionary lantern lecture was given every Wednesday during August, and in addition one whole day was devoted to the subject of Foreign Missions. Some of the results of the work there are indicated in the following extract from a letter of a friend:—"One present received a call at the first lantern lecture given, and has since offered for the mission-field. One of our lady workers has just been accepted by the South Africa General Mission. Of the men workers at least three are keen to become missionaries; two have definitely decided to come to the C.M.S. later on, one for Palestine and the other for India, and the third is a solicitor, who would offer to-morrow if he could." Five centres on the East Coast were visited by the Rev. A. E. Richardson. The children reached by the means just described are chiefly those belonging to the upper classes. Sustained and systematic work is done both among them and Sunday-school children in connexion with the Sowers' Bands, of which there are 546 in England, one in Scotland, eighty-two in Ireland, six in Wales, and thirteen in India and the Colonies. The Sowers support two "Own Missionaries'; one partially and the other entirely. Nineteen conferences of Sunday-school teachers were held in the Provinces, at which practical methods of stimulating missionary zeal among the young were discussed. Combined gatherings for young people are becoming increasingly common. For many years past one has been arranged by the Islington Association, and in 1904 the meeting was attended by more than 1,000 children, including some from almost every parish in the deanery. Islington's example has been followed elsewhere, as in Birmingham, where a meeting was organized in March, 1905, by the Lay Workers' Union. A large number of parishes were represented, and the stewards were robed in the costumes of various foreign countries.

Honorary District Secretaries.

In the general organization of the home work great assistance is rendered among others by the Honorary District Secretaries, each of whom looks after the Society's interests in one rural deanery, some, however, caring for a larger area. The work accomplished by these friends is illustrated by the case of one of them, Canon Lyon, Rector of Wickwar, who has held office for nearly forty years. He annually arranges for a deputation to stay with him for a week in the autumn and for the same period in the spring, and prepares a programme of a meeting every night in some neighbouring parish, with an occasional drawing-room meeting in the afternoon. In spite of the growing burden of years the Canon drives out with the deputation night after night, whatever the weather may be, and introduces the subject and the speaker in a few earnest words. Conferences of Honorary District Secretaries are held from time to time, as in July, 1904, when the C.M.S. workers in the Diocese of Llandaff gathered together in his Palace by invitation of the late Bishop. A larger Conference, to which all the Honorary District Secretaries in the Province of York as well as other friends were invited, took place at Leeds in March, 1904.

Many of the Honorary District Secretaries not only organize sermons and meetings but also themselves act as the deputation; indeed were it not for the help given in this way by them and others, it would be impossible for the Society to arrange for all the parishes to be visited which are willing to receive a speaker. The magnitude of the task of providing sufficient deputations is evident from a glance at the programme of one provincial anniversary, that in Nottingham, which took place in June, 1904.

A provincial anniversary.

There were five preliminary prayer-meetings. On the Sunday seventy sermons were preached in behalf of the Society. There was a gathering on the Monday afternoon, followed by another meeting in the evening, presided over by the Bishop of Derby (Dr. Were) and attended by fully 1,000 persons. Several other gatherings were held on the same day, including a County Union Meeting. The next morning there was a clerical breakfast, and latter in the day a number of drawing-room meetings took place.

Oxford Missionary Breakfast.

Not a few of the anniversaries in the country are on similar lines, but at Oxford there is one distinctive gathering, viz., the Missionary Breakfast given on the invitation of the veteran Canon Christoper to some 360 members of the University. The example thus set by Oxford has recently been followed at the sister University of Cambridge. Of a different character from anniversary gatherings are garden meetings. Sometimes the invitations are confined almost entirely to C.M.S. workers, as at Monk Fryston Hall, South Yorkshire, where representatives, about 400 in number, of the Clergy, Lay Workers', Ladies', and Gleaners' Unions, and of the Junior Associations and Sowers'

Bands, of the district, gathered in August. At other times tickets of admission are sold, as in the case of the meeting held in the garden of Stockfield Hall, near Birmingham. The number of tickets disposed of was about 300, and some 220 persons were present. In certain places the friends of the Society devote a whole day or even, as at Cromer, a whole week to gatherings concerned with the evangelization of the world. An example of a "missionary day" occurred in 1904 at Limber Magna, in North Lincolnshire. In the morning the clergy of the neighbourhood conferred together on the problems of creating and maintaining missionary interest in their parishes, the session concluding with an address; a service was held in the church in the afternoon, followed by a children's service; and in the evening there was a general meeting.

A "missionary day."

Turning from the efforts to arouse interest in behalf of missionary work to the practical outcome of that interest in pecuniary help, attention must be drawn to the detailed examination by Mr. Eugene Stock of the Contribution Lists of the English and Welsh Associations for the year 1903–04. After making a few necessary adjustments in order to render a comparison with the totals of previous years more accurate, he found that the greatest proportional increase in gifts as compared with the year 1902–03 was made in the diocese of Newcastle, which advanced by 30½ per cent., the dioceses of Salisbury, Gloucester, Bangor, St. David's and Exeter following in the order named, each with an increase of 20 per cent. or more. A considerable portion of the advance, however, was due to the Million Shilling Fund, and Mr. Stock was led to the conclusions (1) that there is no evidence of any general awakening, leading to systematic efforts to increase the ordinary income of the Society; (2) that the advance, such as it was, came for the most part from already well-worked parishes; (3) that a large part of the additional receipts was derived from lay friends not living in parishes whose clergy are ardent friends and workers in the missionary cause, and whose knowledge of the Society's needs must to a large extent have come through the C.M.S. publications, and through deputations; and (4) that spasmodic efforts, though viewed with disfavour by some friends, nevertheless are successful, and that much of the Society's progress during the last ten or twelve years has been due to them. Among new efforts, though it can hardly be termed spasmodic, one of the most useful has been that which is known as the "Own Missionary" plan. Of the missionaries on the staff at the beginning of 1905, individual friends were responsible for the support of 105; county, parochial and other associations, for 253; the Gleaners' Union and its branches for fifty-nine; the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission for ten; the Colonial Associations for forty-four; and 101 were honorary, or partly honorary.

"Own Missionaries."

A parish which has supported the C.M.S. for 100 years.

In connexion with gifts to the Society a few instances call for brief mention. The first is that of the parish of Hatherleigh, in Devonshire, which has supported the Society for 100 years, and proposes to commemorate the fact by erecting a tablet or window in the parish church. The contributions, naturally, have fluctuated, but so far back as 1820 the parish sent up £47. Altogether the remittances for the 100 years have amounted to £2,622. Among the Junior Associations, that of Christ Church, Gipsy Hill, holds the premier position. In 1904 it sent £346 to the Society, as compared with £62 in 1895.

Gifts from the young.

Of the £346, the Sunday-school collected £41, and the Children's Sunday Afternoon Service raised £305. A Sale of Work brought in £67 of the latter sum, boxes at the church doors £30, collections at services £23, and the rest was raised by boxes, self-denial bags, and daily offerings boxes; one Bible-class box contained over £14, and one private box over £10. Another well-worked Junior Association is at St. John's, Reading. A former member has held her box for twenty-one years, collecting in it the sum of £76 during that period. Great ingenuity and self-denial are often exercised in order to procure the needed funds for the prosecution of the work abroad, and a friend writes of £579 as having been contributed to one missionary box in the space of twelve years, a large amount being derived from travelling third class instead of first, and putting the balance into the box. Self-denial, however, is not universally exercised, and the statistics of the expenditure of the country show that while in England £2 5*s*. per head is spent on travelling, only $9\frac{3}{4}d$. per head is given to Foreign Missions.

Obituary.

During the year the Society has suffered the loss by death of twelve vice-presidents, six honorary life governors, and one honorary life member. The twelve vice-presidents were the following: Dr. Bardsley, Bishop of Carlisle; Dr. Lewis, Bishop of Landaff; Dr. Baldwin, Bishop of Huron; Dr. Perowne, formerly Bishop of Worcester; Dr. Ridding, formerly Bishop of Southwell; Dr. Day, formerly Bishop of Cashel; Dr. Hadfield, formerly Bishop of Wellington, New Zealand, whose work is noticed in the chapter on that Mission; Archdeacon H. Galbraith, of Powerscourt, Ireland; the Rev. the Earl of Chichester; the Rev. Canon W. W. Gibbon; the Earl of Northbrook; and Mr. J. K. Wingfield-Digby, M.P.

Bishop Bardsley.

Bishop Bardsley was one of seven clerical sons of James Bardsley, of Manchester, a leading evangelical of his day. He preached the Society's Anniversary Sermon in 1891, the year of his transfer from Sodor and Man to Carlisle. He spoke at the evening meeting of the 73rd Anniversary, and presided at the solemn meeting on March 9th, 1894, when Bishop Tugwell—summoned home by cable on receipt of the tidings, on January 5th, of Bishop Hill's death, and consecrated on March 4th, Bishop Evington—then just consecrated for Kiu-shiu, and Bishop Tucker, were taken leave of. A few words of his on that occasion deserve to be recalled. "Some of you may ask," Bishop Bardsley said, "might not the men who have given their lives for Africa have done longer and more useful work in our home parishes? Wherefore this waste? Brethren, let us not take up words from the mouth of Judas Iscariot."

Bishop Perowne. Bishop Perowne was one of three distinguished brothers, sons of an old C.M.S. missionary, the Rev. J. Perowne, who laboured at Burdwan, in Bengal, from 1820–7. The other two brothers still survive in the persons of Dr. E. H. Perowne, Master of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and Archdeacon T. T. Perowne, of Norwich. The late Bishop was the oldest of the three, and was born at Burdwan. He held the Deanery of Peterborough from 1878 to 1890, and the see of Worcester from the latter year till 1901, when he retired.

Bishop Day. Bishop Day was one of the Society's foremost friends in Ireland, and for many years, while Vicar of St. Matthias's, Dublin, was a Secretary of the Hibernian C.M. Society. He preached the Annual Sermon in 1878.

Canon Gibbon. Canon Gibbon was an Honorary Association Secretary of the Society from 1863 to 1887, first for Gloucestershire, Worcester, and Wiltshire, while holding the incumbency of Wapley, in Gloucestershire; and later for part of Yorkshire when he became Vicar of Christ Church, High Harrogate. He was a Minor Canon of Bristol Cathedral from 1852 to 1862, and a Residentiary Canon of Ripon since 1879. He was one of the signatories of the "Keswick Letter" in 1900, and to the very end he loved to labour for the Society.

The Earl of Northbrook. The Earl of Northbrook was formerly Viceroy of India. His Viceroyalty was distinguished by his famous Educational Dispatch of July, 1854, which introduced the grant-in-aid system, to the great advantage of mission-schools. Lord Northbrook spoke at the C.M.S. Anniversary in 1877, the year after his retirement from the Viceroyalty, and he was one of the speakers at the great Exeter Hall gathering for men on Centenary Day. His fervent longing for the spiritual good of the Natives of India was exhibited a few years ago by the publication of The Teaching of Jesus Christ in His Own Words, which he compiled and edited with much care for their benefit.

Mr. J. K. Wingfield-Digby. Mr. J. K. Wingfield-Digby was a staunch and liberal friend of the Society, although his public duties prevented him from often attending the Committee meetings. Alternately with Colonel Williams, another Dorset landlord, he for some years welcomed the Honorary District Secretaries of that county at Sherborne Castle every other year for their annual Conference, giving hospitality on a generous scale for one or two days and nights.

and others. The six Honorary Life Governors who were called to their rest were the Rev. Canon T. D. Bernard, of Wells; the Rev. W. Abbott, Vicar of Paddington, who died on the Sunday before Christmas Day, while reading the first Lesson at the morning service; Mr. H. Gibson, Clerk of the Peace for Essex; Mr. H. G. Malaher, Secretary of the Missionary Leaves Association, to whose untiring zeal so many missionary loan exhibitions have owed their success; Mr. C. J. Plumptre, of Nonington; and Mr. C. A. Roberts of Richmond, the Chairman of the Africa Group Committee.

The Honorary Life Member who died was Mrs. Isabella Bird Bishop. Both before and after her marriage she was an intrepid traveller, and her fascinating Unbeaten Tracks in Japan, published in 1880, was one of the first books to excite the interest of English readers in that country. Her great missionary speech at the Anniversary of the Gleaners' Union in 1893, on "Heathen Claims and Christian Duty," was circulated by hundreds of thousands in England and America.

Among other friends who have passed away have been the Rev. Prebendary Macdonald, formerly Vicar of St. Paul's, Kersal, Manchester; the Rev. H. Brass, Vicar of St. Matthew's, Redhill; Dr. T. Chaplin, of Whitechapel; General W. Chitty, of Earl's Court; Colonel C. E. Stuart, of Ardwell, Wigtownshire, N.B.; Mr. H. Bickersteth, of Hampstead; Mr. R. G. Macdonald, of Beckenham; and Mrs. H. E. Fox, the wife of the Honorary Secretary of the Society. The missionaries, whether retired or on the active list, and the native clergy who have died during the year are mentioned in connexion with the Missions to which they were attached.

Patronage. The office of Vice President has been accepted by the Archbishop of Rupert's Land (Dr. Matheson), the Bishop of Carlisle (Dr. Diggle), the Bishop of Burnley (Dr. Pearson), the Bishop of Dorking (Dr. Boutflower), the Bishop-Designate of Llandaff (the Right Rev. J. P. Hughes), the Bishop of Caledonia (Dr. Du Vernet), the Bishop of Mauritius (Dr. Gregory), the Bishop of Moosonee (Dr. Holmes), and Bishop N. T. Hamlyn (Assistant Bishop for the Gold Coast). The Committee have appointed the following to fill vacancies in the list of Honorary Life Governors:—The Rev. S. Bott (Paddington), the Rev. R. R. Meadows (Thurning, Dereham), the Rev. I. Price (Preston), Mr. G. T. Bethune-Baker (Birmingham), Mr. W. N. Heald (Southport), Captain C. P. Streeten, R.N. (Chilcompton), and Mr. Edward Wells (Wallingford).

The Colonial Associations.

I. NEW SOUTH WALES.

New South Wales Association.

A LARGE number of the parishes supporting the New South Wales Association were visited by Bishop Ridley between June 25th and September 8th, 1904, the aggregate number of his engagements being seventy-nine in sixty-three days. Several candidates for missionary service came forward after some of the meetings. The bishop was much impressed with the energy of the executive of the Association.

The accounts for the year ending December 31st, 1904, show an excess of income over expenditure amounting to £108. The income was £3,610, about £500 more than in any previous year. A Shilling Fund for the purpose of clearing off a deficit of £1,200 realized £455. The eightieth Anniversary was held in the large Y.M.C.A. Hall, Sydney, the Archbishop of Sydney being in the chair. Archdeacon Banister, of the South China Mission, was one of the speakers. Advantage was taken of the opportunity afforded by the gathering of so many friends for the Anniversary to hold a public meeting for the purpose of taking leave of Miss Katie Miller, who was about to sail for the East Africa Mission.

II. VICTORIA.

Victoria Association.

THE Annual Report of the Victoria Association, which was read and adopted at the Business Meeting held in the Chapter House, Melbourne, on March 10th, 1904, showed an excess of income over expenditure amounting to £60. The report stated that three new missionaries had been sent out during the period reviewed, and that the number of workers on the roll (excluding wives) was then twenty-six, as compared with twenty-four in the previous year. Two of these were at work in East Africa; twelve in China; seven in India; one in Palestine; and one in Turkish Arabia. In addition, there were three candidates in training. It is interesting to note that six of the workers are fully and ten partially supported as "Own Missionaries." The number of branches of the Gleaners' Union increased from ninety-six at the end of October, 1902, to 111 on December 31st, 1903, and the number of members from 2,150 to 2,227. There was a similar advance in the work among the young, the number of Sowers' Bands increasing by eleven, and of their members by 120. Besides its operations in the foreign field the Victoria Association maintains work among the Chinese and the Aborigines in the Colony. The Annual General Meeting, which took place a fortnight after the Business Meeting, was addressed by Bishop Ridley, the Rev. J. M. Challis, of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, and Dr. E. M. Pain, of Egypt.

III. NEW ZEALAND.

New Zealand Association.

THE contributions to the funds of the New Zealand Association during the year 1904 were almost sufficient to meet the requirements of the work. There are eleven missionaries connected with the Association, two of whom are working under the Melanesian Mission, and one under the C.E.Z.M.S., while two others are Maori clergymen, labouring on the East Coast of New Zealand. Four candidates for service in the mission-field were in training in February, 1905. More than 130 new members of the Gleaners' Union were enrolled, and the number of renewals was 1,070, as compared with 844 in 1903. Two new Sowers' Bands were formed, but two also were discontinued. Bishop Ridley and Dr. E. M. Pain spoke at several meetings in New Zealand in the summer.

IV. CANADA.

The Canadian C.M.S.

THE Missionary Society of the Canadian Church, with which the Canadian C.M.S. is affiliated, received for Domestic (i.e., Canadian) and Foreign Missions about $87,000 during 1904, an increase of nearly $17,000 on the income of the previous year. Nearly one-half of the amount received (namely, $39,233) was remitted to the dioceses of the ecclesiastical province of Rupert's Land, and $17,787 was disbursed on the foreign Missions of the Canadian C.M.S. to discharge the personal allowances of the missionaries sent to C.M.S. Missions in East Africa, Palestine, India, China, and Japan.

The Canadian C.M.S. has lost a prominent member of its Committee by the selection of the Rev. F. H. Du Vernet, Rector of St. John's, Toronto Junction, Toronto, as successor to Bishop Ridley in the See of Caledonia. The consecration took place at Montreal on November 30th, 1904. The Rev. J. C. Robinson, of the Japan Mission, addressed a number of meetings in the country. Two recruits, Miss C. V. B. Harris and Miss L. L. Shaw, B.A., both of them trained teachers, sailed for the Egypt and Japan Missions respectively.

V. WEST INDIES.

THREE men have completed their course at the Mico College, Kingston, Jamaica, and sail for Nigeria in the summer of 1905.

Missions.

SIERRA LEONE MISSION.

Africa was the earliest field entered by the Society. Its first two missionaries were sent in 1804 to the Susu tribes on the Rio Pongas. In 1816 the Society's efforts were concentrated upon the Colony of Sierra Leone, which, since the abolition of the slave trade in 1807, had become the depôt for Negroes rescued from slave ships by the British cruisers. Much blessing attended the labours of W. A. B. Johnson and other missionaries, and in 1822 nearly 2,000 of the freed slaves, adults and children, were in the mission-schools, several thousands were attending public worship, and some hundreds had become sincere Christians. The work continued to prosper, but at a great cost of life; fifty-three missionaries and missionaries' wives dying between 1804 and 1824. In 1842 a Parliamentary Committee attributed the "considerable intellectual, moral, and religious improvement" of the people to "the valuable exertions of the Church Missionary Society more especially." Port Lokkoh, in the Temne country, was occupied from 1840–50 and re-occupied in 1875; Ro Gbere was occupied in 1896; the Yalunka country, near the northern boundary of the British Protectorate, in 1897; Falaba, the chief town, seven years later; and Katimbo, in the Limbah country, in 1900. A serious rebellion took place in the Temne country in 1898, during which the Rev. W. J. Humphrey, of the C.M.S., and several American missionaries were put to death by the insurgents.

In 1852 the Bishopric of Sierra Leone was founded, and each of the first three Bishops—Vidal, Weeks, and Bowen—died within three years of his consecration. Since then the following have succeeded to the charge of the Diocese: Bishops Beckles (1860–9), Cheetham (1870–81) Ingham (1882–96), Taylor Smith (1897–1901), Elwin (1902). Bishops Weeks, Bowen, and Elwin were previously C.M.S. missionaries.

In 1860 the Sierra Leone Church was organized on an independent basis, and undertook the support of its own pastors, churches, and schools, aided by a small grant from the Society. In 1876 the Sierra Leone Church Missionary Society was founded, and has since carried on the outlying Missions established by the C.M.S. in the Bullom and Mendi countries. More than one hundred African clergymen have been ordained on the West Coast (including Yoruba and the Niger). Several of them have been Government chaplains.

THE missionaries in Sierra Leone lost a warm friend by the appointment of the Governor, Sir Charles King-Harman, as Governor of Cyprus in the spring of 1904. During his sojourn in the Colony he did all in his power to further Christian work, and on many occasions gave practical proof of his sympathy with the efforts of the missionaries. He has been succeeded by Mr. Leslie Probyn, C.M.G., Secretary to the Administration of Southern Nigeria.

Reinforcement.

One of the year's recruits was assigned to Sierra Leone, viz., Mr. Ernest Francis Harrisson, of Islington College, who sailed for the Mission in October, 1904. On the other hand the Committee have accepted the resignations of Mr. T. Caldwell and Mrs. W. J. Humphrey on medical grounds; of Mr. F. Wilson, tendered in order that he might take up work among Europeans in Sierra Leone as a Diocesan Worker; and of Miss W. W.

Stratton on her marriage. The Rev. H. Castle has been transferred to the Mid China Mission.

Miss Stratton volunteered to return to the Mission for a few months to relieve the immediate strain consequent upon the smallness of the staff; she sailed for Africa in August, 1904, and returned home again in December; the Rev. T. Rowan went back to the Mission in October; and Miss C. H. Pidsley, who had come home in August, sailed once more in January, 1905. Mr. and Mrs. J. Denton came home in November, 1904; Mr. R. H. White and Mrs. W. J. Humphrey (the latter on medical certificate) in December; the Rev. W. H. Hewitt in January, 1905; Mr. J. W. Spreckley in April; and Miss B. Wale in May.

I. SIERRA LEONE.

FREETOWN.

Freetown.

During the absence on furlough of the Rev. T. Rowan, the Principal of Fourah Bay College, Freetown, from April to October, 1904, the Rev. W. H. Hewitt was Acting-Principal, and the Rev. Canon S. Spain, Acting-Vice-Principal, the other members of the staff being the Revs. C. N. Lewis, S. J. Taylor, and W. W. E. Macfoy, the African tutors, and Mr. J. Denton. Three of the students attended the International Students' Missionary Conference held in Edinburgh early in 1904, and on their return set on foot a Students' Christian Union, the object of which is to bring before its members the claims of the heathen world, and to influence them and others to devote themselves to missionary work. The Bishop of Sierra Leone, acting for the University, conferred the Durham degree of M.A. on the Rev. S. J. Taylor in December, and at the same time four of the men took their B.A. degree and an equal number their Licence in Theology. Mr. Denton was in charge of the Normal Branch of the College, which contained two students. During the last five years twenty men have been trained as masters, and have taken up work in different schools in the Colony.

Fourah Bay College.

In connexion with the College, work is carried on among the Temnes at Cline Town. The attendance at the services suffered from the frequent removals of the people. A working-party, begun by Mrs. Denton, which helped the stations at Makomp, Ro Gbere, and Falaba, was instrumental also in stimulating missionary interest among the converts.

Grammar School.

The number of pupils at the Grammar School under the Rev. Canon O. Moore fluctuated greatly. In the spring, for the first time in the history of the school, it exceeded 200, but subsequently the attendance fell off, and by the end of the year the boarders, who are about half the total, numbered eighty. The cause of the falling off is said to have been the lack of home control, which suffered the boys to leave the school at their will, and also made it difficult to maintain discipline when they did attend. Sixteen boys entered for the Government examination in Hygiene and Sanitation, and in spite of being handicapped by the near approach of other examinations thirteen of them obtained second class certificates. The character of some of the elder scholars gave much encouragement, and the Missionary Association of the school raised a little over £22.

Annie Walsh School.

At the Annie Walsh School, Miss H. H. Bisset, who had Miss C. H. Pidsley and Miss W. W. Stratton as her colleagues for parts of the year, experienced similar difficulties to those met with by Canon Spain. She writes :—

Lack of home training.

Much of the evil among children in this land is due to the lack of careful training and supervision at home in their earliest years. As a rule the majority of the mothers are engaged in their shops, or otherwise trading (for most Sierra Leone women have some occupation apart from their household duties), and the children are left to the care of others, or to themselves. They form evil habits unknown to the parents, and they hear pernicious conversation in the streets and elsewhere, which poisons their young minds and warps their character. All this must be counteracted when they come to school, and both parents and teachers are often greatly pained to find wrong tendencies abnormally developed in very young children.

But although for this and other reasons the work is slow and requires much patience, there were signs of improvement among some of the girls, and the seniors, as well as the African teachers (themselves former pupils), were a great support to the missionaries in the moral training of the children. Both the girls who entered for the Fourah Bay College Junior Certificate Examination gained second class certificates, and the specimens of needlework, drawing, painting, and modelling sent to the Exhibition of School Work earned high commendation, though no prizes were gained owing to the competition being confined to elementary schools. The missionary interest among the girls was keen, and they raised £55 among themselves and their friends for various agencies at work in the Colony and Protectorate. All the pupils belong to the Children's Scripture Union.

SIERRA LEONE NATIVE CHURCH AND MISSIONS.

Sierra Leone Native Pastorat

The forty-second annual commemoration of the SIERRA LEONE NATIVE PASTORATE was held on April 19th and 20th, 1904. The anniversary sermon was preached on the 19th by the Rev. D. J. Coker, African pastor of St. Matthew's, Bonthe, Sherbro, and the meeting took place on the following day under the presidency of the Hon. G. B. Haddon Smith, C.M.G., Colonial Secretary. The work of the Pastorate extends over the peninsula of Sierra Leone to Bonthe, on Sherbro Island, and to the Bullom shore, and all the different villages can be reached on foot within a week. Of the 76,000 persons found in the area described, about two-thirds are Protestant Christians, more than 13,000 of whom are connected with the Pastorate, and the other third are Heathen or Mohammedans. In May, 1904, the Church Committee voted a sum of £100 to the Society "as a token of sympathy with the C.M.S. in its recent financial distress, and as a mark of this Church's gratitude for all the Colony owes to the venerable Society," and the gift was presented by Archdeacon McCaulay on the occasion of an interview which he had with the Parent Committee in July. In addition, the Native Church has readily responded to the appeal of the Committee to relieve the Society's funds of the expense of training agents for them at Fourah Bay College. Twenty-eight persons were admitted into the visible Church by baptism at Bonthe in the summer, of whom twenty-two were adults.

Sierra Leone Church Missions.

The sphere of work of the Sierra Leone Church Missions lies among the Temnes to the north of the Bullom district, and among the Mendis to the south of the Protectorate. More than £1,200 per annum is spent on this work, in which three clergymen and nine lay agents are engaged.

II. TEMNE COUNTRY.

Port Lokkoh.

THE work at PORT LOKKOH was carried on by African agents from December, 1903, when the Rev. H. Castle left for England, until the following December, when the Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Alley took up their residence at the station.

Makomp.

Mrs. W. J. Humphrey and Miss B. Wale occupied MAKOMP in February, 1904, and were warmly welcomed by the people. Even when the novelty of the presence of white women had worn off, the kindly attitude of the Natives was maintained, and they came freely to the ladies, and listened to them gladly when they visited their homes. A night-school was opened, which by November had the names of fifty-two boys and twelve girls on its rolls; the children are said to be naturally bright and intelligent, and eager to be taught. Short services were held in the school on Sunday mornings, followed in the evenings by evangelistic meetings in the town.

Ro Gbere.

At Ro GBERE, where the Rev. J. A. Alley spent the greater part of 1904, the people manifested indifference to the Gospel. He writes:—

> It would appear that the elder people are fully resolved not to give up their Heathenism and not to accept the Gospel; consequently, the younger people follow their example, and difficulties are put in the way of the children coming regularly to school. And, further, I am sorry to say the people are resolved to get, by foul means as well as fair, whatever goods the missionaries have, either in their houses or gardens. Added to all this, want of life and energy on the part of the African workers brings us down to the point zero, and this keeps God's blessing from us in the neighbourhood and district, as well as in the town itself.

Seeking the goods of the missionaries.

There was a noticeable decline in the degree of reverence shown at the Sunday services, and the attendance of the twelve pupils nominally belonging to the school was so irregular that no examination could be held. There were no inquirers in the Funknin district, and the African workers at Bendembu, in the Loko Country, receiving no help from the chief, asked to be allowed to labour among the Temnes. In March, 1904, Mr. Alley made a tour in the Sanda Country. Some of the chiefs had invited him to visit them several years before, but he found when he went that they had passed away, and others filled their places.

III. LIMBAH COUNTRY.

Katimbo

EARLY in 1904, the European missionaries at KATIMBO, Messrs. H. Bowers, J. W. Spreckley, and R. H. White, were transferred to the Yalunka Country, leaving four African agents to carry on the work. Many houses in the town were destroyed by fire in the summer, and the mission-property was only saved after a hard struggle with the flames. Though the chief, Sara Baio, had lost all his houses, he showed kindness and thoughtfulness for the workers, appointing a place where they might hold meetings, and promising himself to attend regularly. One Sunday he gave an address to his people, telling them to come to the services whenever they could. He also urged the mission-agents not to lose heart because progress was slow, but to continue in the good work which God had sent them to do. At Kamasiki, where, as stated in last year's Report (page 43), a new out-station was opened at the beginning of the year, the agent who was sent was well received at first, but before long the natural timidity of the Limbahs asserted itself, and so much distrust was manifested that he had to be withdrawn.

Kind thoughtfulness of a chief.

IV. YALUNKA COUNTRY.

Falaba.

FALABA, the chief town of the Yalunka Country, was first opened as an out-station in December, 1897, when Mr. T. E. Alvarez, who then resided at Sinkunia, the head quarters of work in the country, sent two African agents to the town. No European missionaries, however, were stationed there until January, 1904, when Mr. Bowers went thither; he was followed a few weeks later by Messrs. Spreckley and White. They found the people "cleaner, cleverer, and more advanced" than the Limbahs, among whom they had been working, but further acquaintance with them made it clear that they are not altogether reliable. The antagonistic influence of Mohammedanism was soon felt, though it was chiefly exercised in secret. Mr. Bowers wrote in October:—

> As yet there are no real outward signs of hostility, but the influence of the Mohammedans is always centred upon the individual, and already I feel that they have persuaded the chief against giving us his compound for our Sunday services. He is a pagan of pagans, and although Mohammedan influence is on every side of his court, they have not won him over. Should this take place it will mean that the whole town will immediately be converted to Mohammedanism.

A good deal of time was of necessity spent in house-building, and the difficulty of that task was increased by the fact that the people have no need of money after they have paid the hut tax, and consequently have no desire to work for payment in either cash or goods. One of the boys in the employ of the missionaries was under instruction for baptism. They were also cheered one day by the open declaration of a Mohammedan priest named Sarfu, while staying at Falaba for a time, that he had become a Christian.

A Mohammedan priest publicly declares himself a Christian.

The school at Sinkunia, and, in a less degree, that at Manonkhon, suffered through an outbreak of small-pox, which attacked many of the children: Musaia, the third out-station, happily escaped.

WESTERN EQUATORIAL AFRICA MISSION.

A large proportion of the freed slaves gathered at Sierra Leone at the beginning of the nineteenth century had been carried away from the Yoruba country, which lies a thousand miles to the east. About the year 1840 many of them, having by that time become Christians and traders on their own account, returned to their fatherland. The result was an invitation to the missionaries to go thither, and the establishment of stations at Badagry, 1845, and Lagos, 1852, on the coast; and at Abeokuta, 1846, Ibadan, 1852, and other towns and villages in the interior. More recently, Ode Ondo, 1876; Oyo, 1887; Ogbomoso, 1894; and Oshogbo, 1900, have been occupied.

In 1841 a Government naval expedition, accompanied by a C.M.S. missionary, the Rev. J. F. Schön, and by Samuel Crowther, a liberated Negro slave, explored the River Niger. In 1854 a second expedition penetrated up the stream 500 miles, finding the Natives everywhere ready to receive Christian teachers; and in 1857 Mr. Crowther accompanied a third expedition, undertaken for commercial purposes, and laid the foundation of the Niger Mission by establishing three stations. One of these was Onitsha. Other stations were subsequently occupied—viz., Lokoja, 1865; Bonny, 1866; Brass, 1868; Asaba, 1875; the Basa country, 1897; Idumuje Ugboko, 1902; Bida, 1903; and Kaiyama, 1904.

Samuel Crowther was consecrated Bishop of the Niger Territories in 1864. He laboured zealously in the Mission till the end of 1891, when he died at Lagos. In June, 1893, the Rev. J. S. Hill succeeded Bishop Crowther, receiving the title of "Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa." Two experienced African clergymen, the Revs. C. Phillips and I. Oluwole, were consecrated as his Assistant-Bishops at the same time. Bishop Hill died in January, 1894, and Bishop Tugwell was consecrated the following March. In 1900, the Rev. James Johnson, a third Assistant-Bishop, was consecrated.

In 1890 a party of missionaries went out under the leadership of the Rev. J. A. Robinson and Mr. G. Wilmot Brooke, with the idea of residing at Lokoja, on the Upper Niger, and thence making an effort to reach the Mohammedans of the Hausa States. The climate shortly proved fatal to both the leaders, and drove the rest home. In 1899 Bishop Tugwell led a party to Kano, and though they were not permitted to stay there they did not leave the country. Gierku was occupied in 1902.

Two names have been removed through death from the Society's list of missionaries and pastors in Western Equatorial Africa. The first is that of Mrs. T. Harding, who was called to her rest at St. Leonards-on-Sea on May 22nd, 1904, after a long and painful illness. She joined the Mission as Miss A. L. Wright in 1890, and for four years exercised a remarkable influence for good on the women and girls of Abeokuta. She was married to Mr. Harding in 1894, and on returning with him from furlough worked earnestly at Ibadan, which from that time was the principal scene of her labours. In an In Memoriam notice of her in the C.M. Intelligencer the following passage occurs:—

Death of Mrs. T. Harding.

She was so simple and childlike, so straight and true and loyal, so zealous and unsparing of herself, and yet so tenderly considerate for others, working and spending herself when so often, to the writer's knowledge, she was hardly able to be about, so brave and patient under almost constant pain, and through it all presenting such a bright and cheerful countenance to all who came to her, that they little thought how she was suffering. She was highly gifted by God in various ways; not least with a peculiarly winning and fascinating personality. All her gifts, as well as herself, were fully yielded and consecrated to Him whom she served.

and the Rev. S. Doherty.

Two months after Mrs. Harding's death, on July 16th, the Rev. S. Doherty, the African pastor of Igbore, died at Abeokuta. He was the son of a catechist well known in the early days of the Mission, concerning whom some interesting particulars were given in last year's Report (see page 51), and was ordained by Bishop Crowther in 1882. For many years he superintended from Igbore the Abeokuta Church Missions in the Western District, and was secretary to the Committee of the Missions. Bishop Oluwole describes him as "a most faithful, devoted, and affectionate pastor, an able preacher, and an indefatigable worker."

Reinforcements.

The Mission received the following reinforcements:—The Rev. James Henry Linton, of Islington College, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders by the Bishop of London in St. Paul's Cathedral on Trinity Sunday, May 29th, 1904; Mr. Theodore Robert Woosnam Lunt, of West Buckland, Somerset; and Miss Eleanor Emma Scott Lorimer, of Upper Norwood, trained at The Willows and Bethnal Green. All the above sailed for the Mission in October, 1904, Mr. Linton having been assigned to the Interior Yoruba District, Mr. Lunt to Hausaland, and Miss Lorimer to Southern Nigeria. Mr. E. S. Dear, who in 1902 was appointed Accountant of the Mission, has been accepted as a missionary of the Society. The Society's work has suffered a loss by the consecration on October 28th, 1904, in St. Paul's Cathedral, of the Ven. Archdeacon N. T. Hamlyn as Assistant-Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa, to supervise the work of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts on the Gold Coast. Miss E. M. Robinson has retired on the expiration of her term of service.

Ordinations.

On Sunday, December 18th, 1904, Messrs. Emmanuel Shokunbi Aiyebiwo and James Pearse were admitted to Deacons' Orders by Bishop Oluwole in St. Paul's Church, Breadfruit, Lagos. Bishop Phillips admitted the Rev. J. McKay to Priests' Orders, and Mr. Emmanuel Adelabi Kayode to Deacons' Orders on Sunday, December 4th, in St. John's Church, Ilesa; and Mr. Daniel Adesina Williams to Deacons' Orders in St. David's Church, Kudeti, Ibadan, on the Feast of the Epiphany, January 6th, 1905.

Movements of the Bishops.

Bishop Tugwell left Lagos for the Niger portion of the Mission in February, 1904. After spending some time in the Onitsha and Asaba districts, he went to the Lokoja district in May, returning to Onitsha at the end of that month. In June he returned to Lagos, and remained there until August, when he visited Oyo for a few days. Mrs. Tugwell left for England early in September, and the Bishop followed her shortly afterwards, arriving at Plymouth on October 14th. Bishop Phillips, who has his head quarters at Ode Ondo, visited a number of the stations in the Yoruba country. Bishop Oluwole, who resides at Lagos, is Chairman of the Abeokuta Church Council, and devoted much of his time to the Jebu country. Bishop Johnson was chiefly engaged in the Niger Delta and the regions between that and the Yoruba country.

I. YORUBA COAST DISTRICT.

Miss C. C. Boyton came home in July, 1904; Archdeacon N. T. Hamlyn in September; the Rev. A. W. Smith in December; and Miss C. L. Rankilor in January, 1905.

Mr. E. S. Dear married Miss S. C. Chambers at Hampstead on September 21st, 1904, and sailed for the Mission with his bride in the following month. The Rev. J. S. Owen also left home to return to West Africa in October, but ill-health compelled him to come home again in April, 1905. Miss C. C. Boyton sailed for the Mission in January, 1905.

LAGOS.

The Rev. A. W. Smith was in pastoral charge of Christ Church, Lagos, until February, 1904, when Archdeacon (now Bishop) N. T. Hamlyn returned from England and resumed his former duties. The latter, before leaving Lagos for his consecration, was presented by the congregation with a Bible, an episcopal ring, and a valedictory address, as mementoes of his incumbency. Bishop Oluwole took charge of the congregation from September. Lagos.

The Girls' Seminary was under Miss E. Ballson, who had the help of Miss C. L. Rankilor, Miss C. C. Boyton being temporarily transferred to Ibadan. The girls carried off thirteen prizes at the Government exhibition in December, 1904, including the first prizes for sanitation, for English composition, and for plain needlework. The number of pupils fell off greatly, which made it difficult to raise sufficient to continue the support of the catechist at Ilaro, who is maintained by the free-will offerings of the girls. These, therefore, put forth special efforts, collecting money from former pupils, and doing needlework at home for the annual sale of work, and at the end of the year it appeared likely that they would be able to continue the catechist's support, notwithstanding the increase in his salary. The Rev. J. S. Fanimokun is the headmaster of the Grammar School. Mr. Smith was placed in charge of the Bookshop in April, 1904, when Mr. E. S. Dear left on furlough. He also paid occasional visits to the Leper Asylum at Yaba, five miles Girls' Seminary.

from Lagos, where six persons were received into the visible Church.

Badagry. Nine adults were baptized at Badagry in December, 1904, but the means of grace in general did not seem to be appreciated.

LAGOS NATIVE CHURCH AND MISSIONS.

Lagos Native Pastorate. The anniversary of the LAGOS NATIVE PASTORATE was held from June 5th to 8th, 1904. On Sunday, the 5th, special sermons were preached in all the churches. Bishop Oluwole preached in the morning at Christ Church from Psalm xxiv. 3. On Monday, the 6th, a united prayer-meeting was held in St. Paul's at 7 p.m., conducted by the Rev. D. Coker, pastor of St. Peter's. On Tuesday morning, at 9.30, a children's service was held in St. Paul's, attended by 1,000 children. At 7 p.m. the same day, in the same church, the Rev. R. A. Coker, superintendent of the Jebu Ode Mission, preached the anniversary sermon from 2 Peter iii. 18. On Wednesday evening, the 8th, the anniversary meeting was held at St. Paul's schoolroom, under the presidency of Bishop Oluwole.

Jebu Country. The major portion of the work of the LAGOS CHURCH MISSIONS lies in the Jebu Country, which extends over an area of 1,600 square miles, covered with dense forest, and watered by numerous streams and rivulets. This area is occupied by the Jebu tribe of the Yoruba nation, numbering some 200,000 persons—a tribe not living in huge towns, as the Egbas do in Abeokuta, and the true Yorubas in Ibadan, but scattered for the most part through their country in villages and tiny hamlets, each with its clearing in the forest where the land has been claimed for purposes of cultivation. The country is governed by a king holding the title of Awujale, who lives in the chief town, Jebu Ode, which contains perhaps 15,000 inhabitants. About fifty years ago an attempt was made by the late Rev. C. A. Gollmer to open up work among these people, and in the eighties the Rev. (now Bishop) James Johnson, who is himself of Jebu extraction, ventured to enter the country. But nothing could really be done until after 1892, when a British expedition was sent up to enforce order, defeated the Jebus who opposed it, and established a British representative in the chief town. Before long a few people who in the course of their trading journeys had come in contact with Christianity and had been favourably impressed with it, sent to Lagos asking for a teacher. The appeal was passed on to the C.M.S., but at that time no man was available.

The genesis of the work. The Church in Lagos thereupon determined to send and pay an African teacher. At first the work in Jebu Ode advanced but slowly, but in course of time its influence extended, and began to make itself felt in the surrounding villages. The Rev. J. S.

Owen, who has been working temporarily in the country, writes:—

The way in which this influence spread is well shown in a letter written by one of the best native authorities on Jebu work. He says:—"At the outset a good number of young men attached themselves to the Christian worker among them, being drawn thither by the mystery of letters, as well as by a conceived material advantage to be obtained by adopting the religion of the conquerors. As time went on, some of these went back, and those who remain are to be reckoned as forming, in a way, the moral and spiritual backbone of the Church to-day. If a somewhat low motive drew them in, they were soon, as they advanced in reading, led to see the vital importance of the religion they had lightly embraced. Thus those who first adhered to the religion, and tasted the sweetness and saw the beauty of Christianity were the real propagators of the religion in Jebu Ode proper, and also in the villages, two or more assigning themselves to a certain village, teaching and preaching as far as they knew themselves; and the people, seeing how important their friends became by their knowledge of letters, took to instruction with avidity. Thus the knowledge of reading, and even of scribbling, became widespread over the country."

The real propagators of Christianity.

The result of this preaching on the part of the converts was the stirring up of a spirit of inquiry and a desire for fuller knowledge in the villages, and requests for properly-qualified teachers began to come in. These were supplied, so far as men, means, and circumstances allowed. In this way each village which had a resident teacher became a centre for numerous surrounding villages. This phase of development has been most marked since the year 1896. From that time till the present the influence of the Christian religion has been spreading through the Jebu country in a manner probably as remarkable, though on a much smaller scale and therefore not so widely known, as the movement in Uganda. The result is that in the country which twelve years ago was closed against all, or almost all, outside influences, there are to-day about 10,000 people in some way connected with the Christian Church.

Many of these have been reached, not by any well-organized system of medical mission work, nor even by the evangelistic open-air preaching; but they have come forward voluntarily of their own accord, or through the representations of friends or relatives, the motives which prompt them varying considerably in different individuals. One old man, who has since died, on being examined before baptism, said: "I am now an old man; I have experienced what the world is. I observed that idolatry does not confer that happiness the heart craves for. Seeing that sacrifices to idols are vain and foolish, I made up my mind, without being preached to personally, to become a Christian, and now I find peace." Another said: "I joined the Christians because the Agunrins (men with an official position in the town) rarely trouble the Christians; but since reading the Scriptures I see that those only are saved who believe on Christ and are baptized."

"Idolatry does not confer happiness."

All this has practically been accomplished by African workers, though the Society has rendered some financial help, and has lent the services of some missionaries for the purpose of training African agents. Latterly great difficulty has been felt concerning the means for the payment of the agents. On this point Mr. Owen writes:—

Though workers increased, the subscriptions of the Lagos Church, which founded the work, did not advance in proportion. The amount contributed is at present indeed so small—little more than one-tenth of the total requirements—that, looked at from a financial point of view, the title "Lagos

A shortage of funds,

Church Missions" is a misnomer. The result of this shortage was that a fresh source of supply had to be found, and the workers in the Jebu country turned to the converts. Every adult adherent, whether baptized or not, was asked to contribute the sum of 2*s.* a quarter towards the support of their teachers, and so, very early in its history, the Jebu Church was called upon to largely support itself. This plan has been working for several years, with but partial success. Some subscribe regularly and willingly, but many, like many Christians in other parts of the world, keep the purse-strings very tight where spiritual work is concerned. And those especially who are in villages without a resident teacher do not see the force of subscribing to maintain teachers in other villages. The figures given herewith show the total income for the year ending September, 1903:—

C.M.S. grant	95	0	0
„ „ Henry Venn Fund	30	0	0
„ „ Lagos Church	90	12	0
Special Fund raised to pay off salary arrears .	24	14	6
	£801	6	6

From this it will be seen that by far the largest proportion, amounting to more than half the total expenditure, is given by the people themselves. This income, however, is not sufficient to pay the teachers and meet other expenses, and for the past few years the Church has been getting into debt, which debt is annually increasing. The income for the year ending September, 1902, was £720 14*s.* 4*d.*; the expenditure was £851 2*s.* 6*d.*, leaving a deficit of £130 8*s.* 2*d.* This deficit has increased until it is now nearly £300. The Jebu Church has no capital nor reserve fund upon which to draw to meet the deficit; it falls on the teachers to bear the burden of it. When the quarterly subscriptions come in, the senior agents stand aside and allow the junior agents to be fully paid. What remains is divided amongst the seniors. Arrears of salary accumulate, and some are forced to borrow. I know of one case of a senior agent who had arrears of a year's salary due to him. We have now reached a stage which has been foreseen for some time—the stage of dissatisfaction. A meeting of agents was held recently, and many talked of resigning on account of the unsatisfactory financial state of the Mission. One of the most promising has already resigned, and two others have been seeking for Christian work elsewhere; and this is not to be much wondered at.

Meanwhile a very determined effort is being made to wipe out the deficit. The whole matter has been discussed, and each centre in the district has been made responsible for a certain amount, e.g., Jebu Ode and villages, £100; Igbo, £60; Osasa and Ala, £10; and so on. An influential deputation of agents and leading Christians has been appointed, and the various centres are being visited, and the imperative necessity of supporting their teachers is being put before the people. This is being done by the Native Christians. The most recent letters from the front bring encouraging news that the people are responding, and already £140 has been given.

For several months of the year under review Mr. Owen was absent from Jebu Ode during a brief furlough in England. While at the station he gave instruction to some of the backward junior teachers, and also to the teachers in the adult Sunday-school.

Ilaro.

Besides the work in the Jebu country, the Lagos Church Missions have a station at Ilaro, ninety miles from Lagos, in the Sunren district of Abeokuta, where a catechist is supported by the pupils of the Girls' Seminary. A small church was opened there in August, and ten adult converts were baptized.

II. INTERIOR YORUBA DISTRICT.

Miss M. Blackwall came home in September, 1904; Mr. F. D. Coleman (on medical certificate) and Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Gane in October; Mrs. J. B. Wood in April, 1905; and the Rev. and Mrs. F. Melville-Jones in May. The Rev. T. Harding sailed for the Mission in July, 1904; the Rev. J. McKay in August; Dr. T. Jays, who married Miss Sarah Coles at Guildford on August 19th, sailed with his bride in October, but had to return to England on medical certificate in April, 1905; Miss J. Brandreth, Miss H. R. Hewitt, and Miss J. J. Thomas left for Africa in October, 1904; and Mrs. J. McKay in February, 1905. Mr. F. D. Coleman and Miss M. Blackwall were married in Nottingham on December 20th, 1904, and sailed for the Mission in the following April.

Abeokuta.

On Tuesday, June 14th, 1904, the Committee enjoyed the honour of an interview with the Alake of Abeokuta. The title "Alake" means Prince of Ake—Ake being the chief township of Abeokuta. The office is not hereditary, but is always held by the head of one of the four royal families in Abeokuta, and the appointment is for life. The four kings form a council on which the Alake exercises paramount authority. This council has supreme power over all internal affairs, except matters of life and death, which are referred, as are questions affecting aliens, to a mixed court of African magistrates and a European Commissioner or Chief Justice. The council has no power to raise an army, but it has a Constabulary, Public Works, Printing Press, Customs, and Treasury, all quite independent of the Lagos Government. The present Alake, who succeeded to the office about 1897, is the son, not of his immediate predecessor, but of the previous Alake, whose name was Sagbua, and whose letter to Queen Victoria and the Queen's reply through the Earl of Chichester furnished the sole basis for the oft-repeated story of the Queen's addressing an African or Eastern sovereign in person regarding the Bible as the secret of England's greatness. This was never spoken to a native of Africa, but it was in effect said by letter to Sagbua. The present Alake is not a baptized Christian, but he regularly attends the Townsend-Wood Memorial Church, which is in the Ake township and not far from his residence. Indeed, at the time of his appointment he stipulated that the rule which prohibited Alakes from going outside their abode by day should not apply to him, as he wished to be free to go to the House of God on the Lord's Day. On several occasions he has asked for special prayer or praise in connexion with public events. Once, during a time of drought, instead of instituting a town sacrifice according to custom, he asked the Christians to pray to God for rain. At 4 p.m. on the Sunday that special prayer was offered such bountiful showers were sent that many were prevented from attending the evening service. Another time, when the terrible scourge of small-pox was raging, and the heathen priests proposed certain rites, the king and council applied to the Bishop to set apart a week for prayer, and he himself attended the special services on one of the days. He has firmly put down persecution of Christians, and he has prohibited certain heathen forms of worship which interfered with individual liberty and subjected women in particular to cruel treatment and even death. Slave-trading has been abolished in his dominion, and a fine of £250 may be imposed for infractions of this law.

A God-fearing ruler.

On the occasion of the interview with the Committee, the Alake, who was dressed in his state robes, took off his crown soon after entering the room, his secretary explaining that he did it in recognition of the fact that the meeting related to the affairs of Christ. In the course of his reply to the address of welcome which was presented to him the Alake said that the Committee could little realize how great a work had been done in his country by the Society's agents, and added that he looked forward to the day when there would not be a single Pagan in Abeokuta. Before his return to Africa he was presented by King Edward, who had accorded him an interview, with an exquisitely bound Bible, bearing the following inscription:—

The Alake's interview with the Committee.

Presentation of a Bible by King Edward.

"Presented by Edward the Seventh, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India, to the Alake of Abeokuta, July, 1904, to replace the Bible given by Queen Victoria in 1848 to Sagbua, father of the present Alake, which was lost in a fire twenty years after."

The Alake arrived in Abeokuta on July 29th. While in Lagos he had sent a request that a Thanksgiving Service should be arranged in the Townsend-Wood Memorial Church, which he wished to attend on his way before entering his residence. The service was duly held, and Bishop Oluwole gave a short address to the large congregation which assembled.

Dispensary.

The management of the Dispensary at Abeokuta was assumed by Mr. F. D. Coleman, transferred from the Jebu country, when Mr. E. Fry left for England in February, 1904, Mrs. J. B. Wood rendering valued help in teaching the patients. Their number was rather smaller than in former years, owing to the opening of a Government dispensary at the railway station, but nevertheless the work was evidently appreciated. A good many Hausa-speaking people came for treatment, and among them a woman, Amina by name, a native of Sokoto, whose story is narrated by Mrs. Fry as follows :—

She was sold when a young girl to an Egba master, who brought her to Abeokuta. For about a year she attended the dispensary, and also a service held for patients every Sunday morning at seven o'clock. One Sunday her place was empty, and on making inquiries we found that she had been taken by her master to a slave-dealer in the town, who had put her into shackles, and exposed her for sale in the market. For a whole week she was in that pitiable condition with but little to eat, but on the following Sunday she managed to convey a message to us secretly, begging for help. The matter was at once taken before the Alake (who recently visited England), who without delay sent a messenger bearing his royal staff to the slave-dealer's house. In a short time Amina, her master, and the slave-dealer stood before the Alake. The master could bring no accusation against his slave, but rather praised her, and gave as his reason for acting as he had done that he feared she might run away. The Alake ordered the shackles to be struck off, and then and there proclaimed Amina a free woman, at the same time inflicting a heavy fine on the slave-dealer. Upon Amina expressing a wish to come and live with us the Alake graciously gave his consent, and we have employed her in the dispensary ever since. She is an inquirer, and anxious to be baptized.

Prompt measures against a slave-dealer.

The Scripture Union work prospered, but the members required a good deal of keeping up to the mark. Mr. Coleman left for England on medical certificate in September, 1904, and Dr. and Mrs. T. Jays arrived at the station in November, but, as already stated, the condition of Dr. Jay's health compelled him to return home after a few months.

The services in connexion with the anniversary of the Abeokuta Pastorate Association were held in the Townsend-Wood Memorial Church on September 5th, 1904, and the anniversary meeting, under the presidency of Bishop Oluwole, on the following day. The Alake and the Oshile attended both the service and the meeting. The Bible presented by King Edward to the Alake was exhibited at the meeting, and greatly interested the people. One of the resolutions passed at the meeting expressed serious concern at the falling off of Christian marriages, and invited the members of the Church to do all that lay in their power to encourage those belonging to Christian congregations who contemplated conjugal union to be duly married in church. On the 7th the foundation-stone of a substantial schoolroom was laid by the Alake in the grounds of the Ake mission-house. The Oshile just mentioned is the king who stands next to the Alake in precedence. The present occupant of the office was crowned early in 1904, and was presented on the occasion with a Bible by the clergy and members of the Ake congregation. He is in a position of great difficulty as a professing Christian reigning over Heathen. Mrs. Wood continued her visits to the houses of the kings and chiefs. Bishop Oluwole confirmed 133 candidates in July, 1904.

The Christians belonging to the Ikija Pastorate, under the Rev. D. Williams, were diligent in their attendance at the services, but unhappily contracted the habit of unpunctuality. A preaching band, composed of both adults and children, carried on open-air work every Sunday afternoon. Nearly half the ninety-eight pupils of the day-school are Mohammedans. Seven adults were baptized. The Rev. J. J. Olumide has been transferred from Ake to fill the vacancy in the Igbore Pastorate caused by the death of the Rev. S. Doherty.

Early in the year small-pox raged in the farm district around Abeokuta and claimed many victims, including one of the Christians named Stephen Adorin. Mrs. Fry says of him:—

A "remarkable memory."

He was a slave-boy working at a farm at the time of his conversion. Soon afterwards he was bitten in the forehead by a snake, and in consequence entirely lost his sight and was cast off by both his master and relatives. For years he was cared for and supported by Jacob Fadipe, and in return helped him in his work. Although Stephen was never able to read the Bible for himself, yet he had a most remarkable memory, and gained from others such a thorough knowledge of the Scriptures that he was able to prepare candidates for baptism and conduct week-day services and evening prayers in the little church.

Jacob Fadipe, referred to above, is the "father of all the work in the farms in the eastern district" (see Annual Reports, 1900–01, page 79; 1901–02, page 77; 1902–03, page 66).

IBADAN.

Ibadan.

The Rev. T. Harding, of IBADAN, who returned to his station in the summer of 1904, was cheered by various indications that "the leaven of the Gospel is working its way" in the district under his charge. One of these indications was in connexion with the election of a successor to the Bale, who died at the end of the year under review. Mr. Harding writes:—

There were two persons who desired to fill the post: (1) the Balogun of the town, and (2) the Otun, or next chief in rank to the late Bale. We, as Christians, without making any open declaration of our preference, prayed that the Otun would be elected, as he was an older and more experienced man, more humble, and had shown himself, several times, favourable to the spread of Christianity.

The Otun was elected, in spite of the Balogun having more powerful earthly influences behind him, and he was made Bale of Ibadan, the largest town on the West Coast, on Friday, December 30th.

An African potenate promises not to hold court on Sundays.

The Bale saw God's hand in his appointment, and he attended Aremo church on Sunday, January 8th, to give thanks to God for putting him into this position, and he made a thank-offering. This is the first time in the history of the country that a Bale of Ibadan has attended divine service.

On Saturday, Jan. 14th, I went to see the Bale, when he told me that he had that day declared to his chiefs that from henceforth he would hold no court on Sundays. He promised to assist in putting a roof on a church which is being built at Oke Mapo, one of our stations close to his house, and to attend service there when the church was ready. This means that a large number of heathen people will attend with him. It also means that religion will become more popular.

On Monday, the 16th, all the Christians in a body went to congratulate the Bale on his elevation to the position, and to present him with a Bible as the Book which contains all our teaching and reveals to us the only Saviour of men. He received them very warmly, gave them his eldest son, a man of about forty years of age, to be in closest touch with them and to act for himself, and pronounced himself a Christian, which means that he will be from henceforth something like the Alake of Abeokuta in attending services and giving his moral support to the establishment and extension of Christianity in the sphere under his jurisdiction.

Pastorates.

The anniversary of the Ibadan Native Pastorate was held in August, a large number of persons, especially of men, being present. The subscriptions, £157, were £20 in excess of those of the previous year, and at the meeting of the Native Church Council, which followed the anniversary, a candidate for ordination was nominated, the step involving the assumption of responsibility for his salary of £45. At the anniversary of the Native Missionary Society, which took place in December, the gifts of the people exceeded expectations, and included gold, silver, copper, cowries, corn, yams, kola-nuts, cloth, bracelets, anklets, rings, crockery, galvanized ware, and sawn timber! The contributions of the members of the Aremo Pastorate, under the Rev. J. Okuseinde, increased by more than thirty per cent., and the people are said to commend their profession by their lives. Many of them engaged in evangelistic work, and were instrumental in leading several Heathen to abandon their idols. Twenty-four adults were baptized. Miss E. M. Hill had Miss C. C. Boyton, of Lagos, as her colleague in the Girls' School at Aremo from February, 1904, when Miss H. R. Hewitt left on furlough, until June. In November Miss Hewitt once more rejoined her, and took charge of the school, which contained eighteen inmates, most of them from towns further in the interior than Ibadan. Two of the girls, both from heathen homes, were under instruction for baptism, and there was a real improvement in the lives of several of them. The Rev. D. Olubi was in charge of the Kudeti Pastorate, in which is situated the dispensary carried on by Miss M. Blackwall (now Mrs. F. D. Coleman) until she was transferred to Oyo early in 1904.

Native Christians lead Heathen to abandon idols.

In the autumn Mr. Harding made a fortnight's tour in the farm districts. He was impressed with the fact that a change is coming over the people, and says that everywhere they listened gladly and with an evident desire to learn. He adds, "Please pray that at last the Yorubas, who have been so dark and self-satisfied, may have hunger and thirst created in them by the Holy Spirit for the salvation of God." Nine adults were baptized at Ogunpa, where the candidate for ordination mentioned above is stationed, and several also at Apomu and Lalupou.

An "evident desire to learn."

OYO AND OGBOMOSO.

Oyo. Training Institution

The Training Institution at Oyo, under the Rev. F. Melville Jones, the Secretary of the Yoruba portion of the Mission, was quite full throughout the year. Four students left in February, 1904, to take charge of various mission-schools, making a total of twenty-nine men who have passed through the Institution. Two of these have died, three have left the work for various causes, and twenty-four are still in the employment of the Mission. The vacancies were filled without any difficulty, one of the new students being Audu, a Hausa lad, who was baptized by Bishop Tugwell at the station in August. Mr. Melville Jones, writing a few months later, gave his history as follows:—

Baptism of a Hausa youth.

He is a native of Katsena. His father was a strict Mohammedan and a leading mallam. He was brought up in his father's steps, and together, when Audu was only eleven years old, they set out to make the pilgrimage to Mecca. His father died under the hardship of the journey across the Sahara desert, and little Audu, after passing through many dangers, found himself a stranger in Tripoli with little or no money. There he fell in with Mr. Nott and others of the Hausa missionaries, who were studying the language in the town. He learnt to love the missionaries' home and to appreciate their kindness, but, earnest Mohammedan that he was, his pilgrimage came first, and again he set out to accomplish the long and trying journey. His desire was, after many trials and vicissitudes, at last gained, but he found in the wickedness of the sacred city and the conduct of his fellow-pilgrims nothing to satisfy his longing soul. On his way back he fell in with missionaries in Egypt, who befriended him, and finally Dr. Miller, who had grown intensely fond of the lad, invited him to join him in England, and offered to adopt him. Audu agreed, on condition that he should not be pressed to become a Christian.

The wickedness of Mecca.

From that time he lived in very close contact with Dr. Miller, and the Christian life spoke more strongly than words. Mecca had shaken his faith in Mohammed. He soon after became a follower of Christ. After he had been with Dr. Miller for some two years at the mission-station at Gierku, and the time had come for the latter's furlough, it was decided that Audu should come to us, and the doctor left his boy with us last April. We rather wondered how he would settle down to the discipline of the Institution, and how he would get on with the other students; but he soon got accustomed to the place, and is a favourite with us all. It was a great joy when, of his own accord, he asked to be baptized (a step from which he had hitherto shrunk), and on August 28th this firstfruits of the Hausa Mission was gathered into the Church. Every Sunday he is in the habit of preaching to the Hausas who sell in our chief market-place. Dr. Miller has again gone back to his work in Gierku, but Audu has chosen to stay on here to be further trained to be a teacher among his own people.

Miss M. Blackwall returned to Oyo from Ibadan early in 1904, and at once opened a dispensary. A simple Gospel address was given to the patients who assembled, and many learnt about the Saviour, but "fear, superstition, the power of past customs, and indifference" kept them back from resolutely following Christ. Two boys, however, patients at the dispensary, were baptized at Christmas, and a little slave boy, who for some years had been in touch with the missionaries, was given to Miss Blackwall to be brought up as a Christian.

"Fear, superstition, and indifference."

His secretarial duties prevented Mr. Melville Jones from making the usual preaching tour in the spring, and later in the year an outbreak of small-pox kept him from any prolonged absence from the station. At Isehin the Christians have begun to build a place of worship, and a church, erected by funds contributed by the members of the Nottingham Junior Association, was opened at Akemoni. This latter event caused the Mohammedans to build a mosque in rivalry. The students of the Training Institution paid a visit to the large town of Oke Iho, where ten years ago the people expressed a desire to have a Christian teacher. The place would make a good centre for work, since there are many large villages in the neighbourhood, but no evangelist has been available to take up his residence in the town.

Ogbomoso. Ogbomoso was left in charge of a catechist.

Oshogbo. Mr. H. F. Gane superintended the work at Oshogbo until the return of the Rev. J. McKay from England towards the end of September, 1904, when the former left on furlough. At the beginning of the year the Training Class for evangelists had six members, but in February two of them went out, one to take up work at Ibadan, and another to occupy Ilofa, a new out-station of Oshogbo. One new student joined the class in August. The men took part in the spiritual work at the dispensary, which had an average attendance of fifty, and helped Mrs. Gane in the conduct of the day-school. The Sunday services attracted so many people that it was found necessary to enlarge the plans for the proposed new church. The Christians contributed well to the Church funds, and at the first provisional Church Council for the Oyo and Oshogbo district, they were represented by two delegates, while several of the older stations were only entitled by their contributions to one. They manifested also some evangelistic zeal, for every Sunday afternoon some of them, led by the Church elders, conducted a service at the house of the Bale, and on the last Sunday in each month the whole body of converts went forth after Evening Prayer and held open-air services in various parts of the town. Fifteen persons were baptized by Mr. McKay on his return, including a son of the late Bale of Oshogbo, and a son of another chief.

The out-stations are five in number. At Obagun, where the work is in the hands of Onipede, a former student of the Training Class, the king gave up some of his idols and became a regular attendant at church; he and his people built a mission-house for the evangelist, and one of the chiefs was admitted to the catechumenate. Mr. McKay, who baptized nineteen persons there in the autumn, describes the service thus:—

A "king" present at a baptismal service,

The king and his favourite wives and some of the chiefs were present, and appeared to take a deep interest in all that went on. I was in the vestry when the procession passed the window, and I could not help being amused at it. First came a little girl carrying a cheap English clock; then came one of the wives with the king's rug, followed by another with his fan; a man carrying a marvel of a chair, covered with the brightest of beads; one or two attendants followed; and then came the king himself, wearing a richly beaded crown, and bearing his staff of office which was also covered with beads. At the church door the king took off his crown, his attendants screening him by holding a native cloth in front of him, it evidently being against Obagun custom to take off or put on the crown in public. As soon as they were seated the greatest reverence was shown by the king and his followers. It was a service I shall not easily forget.

and examined in the catechism,

The king attended afternoon Sunday-school and allowed me to examine him as to the progress he was making in the Catechism. He knew the Ten Commandments very well indeed, and answered the few questions I put to him very intelligently. Onipede told me afterwards that he was persuaded that the king was a Christian at heart and would like to be prepared for baptism but for the difficulty of his wives. He has already given up his idols, and says he prays to God through Christ alone. It would be almost an unheard-of thing for a chief in his position to give up all his wives save one and embrace Christianity, but with God all things are possible, and we must keep on praying for him and his people.

Eight of those baptized at Obagun came from Oyan, and were the fruit of the work of an Oshogbo Christian who was formerly a trader in gin and rum, but was baptized early in 1903. A voluntary worker held the fort at Ada; and at Ora, another voluntary worker, Samuel Lasinde (see Annual Reports, 1899–1900, page 78; 1901–02, pages 81, 82), was in charge. In spite of the persecution which they have suffered the Christians at the latter place have stood firm, and their number has increased. Permission was received to rebuild the church which was demolished early in 1903 by order of the then British Resident at Ibadan (see last year's Report, page 55). An agent was stationed at Ilofa in response to the appeal of the people, who had built a church and mission-house in the hope of obtaining a resident teacher. A young man belonging to the village was baptized in November, the firstfruits of the place. He had been brought up as a Mohammedan and was won to Christ through the instrumentality of Samuel Lasinde.

ODE ONDO AND ILESA.

Ode Ondo.

Bishop Phillips, who was in charge of the ODE ONDO district, had seven young men in his class of student-evangelists. At the beginning of 1904 the most advanced of them passed the entrance examination of the Training Institution at Oyo, and another young man was received in his stead. Some of the senior students did good work in the district during the three months, June to August, that Bishop Phillips was absent from the station. Two meetings of the Provisional Church Council, which was formed early in 1904, were held, the first at Ode Ondo in April, and the second at Ilesa in December. The work at Ode Ondo, where the Rev. S. J. Gansallo, the African deacon, is quasi-pastor, was affected by the want of remunerative employment in the country, which caused the Church members, especially the men, to scatter over the district in search of occupation. The attendance at the classes consequently fell off, and the native contributions naturally suffered as well. At the request of the king, whose name is Osemowe, a special service was held on the day before his coronation, at the close of which he was presented with a copy of the Yoruba Bible in the name of the Ode Ondo Church. The king afterwards invited Mr. Gansallo to hold Bible-readings with him and his household. A new place of worship, built by the adherents themselves, was opened at Odigbo, which has been adopted by the Ondo Church as an out-station. The other out-stations are Ekun and Oke Igbo. At the latter five adults were baptized in May, 1904. Although Christianity is making its way in the town, yet heathen festivals are still held there, happily with different rites from those customary in olden days. Mr. Gansallo wrote in November :—

Provisional Church Council.

> It is now nearly three months since various festivals in connexion with Heathenism were going on. "Odun Oba," "Odun Ogun," "Iforo," "Odun Moko," and several others were observed. The usual temporary restrictions on the liberty of women were enforced, and they were prevented from attending services on Sundays. This year the atonement day fell on September 16th. Formerly on this day human sacrifice was offered. The victim was usually a slave, who, after tortures and imprecations, was dragged to a particular bush and there offered up. By his death an atonement for all the evils done during the year was supposed to be made, and the favour of the gods was thereby secured. To-day we are thankful that British influence has put a stop to human sacrifices, but we earnestly long to see the Christian religion influencing the people to give up their hearts to God.

Human sacrifices abolished

The Rev. E. M. Lijadu, who devotes most of his time to evangelistic work, visited the congregations in the Aiyesan district, and baptized twenty-seven persons. At Igbo Tako seven youths were baptized, who had been influenced in favour of Christianity by the converts of 1903 (see last year's Report, page 57). In the neighbouring town of Iju Odo the catechumens passed the resolution: "We, the followers of Christ, will not sit idle and look on at the Mohammedans building a mosque in our town, while we secure no place for Jesu's name," and then proceeded to clear a large plot of land and to collect materials for a church. Thirteen persons were baptized at Igbo Egurin, and the adherents of the Mission voluntarily cut themselves off from such of their national privileges as they thought would be a snare to them. Much zeal also was manifested by the women of Itebu Kuonmi. There was a deficit of £3 8*s*. in the minimum required from the Christians of that place in order that they might have a resident evangelist, and the eleven women undertook to raise the money. Mr. Lijadu, in mentioning the fact, points out that to a woman in that part "sixpence a month is equal to one whole day's angling every week on the waters, or one long day's hoeing every week on the farms," which presumably means that it is equivalent to four days' work. The evangelist at this out-station is so beloved by his people, that when they suspected that he was planning to leave their town for another they prostrated themselves, begging him not to desert them. In the autumn Mr. Lijadu responded to the repeated invitations of some Christians at a place called Makun and paid them a visit. He writes :—

"We will not sit idle."

People beg their teacher not to leave them.

> The town formerly was one of the many camps of pirates which flourished on the eastern waters; and some who are now converts have served in many a shameful expedition and shed much innocent blood. Their headman tells how he withstood for years the introduction of Christianity into Makun, but how at last he was won over to Christ by the patience, love, and most gentle forbearance of the Leke Christians who came over from time to time to preach to them. To Leke Christians and teachers Makun owes all she has now of religious knowledge.

Former pirates become Christians.

Ilesa.

The Christians at Ilesa, where the Rev. R. S. Oyebode is in pastoral charge, threw themselves with energy into the task of building a new and substantial church. Eight persons were baptized at Iperindo and five at Ise. At Ile Ife there was a yet larger ingathering, for twenty-one adults were received into the visible Church there in June, 1904. The Church, however, was distracted by a secession fomented by the native authorities for political ends, and violent persecution was set on foot against those who refused to join the seceders. At the request of Bishop Phillips Mr. Oyebode visited the Ekiti country, and baptized thirty-three men and eighteen women.

III. SOUTHERN NIGERIA.

Miss H. J. Duncum came home in October, 1904; Miss A. L. Wilson returned to New Zealand in November; Miss E. A. Hornby and Miss M. E. Elms (the latter on medical certificate) came home in January, 1905; the Rev. S. R. Smith in February; and the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. R. Wilson, Miss M. J. Martin and Miss E. M. Robinson in March. Mrs. T. J. Dennis sailed for the Mission in July, 1904; Mr. J. N. Cheetham in October.

New Ibo Pastorate.

At the beginning of 1904 a provisional Ibo Pastorate was formed, comprising the congregations worshipping at Christ Church and Immanuel Church, Onitsha, St. Andrew's, Obusi, St. John's, Akwukwu, and St. Philip's, Ugbolu, and at Asaba.

One of the objects of the Pastorate is to develop self-support among the Christians. Mr. Alvarez writes:—

Efforts at self-support.

At the beginning of 1904 certain proportions of the money lying to the credit of these churches were put into the bag—which is the native way of expressing the idea of something being "pooled"—as a reserve fund of the new Pastorate scheme. This was done by agreement and not under compulsion, the amount reaching some £53 odd. Then month by month the churches gave the larger portion of their receipts—about three-quarters—to the "bag," from which the salaries of the six agents employed and certain other necessary items of expenditure were paid. With the remainder—roughly a quarter of the monthly receipts—the churches kept themselves going to the end of the year, and in every case were able to save a little and close the year with something in hand. And what state of things was disclosed then in the Pastorate Fund finances? It was found that the expenditure had exceeded the receipts by some £14, and it was decided by the people themselves to make up half of this by additional contributions from each of the churches, and to ask the Church Missionary Society to provide the other portion, £7. When we bear in mind that, in addition to the above, five of the six churches had special collections for the Bible Society, and that two of the six churches have been supporting two missionary agents of their own all through the year, we feel encouraged and thank God with all our hearts that He has so far prospered the efforts of His people to bear their own burden.

It should be mentioned that no part of the Society's grant-in-aid has been withdrawn.

ONITSHA.

From October, 1903, until June, 1904, Mr. T. E. Alvarez, the Secretary of the Niger portion of the Mission, was absent on furlough, and the Rev. T. J. Dennis discharged both the duties of the secretariat and also those connected with the general superintendence of the work at ONITSHA, assistance being rendered after March, 1904, by the Rev. G. T. Basden, transferred from Oka. Three confirmation services were held at Christ Church, where the Rev. G. N. Anyaegbunam was in pastoral charge. The new church was opened at Christmas, 1904, though still incomplete. Several adults were baptized both at Christ Church and at Immanuel Church.

Onitsha.

Work among Women and children was carried on by the Misses A. L. Wilson, of the New Zealand Association, E. Dennis, M. H. Holbrook, M. J. Martin, M. E. Elms, and E. M. Robinson. Several women came to learn to read, whose lives afforded cause for thankfulness, but others grew cold and fell away. Miss Holbrook says that it is increasingly difficult for the young Christians to stand firm, and mentions that, shortly before she wrote her Annual Letter, four girls, former pupils of the day-school, had gone to live with men contrary to God's law, and that three of the men were baptized Christians. She writes:—

Success depends upon prayer.

It is only the certain knowledge that the Lord Jesus will surely reign, that prevents us from giving way to despair sometimes when we see what power the world, the flesh, and the Devil have over the bodies and souls of these people. I am more and more sure that the measure of success in work for the Master depends upon the time spent alone with Him, so I would ask you to pray that we may have the courage to even put aside sometimes work which seems important, if it fills time that prayer ought to have.

Miss Brandreth, who was away from March to November, 1904, on furlough, and Miss Martin shared the work of the Day-school at the Waterside, which contains between forty and fifty children in the upper school, and from seventy to eighty in the infant department. The girls were slow to learn that prompt obedience must be rendered, and that what is right ought to be done rather than what is pleasant. The Medical Work was in the hands of Miss Elms and Miss Robinson, both of them trained nurses. New wards were erected for the hospital, bringing the number of beds up to twenty, and all of these were generally full. Large numbers of people also attended the dispensary, but that had to be closed temporarily in November, owing to Miss Elms contracting typhoid fever, which eventually obliged her to return home. Before her illness, however, she had the pleasure of arranging for the building of a small maternity hospital for the reception of twin children and their mothers. She thus describes the circumstances which led the people of Onitsha to undertake the work :—

Hospital for twin children and their mothers.

While I was away in the interior a case of twins was reported. On my return the next day the people came to say one was dead. I affected a good deal of anger, and charged them with poisoning it, which, of course, they denied. I told them to bring the remaining baby to me, which they did, and I found a very suspicious mark on the abdomen as though poison had been rubbed in, and the child was evidently dying. Still I was not quite clear, as infants here have a disease which the natives call "Obi," which makes a similar mark, though it is not quite so regular in appearance as this. However, the child died, and the grandfather was arrested on suspicion. He is a great chief in the town, so there was much trouble and excitement. The king sent a deputation begging me try and get his release. His wives and all his family also came, and every day a body of chiefs came, beseeching me on their knees to do something. For some days I hardened my heart and said that one must be made an example of, so that the practice of killing twins might be stopped. Then I yielded, for I thought as the place was so moved that perhaps his release might do more towards it than his death. So I wrote over to the District Commissioner giving the facts of the case. I had a most polite letter from him accepting my statements and promising the man's release. The rejoicing when it was known was very great, and I fear I was looked upon as something superhuman in spite of my protestations to the contrary. However, it was my opportunity, and I got the king to call together all the chiefs, and taking with me the African pastor and Miss Holbrook, one of our number, and a band of Christian women, we went and "harangued" them. I tried to put plainly before them their great responsibility in the matter before God, and asked them what they were going to do. They said, "We put ourselves completely in your hands and whatever you say that will we do." So I suggested that they should build a suitable house near to the hospital, where their women should come; I would superintend them and take care of the little ones, but the whole responsibility of feeding them, &c., should be theirs. They very willingly agreed, and in a few days had collected £20. 10*s.* in money, besides poles and posts. The released man wanted to give me a goat, but I suggested that he should give it as a thank-offering; so I have sold the goat and with the money have bought a number of long market baskets, which I intend to line with wool as beds for the little strangers. The man who was released has thrown open his compound to us, and every Sunday after my little Sunday-school is over I take some of the elder boys and we go and hold a short Gospel service there.

Miss E. E. S. Lorimer has been appointed to the medical work, and since the return home of Miss Elms and Miss Robinson has been in sole charge of it.

Iyi Enu. Girls' Training School.

At the close of 1903 the Girls' Training School was removed from Onitsha to Iyi Enu, where it occupied the building formerly used for the Training Class for Evangelists. The change of quarters and the difficulty of making the necessary new arrangements proved a great strain on Miss E. A. Warner and Miss H. J. Duncum, but they were cheered by an increase in the number of pupils contrary to the expectation which had been formed. Since 1895, when the school was opened, 110 girls have been admitted. Eleven of them have married African agents of the Society, twenty-one are the wives of other Christian men, sixteen are in Christian homes, seven have proved unsatisfactory, and the remainder are still in the school. Much sorrow was caused at one time by cases of theft on the part of two of the girls, but on the other hand the year witnessed great improvement in the conduct of several, and in December six of them were hoping shortly to be baptized. One of the girls had the joy of finding her relatives. Miss Warner writes:—

A slave girl finds her mother.

She belongs to some people in Onitsha, to whom she was sold by her dead father's relatives when she was too small to remember anything. She was taken into the school with her owner's consent two years ago. Her mother and grandparents have been seeking her ever since she was sold, and only obtained a clue to her whereabouts this year, and sent her a message. Miss Dennis and I went with her in the Easter holidays to her town (about eighteen miles from here), and had the joy of seeing her meet her relatives. At her own request she stood up before a large crowd outside her grandfather's house, when the relatives who had sold her were present, and told them she was glad of their action because through it she had learnt to love God, and she had come back to tell them about Jesus, the Saviour of the world.

Miss E. Dennis took Miss Duncum's place in October, when the latter left for England.

Oka.

In January, 1904, the Rev. S. R. Smith left Iyi Enu and took up his residence at Oka, a town forty miles from Onitsha, where he was joined in a few weeks by the Rev. G. T. Basden, and the student evangelists who were under training. At the end of March Mr. Basden left for Onitsha, and a month or two later Mr. W. E. Blackett, one of the West Indian agents, came to Mr. Smith's assistance. On Mr. Smith's return to England on furlough Mr. J. N. Cheetham took charge. Six of the students left in December, 1904, to take up work at their appointed stations. The evangelistic work in the town was mainly directed towards the chiefs and the adult population. Large numbers of people listened respectfully to the message proclaimed, and in December three churches were erected by the Natives at their own cost, and, in addition, an idol-house, fitted with tiers of palm-trunks for seats, was converted into a church. Mr. Smith writes of the religion of the people as follows:—

Barbarities connected with heathen worship.

> Oka is the centre of an organized slave-traffic and human sacrifices carried on in connexion with a consulting oracle called the "Agbala." This Agbala has a very wide reputation as a speaking oracle, and to consult it come, and have come for generations, bands of Natives speaking several different languages, led thither by the Oka blacksmiths, who make their head quarters in the various towns represented by the pilgrims. The oracle, primed by Oka men, settles points in dispute, and disposes of a certain number of those who visit it either by killing them or selling them into slavery. I have often seen these pilgrim parties carrying heavy and valuable loads of cloth on their heads, and have felt miserable that I could do but little to put an end to such an organized and awful imposture.

The human sacrifices referred to by Mr. Smith were abolished by a Government expedition in January, 1905.

Many of the Onitsha missionaries engaged in itinerations, visiting the out-stations, and also going to places where there is at present no resident African agent. A new church and also a dispensary were opened at Obusi, and Ogidi received weekly visits for the purpose of affording medical relief to a small number of patients. In the latter town, where Miss Warner spent ten days, there are no baptized women with the exception of the wife of the catechist, but the inquirers include a few women, and some of the girls of the Training School are betrothed to Christian men belonging to the place. New out-stations were opened at Nnewi (see last year's Report, page 62) and Atani. The leading chiefs at Anamu, where the work is carried on by a catechist supported by the congregation worshipping at Christ Church, Onitsha, gave up their idols, and the king forbade the holding of a market in his street on Sundays. Miss Wilson and Miss Brandreth visited the place early in the year, and their presence brought large numbers of people together to listen to the Gospel. They had a similar experience in another of the villages which compose Anamu, notwithstanding that a heathen festival known as the "second burial" (see last year's Report, page 68) was in progress. In a third village they met a man who showed a strong desire to become a Christian, and who gave up his "medicines" after a struggle. At Ogbunike, eight miles from Onitsha, which has been occupied for nearly ten years, and has always been a "hard place to work," three adults were baptized. Miss E. Dennis, who resided there for several months, speaks of an old woman who was baptized and confirmed in 1904, and died at the beginning of 1905. She writes:—

Chiefs give up their idols.

> She could not read, being too old to learn, but God's Spirit had taught her many things. She was a great joy and strength to me in the work, being full of zeal and love of souls. I often heard of visits she had paid to inquirers, helping them in every possible way. The day she was confirmed she walked the eight miles from Onitsha after the service, in the heat of the day, and came at once into the room we were then using for a church, and poured out her heartfelt thanksgiving to God for His love to her. I do not think I shall ever forget her prayer. On Christmas Day she was in her usual health, and was full of rejoicing. During the following week, when sick, she told her heathen relatives not to wail for her if she died. An aged convert full of zeal.

Another woman, who was an inquirer, made wonderful progress in her studies, and as soon as she had mastered her A.B.D. (there is no C in the Ibo language) began to teach others. Accompanied by five girl pupil-teachers Miss Holbrook made two itinerations, going to Umudioka, Umunya, and Okuzu. Bishop Tugwell, who happened to be present when the workers were at the last named town, says:—

I was deeply interested and much impressed with the earnest attention of the people who gathered round to hear the message of God's love to sinful men and women; and I was especially pleased with the way in which the Native Christian women pleaded with their heathen sisters to accept the Saviour Who has died for them. The great contrast between the women was very striking. The Christian women neatly clad in clean cotton dresses, well nourished, with kind, gentle manners; the heathen women unclad and unclean, their hair twisted into all kinds of fantastic shapes, their faces scarred, their bodies stained with all manner of dyes, most of them looking overworked and underfed—it was hard to believe that they belonged to the same race and to the same tribe; and yet a few years ago some of those who were preaching were as those who now sat and listened. Truly the Gospel is the power of God. What other power could lift up and dignify and ennoble poor down-trodden African women as the Gospel does? Contrast between Christian and heathen women.

In the evening I sat down on the ground with a number of men, women, and children, who had gathered in the ilo (i.e., compound, or yard, or large open space which has been carefully swept) outside the mission-house. It was a dark, still, hot night. Covered by the darkness I was unobserved, save by those immediately beside me. It was a deeply interesting scene. In the centre, on a small camp-chair, sat Miss Holbrook; at her feet the Christian girls; around them row upon row of heathen listeners, who sat or lay on the sandy soil. The only available light was that of a hurricane-lantern. The girls sang hymns, teaching the people to take up the choruses; then followed a prayer, which the people learned to repeat; and then Miss Holbrook spoke on the life of our Lord. I sat there until 10 p.m., and then crept away to my camp-bed, thanking God for the devotion of His servants and for the power of His love.

The intensity of the need of evangelistic work among these Ibo towns and villages is well set forth by a description given by Miss Wilson of some of the beliefs and customs of the Natives. She wrote in the summer:—

The people all believe in one great God, the Creator. They make idols of wood and mud, and think that all the affairs of this life are directed by these idols. Large trees and rocks are objects of worship; certain animals and reptiles are held sacred. It is the common belief that each child born is some ancestor returned to this world. There are, however, some few people who are not re-incarnations, but are given to their parents by some idol in answer to prayer. Large trees and rocks are often entreated in this way. When a child is two or three years of age, the mother will sometimes bring him to a doctor, who will throw charms, take his fee, and tell the woman a certain thing is a "forbidden thing" to her child—it may be a certain kind of fish or Belief in re-incarnations.

bean he is not to eat. This often proves a serious difficulty to a convert. A woman may give up her idols and yet find it exceedingly difficult to bring herself to eat the "forbidden thing." On one occasion when two lads burnt their idols, as they brought them to me before destroying them each confessed the thing that was "forbidden" to him, though I had not told them to do so.

A "forbidden thing."

Such are the people among whom we live and work and for whom you pray. We are surrounded by thick darkness, a darkness that can be felt. Only yesterday when visiting a town near by, I surprised the people in the middle of a cannibal feast. They entertained me in the road instead of inviting me in, and afterwards I learnt what was going on. They need the Light.

Asaba.

The work in the ASABA district was superintended by the African clergyman, the Rev. J. Spencer, until June, 1904, when the arrival of Mr. Alvarez at Onitsha after his furlough set the Rev. T. J. Dennis free to return to his old station. Mr. Spencer then took up his residence at Idumuje Ugboko, but it was arranged that he should thence supervise the out-stations of Asaba, with a view to enabling Mr. Dennis to give the major part of his time to the Ibo translation of the Old Testament. The contributions of the people of Asaba for religious purposes showed a decided increase, but the spiritual condition of the congregation caused much anxiety. With a view to remedying the state of affairs two series of special services were held. The first, for Christian women, was conducted by Miss Wilson and Miss Holbrook, at the end of May, 1904; and the second, for men only, by Mr. Alvarez in December. The attendance of men at the evening meetings ranged from eighty to 160, and nearly fifty young men and lads professed to have decided for Christ, and joined the baptism class. The majority of these were members of one or other of the four night-schools carried on in different parts of the town, several of the pupils of which were baptized in January, 1904. Miss E. A. Hornby, who was in charge of this department of the work, when writing her Annual Letter at the close of 1903, lamented that her efforts to reach the heathen women of the town had failed (see last year's Report, page 64). Twelve months later she was able to tell of the attendance of no less than 101 girls and young women in a night-school. She wrote in November as to the way in which this change came to pass:—

A night-school for girls.

We have had a night-school ever since I first came to Asaba, more than three years ago, but up to the beginning of this year we had failed to get any girls, although we had large numbers of boys and men. About January some of my scholars built a schoolroom for themselves in their own village, which is some distance away, and were provided with a native teacher. This took a good number from my school, and as many more went into the Hinterland just at that time to carry loads for the Government, who were going in to quell the rising, my night-school was practically emptied. It had been decided to have girl pupil-teachers in my department of the day-school, and that they should live with me, and I thought with their help, I might be able to carry on a night-school for girls only. A room to seat about seventy was built in my own part of the compound, and the school started. We are having large numbers of girls every night. On the dark nights, of which they are very much afraid, we go out with a lantern and bell to collect them, afterwards choosing a big girl from among them to carry the lantern and lead them home. The schoolroom is far too small; last night there was a large class in my sitting-room in addition to those in the schoolroom, and when we wanted to gather all the girls together for the Gospel-teaching after the reading, we were obliged to go outside into the compound and make them sit on the ground, as neither room was large enough to hold them all.

Anticipating the objection that it is not wise to have a night-school for girls, Miss Hornby adds:—

In the first place, it is quite impossible for big girls to attend day-school unless they are living in Christian homes, and even then it is difficult; in the second place, if they were not in school they would not be in their homes on moonlight nights, but would be dancing and playing in the streets until past midnight. They need prayer very much. Humanly speaking, it is impossible for a girl to live a pure, Christian life in this country; but "with God all things are possible," and He can change their hearts and give them strength and courage to come out from sin and live for Him.

"They need prayer very much."

The day-schools as well as the night-schools prospered, and in the department of the former under Miss Hornby's care the number on the rolls increased from seventy-three to 116. Most of the pupils attended regularly, but it is difficult for boys to come to school on more than one or two days out of four, because they are obliged to work on the farms.

The out-stations are six in number. The work at Akwukwu experienced a loss by the death, in the spring of 1904, of Joseph Obimgbo Egbola, "one of the humblest and most faithful" of the African agents on the Niger. He had laboured for seven years in the town, and much of the success there met with has been due under God to him. The Christians of the place suffered much from the Ekwumekwu rising (see last year's Report, page 67), and lost nearly all their property, but nevertheless they stood firm; the work was resumed sooner than at any other of the out-stations affected; and the native contributions were considerably in excess of those of 1903. A new church capable of seating 500 persons was built, and it was crowded to excess on May 1st, 1904, when thirteen adults were baptized. At Ugbolu, on the bank of the Niger, nine miles east of Asaba, where is the smallest of the congregations included in the Ibo Pastorate, the Christians did their best to justify their inclusion in the scheme, and four adults were received into the visible Church. Onitsha Olona is two miles from Ugbolu and twenty-two miles from Onitsha which is the head quarters of the C.M.S. work in Southern Nigeria, and to which the name mili (water) is sometimes added for the purpose of distinction, seven miles from Onitsha Ukwu, and between fifteen and twenty miles from Onitsha Ugbo. A number of charges were made against the Christians after the suppression of the Ekwumekwu rising, but their investigation by the Divisional Commissioner resulted in the complete acquittal of the converts. The congregation grew so rapidly that it was twice found necessary to enlarge the church: the day-school also was well attended. Thirty-six persons were baptized at this out-station in January, 1905. Several baptisms took place at Atuma, and the trials which the converts endured at the time of the rising tended eventually to the furtherance of the Gospel. Fourteen young men and lads were baptized by Mr. Spencer at Isele Azagba in December, 1904, and many of those under instruction made rapid progress in reading the Ibo New Testament. From Isele Azagba the Gospel found its way to Edo, about five miles distant, and the inhabitants of the latter town asked for a teacher. A few persons threw away their idols at Ogwashi, but the work did not fully recover from the check which it received through the death of an influential adherent under painful circumstances at the close of 1903.

Trials tend to the furtherance of the Gospel.

Idumuje Ugboko.

Work was resumed at IDUMUJE UGBOKO, i.e., "Idumuje in the forest," which is four miles to the south-west of Idumuje Uno, or the "home Idumuje," by Miss A. L. Wilson, of the New Zealand Association, early in June, 1904, and she was joined before the end of the month by Miss F. M. Dennis, on her return from furlough. In September Miss Wilson left for New Zealand, and the Rev. and Mrs. J. Spencer removed to Idumuje Ugboko from Asaba. The results of the disturbances already referred to are said to have been good on the whole, for no lives were lost, and the people learnt that their old cruel and murderous customs must be abandoned. Moreover, there sprang up among them a desire to follow the religion of the white man, and although several of those who came to be taught were inspired by no other wish than to be on good terms with the ruling race, yet there were many whose eyes were truly opened by the Holy Spirit. A far greater blow than that caused by the rising was the fall of the young evangelist who first occupied the station before the advent of Mr. E. and Miss F. M. Dennis, and at times it appeared as though the effects of his ill-doing would never be removed. A new church was built, cruciform in shape, and capable of holding 350 persons, to take the place of that destroyed by the insurgents. The services were generally attended by some 160 worshippers. Classes were held for the few baptized Christians, for inquirers, and for half-a-dozen young men who gave promise of being useful as evangelists. Mr. Spencer paid frequent visits to Idumuje Uno, where his life was in great danger at the time of the outbreak, and accounted it a privilege to preach the Gospel to those from whom he then so narrowly escaped. A new out-station was opened at Umunede, a large town fourteen miles from Idumuje Ugboko, in the direction of Benin. Miss Dennis, who went thither in July, accompanied by a young man named Eze, a most earnest Christian, wrote in her journal:—

Former opponents anxious to be taught.

I cannot help contrasting this visit with my last, less than a year ago, when we were met on our way by messengers from the king, telling me not to go, as he did not want me. Now they are all anxious to have a teacher. The next day Eze came to me saying that his heart was crying, for when he tells the people of Jesus they look at him as if the same God had not created them and him and they were not brothers. His mother had just offered a sacrifice in her house. Poor Eze, he sees all his people in this bondage and knows there is deliverance for them, yet they will not accept it.

At seven that morning we went out into the town. The king called his kinsfolk, there were about forty of them, and Eze talked to them; they listened so well. I have not once heard the boy speak of the countries he has been to, and the things he has seen; it is always of Jesus, and he is very burdened at heart for his people. Thank God, he is an illustration to them of what the new birth is. In the old days he led the dances and played the chief music, and they all praised his name. Now he is more gazed at than I am, and more wondered at.

The king is very friendly, and when he paid me a visit I tried to sow the Gospel seed in his heart again. I have been pressing my request to have his eldest son to teach before I leave. He has never seen him, and it is against the custom for him ever to come to Umunede until he comes as king at his father's death. At present he is about seven years old, and is in a heathen town where we have never been. On July 15th I had another long, eventful interview with the king in his own house, and at last he promised to give his son into my hands when I go next month. There are great stirrings of heart in this town.

On a later visit Miss Dennis took with her a former great medicine-man named Umajuonige, who in old days was much feared by the people. He spoke honestly to the king, telling him that in the past he had deceived him by his pretensions, and in every way he proved himself a useful worker. The man belonging to Obio, mentioned in last year's Report (page 67) as the keeper of the king's idols, openly confessed Christ by throwing away his idols, and endured a good deal of petty persecution in consequence, being even cursed by the little children in the place where formerly he was held in high honour. At the end of the year he was under instruction for baptism, and now his chief desire is to tell those whom he used to lead in the way of death of Him Who is the Life. Another of the places visited was Otonokpo. Miss Dennis went there in August, and in the following month received a message from the king saying that he wanted her to go again soon, for "all his people were talking of the Word." She gives the following account of the visit which she accordingly paid in October:—

The keeper of the king's idols abandons idolatry.

Everybody was about, as it was the day they do not go to their farms; the king remembered perfectly all we had taught him on our former visits and told us. He said he had told the people who had visited him from other towns. Again I say I have never in my life heard anything so sweet as the name of Jesus spoken by the lips of people who have just heard. Ask them if they remember anything of what you have said before, and if they say

"How sweet the name of Jesus sounds!"

"Jesus," you see a smile stealing over the faces of your followers, and you answer it with a smile. "How sweet the Name of Jesus sounds!" Crowds came to meet us in the king's house, and business for the King was going on in every corner for a time. There was Umajuonige in a circle of his old friends, astonishing them with the story of how he had burnt his charms. There was Eze, busy as usual in a simple, telling way, preaching Jesus. Anyanna had met some Obio people who knew him only as keeper of the Obion idols. I think really the proper name for his old position was that of "High Priest," for he alone offered sacrifices. We went out into the town, and a man tried to disturb us by putting himself into Satan's hands. He made a very peculiar noise, and looked most strange. Anyanna was speaking and could not see him, but Eze stopped him. I believe the man was stopped just in time from showing me something of devil possession, but as it was I felt very sad. The king led us out of the town and begged us to come back soon to tell him more about Jesus. We got back at sunset. The king came to inquire after us. Anyanna, Umajuonige, and Eze have been sitting out on a mat in the compound talking about the greatness of God. I do thank God for the clear evidence of the new birth in these three.

Increased intelligence and sympathy.

BRASS.

The difficulties mentioned in last year's Report as prevailing in the Brass district were felt to the full during 1904. Nevertheless some advance has been made in recent years, for Bishop Tugwell, who visited the district in February, 1904, was impressed with the absence of that spirit of sullen opposition once so noticeable, and with the increased intelligence and sympathy of the congregations, the improved discipline of the schools, the progress made by the missionaries in the study of the language and in the translation of the Scriptures and the Prayer Book, and the real and growing regard for the workers on the part of many of the people. He also observed in several a desire to lead godly and consistent lives, and to see the standard of life in the Church raised.

Tuwon.

Mr. and Mrs. Proctor returned to BRASS TUWON in February, 1904, but the former was absent from the station for several weeks, having twice to visit Onitsha. The distance is not more than 200 miles, but the lack of travelling facilities caused so much delay that each time he was away for a month. The day-schools, both at Brass Tuwon, and at BRASS NEMBE, thirty miles up the creek, where the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. R. Wilson were stationed, improved, and the school fees showed an increase. Mr. Wilson made some journeys to the Ogbian villages, in which a dialect different from that in use at Brass is spoken. At Akipele he found many men in the town, his visit happening to coincide with the kaka, or rest day, which, however, is by no means strictly observed. Two heathen priests made some disturbance at the open-air service which was held.

Nembe.

A new station opened at Kaiyama.

At the request of the Executive Committee of the Mission, Messrs. Proctor and Wilson travelled in July up the Nun branch of the Niger, seeking for a suitable spot for a new mission-station in the Idzo country. They selected KAIYAMA, some ninety-five miles from Brass Tuwon, and occupying a central position with regard to four other towns, and thither Mr. and Mrs. Wilson proceeded in October. After a few weeks' residence at the station, Mr. Wilson wrote :—

As far as I can gather the standard of morality here is less low than at Brass; the children have a special name for addressing their father and mother; unmarried girls live together; women are more faithful to their husbands; men and women are more industrious; there is less sickness.

Although building operations claimed first attention, a day-school and a night-school were commenced. The scholars knelt with the missionaries at evening prayers, in spite of being exposed to ridicule from the people who crowded by the window of the little room. The first and second "kings" of the town listened respectfully to the Gospel, and often asked questions about what they heard. Mr. Wilson says :—

Sad results of contact with white men.

The people as a whole know absolutely nothing of the Gospel, though from contact with the white man they know Jesus Christ as a name to swear by, and Christmas as a time of drinking and dancing. "Christmas" is the name given to an idol in a juju drinking-club in the town, and many will hardly believe when told the true meaning of Christmas. All were much surprised at the quiet day we spent this year, when it was also Sunday. It is doubtful whether the people really understand our reason for being here; they certainly at first considered we must be connected with Opokuma, and would not believe that we have come neither to trade nor to interfere in town palavers, but only as messengers from God, and therefore we wish to teach them to read God's Word. When speaking in the town I always have an attentive if not a large audience.

Opokuma, referred to in the above extract, is a station of the Brass Trading Company.

NIGER DELTA PASTORATE.

Niger Delta Pastorate.

Bonny was the scene of the third Annual Conference of the NIGER DELTA PASTORATE, which was held under the presidency of Bishop Johnson on January 21st to 25th, 1904. The work of the Pastorate is entirely supported and controlled by the African congregations of the Delta. The statistical returns laid upon the table at the Conference showed that the baptized adults numbered 1,955 against 1,792 in 1902; communicants, 963 against 901; adult and infant baptisms, 281 against 106; readers, 1,029 against 981; week-day scholars, 569 against 519. Under the head of Finance, receipts and expenditure were £1,028 5*s*. 6*d*. and £1,011 3*s*. 6*d*. respectively, against £1,012 2*s*. 4*d*. and £1,020 in 1902.

Among the stations of the Pastorate opened of late years is one at Bile, a town between Bonny and New Calabar, and Archdeacon D. C. Crowther, who went there in October, 1904, writes as follows of the way in which the work began, and of his visit :—

The people are all fishermen. By frequent intercourse with Bonny, converts going from there to buy fish in Indele market, and by themselves visiting and attending church services at Bonny, Bakana, and Obonoma in connexion with their fishing occupation, a few of them have recently heard the Gospel preached. This they carried to their friends at home, who also came and heard for themselves; and thus the Holy Spirit moved them to have that same Gospel preached in their own town. This led to their inviting the Bonny converts not to go past them on Saturdays, but to stop and preach to them on Sabbath days, which was gladly acceded to. In time, a small bamboo shed was erected as a chapel, which brought persecution on the six men who were then the leaders of the new religion from their heathen brethren. When this was over it gave an impulse to the movement, and many became adherents. Two years ago the news reached us at Bonny that a church was being built, and we saw to our great surprise on October 21st, when we landed there, a neat iron church, measuring fifty feet by twenty-five feet.

An indigenous movement towards Christianity.

On the day after our arrival we held two class meetings, the first to examine candidates prepared for baptism—eight men and eight women. From their answers to the questions put to them, they seemed to grasp what was taught them; their knowledge of the self-denying nature of the Christian religion was clear and satisfactory; and out of the sixteen candidates presented only one young man was not received: his temper was much against him, and he asked for our prayers and promised to amend.

The second meeting was a prayer-meeting, led principally by the delegates from the older churches of the pastorate, who pleaded with God for the Holy Spirit on behalf of their brothers and sisters who were to be received into the visible Church of Christ by baptism on the morrow; for Gospel light on the king, his chiefs, and Heathen around; and for a blessing on the proceedings of the next day. A young woman of Peterside Church in her prayers said, "We come to ask You, Lord, not only to turn the hearts of these few to be baptized to-morrow, but we ask You to give to Jesus, Thy Son, the whole of Bile town, king and all, and we know that You have the power."

"Give to Thy Son the whole town."

I noticed two things which struck me as very remarkable during my stay at Bile: the first is the unity and love shown one towards another in this place, whether they be Heathen or Church adherents. . . . One of the explanations of this is the fact that slavery is unknown at Bile; they are all free-born, and any one imported there is not looked upon as a slave, but as a member of the family of the owner.

The other very remarkable circumstance is that, with the exception of the king and two chiefs, there is no polygamist to be found in Bile town! I had prepared myself for a difficult task on this subject at the examination of the male candidates presented for baptism, but to my agreeable surprise this subject was the easiest. The answer of each of them was that "before they ever knew about Jesus Christ they had found out that one wife was enough for them."

There are four of the king's sons and four daughters who are Church adherents, and one of these sons was among the baptized.

Among the resolutions passed by the Conference Pastorate was one to occupy Bende and Aro Chuku, centres in the country which had been opened by the punitive expedition against the Aros in 1901 (see Annual Reports for 1901–02, pages 83, 84, and 1903–04, page 72). There being no trained agents to send, an invitation was put forth for twelve Christian lay members of the Delta Church to offer themselves, and to go four at a time for a period of two months to preach and teach. Two communicants from Bonny and two from Opobo responded. The Rev. J. A. Pratt, the African pastor of Opobo, offered himself as leader to the little party, and early in February they started. Bende was reached after a journey of six days. This town used to be the famous meeting-place of all the tribes of this region. It had a very large market, and was also a stronghold of the slave-trade until that practice was stopped by the British Government. On arriving, Mr. Pratt met the chiefs and others in the market, and explained how the evangelists with him had come as temporary teachers until resident agents could be sent. The people expressed their gratitude, and it was subsequently arranged that classes for the adults and a school for the children should at once be commenced. Seeing their willingness to listen and learn, Mr. Pratt seized the opportunity and requested that the chiefs would give the principal juju club-house, close to the market, for holding services, classes and school. This was done, to the great thankfulness of himself and the evangelists. Considering how jealous these tribes are for their juju-houses, such a step is one of much encouragement and a cause for praise. The following Sunday divine service was held in this house, and eleven of the chiefs were present. Leaving two evangelists at Bende, Mr. Pratt passed on with the other two to Aro-Chuku, where the chiefs readily received the evangelists, and decided that Obinkito should be the mission-station. When the time came for Mr. Pratt to leave, the chiefs approached to thank him and to give him a message of gratitude to Bishop Johnson for sending the evangelists, and expressed the hope that before long permanent teachers would come to live among them.

A juju-house given by chiefs as a church.

Bishop Johnson spent a month at Sapele in the Benin district in 1903 (see Annual Report for 1902–03, page 73). The services are held in the Native Council Court Hall, but the Government and chiefs have granted a site for a church and mission-buildings.

IV. NORTHERN NIGERIA.

Mr. A. E. Ball came home in November, 1904; Dr. A. E. Druitt and Mr. T. W. R. Lunt, the latter invalided, in February, 1905; and the Rev. J. L. Macintyre in May. Dr. W. R. S. Miller sailed for the Mission in October, 1904; and Mr. A. E. Ball in May, 1905.

LOKOJA.

Lokoja.

The Rev. J. L. Macintyre superintended the work at Lokoja until October, 1904, when he went to Bida, and his place was taken by the Rev. J. D. Aitken, transferred from Akabe. The members of the congregation, which was under the pastoral care of the Rev. O. Thomas, an African clergyman, were diligent in attending the various services and classes which were held during the year. They contributed more than £60 to the Lokoja Liberal contributions.

C.M.S. Auxiliary, exclusive of the amount given at the collections on Sundays and the class pence. Five persons were confirmed, and seven adults were received into the visible Church. A preaching-place was opened at Kakanda town, and a service was held there every Sunday afternoon.

Several itinerations were made by Mr. Aitken and Mr. Thomas. The former visited the district around Kabba, and was impressed with the change which had taken place during the three years which had elapsed since his previous visit. He writes:—

> Then, with few exceptions, no young men or women were to be seen—now the streets are full of them, the result of the abolition by the Royal Niger Company of slave-raiding by Nupés in 1896 and 1897. Formerly most of the children were carried to Bida as tribute as soon as they could make the journey. Since the taking of Bida by the Imperial troops thousands of these captives have returned home, so we found several Nupé-speaking people in every town we went to. These interpreted for us. I also noticed that these returned slaves were making prayer places [Mohammedan] in all the towns. Both these circumstances, the presence of children in these inland towns and the spread of the religion of the False Prophet by the returned slaves, are calls to us not only to prayer, but to be up and doing.

Spread of Mohammedanism by repatriated slaves.

In February, 1904, Mr. Thomas went to Egan, one of the places visited by Crowther in 1857, and found that the caretaker of the mission-property was in the habit of conducting services on Sundays. Later in the year Mr. Thomas itinerated near the western boundary of the province. At Ikare the king gave him a favourable reception, and expressed his willingness to receive a teacher, and at Irun he met a man, formerly a Mohammedan, who had been baptized at Lagos, who regularly gathered a few men and boys for instruction.

BASA COUNTRY.

Basa Country.

At KPATA, where an African clergyman, the Rev. J. J. Williams, was in charge, the arrangements made to train as evangelists the three young men who were baptized in 1903 (see last year's Report, page 75) were carried into effect in March, 1904, by the reopening of the Watney Memorial Institution. A few months later, a Basa boy, who had been baptized some six years previously, was admitted. All the students worked well, and rendered great assistance in the evangelization of their own people. A confirmation class consisting of five adults was also formed, and thirty-six catechumens were under instruction, twelve of them being definitely prepared for baptism. The night-school, and indeed the work in general, was opposed by the soothsayers of the town. Mr. Williams writes:—

Opposition by soothsayers at Kpata.

> To avenge the loss of their hope of gain, slanders, misrepresentations, threats, and persecution have been freely used by these men. They threatened to lay poison on the path of any one coming to the night-school, to injure them with elephantiasis, but we are thankful to observe that no one has suffered from this. What is most peculiar is their general excuse that their poison and fetishes have lost their power before the Word of God. Another threat was to bewitch and to kill those attending the night-school. Some of the scholars have been withdrawn by their parents and masters. Some of them have been prohibited from attending the church and class also. Another hindrance was a law issued that nobody should betroth his daughter or slave-girl to any adherent of the school who becomes a Christian. The girls have been strictly kept from attending the school on this account. This edict has been a stumbling block to some of the elder boys who have withdrawn from the school; but I am glad to say that a few of them have returned, believing that God will make some provision for them in that respect. Many have endured starvation, severe flogging, and very brutal treatment from their parents, masters, and other members of their household, but are still holding fast to the truth. There are thirty-two consistent ones who are regular attendants of the school.

Boys stand firm in spite of severe flogging.

At Gbebe, twelve persons were under instruction for baptism. Early in 1904, Mr. Williams, accompanied by the Gbebe catechist, made a tour to Ida, about forty miles distant, preaching in several towns and villages on his way. At Okokene, where Bishop Crowther was made a prisoner in 1867, and was rescued by the British Consul, Mr. Fell, at the cost of his life, more than one hundred persons were gathered by the chief to listen to the Gospel. After visiting several other hamlets, the workers returned to Okokene, and as it was market day had the opportunity of preaching to a number of people who had come from distant villages, all business transactions being suspended for forty minutes, so that the message of salvation might be proclaimed.

The Rev. J. D. Aitken resided at AKABE until his removal to Lokoja in October, 1904, and was privileged to baptize four Basas in the presence of most of the inhabitants of the town. These people with some of the inquirers formed themselves into a preaching band, and held services in the surrounding villages.

BIDA.

As briefly mentioned in last year's Report (page 74), BIDA was occupied in October, 1903, by Mr. A. E. Ball. He writes:—

Bida.

The population of Bida is a very large one, the governing class, the Fulani, owning large numbers of slaves, the result of their extensive slave-raiding. The great bulk of the people are Nupés, of whom a large number are mallams; and there is a large colony of Hausa and Yoruba traders. The whole of the people, both men and women, are nominally Mohammedan, the latter being as punctilious as the men in their observance of the prayers and fasts and feasts, though of course they are not allowed to enter the mosques, which exist in very large numbers.

The Rev. J. L. Macintyre, who succeeded Mr. Ball at the station in October, 1904, when the latter came home, states that Mohammedanism has become the religion of the Nupés comparatively recently. His words are:—

About one hundred years ago a certain Mallam Dendo from the Hausa States (which had then become Mohammedan) visited the Nupé kingdom, and soon rose to favour with the king. He took advantage of civil war to push his own claims, and eventually, after years of intriguing and fighting, the whole country fell into the hands of the Moslem Fulanis. The first Fulani king to reign over the whole country was a son of the Mallam Dendo mentioned before, by name Osman Zaki. He founded Bida as his capital only fifty years ago. Two more sons of Mallam Dendo succeeded their brother, and the present Emir is the sixth Fulani king in Nupé. Thus it will be seen that it is comparatively recently that the Nupé country has had the yoke of Islam forced upon it, and in the villages and smaller towns much of Heathenism is still to be seen. Since Mallam Dendo first made his appearance there seems to have been almost incessant fighting, either internally or on the borders. In one civil war the victorious side is said to have destroyed over 600 villages in one part of the kingdom, and a great feature of the country now is the number of ruined towns to be met with.

As the British Resident had insisted as a condition of a missionary being allowed to reside in the town that there should be no public preaching, Mr. Ball opened a school for boys (which, however, gained but a small attendance and was soon closed) and commenced medical work. The people came freely for treatment, among the patients being the Lakpienea, one of the high officials of the town. In December, 1903, Mr. Ball was joined by Mr. Duncan Macfarlane, one of the West Indian agents, and permission having been obtained from the Resident, and a site from the Emir, steps were taken to erect a proper mission-house in the place of the small hut in which Mr. Ball had been living. The usual difficulty in procuring native labour was experienced, but by April, 1904, in which month Mr. Gordon, another West Indian agent, arrived at Bida, the building was sufficiently advanced for the workers to take up their abode in it. The next step was to open a school for Mohammedan mallams working for the Government, and a night-school. The former began with five men besides the boys in the employ of the Mission, and was joined afterwards by the son of the Emir; while the latter gained an average attendance of thirteen. Towards the end of the year the restrictions on public preaching were removed, and once a week an evangelistic meeting was held, to which a fair number of the people came.

The Emir's son attends the mission-school.

Several large towns in the neighbourhood were visited early in the year, including Gaye, Badegi of Lapai, not to be confused with the Badegi of Bida, and Lapai, all of which are protected by walls. The chiefs of these places showed a friendly disposition. In March Mr. Ball went to Zungeru in order to give effect to Sir F. Lugard's wish that the Centenary of the British and Foreign Bible Society should be duly observed there, and he conducted the service which was held in the court-house and attended by the High Commissioner and practically all the Europeans in the town.

Gierku.

The missionaries at GIERKU were the Revs. G. P. Bargery, F. H. Lacy, and W. P. Low, and Dr. A. E. Druitt. Although unable to report that any one has become a definite inquirer, they do bear witness to an appreciable improvement in the characters of several of the people among whom they work. Dr. Druitt writes :—

They are ready to listen, and to listen attentively; they inquire, and are somewhat inclined, at least outwardly, to be taught. The older and more sensible of them are fairly sure that what we preach is the truth, yet grip the truth they cannot. The reason for the latter, say they, is in ourselves (the white men). "You have opened the door," they say, "and have shown us the way in. Nevertheless, you have not made it sufficiently easy for us to enter. But, supposing we enter the religion of Jesus Christ, we meet at the same time difficulties with the king of Zaria, whom you have put over us; and not to follow him from a religious point of view is to expose ourselves to trouble all our lives. We are in the middle of a river, and to steer to either side is what we cannot see how to do." So says one of the most intelligent men of Gierku, speaking for himself and the rest. It is what they would wish us to swallow as containing the whole truth, but I think it only contains a certain proportion of truth, and is chiefly intended to cover what is really a greater difficulty with them, namely, the giving up of polygamy and of known sin.

"We cannot see how to steer to either side."

The reinforcement of the staff by the arrival of Messrs. Bargery, Lacy, and Low, at the beginning of the year rendered some extension of the work possible, and Kajuro, a town with three times the population of Gierku, and about twenty miles to the south-west, was temporarily occupied as an out-station. Itinerations were also made in the Gierku district, some twenty-four towns being visited, in most of which lantern services were held. At Easter, 1904, Mr. Bargery and Mr. Lacy went to Zaria to hold a service for the English officers. At the suggestion of the Resident they called on the Emir, who gave them a courteous reception. The country "across the river" Kaduna, i.e., that lying to the south-west of Gierku, is inhabited by the Kadara and Gwari tribes, who are Heathen, and Mr. Lacy says that it is imperative that efforts should soon be made to win them, since otherwise the work will become harder owing to Mohammedan aggression. Although there was no inquirer at Gierku itself, Audu, a Hausa lad, was baptized by Bishop Tugwell at Oyo, in the Yoruba country, on August 28th, 1904 (see supra, page 50).

The translation of the Scriptures into Hausa is one of the duties of Dr. W. R. S. Miller, who returned to Gierku in January, 1905. In an article on the subject in the Western Equatorial Africa Diocesan Magazine, he says :—

It is almost superfluous to speak of the wonderful beauty and wealth of this language—the great language of all West and Central Africa—though one thing has not been at all grasped, and that is the great difficulty and scope of the syntax. It is amazing to find how marvellously the grammar is developed, making it rank quite as a great classical language. There could be no easier language to learn superficially, but I doubt whether there is one among the West African languages more difficult to master thoroughly.

Bible translation into Hausa.

So far we have in the Roman character the Gospel of St. Mark, the Gospel of St. John, and the First Epistle of St. John. The Gospel of St. John, so profound and wonderful, lends itself most exquisitely to Hausa, and the beauty of the Hausa idiom seems to literally sparkle in this fourth Gospel. At present there are translated, but not sent to print, St. Luke's Gospel, St. Matthew's Gospel, the Epistle of St. James, the Acts of the Apostles, and a few Psalms. I thank God for the tremendous privilege of touching His own Word in this way, and would ask for prayer that my heart, mind, and hands may be sanctified, quickened, and kept clean and holy for such a work.

A "tremendous privilege."

EAST AFRICA MISSION.

In 1844 Dr. Krapf, having lately been expelled from Abyssinia, established himself at Mombasa, and two years later was joined by the Rev. John Rebmann, who opened the station at Kisulutini (Rabai) in 1846, and laboured on the coast twenty-nine years. Their remarkable journeys into the interior led to all the subsequent geographical and missionary enterprise in East Africa. It was chiefly through the Society's efforts that the Parliamentary Committee of 1871 was obtained, which led to Sir Bartle Frere's Mission to Zanzibar in the following year. In 1874 the Rev. W. S. Price, formerly in charge of the Asylum for rescued slaves at Nasik, Western India, was sent out; some 200 African Christians from among the freed slaves who had been under his care were collected as the nucleus of an industrial colony; land was purchased for a settlement, which was named Frere Town, in honour of Sir Bartle Frere; and 500 rescued slaves were, in 1875, received from H.M. cruisers, and housed, fed, instructed, and led to work for their living. Stations were opened in the Taita country in 1883; in the Chaga country, at the base of the snow-capped mountain Kilima-Njaro, in 1885, but the Mission was removed in 1892 to Taveta, within the British sphere of influence as fixed by treaty with Germany in 1886; at Jilore, in the Giriama country, in 1890; in Kikuyu and at Sakini, in the Ukamba Province, in 1900 and 1903 respectively; and in Thunguri, in the Kenia Province, in 1904.

When in 1876 a mission-party was sent up country to establish a Mission in Uganda, the route adopted was from Bagamoyo, on the coast opposite Zanzibar, through Ussagara, Ugogo, and Unyamwezi; and intermediate stations between the East Coast and the southern shore of the Victoria Lake were established at Mpapua and Mamboya, both in the Ussagara hills, in 1876 and 1880 respectively. The Ussagara and Ugogo Mission was extended by the occupation of Berega, Nyangara, Itumba, and Mvumi in 1900; Bugiri in 1901; and Kongwa in 1904.

For these Missions a new bishopric was established in 1884, with "Eastern Equatorial Africa" as the title of the See, and the Rev. J. Hannington was consecrated the first Bishop on June 24th of that year. He was murdered on October 31st, 1885, in Busoga, by the orders of king Mwanga. His successor, the Rev. H. P. Parker, previously a C.M.S. missionary in North India, was consecrated on St. Luke's Day, October 18th, 1886, but his episcopal career was also of brief duration, for he died from fever on March 26th, 1888. His successor, the Rev. A. R. Tucker, was consecrated on April 25th, 1890. In 1897 the diocese was divided into two: that portion of the original diocese which at that time fell within the Uganda Protectorate forming the Diocese of Uganda, and the remainder becoming the Diocese of Mombasa. Bishop Tucker elected to retain the interior division, viz., the Diocese of Uganda, under his own episcopal supervision, and on June 29th, 1899, the Rev. W. G. Peel, formerly a C.M.S. missionary in South and Western India, was consecrated Bishop of Mombasa.

Death of the Rev. W. H. Jones,

One of the little band of African clergy in the Mission was removed by the death of the Rev. W. H. Jones at Mombasa on July 4th, 1904. Mr. Jones, who belonged to the Yao tribe, was rescued by a British cruiser from a slave-ship, and as at that time it was not safe to put slaves thus rescued on African shores again, he was, with others, taken to Bombay. After receiving some education at the Indo-British Institution, he was admitted to the Society's Robert Money School, Bombay, in 1859. Two years later he was sent to the Christian village of Sharanpur, which the Rev. W. S. Price had established near Nasik, to learn the trade of a blacksmith. In 1864 he and Ishmael Semler were sent from Bombay to Mombasa, with the object of being used in the work among their fellow-countrymen. Mr. Jones laboured under the Rev. J. Rebmann, first at Mombasa and afterwards at Kisulutini. In 1871 he was sent to Bombay, where he was engaged in seeking and sending out African men and women to join the Frere Town Colony. From 1874–8 he was at Frere Town and Rabai, and in the latter year he again went to Bombay. In 1881 he finally left India and joined the East Africa Mission, and in 1885 he, with Ishmael Semler, was ordained by Bishop Hannington (the two thus becoming the first native clergy in the East Africa Mission), and appointed pastor of Kisulutini. In the summer of the same year he started with Bishop Hannington on his journey to the Victoria Nyanza. After the murder of the Bishop in Busoga, Mr. Jones, who had been left with part of the caravan in Kavirondo, led the men the five hundred miles back to the coast, the guide carrying aloft the blue flag so often seen at Missionary Exhibitions, with the word Ichabod worked on it in white letters. He was admitted to Priests' Orders by Bishop Tucker in 1895.

Mrs. Steggall.

Two wives of missionaries were also called to their rest during the year. Mrs. A. R. Steggall, of Taveta, died on August 28th, 1904. Although married in 1899 Mrs. Steggall did not proceed to the Mission until February, 1903, and had therefore only completed some eighteen months of residence in the field. During that time, however, she was enabled to exercise a real influence for good upon the people, especially upon those who gathered in the schools.

and Mrs. Briggs.

A longer period of service was vouchsafed to Mrs. J. H. Briggs, who died at Port Said on October 18th, 1904, while on her way to England. She went out to Mamboya in 1893, being one of the first single women to join the Ussagara Mission. In 1900 she was married to Mr. Briggs, and proceeded to Mvumi, in Ugogo, a new station which Mr. Briggs had opened a few months before. Many of the Ussagara and Ugogo missionaries refer in feeling terms to the loss which the work has sustained by her death. One speaks of her as a "missionary of outstanding capability and devotion"; another as one who "leaves behind a bright example of zeal which is an inspiration"; and a third describes her as "one of the most energetic and brightest workers of the Mission," and adds "By her whole-hearted consecration to the work and kindness to everyone she endeared herself to all who knew her."

Reinforcement.

The Mission has been reinforced by Miss Katie Miller, of the New South Wales Association, who left Sydney for East Africa in March, 1905. The following have for various reasons retired from the work: the Rev. W. E. Taylor, Dr. C. S. Edwards, Mr. L. J. Vale, Mr. J. Heselwood, and Miss A. J. Madeley (on her approaching marriage).

Movements of Bishop Peel.

Bishop Peel visited some of the interior stations in the Seyidie Province in the summer, and in the autumn went as far up-country as Kikuyu. The Rev. H. K. Binns was Acting-Secretary of the portion of the Mission which lies in British East Africa, and the Rev. D. J. Rees Secretary of the Ussagara and Ugogo portion.

I. SEYIDIE PROVINCE.

Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Edwards came home viâ Palestine, in June, 1904; Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Maynard in July; Mr. J. A. Bailey and Mr. J. Heselwood in December; Miss A. M. Barnett and Miss A. Drake in March, 1905; and the Rev. H. K. Binns, Mrs. W. G. Peel, Mrs. E. W. Crawford, and Miss E. Lockett in May. Mr. V. V. Verbi sailed for the Mission in September, 1904; Mrs. J. E. Hamshere in October; the Rev. and Mrs. D. A. L. Hooper in November; Mr. B. Laight, Miss F. T. Austin, and Miss M. C. Brewer, in December; and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Maynard in April, 1905.

MOMBASA DISTRICT.

Mombasa. The town of Mombasa, containing a population of some 30,000, is the head quarters of Bishop and Mrs. Peel. The other missionaries at the station during 1904 were the Rev. and Mrs. T. S. England, the Rev. K. St. A. Rogers, and the Misses E. O. Thurlow, R. M. Wyatt, and M. R. MacDougall. Mr. England had the charge of the Buxton High School, so called after Mr. T. F. V. Buxton, who opened the new school buildings in May, while on a visit with Mrs. Buxton to the Mission. The ceremony was attended by most of the leading residents of the town, both European and native, including the Arab Governor. The average attendance rose from twenty-one to forty-six, and would have been higher but for the numerous heathen and Mohammedan festivals, to attend which the boys frequently asked leave of absence. Besides those whose names were on the rolls, many others came to the school for short periods, including one of the police who was anxious to learn to read and attended when off duty, telegraph-boys, hotel-boys, boys waiting to go on safari as tent-boys, &c. Greater interest than before was shown in the Scripture lessons by the non-Christian pupils, and two Parsi lads bought Bibles so that they might read them at home. Nine Parsi girls were taught in one of the class rooms, first by Mrs. England and then by Miss Thurlow. In the summer an evening class for boys—most of them house-boys—was commenced by Miss Wyatt with one member, for whom she often had to wait twenty minutes. By the end of the year, however, there were the names of twenty lads on the class books, and the boys were so eager for instruction that they often arrived before the doors were opened. Three Punjabis in Government employment came to Mr. England to be taught English, and on Sunday afternoons he read with two lads who were under instruction with a view to baptism.

Buxton High School.

Women's Work.

The Women's Work was continued on the usual lines. Miss Thurlow and Miss MacDougall carried on the school in the mission-hall until August, when the African teacher was needed elsewhere and the school had to be closed in the mornings. Regularity and punctuality are not strong points with the pupils, many of whom belong to non-Christian families or are the children of lapsed Christians. Visiting the people in their homes was diligently prosecuted. The women are apparently without any sense of sin, and are perfectly satisfied with their own religion. They were cordial enough to the missionaries as long as the conversation was confined to ordinary topics, but as soon as Christianity was mentioned they discovered that they had some work which called for their attention! There was, however, at least one exception to this general attitude of indifference or hostility. Miss Wyatt writes:—

A tolerant husband.

> One little Arab bibi is certainly far more instructed in our religion than her own; and what has astonished me, is that her husband, a bigoted young Mohammedan, will walk in and out while she and I are singing hymns together, without a word of disapproval or interference. One day I was in this house, talking to a friend of the little wife's while she was preparing her husband's food. Mohammedanism becoming the topic of conversation, I said, "Mohammed may have been in some respects a great man, but he can never save you," when the little wife, whom I had thought was perhaps too busy to be listening, said, "Truly, bibi, he can never save us." I believe she and some others are convinced of the truth of the Gospel, but they lack the courage and the will-power to confess.

A Bible-class for adults and a sewing-class for boys and girls were held at Kilindini, on the western side of the island, and Miss MacDougall obtained permission to visit the patients in the Government hospital.

Hospital.

In April, 1904, Dr. and Mrs. T. W. W. Crawford, of the Canadian C.M.S., temporarily took the place of Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Edwards when the latter came home, at the Society's Hospital at MZIZIMA, which is about fifteen minutes' walk from the centre of the town of Mombasa. Among the patients were several lepers and three of the chief Mohammedan mullahs. The latter recommended others of their community to seek Dr. Crawford's help. Another patient was the leading sheikh of the Arab and Swahili portion of Mombasa. Dr. Crawford was enabled to afford him relief from his sufferings, with the result that his personal friendship and the confidence of his followers were secured. In September, Dr. Crawford left Mzizima for Thunguri, in the Kenia Province, and the hospital was placed in the charge of African assistants.

Frere Town.

Divinity School.

At FRERE TOWN the pastoral work was in the hands of an African clergyman, the Rev. I. M. Semler, and the Rev. J. E. Hamshere was in charge of the Divinity School. One of the students was a Masai youth, the story of whose separation from and reunion with his mother recalls in some respects incidents in the life of Bishop Crowther. It was narrated in the Mombasa Diocesan Magazine for October, 1904, as follows :—

It is now some few years since there fell upon the Masai the terrible misfortune of the loss of nearly all their cattle by sickness. In the consequent distress a certain family agreed to separate, as the only way of preserving their lives. The father took the sons and went in one direction, and the mother took the girls and went to the Wakamba. They made a slave of her, and as time went on she was sold to a man of the Giriama tribe, nearer the coast. But all this time she heard nothing of her husband and boys. It appears that the father took small-pox and died. In some way one of the boys, named Aramato, reached Taveta. Here, in company with other youths, he grew up, had daily teaching under the Rev. A. R. Steggall and his colleagues, and showed such promise that he was admitted to the Divinity Class at Frere Town, the Principal of which was very hopeful of his proving a true messenger of the Gospel. As Aramato, long since baptized of course, was thus faithfully preparing to serve Christ, in a land far away from his adopted home, there happened one of those strange coincidences which clearly show the guiding Hand of God. It was the custom that every Sunday evening all the students, with their wives and children, should gather in the Principal's house for a happy hour of praise and prayer. It was noticed on a certain evening that the Masai youth was absent, and on inquiry a friend of his exclaimed in excited tones, "Oh! sir, have you not heard that he has found his mother?" It seemed incredible, yet so it was! By what combination of chances was it possible that this particular Masai woman, hundreds of miles from her home, should have met, after many years, a son she must have thought long dead, and have recognized him, and each have been completely satisfied of the other's identity? It was while fulfilling his allotted task of preaching, in his turn, at a place some two miles away, that he met on the road a woman of his tribe, and conversation with her gave him the clue to his mother. It seems that in the great famine of 1898–9 his mother drifted with the human tide from Giriama down to the coast in search of food. To see the two together was quite sufficient to dispel any doubt of their relationship. When her son's course was ended, she went with him to Taveta.

A Masai youth finds his long lost mother.

Mr. E. Luckock acted as superintendent of the Final Grade School and the Boys' Boarding-school, and had the oversight of the temporalities of the station until he left for England in April, 1904. The Final Grade School was then closed, but in May Mr. G. Burns, of the New South Wales Association, took over the Boys' Boarding-school. He also conducted a night-school for young men who were desirous of learning to read, but were at work all the day. Miss E. Lockett was in charge of the Day-schools. Two of the teachers had to be dismissed, but most of the remainder worked faithfully and well, and some of the elder boys were specially promising. There was a good deal of insubordination in the Girls' Home which was superintended by Miss E. C. Wilde, until December, when she was transferred to Taveta, and her place was taken by Miss S. A. Dixon, of the Victoria Association. The latter spent the greater part of the year in language study, but also managed a sewing-class for girls, and conducted a women's reading-class, which was attended by the wives of some of the Divinity School students. She paid occasional visits to Maweni, one of the two out-stations.

The Rev. H. K. Binns, the Acting-Secretary of the Mission, devoted such time as the duties connected with that office left him to translational work. He also had the charge of the Printing Press.

Shimba.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Burns, of the New South Wales Association, on their return from furlough in England, in March, 1904, once more took up their residence at SHIMBA, succeeding the Rev. E. W. Crawford, who had left to assume charge of the work at Rabai. They received a warm welcome from the Wadigo, and were delighted with the progress which had been made during their absence. The Sunday services were better attended; the behaviour of the people was more reverent; and the number of pupils at the school had doubled. The needs of Frere Town, however, made it necessary for them to go thither in May. Mr. Burns paid occasional visits to the station during the latter half of 1904, and found that some of the Wadigo were showing a real interest in the things which concerned their peace. He writes of one young man, for whom he asks prayer :—

Refusing to sacrifice to the koma.

> I am hoping at the earliest possible opportunity to have him admitted into the catechumens' class with a view to baptism. He is, I firmly believe, a truly converted man, and one in whose heart the Holy Spirit is doing a work of grace. A short time ago his people, as is the custom among the Wadigo in any time of trouble, were doing sacrifice to the koma (spirit) who was troubling them, as they thought, and they tried every means in their power to persuade this young man and his wife to join them, but, thank God, without success. He boldly testified that he had for ever done with such things and was now a disciple of the Lord Jesus Christ; he also took his wife away from the village for fear she might be tempted to take part in the feast. Such was the effect of this firm stand against heathen customs (which are part of the very life of this people) upon some at least of his relatives, that a few days after his father and uncle came to him secretly to ask him if he really believed that what the Mzungu (European) had taught concerning another life was true. He there and then fearlessly "preached to them Jesus."

Rabai.

The congregation at RABAI suffered greatly through the death of the African pastor, the Rev. W. H. Jones, in July, 1904. The Rev. E. W. Crawford, who had general charge of the station from the previous February, says :—

An African pastor's influence.

> His influence over the people was remarkable. They called him their "big father," and looked to him as their great friend and adviser in all their troubles and difficulties. No other man can ever occupy the same place in their hearts and lives. In fact some of the more ignorant people seem to have largely depended on him for their religion, for when he was called to higher service, numbers of them went wrong and no longer took any interest in the services of the church. The more intelligent and stalwart Christians, however, who were grounded on the true Rock, continued faithful.

The children of the mixed day-school, which was superintended by Miss A. J. Madeley, won the silver cup given by Bishop Peel in the singing competition at Frere Town. Mrs.

Crawford gave some training to the Bible-women and instructed the catechumens, and Miss A. M. Barnett carried on the work of the dispensary. The Rev. L. F. Gore, an African deacon, is stationed at Changombe. Eight candidates were confirmed in March, 1905, but many of the villagers were unwilling to listen to the Gospel, declaring that the missionaries were connected with the Government and were responsible for the hut-tax. A small church was erected at Ganga. The catechist at Kaya Kauma succeeded in winning the affection of the people, and had a number of young men under instruction in the school.

Kaloleni.

On January 5th, 1904, Miss F. I. Deed and Miss M. L. Mason took up their residence at a new station named KALOLENI. It is situated about ten miles from Rabai, on the border of the Giriama Country, which stretches away some eighty miles to the north. Close to it are the districts of the Wajibana and Wachonye, which are included in the sphere of the United Methodist Free Church, whose station is at Ribe, two hours' journey from Kaloleni, while eight or nine miles to the west the Roman Catholics are at work. Miss Deed describes the Wagiriama as very superstitious; she says:—

"The land is full of sin."

> Witchcraft is rife, and it is difficult to know how much of it is simply a trading on the credulity of the people by the medicine-men, and how much of it may be downright satanic influence. However that may be, there are certainly very mysterious influences at work. The people say the land is full of sin and evil. Drunkenness is another great enemy. The men admit freely the truth of what one says about it, the danger and loss it involves, but it seems a new idea to them that it is hateful to God and imperils their souls. In many ways, however, this tribe is in advance of others in Africa, in habits and morals. They lead a wholesome, industrious life, on the whole, judged, of course, by African standards.

The appeal to the "Book."

Miss Deed adds that the people of Kaloleni are friendly and intelligent, and have a great respect for what is written, so that an appeal to the "Book" has a decided effect, especially among the elder men. They are unable to read for themselves, however, and one of the first steps taken by the missionaries was to open a school. The attendance was irregular, for the young men are continually travelling about, the boys spend most of their days looking after the cattle, and the women and girls are busy working in the fields. An appeal to the elders of the villages to send the children to school resulted in the promise that, although they could not send them, they would not hinder them from coming. The ages of the pupils ranged from six years to twenty, and by the end of the year one or two of them had learnt to read. Several causes combined to prevent itinerating, but the ladies, when they wrote in November, hoped shortly to spend a few days at a place called Mtsengo, about ten miles distant from their station. A few weeks before two young men from that village had passed through Kaloleni. Miss Deed writes:—

Strange use of a hymn chorus.

> They were on their way to the west to buy clothes for the festivities of the Giriama new year. During a talk with them on our verandah I was told that their dances this year were to have a very special feature, some beautiful songs which the young women had learnt and were to sing. I asked what they were, and one of them began to sing, somewhat incorrectly, the chorus of a hymn that has become rather popular, owing, perhaps, to its bright tune. I sent my greetings to the women, and said that they must not sing it at their dances, and that I would try to come and teach them more. A short time after, just before the day for the beginning of their festivities, I sent our African worker over to see them and explain. He was received very well, and was told that they had heard, and were not going to sing the hymn at their dances. I do not know how they learnt it; they must have picked it up from people who had heard it somewhere near here.

MALINDI DISTRICT.

Jilore.

The Rev. J. R. Deimler ministered to the African Christians at JILORE, under the supervision of the Rev. H. K. Binns. In December, 1904, the Rev. D. A. L. Hooper returned with Mrs. Hooper to the station, the scene of his labours for so many years in the past.

TAITA AND TAVETA DISTRICT.

Sagalla.

The district under the oversight of the Rev. J. A. Wray, of SAGALLA, covers an area of 300 square miles, and contains a scattered population of 6,000 souls, among whom, besides Mr. and Mrs. Wray, Miss A. Drake and four African agents are at work. They met with no open opposition, indeed it was the fashion for the people to attend the Sunday morning service and to observe the Day of Rest, but nevertheless there was much indifference, concerning which and the prevalent drunkenness and polygamy earnest prayer is asked. The leading school at the station was the special charge of Miss Drake, but she experienced much difficulty in ensuring the regular attendance of the pupils. One of them, a boy who was baptized in 1903, was sent to the Final Grade School at Frere Town, and it was hoped that he would return in a few years, qualified to partially supply the sorely-felt lack of trained teachers. The Sunday services held at two centres were joined in heartily by the people, whose attention and orderly behaviour were remarkable. Mrs. Wray, who was in charge of the dispensary, bears interesting testimony to the power of the Bible. She says:—

The power of the "pure Word of God."

> I believe more and more in the pure Word of God as the means of opening the eyes of their understanding. For instance, I may tell a person he has sinned, and, as all the people in this country believe themselves to be absolutely sinless, my word carries very little weight. Teach that person 1 John i. 8, 9, and keep at it, and in time you notice a change. That man or that woman no longer says, "I have no sin," but begins to understand that lying and so on is sin, until, perhaps, the light dawns and there is peace in that heart and life. The power lies in the Word.

At Silaloni, six miles from Sagalla, a school is carried on by Paul, a Native of Taveta, trained in the Frere Town Divinity Class, who does good work as an evangelist as well as a teacher. A few short itinerations were made, and a longer one to the Kasigao district, in which the people live in places most difficult of access, on the top of precipitous rocks. Two children were baptized during the year, and the number of unbaptized adherents is just about 1,000.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Maynard, of the Victoria Association, who had Mr. J. Heselwood as their colleague, continued their work at MBALE, in the Dabida district, until the end of June, 1904, when they left for England on furlough. The school attracted a fair number of pupils, who advanced in secular knowledge under the care of Mr. Heselwood and some voluntary teachers, and gave good reason in some cases to suppose that they had also acquired that spiritual knowledge which is life eternal. Among the lads were three orphans from Frere Town. One of them at first was very troublesome, but a real change took place in him, and even the Dabida boys, who at one time did not like him, said that he was a Christian. In the spring of 1904 a number of the senior boys in the school, together with a few young men, gave in their names as desirous of being baptized, and a class was formed for their instruction. The greater part of St. Mark's Gospel, a new edition of a small hymn-book, and a book for use in the schools, were produced by the printing-press. An African agent, Edward, exercised an influence for good at Mlaleni, but Kaia and Chawia suffered from the lack of adequate supervision, though regular weekly visits were paid to them; the Sunday services at these places were fairly well attended.

School-boys ask for baptism.

The establishment of British authority in East Africa has brought about many changes, and its influence has been felt in the district around MAHOO, the station of the Society in Taveta, as well as in other parts. The population, which for some years gradually but steadily diminished, has latterly risen; the increase is taking place, however, not in the forest itself, which in the past comprised the whole of inhabited Taveta, but in the surrounding districts which were entirely uninhabited while the country was dominated by Masai raiders. A large colony composed chiefly of Wanyamwezi has settled on the edge of Lake Jipe, seven miles south of Mahoo, and two other colonies, in the one case of Wakamba and in the other of Wazigua, have established themselves in a forest called Kitowo, seven miles to the west of the C.M.S. station. The advent of these people, among whom no missionary work has hitherto been carried on, introduces a new difficulty, for they have come in sufficient numbers to enable them to dispense with any knowledge of the Tavetan language, which had been to some extent acquired by previous immigrants into the district. Another change has been the vesting of the whole work of government in the British officer, instead of in the Taveta Tribal Assembly. Even the most trivial matters of dispute now have to be taken to the Government station, and the Assembly, which until two or three years ago exercised a good deal of authority, is now practically non-existent. This latter change the Rev. A. R. Steggall, who was the missionary in charge, regards as on the whole beneficial to the work, for the influence of the elders, as a body, was almost invariably on the side of old customs and superstitions, and against Christian teaching.

Taveta.

The Taveta Tribal Assembly loses its power.

The baptized Christians, 101 in number, who were under the care of the Rev. J. N. Mbele, an African deacon, increased in liberality, and joined heartily in the first sale of work to be held at Mahoo. It realized Rs. 25, part of which was given to the C.M.S. Million Shilling Fund. Although the character of the Christians left something to be desired, yet there was a great difference between their homes and those of the Heathen, and there could be little doubt that they had abandoned all faith in at least the most gross of the superstitions of their people. The number of persons belonging to the baptism classes was larger than ever before. One of them, an elder girl in the school which was under the management of Miss E. Mayor, died rather suddenly. She had appeared to be recovering after an illness, but in the night rapidly became worse, and her brother, with whom she lived, hastily called in another Christian, named Justin, who baptized her just before her death. Services were conducted at three different places within the forest, and the African deacon, accompanied by three Christian youths, paid a couple of visits to five of the districts into which Taveta is divided. He found some of the people ready to be taught, and he quotes one man, the leader of a village, who said that he and a friend had contemplated forcing the people to attend the services, but had come to the conclusion that it would not be quite right to compel them to come to pray.

II. UKAMBA PROVINCE.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. Leakey came home in February, 1905, on account of the ill-health of the former.

KIU DISTRICT.

A visit was paid by Bishop Peel in the autumn of 1904 to Sakini, in the Mukaa hills, where Mr. and Mrs. J. Burness are stationed. He says that, although difficulties abound, and the people are not anxious to hear the Gospel, yet there is no discouraging feature about the work.

KIKUYU DISTRICT.

Miss A. Higginbotham joined the Rev. and Mrs. H. Leakey in Kikuyu in November, 1903, and gave most of her time to the study of the language. Mr. Leakey had a band of about thirteen boys constantly under his instruction and supervision, and by his devotion to them won their love and confidence in return. Evangelistic work was carried on in the villages of the district, but there were few signs of any spiritual awakening among the people. Kikuyu.

III. KENIA PROVINCE.

Dr. T. W. W. Crawford was transferred from the Seyidie to the Kenia section of the Mission in September, 1904.

The beginning of December, 1903, found Mr. A. W. McGregor camping at Kahoti, about eight miles from Fort Hall, waiting for the permission of the Sub-Commissioner of the Kenia Province to open a permanent station. Before the end of the year leave to take that step had been received, and Mr. McGregor accordingly removed to a site in Thunguri, midway between Fort Hall and Mount Kinangop. The country is described as "the land of perpetual English summer;" the climate is much better than that of England; tuberculosis is unknown; the malarial mosquito has not been found; and Dr. T. W. W. Crawford, of the Canadian C.M.S., who arrived at the station in October, believes that missionaries who have broken down in insalubrious countries might enjoy good health and do splendid work in Thunguri. The station is admirably situated; good roads, made by Karori, the Government chief and head man (see last year's Report, page 90), give access to all parts of the province; and the district contains a large population. Concerning the latter point Mr. McGregor writes:— A new station opened at Thunguri. "The land of perpetual English summer."

> Just in this district, which is administered from Fort Hall and Nyeri, the Government have counted 110,000 huts, which at the lowest computation gives a population of about 400,000 people. H.B.M.'s Sub-Commissioner estimates that there are yet 50,000 huts uncounted of the Wakikuyu round the base of Mount Kenia. The above total of huts does not include the half of Kikuyu around Nairobi, and which is administered from that place. The sum-total of the matter seems to be that in the Kenia Province alone we have at the present time a half-million of Wakikuyu. Beyond Kenia, to the north, are immense districts without any mission-station. There are the Wagalla, the Somalis, and the route on to Abyssinia, as yet quite untouched. What a scope for a new chain of stations! "Scope for a new chain of stations."

The Natives live in grass houses and dress in skins, and the men, who decorate their hair and bodies with red clay, usually carry long spears. They cultivate the ground and keep herds of sheep and goats. Towards the missionaries they were invariably friendly, and when Mrs. Crawford arrived, after an adventurous journey, in the course of which she met with much kindness at the hands of the American missionaries who escorted her, she was greeted with a strange dance of welcome performed by the women and children. Some light is thrown on the religious ideas of the people by Mr. McGregor's description of a semi-secret religious society, called the Aitwika. He says:—

An African religious Society.

> It is very strong round here; possibly more than half the people belong to it. Their temples, just ordinary huts, are scattered throughout the district. In each there are always men on watch, protecting the sacred horns, &c. Their great influence seems to be owing to the fact that they alone can sacrifice to the python of the water which is found in a river about two miles from here. They appear to sacrifice in state every rainy season when the rainbow is visible. The sacrifice consists of meat, ripe bananas, native beer, &c. These things are sent out on the water in a great goat-trough. They say that when the python is visible the horns are blown, and when he is intoxicated the priests try to pull hairs out of his head to use as charms. These sacrifices are supposed to ensure the people good rainy seasons and to protect them from various ills, &c. It is rather difficult to get any real information about their doings. From what I see, should the Wakikuyu round here ever combine against the Europeans, they would do so round this society.

Mr. McGregor states that several chiefs and others assured him that they did not wish to be numbered with the Aitwika, but with the missionaries—a statement on their part which he regards as significant.

When he went to Thunguri, Mr. McGregor took with him the lads who were mentioned in last year's Report (page 91) as reading with him. They set to work at his instigation to build a school, and soon erected a wattle and daub edifice at a cost, exclusive of their labour which was freely given, of £1. The average number of scholars was twenty. Some of them were day-scholars, but the majority came from a distance, and lived on the mission-premises. Mr. McGregor says that Rs. 2 is sufficient to provide a lad with clothes and food for a year, and that owing to the progressive views of Karori there would be no difficulty in getting the sons of the chiefs over an area of many miles around for training and through them influencing the whole country. Some of the dormitory lads, as the boarders are called, made great advance in their studies, and by the end of the year were able to read in Swahili and also, though with less readiness, in the vernacular and in English. Three boys were only awaiting the arrival of a clerical missionary to be baptized. Mr. McGregor gives the following account of them:—

Candidates for baptism.

> The first one is a lad who has been with me almost since the time when I began the work in Kikuyu in 1900. His name is Njeroki. He has been my right-hand man, and before I went to England expressed his wish to be baptized. He seems thoroughly in earnest, and has a good influence with the other lads. For the last four months he has regularly taken his turn in addressing the people on Sunday morning, with, I believe, great acceptance. The other two are named Karori and Muturi. These are the lads who were brought to me by Karori, the chief, when I was in Kikuyu. The former of the two, who is a nephew of the chief, has also, like Njeroki, taken up witnessing before the people here. It is very encouraging to see this lad stand up and tell the people who know him so well that they are in darkness, and try to win them from darkness to light and from the power of Satan unto God. All three of these lads show evident signs of a change of heart. I ask for prayer on their behalf. "Evident signs of a change of heart."

The school building was also used for the Sunday services, but soon proved too small for that purpose, for the congregation averaged 200; Mr. McGregor was obliged to take up his position before the people assembled, as otherwise he would not have been able to reach his place. Until the arrival of Dr. Crawford he gave medical treatment to a number of people, at one time dealing with 300 cases a week, the great majority suffering from ulcers.

The necessity of superintending the building operations prevented much itinerating, but wherever Mr. McGregor was able to go he was invited to settle down, and the best places for residence were spontaneously pointed out. Besides Thunguri, three sites for mission-stations have been selected, one near Fort Hall, another at Katuri, and the third at Tuso, where Karori lives.

Mr. McGregor was able to accomplish some literary work, translating portions of the Prayer-book and about thirty hymns, and compiling a grammar, in the vernacular. Literary work.

IV. USSAGARA AND UGOGO.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. N. Wood came home in October, 1904; and Mr. J. H. Briggs, whose wife left Africa with him, but, as already stated, died during the journey, in November.

A Conference of African workers in the Ussagara portion of the Mission was held at Mamboya on July 12th and 13th, 1904, presided over by the Rev. A. N. Wood. On the first day addresses were given on "The Master," by Mr. Wood; on "The Work," by the Rev. W. E. Parker; and on "The Worker," by Dr. E. J. Baxter. The morning of the second day was taken up with addresses from African workers. The afternoon was devoted to a meeting for women, conducted by Mrs. Parker. Conference of African workers.

MAMBOYA.

The Rev. W. E. Parker, the missionary in charge at Mamboya (to adopt the German spelling), experienced great trouble in connexion with the supply of African workers. One of them, named Enok, a "splendid worker," who "seemed to draw the young men and boys as if he were a magnet," had a terrible tumour in his face, which eventually caused his death; another fell into gross sin; and a third teacher was transferred elsewhere. Nevertheless the gifts of the people showed an Mamboya.

advance, and some special services and meetings at the end of the harvest—a time devoted usually to drinking and dances—led to seventeen persons standing up at the closing gathering and testifying to conviction of sin. A variety of classes were held, and were attended by such of the patients under treatment as were able to move about. The medical work was carried on by Dr. E. J. Baxter. The number of in-patients at the hospital was about one hundred and included several Masai, but some of these people, instead of coming into the wards, preferred to build little grass huts for themselves outside the compound, in which they lived while undergoing treatment. Two or three of the patients expressed a desire to follow Christ. Mr. Parker visited the out-stations, at which collections were made every six months. Four adults were baptized, and many more might have been received had not the need of exercising caution in the matter been fully realized.

Masai in-patients.

ITUMBA.

Itumba.

The Rev. A. N. Wood, who resided at ITUMBA until his departure for England in September, 1904, was privileged to baptize six men and one woman at Easter, in the presence of a congregation numbering about two hundred. The woman, who was originally brought under Christian influence through her desire for medical treatment, asked to be allowed to say a few words to the people, and, permission being accorded, told them how wicked she had been; thanked God that He, in His mercy, had called her; and exhorted her fellow-countrymen to follow her example. The male candidates afterwards spoke, a young Masai remarking, "I want to leave all wickedness behind and to be joined to Christ in heart and life," and another man saying, "Which is the better, to have a pot of boiling water and flour to put into it wherewith to make food, or to have the pot and boiling water only? We are like the people who have the food; you have nothing but the pot of water, which will never satisfy you." These words were followed up and endorsed by one of the teachers, himself the son of an important chief, who asked the very pertinent question, "In what one way are you heathen people better off than we Christians? You say we have been made fools by the white man. Now come, tell me what have you that we have not? We are married, we are husbands, wives, fathers, mothers; we have houses, clothes, cattle, good looks, good health, joy, &c., &c., and something far more valuable. What have you? In what do you excel?" Mr. Wood asks for special prayer for these newly-baptized converts, and also for the thirteen out-stations which are worked from Itumba. The Rev. W. E. Parker superintended the work from Mamboya when Mr. Wood left.

An African parable.

BEREGA.

Berega.

The work at BEREGA, which was carried on in 1903 by an African teacher, Yeremiya, was taken up at the end of January, 1904, by Mrs. K. Pickthall (transferred from Mamboya) and Miss E. R. Spriggs. Dr. Baxter, who was in general superintendence, went over to the station every fortnight from Mamboya, and the Rev. D. J. Rees also paid a couple of visits to this his old sphere of work. The attendance at the women's class increased steadily, a matter for special thankfulness, for the women are said to have everything against them. Miss Spriggs writes:—

Obstacles met with by the women.

They need the continual prayers of God's people. Naturally indolent and very shy of the European, their relatives and friends do their utmost to keep them back even when they do begin to seek the truth. Several of the women hearers come regularly to class, church, and school, but get no further than to answer intelligently when questioned. Heathen customs forced on them by their mothers hinder the younger ones, and I fear drink and dances do the same for the older women.

Several persons were received into the catechumenate, among them a Mamboya man who was formerly Mr. Rees's servant, and a shepherd who, on being reminded of the importance of prayer and Bible study, replied, "How can I do otherwise; how can I be ashamed?" The ladies and the African agents visited the numerous out-stations. At Idibo and Ngwiami the zeal and interest of the people were on the wane, a fact partly to be attributed, perhaps, to the inability of the European missionaries to reach them more than once or twice a year. Visits to Bindo, where the Natives, especially the women, welcomed the workers warmly, had to be suspended for a time because of the lions which were in the neighbourhood. Chogowali is a new out-station. Mrs. Pickthall says:—

"How can I be ashamed?"

Exhausted bodily, but full of encouragement.

The teachers have lately shown their zeal in the Lord's service in determining that a far-off place called Chogowali shall be visited every fortnight in addition to all the other out-stations. An invitation had come from the chief asking for teaching for himself and his people, but we feared we might not be able to undertake it, at any rate at present, till Mr. Deekes's return, but they one and all said, "We must go if called." I cannot say how many miles it is off, but it is a day and a half's hard walking, and they have left on Friday and returned Tuesday evening, quite exhausted bodily, but full of encouragement.

Among the races to be reached from Berega are the Masai, some of whom each year bring their flocks, and camp in the district, and the Wakamba, of whom there is a large settlement. A few of the women of the latter were extremely friendly, but the men refused to be taught.

First-fruits baptized.

Five adults, the firstfruits of the station, were baptized by Mr. Rees in November, 1904.

NYANGARA.

Nyangara.

Miss M. A. Ackerman was without any European colleague at NYANGARA during the year under review, but she says that Never suffered to feel lonely.

the people were thoughtful and kind, and that she was never suffered to feel lonely, though at times she longed for congenial companionship. Dr. Baxter paid fortnightly visits to the station from Mamboya. Towards the end of the year the attendance at the school improved, and the members of the Bible-class showed their earnestness by trying to induce others to join. The wife of one of the teachers and three children of Christian parents were baptized. At Chamunyo, one of the out-stations, several persons were enrolled as hearers, and at Maundiki, which continued to be a bright spot in the district, three wives of the chief were promoted from the hearers' to the inquirers' class, and a new schoolroom was erected. One day Miss Ackerman was called to see a poor woman, the slave and wife of the chief of a village, who had cut her throat. The circumstances in which the sad act was performed illustrate the superstitious ideas of the Africans, and are thus narrated :—

Attempted suicide in consequence of superstitious ideas.

On the Saturday night she went outside the door of her house in the dark, and two owls screamed: this is a bad omen to the tribe. It is supposed that these birds bring witchcraft to the person who sees them when they scream, and that someone will make medicine against them, bringing about their death or causing a bad sickness or some other evil to happen to them. This poor woman said when she saw the birds they bewitched her, caused her spirit to jump, and led her into the house to take the knife to kill herself.

The effort, happily successful, to save the woman's life was the means of leading the husband and several others in the village to listen to the Gospel, to which they had previously refused to pay any heed. On one of her journeys Miss Ackerman had a narrow escape from a couple of lions. She writes :—

Narrow escape from lions.

The front hammock-bearer was the first to see them. I wish I could picture it to you—the darkness with stars overhead, no moon, just a hurricane-lantern, and four eyes like fire glaring at us. The men never let go the hammock, but stood; the front one backed like a horse, clutched the hammock-pole with the left hand and his spear with the right, and just said, "Animal here!" I got some matches out of my bag and the men lighted a fire; we were near a fallen tree, so they chopped at the branches with their spears and soon got a blaze. The lions stood until the fire was so fierce that they thought they had better go, and turned off into the bushes. It was so good to be able to say to the men, "We are safe; God is here, and he takes care of us!" All except one of the porters were Heathen.

MPAPUA.

Mpapua.

At the commencement of the year under review the missionaries at MPAPUA were the Rev. and Mrs. H. Cole, the Rev. and Mrs. D. J. Rees, the Rev. and Mrs. T. B. R. Westgate, of the Canadian C.M.S., and Miss B. V. Attlee, but Mr. and Mrs. Rees soon left for Kongwa, whither Miss Attlee followed in March. Some anxiety was caused by the withdrawal of a number of the leading workers, including three of the African agents. Referring to the general aspect of affairs Mr. Cole says :—

"More hardened in Heathenism."

If anything, the people of Mpapua have become more hardened in their Heathenism, and more chary of the missionary, lest his teaching should undermine their long-cherished customs, when the loss of caste, &c., would be added to the loss of country, as the result of European aggression. Some of them, however, give themselves opprobrious epithets, such as "fools" and "beasts," when speaking of their attitude toward the message of salvation, and say they cannot explain why it is they do not accept it, unless it is that "Setani" has got them in his power. It is, of course, true that he has a firm hold of them, but it would be more to the point if they were to add that it is their love of sin which chiefly stands in the way. But while the Heathen in general have apparently become more intractable, several of those living in the mission-compound, who were for years "halting between two opinions," have recently come forward expressing their desire to become Christians.

Two adults were baptized and four persons received into the catechumenate at Kissokwe, where the two resident African agents accomplished admirable work. Both Mpapua and Kissokwe will in future be worked as out-stations from Kongwa. Mr. Cole made a couple of itinerating tours, the one to the extreme north of his district, and the other to the south-east. In the course of the former, in which he had the pleasure and advantage of the company of Dr. Baxter, he came to a village in which were some nine or ten women who were said to be "possessed." One of their peculiar symptoms was that when there was a dance, instead of joining in it with the others they would stoop down and sweep the ground with their hands. At another place, Zoyisa, forty miles from Mpapua, whose people some three years before had asked for a visit, Mr. Cole was invited to stay with the chief. He writes :—

"Possessed" women.

Prayer more efficacious than "medicine" to stop rain.

The weather was anything but pleasant, there being a heavy mist most of the time. The people, in consequence, were not able to harvest their corn, and the chief was at his wits' end seeking for medicine, &c., to stop the rain. I told him to stop the people from dancing and debauchery at night, and to pray to God to stop the rain, as He was the only One Who could do so. The dancing was discontinued, and on the second day afterwards (May 1st) the weather cleared up and hope and joy filled the land. At our last service there were about a hundred people present (Zoyisa is not a large place). We kept on for about two hours, until our preaching powers became exhausted. The people listened with rapt attention.

In most of the villages the people were ready enough to listen to the preaching, but there was one exception. Mr. Cole writes :—

Giving blood to snakes.

The cause was, probably, that the chief had recently introduced a diabolical custom, or practice, which consists in getting power over the snake kingdom by giving certain snakes (kept by the medicine-man) one's blood to drink, when the person so doing becomes initiated and is supposed henceforth to be able to charm snakes, cure their bites, cause them to bite his enemies, as well as to kill people and bring them to life again! Our preaching seemed, of course, but "tame" to the possessors of this extraordinary black magic. Three snakes, lent by the medicine-man for the above purpose, were "on view" when we got to the place, but were afterwards hidden away lest my followers should kill them! We were told that the chief had given the medicine-man an ox for the loan of the snakes, but he was shortly afterwards reimbursed by his people who came to be initiated.

The greater part of Mr. Westgate's time was taken up with superintending the building of the sanatorium at Kiboriani, near Mpapua. In September the roof was destroyed by fire; fortunately, however, no one was hurt, and nothing save the roof was injured. It was decided by the Executive Committee of this portion of the Mission to re-roof the building at once in order to prevent the walls from being destroyed by the rains, and by the middle of November fair progress in the task had been made.

With the help of Mrs. Cole and of two African teachers, Mr. Cole was engaged in compiling a Kigogo-English dictionary.

KONGWA.

A new station opened at Kongwa.

About the end of January, 1904, the Rev. and Mrs. D. J. Rees proceeded to KONGWA, a few miles from Mpapua, to open a new station, and in March they were joined there by Miss B. V. Attlee, who remained with them until June, when she removed to Mvumi. Mr. Rees was chiefly occupied during the year in superintending the building operations, for African workmen require constant supervision. By the beginning of December, however, both the church and mission-house were completed, and Mr. Rees was able to contemplate more systematic teaching than had previously been possible. The people, who are mostly Wagogo, appeared well-disposed.

Mvumi.

Mr. and the late Mrs. J. H. Briggs were joined at MVUMI in January, 1904, by the Misses M. Fendt and E. Forsythe, and in June, a month or two before Mr. and Mrs. Briggs left on furlough, Miss B. V. Attlee also arrived at the station. With the help of four African teachers and a couple of lads who were received as students and devoted themselves entirely to spiritual work, the services and classes were maintained as in previous years. A good deal of building was accomplished at the out-stations, ten in number, rest-houses being erected at Ngholabi and Manhumbulu, and school-houses at Handali, Meinde, Nhundulu, and Mulowa. The number of people able to read gradually increased, and although they were by no means quick to grasp things, yet there was a wonderful improvement in the lives of some of them. Three men, five women, and five children were baptized by the Rev. H. Cole, in August, 1904.

BUGIRI.

Bugiri.

Sunday, August 21st, 1904, was a red-letter day in the history of the work at BUGIRI, where Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Doulton, of the New South Wales Association, resided, for then four men and two women, the firstfruits of the station, who had been admitted to the catechumenate in January after a lengthy probation, were baptized by the Rev. H. Cole. A large congregation was present at the service, including the chiefs and principal people of the place. About the same time four other persons were admitted as catechumens. In addition, there were a good number of people receiving regular instruction at the close of the year, in the various classes for hearers and inquirers. Work was commenced in two new districts, Msamalo and Chilonwa, where rest-houses were erected, but the lack of African agents prevented advantage being taken of all the opportunities for extension which presented themselves.

UGANDA MISSION.

The first impetus to the exploration of Africa from the East Coast was given by the Society's missionaries, Krapf and Rebmann. They communicated to Europe the first report of the Lake system of the interior, which led to the journeys of Burton, Speke, and Grant, and, incidentally, to those of Stanley. In November, 1875, in consequence of information sent home by the last-named of the readiness of Mtesa, king of Uganda, to receive Christian teachers, and of two anonymous donations of £5,000 each being offered in order that a missionary expedition might be sent to his dominions, the Society resolved, in dependence upon God, to organize a Mission in Uganda, and a well-equipped party accordingly proceeded to East Africa in the spring of 1876. The first leader, Lieut. G. Shergold Smith, R.N., and Mr. T. O'Neill were killed; and later several others, including Bishop Parker in 1888, died before reaching the country. The Mission, however, maintained its position in Uganda from July, 1877, and this notwithstanding tremendous difficulties. A French Roman Catholic Mission arrived in 1879. King Mtesa, who died in 1884, was succeeded by Mwanga, and the new king was led, in 1885, to regard the missionaries with suspicion. He caused Bishop Hannington, while in Busoga, en route for Uganda from the coast, to be murdered on October 31st of that year. The storm reached its climax in the arrest of many Native Christians, several of whom were tortured and burnt to death. In August, 1888, king Mwanga was driven from the throne. In October, through the hostility of the Mohammedan Arabs, the English and French missionaries were expelled from the country, and a period of revolution and bloodshed ensued. In October, 1889, exactly a year from the missionaries' expulsion, Mwanga re-entered Uganda and regained his throne through the help of his Christian subjects, and the missionaries returned with him. In the same year he accepted a British flag from the representatives of the Imperial British East Africa Company. Sir Gerald Portal reached Uganda, as Queen's Commissioner, in March, 1893, and in April, 1894, the British Government declared Uganda a British Protectorate. In the summer of 1897 Mwanga fled from the capital, and his infant son Chwa, baptized by the name of David, was proclaimed king. In September of the same year a serious mutiny of the Soudanese troops broke out; several European officers were seized and murdered, and one of the missionaries, Mr. G. L. Pilkington, who in response to the appeal of the authorities was accompanying the Government forces as interpreter, lost his life. The country of Busoga first had a resident missionary in 1891; Toro was occupied in 1896; Bunyoro in 1899; Kavirondo in 1900; Ankole in 1901; and the Acholi country in 1904. Nassa, in Usukuma, at the south end of the Lake, was occupied in 1888.

In 1897 the Diocese of Eastern Equatorial Africa was subdivided, the Uganda Protectorate, according to the boundaries then obtaining (which have since been altered), being formed into the Diocese of Uganda, which Bishop Tucker elected to retain, relinquishing the remainder to form the Diocese of Mombasa.

Death of Sir H. M. Stanley.

THE death of Sir H. M. Stanley on May 10th, 1904, at the age of sixty-three, has removed one who, to the end, took a deep interest in this Mission, the inception of which was largely due to him. It was in 1874 that he set forth on the great expedition which took him first to the Victoria and Tanganyika Lakes, and then enabled him to identify Livingstone's Lualaba with the Congo, down which he travelled to the Atlantic. In the course of this journey, as is well known, he visited Uganda, and had those interviews with Mtesa, the then king, which led him to write his famous letter to the Daily Telegraph, challenging Christendom to send missionaries to the country. The manner in which that letter was forwarded was described by

Stanley himself in the Cornhill Magazine for January, 1901, and is thus related in Uganda Notes :—

> The only practicable route open at that time was by the Nile. A young Belgian, named Linants de Bellefonds, was then in Uganda, and to him Stanley entrusted the letter. On his way north his expedition was attacked by the Bari tribe, and he himself murdered and his body thrown out. Some time later a punitive expedition sent to inquire into his death discovered the body still clad in the high knee-boots he was wearing at the time of his death, and in the boots, thrust in at the last moment, was Stanley's letter to the Daily Telegraph challenging Christendom to evangelize Uganda. It was forwarded to General Gordon at Khartoum, and by him home.

Stanley's challenge to Christendom.

Great indeed have been the changes witnessed in Uganda during the thirty years since Stanley's letter was written. Slavery, which before the advent of Christianity was an integral part of the national life, has been abolished, and much indignation is now shown if a man in a fit of anger makes a claim that a certain person is his slave. The cruelty for which the Baganda were notorious, the awful system of punishing slight offences by mutilation, flaying, or burning, has come to an end. The maltreatment and contempt for women, and the habit of regarding them as mere machines for the purposes of cultivating, cooking, and childbearing, are gradually passing away. A girl now marries the man of her choice instead of being disposed of by her father or near relative without reference to her wishes.

Changes in Uganda in thirty years.

Immorality is still sadly prevalent, but to quote the words of the Rev. G. R. Blackledge, "Christianity has worked and worked wondrously, and whereas before its advent there was not a pure man or woman, and purity in the home was a thing unheard of, yet now we know from the closest personal acquaintance and knowledge that there are hundreds of pure men and women, and hundreds of pure homes, exemplifying the truth of our Lord's words, 'He that followeth Me shall not walk in the darkness, but shall have the Light of Life.' Christianity is acting as a mighty leaven as regards this terrible social evil of immorality." Children are now brought up by their parents instead of by strangers. Both the dwellings and the clothing of the people have been vastly improved. And, lastly, the dignity of labour is being slowly but surely learnt.

"Christianity is acting as a mighty leaven."

There can be little doubt that the institution of the Hut-tax has played its part in working the last-named reform, and it may be anticipated with confidence that the operations of the Uganda Company, the formation of which was recorded in last year's Report (page 102), and which during the year took over the Industrial Work of the Society at Mengo, will tend in the same direction. The spread of industrial education under Christian auspices is likely also to add materially to the influence of the Mission because of the respect entertained by the Baganda for those who have been trained to work with their hands. On this point Mr. H. O. Savile writes:—

The influence of skilled labourers.

There is a large demand for skilled labour in the country; the skilled labourer draws very high wages, and, in consequence, is looked up to, sways public opinion, and influences the morality of the country in a most remarkable manner. Who are the skilled labourers? Firstly: a large number of Indians (mostly from Bombay), who, though they may not proselytize, certainly do not encourage Christianity amongst the Natives; being men who have lost caste, many of them live perhaps worse lives than they would ever dream of doing in their own country, and their influence on the Natives is certainly not good. Secondly: a large number of Swahilis from the coast, almost all Mohammedans, who do proselytize, with the result that Natives who go to work with them, and certainly any who wish to learn a trade from them, find that they cannot do so unless they become Mohammedans; so that nearly all who learn trades from these men, and many who work with them, become nominal Mohammedans, and certainly do not become the better citizens by doing so, for in Uganda the majority of native Mohammedans know practically nothing of their religion, are the heaviest drinkers and perhaps the most immoral people in the country, and are, of course, far harder to reach with the Gospel than the simple Heathen. Thirdly: a smaller number of Christians, the best of whom have been trained by the Mission, the remainder having picked up what they know of their trade from other Natives, and they generally know it very imperfectly. Possibly there may be a larger number of Christian bricklayers, but very few of them are qualified men, capable of building even the simpler forms of brickwork without supervision.

Material progress in the country.

The improvement in the condition of the country continues steadily. The receipts from the Hut-tax for the year ending March, 1904, were £51,474—about one-half the total revenue—and showed an increase in two years of over fifty-one per cent. The value of the trade of the Protectorate was £176,047—nearly double the figures of the year before. The telegraph-line from Mombasa to Entebbe has been extended to Lake Albert and to Wadelai on the Nile. A Survey Department is rapidly preparing the way for an accurate map of the country; and a scientific Department is studying and experimenting with the products likely to have an economic value. This picture of material progress, however, has its dark side, for there is no diminution in the ravages of the sleeping-sickness, and for a short time the outbreak of Asiatic plague at Port Florence, the terminus of the Uganda Railway on the north-east of the Victoria Nyanza, gave rise to some apprehensions lest that terrible foe should make its appearance in the Protectorate.

Religious Census.

The preceding paragraphs have dealt with material and social advance in Uganda. Happily the spread of Christianity has been commensurate. The census of the Province of Uganda (co-extensive with the native kingdom of that name, but far from being so with the whole Protectorate or with the Mission), taken in 1904 by the Native Government, shows that of a population of 717,535, the Heathen numbered 300,279, Roman Catholic Christians 212,669; Protestant Christians, 164,241, and Mohammedans, 40,346; so that the united Christian bodies, including unbaptized adherents of the Missions, outnumbered the united non-Christian bodies. Although it cannot be supposed that all those registered as Christians are really such, yet it is significant that the majority of the population should enroll themselves as adherents of the Christian faith. It is worthy of note also that Colonel J. Hayes Sadler, His Majesty's Commissioner in Uganda, has stated that the work of the Society in the Mission fully equals the reports of it which he had read before he went to the country. In the course of an interview which the Committee had the pleasure of having with him in November, he remarked: "When I had the privilege of standing before you some three years ago I had not visited Uganda, but I had read much about the Society's work there, and, as I told the Committee, I had read it with amazement. Now I have seen the work, and I can only say I am still amazed." Many definite causes for encouragement occurred during 1904. They were enumerated by Bishop Tucker on December 31st as follows:—

"I am still amazed."

The year which draws to a close to-day has been an annus mirabilis in the history of the Mission. It has seen (1) The commencement of work in the Nile Valley. (2) The consecration of the Cathedral. (3) The commencement of work in Kavirondo. (4) The inauguration of Mengo High School. (5) The commencement of the scheme for higher education. (6) The completion of the new hospital. (7) A new girls' school on Namirembe. (8) A new girls' boarding-school at Gayaza. (9) The largest number of baptisms in the history of the Mission—more than 9,000, of whom some 6,000 were adults. When one thinks of it all one is humbled to the dust and can only say, Laus Deo soli.

An "annus mirabilis."

In order to gain an accurate conception of the present condition of the Mission, it is necessary to look at the causes for grief as well as at those for thankfulness. Some of the former are mentioned in the account, given by Mr. T. F. Victor Buxton, a member of the Committee, who visited Uganda in the spring of 1904, of the proceedings at the Conference of missionaries, which was held during his stay in the country. He writes:—

Conference of missionaries.

The first subject on the programme was the question whether the time was ripe for giving a Constitution to the Church of Uganda, and thus committing to the whole body of Christians the management of pastoral work and the responsibility of evangelizing the Heathen still at their doors and the peoples lying in darkness around.

A good deal was said on the one hand as to their unfitness on the whole for bearing responsibility; they were "still mere children," as one leading missionary remarked. Another drew attention to the prevailing lack of truthfulness, and to the fact that comparatively few could be thoroughly trusted in financial matters. It was pointed out that many of the young men brought up to the capital to be trained as teachers were unruly and sadly needing discipline, while of those sent out and scattered over the country a considerable number—including some even of the ordained men—had become listless and inactive in the work committed to them. And it was urged on these grounds that higher education and a period of further training were needed before the Christians of the country could be entrusted with the management of their own Church affairs. This, however, had been the conclusion on a former occasion, and it was naturally asked what progress had been made in the interval, and what had been gained meanwhile by the endeavour to provide training in powers of management by such means as the central and local Church Councils. The answer to this question appeared to be distinctly discouraging. A missionary of wide experience remarked that "the spirit of the Baganda had entirely changed, and their qualities had gone down," while others confirmed his opinion by noticing an altered disposition now manifested towards the missionaries, an envious self-asserting spirit very different from the loving confidence which characterized the earlier days. Some of this bad feeling is due to sheer ignorance, and this was illustrated by the statement that many Natives think the missionaries are supported out of the hut-tax which they are now required to pay. It is difficult to balance rightly the various causes to which this saddening change may be due, but at least it seemed evident that a policy of leading-strings had not been wholly successful, and might easily be carried too far. A higher standard of diligence and faithfulness among catechists, teachers, and pastors might perhaps be promoted if all were directly responsible to some central authority, whose right to supervise and direct they would recognize without question.

A higher standard of diligence and faithfulness required.

But this thought leads one straight to another and far deeper need, the need of real consecration to Jesus Christ as Master and King. No subject discussed at the Conference was of greater importance than the means to be used for promoting holiness of life among the Christians; and perhaps our best hope for meeting "the present distress" lies in the action to be taken upon a resolution proposed by the Bishop and unanimously adopted, "that in the opinion of this Conference a series of special services should from time to time be held throughout the country, with the object of deepening the spiritual life of the Church, through the setting forth of the salvation from the power of sin which there is in Jesus Christ the Living Saviour."

On the whole, however, the session at which this resolution was passed was marked by a tone of sadness and anxiety. The opening speaker pointed out that before we could profitably consider the deepening of spiritual life, we must realize the urgent need; and he drew attention to the distressing state of morals prevailing in the country, and painfully affecting the professing Christian Church. Speaker after speaker dwelt upon the same subject, deploring the low tone of public opinion, among the leading men of the country no less than among the common people. Statistics adduced from work in the hospital and dispensary went to show that immorality had been increasing of late; there was "as yet no national conscience" against it, and often in individual cases a total absence of shame.

A "low tone of public opinion."

In any estimate of the future of missionary work in Central Africa Mohammedanism claims consideration. It is slowly advancing towards Uganda through the Soudan, and as communication between Egypt and the great lakes by river and road is improved, the advance will become more rapid. A more pressing danger to the infant Church threatens from the east, for with the railway have come the Swahilis who have so long been accustomed to exercise a dominant influence over East African tribes. A desire to be free from the moral restraints imposed by Christianity has already led to a number of perversions to Mohammedanism.

Spread of Mohammedanism in Uganda.

Sufficient has been said to show how difficult are the problems by which Bishop Tucker and the missionaries are confronted, and how onerous the work in which they are engaged. In the spring of 1904 the Bishop visited the Acholi country, and later in the year made a tour through part of the eastern half of his diocese. Mr. Buxton says that "in journeyings oft" would fitly describe the Bishop's life, and adds that during the twelve months previous to his visit "only four had been passed by Bishop Tucker under his own roof in Mengo, the remaining eight having been spent on the road or in distant parts of his diocese."

Bishop Tucker's movements.

The Rev. Nuwa Kikwabanga, pastor of Bukaleba, in Busoga, died on March 19th, 1905, from sleeping-sickness. He was ordained Deacon by Bishop Tucker in 1896, with four others, and was admitted to Priests' Orders three years later. He was the late Pilkington's first instructor in Luganda, and at the time of the Nubian mutiny he saved the life of the Rev. H. W. Weatherhead by carrying him away and hiding with him in a swamp. He has been described as a real missionary, thoroughly wise and reliable, and an excellent preacher, "a humble, earnest worker, and a consistently good man."

Death of the Rev. N. Kikwabanga.

The Mission has received what, under the circumstances, may be regarded as a goodly band of recruits, viz., the Revs. William Bridson Gill, Walter Edwin Owen, and Albert Edward Pleydell, all of Islington College, who were admitted to Deacons' Orders in St. Paul's Cathedral by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, May 29th, 1904; Mr. John Silas Herbert, also an Islington student; Miss Emily Hattersley, of Sheffield, trained at The Olives, a sister of Mr. C. W. Hattersley of this Mission; Miss Edith Theodora Hill, of Stoke Newington, trained at The Olives and Bethnal Green, a daughter of the late Bishop Hill of Western Equatorial Africa; Miss Harriet Florence Holdgate, of Leyton, trained at The Olives; Miss Emily Marguerite Piffin, trained at Highbury; Miss Florence Kate Reed, of Thornton Heath, a trained nurse, who also had a course at The Willows; and Miss Margaret Annie Taylor, of Stroud Green, trained at Bermondsey. Mr. Owen sailed for the Mission in September, 1904; Messrs. Gill, Pleydell, and Herbert in October; and the ladies in November. The Committee have accepted the resignation of the Rev. E. C. Gordon on medical grounds. Mr. Gordon was a nephew of Bishop Hannington, with whom he sailed for East Africa in May, 1882. He was stationed at Msalala, in Usukuma, where he worked as a pioneer until 1887. In that year he was joined by Mr. Mackay, on his expulsion from Uganda by Mwanga, who brought Mwanga's invitation to him to go to Uganda. Then began Mr. Gordon's service in Uganda, where he was for some months the only missionary of the Society, until joined by the Rev. R. H. Walker. Throughout the intervening years, from 1887 to 1902, Mr. Gordon bore an important part in all the enterprise of the Uganda Mission, being especially associated lately with the work on the Sese Islands. Mr. Gordon's name will long be remembered in connexion with the literature both of Uganda, in which he produced among other works a translation of the Pilgrim's Progress, and also of Usukuma, in which he did valuable service first in the collection of a vocabulary and the production of Scripture portions, and subsequently, while stationed in Uganda, in helping and encouraging his successors in Usukuma. Mr. Gordon was invalided home in 1902. The Committee have also accepted the resignations of the Rev. D. A. O'Connor and J. W. Purser. With the hearty approval of the Committee, Mr. K. E. Borup has resigned in order to join the Uganda Company.

Ordination.

Bishop Tucker admitted the Rev. Y. Nakumanyanga to Priests' Orders at Ngogwe on St. Matthew's Day, September 21st, 1904.

I. PROVINCE OF UGANDA.

THE Rev. G. H. Casson, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Cook, and Mrs. G. R. Blackledge came home in August, 1904; Miss S. R. Tanner in September; and the Rev. D. A. O'Connor in October. Mr. H. O. Savile, who married Miss K. E. Barton at Mengo on June 22nd, returned to England with Mrs. Savile in November; Miss A. H. Robinson came home in December, and Mr. C. J. Phillips in May, 1905. The Rev. E. Millar sailed for the Mission in September, 1904; Mr. W. G. S. Innes in November; the Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Leakey in February, 1905; and the Rev. S. R. Skeens in April. The Rev. G. H. Casson married Miss Helen Trench Bate at Toft, Knutsford, on March 2nd, 1905. The Rev. J. J. Willis was transferred to the Kavirondo section of the Mission in January, 1905. In the same month Miss H. M. Thomas also left this section of the Mission on her marriage to Dr. A. Bond.

Mengo.

The new Cathedral at MENGO was consecrated by Bishop Tucker on June 21st, 1904, in the presence of king Daudi Chwa, Colonel Hayes Sadler, the European and Baganda clergy, and a vast concourse of people. Before its completion, while the windows, doors, pulpit, and other furniture had still to be introduced, services on special occasions had been held in the building, the first being on June 26th, 1902, the day originally fixed for the coronation of King Edward VII. The lessons at the consecration service were read by the Rev. Henry Wright Duta and another of the Baganda clergy, and the sermon was preached by Archdeacon R. H. Walker. The offertory was quite unique, and consisted of thirteen cows, four goats, 125 eggs, 130 fowls, 75,000 cowrie shells, 500 rupees in coin, 600 rupees promised, and 1,064 pice. The money alone represents £85 in English currency. The cows were tied up outside the cathedral, but the goats were brought in and led up to the communion rail by a rope, and the Bishop, after having duly received them, returned them to be tied up outside. The fowls were secured in large crates made of sticks, and the shells were given in bundles fastened with the dried banana fibre. The offertory took quite half an hour to collect, for the sidesmen were not content with collecting from the congregation inside, but brought in large bags full from the crowd outside, who had been standing patiently for hours in the sun with their offerings ready. The communion table was heaped up with these offerings before they had finished. A unique offertory.

Training Classes for candidates for ordination were conducted by Archdeacon Walker, the Secretary of the Mission, and for men teachers by the Revs. J. Roscoe and H. W. Weatherhead, the last named of whom removed to Mengo for the purpose from the Sese Islands in January, 1904. It was a matter for thankfulness that the number of candidates for the Church Council's Teachers' Certificates showed an increase. The standard of examination was steadily raised with a view to securing a better and more educated class of teachers, and rendering it possible to dispense with the work of untrained local ones, who are so numerous that it is impossible for them to be paid as they should be. The proposed substitution of central churches under the charge of trained men for numbers of very small churches each under an untrained local man, while leading to the employment of fewer teachers will ensure that they are better trained, better paid, and more fully occupied. Miss G. E. Bird superintended the classes for women teachers. Mr. C. W. Hattersley had 320 pupils under his charge in the Boys' School, fees being charged for all but the most elementary lessons in reading and writing. One of the teachers gave daily instruction to the little king, and another taught the king's brother. Affiliated with the school are twenty-one other schools in different parts of the country, the teachers in which have been trained in Mengo. In January, 1905, the Rev. C. H. T. Ecob was transferred from Ndeje to assume the superintendence of the Primary School, and Mr. Hattersley then devoted himself to the High School for the sons of chiefs, which was formally opened on the 25th of that month by the Acting-Commissioner, George Wilson, Esq., C.B. An invitation to attend the ceremony was sent to Prince Mbogo, a brother of the late king Mtesa and leader of the Mohammedans in Uganda. He replied that, though he was ill, he would be carried to the school, as he would not on any account miss such an event. In the course of the proceedings this prince made a speech in which he said that he thanked God for the work of the Society in the country and for the efforts being made by his friends of Namirembe to teach the people wisdom: a remarkable statement from one who is professedly hostile to Christianity! Four houses were built, each capable of accommodating ten boys, and each in charge of a Christian house-master. The money for the erection of the first house was given by friends in England; the Katikiro and two other great chiefs subscribed the needed funds for the second; the third was built on the initiative and at the cost of the British authorities; and the fourth with the contributions of sixteen chiefs. These buildings were soon crowded, among the pupils being a Mohammedan prince, fifteen years old, who wrote saying, "This religion is very bad; it is a religion of death. I want to become a Protestant and join Mr. Hattersley's school for chiefs." The other pupils included Yosiya Nadiope, the Christian chief of Kamuli (see Annual Report, 1902–03, page 140); Gideoni Oboja, the chief of Mohammedanism "is a religion of death."

Iganga, whose baptism was recorded in last year's Report (page 134); and the sons and nephews of seven of the heads of counties, and of two of the three Regents. Besides these and other boarders, forty-eight in all, there were five day-boarders, one of them being Yusufu Suna, the king's brother referred to above. Mr. Hattersley wrote in February concerning the work of the school and its possibilities:—

Nothing allowed to crowd out Bible addresses.

Twenty of the boys are being prepared for confirmation. They were mostly baptized as infants. Practical Christianity is our first object, and nothing is allowed to crowd out the three, and some days four, short Bible addresses and lessons, including one at evening prayer at 7 p.m. Games and drill are not forgotten, but there is small danger of their leading to neglect of lessons. Baganda come to school readily, but need persuasion to play games, with the single exception of football. Cleanliness is one of our difficulties. Our pupils all dress in white cotton trousers, vest, and long kanzu (a sort of shirt). These they themselves have to wash twice a week, and they do it too.

Cleanliness has been no part of the boys' training in their own homes. A cloth was rarely washed from its first putting on till it rotted to pieces, but they soon realize the advantage and the comfort of cleanliness. In the few weeks we have been at work we have been greatly encouraged by the marked improvement in habits and manners of the boys, and we have great hopes for their future.

No one can estimate the influence for good or evil these boys may exercise. Won for the Master, and well trained for Him, who shall say where their power for good shall end? And how much easier for these countries, until lately always at war with each other, to understand each other, and arrange business happily, when all the leading chiefs are men who rubbed against each other at school, and know each other's dispositions. The Baganda have hitherto despised their neighbours, but they will find now that they are all very much on the same level. The benefit to the boys themselves will be great, but the benefit to the whole of the country when the leaders are well-educated men, and inspired by Christian principles, will be even greater.

Steps were taken to establish an Intermediate School at Budo, eight miles south-west of Mengo. While the boys were thus cared for, the girls were not neglected. A new Girls' School was erected during the year, much of the money required for the purpose being raised by means of a house-to-house collection made by a man named Yusufu Mukasa, under the auspices of the Native Church Council, who displayed great diligence in his work. The average number of girls present in the mornings was 130, and in the afternoons from seventy to eighty. In addition there were about twelve monitresses, including two princesses, and the two eldest daughters of the Katikiro, to whom special instruction was given after school hours. Several of these monitresses attended a Bible-class which was held for their benefit every Sunday afternoon by Miss E. M. Brewer, who had the management of the school.

Girls' School.

Miss E. M. Furley superintended the Work Among Women. The Mengo district was divided into five portions, and each of the ladies at the capital had her own district in which to visit. A special effort was made to reach the elder girls by the institution of a Young Women's Christian Association.

Work among Women

Industrial work.

Mr. K. E. Borup resumed the superintendence of the Industrial Work on his return from England at the end of 1903, and had the help of Mr. H. G. Dillistone. During the year under review this portion of the missionary enterprise was handed over to the Uganda Company, to which Mr. Borup's services have been transferred, as already stated. The chief productions of the printing-press were a Commentary on St. John's Gospel and a Commentary on the Thirty-nine Articles, both of them translated by the Rev. F. Rowling; a new edition of the Luganda Hymn-book; and a Geography.

Sale of books.

The sale of books, &c., was in the hands of Mr. C. J. Phillips, the accountant of the Mission. During the year 1903, 1,136 Bibles were sold, 4,226 New Testaments, 13,486 Gospels, 3,275 Prayer-books, 40,856 First Reading-books, 9,674 Catechisms, 4,160 Hymn-books, and 212 copies of The Pilgrim's Progress. All the Scriptures were supplied by the British and Foreign Bible Society, and the Prayer-books by the S.P.C.K.

Medical Work.

The Medical Work was under the charge of Dr. A. R. Cook, who had the assistance of his brother, Dr. J. H. Cook, until July, 1904, when the latter left on furlough. Mrs. A. R. Cook had the general superintendence of the nursing arrangements and special charge of the women's and obstetric wards; Miss B. E. Dallison was responsible for the men's wards and the operating theatres; and Miss A. L. Allen filled the gap caused by the marriage of Miss K. E. Barton in June, until the arrival of Miss E. M. Piffin, a nurse probationer, one of the year's recruits, in December.

Opening of the new hospital.

The new hospital was opened by Mr. George Wilson, the Acting-Commissioner, on November 28th, the second anniversary of the destruction of the old hospital by fire. The bed accommodation is now 103. A large number of patients were received in the temporary hospital which was in use during the greater part of the year, the total number for the twelve months being just over 1,000, of whom 498 were baptized Protestant Christians, 110 were Roman Catholics, and thirty-seven were Mohammedans. Many of the cases were of pneumonia, which, it appears, is becoming increasingly prevalent. The senior Baganda assistants Yusufu and Semei, were very useful, though they still needed constant supervision. The latter was seriously ill during the year, and had to undergo two operations. For some time he refused to consent to the second of them, but eventually he gave way, and it was quite successful. The patience of some of the sufferers was remarkable. Dr. A. R. Cook writes:—

> One poor fellow arrived in an indescribable condition, with much of his mouth shot away. The bullet had carried away the forepart of his tongue, and shattered the lower jaw in several places, so that he was not able to articulate properly. He had had nothing for seven days but a little water. Careful treatment fanned the flickering flame of life for a brief space, but of course he could not survive such injuries. He had been a reader, and asked for baptism, and he was accordingly baptized.

A short time before his death I asked him if he was afraid to go. On putting my ear close to his poor mutilated mouth to catch the answer, I heard:—"My friend—I rejoice—very—very much." Truly, "Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him" might be written over the lad's grave.

"Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him."

A small hospital containing eight beds has been built at Munyonyo, eight miles from Mengo, in the sleeping-sickness area, in order that special study may be devoted to that dreadful disease. The out-patient attendances amounted to 77,248, of which 42,976 were registered at Mengo, and the remainder at the affiliated dispensaries at Ngogwe, Ndeje, Iganga, and Nakanyonyi. Those who came for treatment at the capital included not only Baganda chiefs and peasants, but also Indians, Goanese, and Swahilis, and to all of these the Gospel was preached. The heat of the small building which was used made the work trying, and the missionaries looked forward with eager anticipation to the completion of the new dispensary given by Mr. Wellcome, of the firm of Burroughs, Wellcome & Co., which was in process of erection.

A Girls' Boarding-school has been opened at GAYAZA, under the care of Miss A. L. Allen and Miss E. Hattersley.

BUSIRO.

The Rev. J. J. Willis was stationed at ENTEBBE, the European capital of Uganda, in the county of Busiro, part of his salary being provided by the Colonial and Continental Church Society. In January, 1905, a bazaar, the first to take place in the country, was held in behalf of the building fund of a church for the Baganda Christians of the Station, the foundation stone of which was laid towards the end of 1903. The Katikiro issued, from his own printing-press and of his own accord, an appeal to the Christians of Uganda to bring in every kind of native work, and the result was a number of offerings from both chief and people sufficient to fill a large stall. The majority of the articles were furnished by the European community, and the proceeds of the sale, after defraying expenses, amounted to Rs. 1,793.

KYAGWE AND BUGERERE.

Two causes have combined to affect unfavourably the mission statistics of the southern portion of the county of Kyagwe: one, the prevalence of the sleeping-sickness, which has practically depopulated the villages along the lake shore and on those islands which are worked from NGOGWE; and the other the unworthy conduct of many of the Christians, both chiefs and people. Concerning the latter of these hindrances and the reasons which have influenced many of the Baganda to embrace Mohammedanism, Miss S. R. Tanner says:—

A wave of immorality.

A great wave of immorality seems to have come over Uganda in the last few years: it has come with the craving for clothes among the girls. They no longer are satisfied with the native bark-cloth, but rather prefer white cloth or coloured cloths, and in order to get these the little girls will give themselves up to evil practices, and, saddest thing of all, the elder women declare that they have no power over their girls to control them in any way! They allow them to go out visiting among their friends quite unaccompanied by any older woman; and it is not an uncommon thing for cases of immorality to be discovered among people reading for baptism, and they have to be taken off from their reading! If some of the Christian women try to be strict and to refuse to allow their "girls" to visit without letting them know, they then leave the women and go and serve some one else who will not be strict with them.

Reasons for embracing Mohammedanism.

Many people around us have become Mohammedans lately, not from any religious motive, but simply because they say they cannot endure having only one wife. The Mohammedans may have four. I know instances of men who are baptized and have been admitted to the Lord's Table, who after some years have got tired of their wives and said they must have others. Two of our women teachers' husbands have treated them like this. They say to their wives, "I am tired of you, I no longer love you; if you like to remain as one of my other wives you can, if not you had better go." Some of the poor things remain, but are hardly used, their bed-clothes even being taken from them and given to the new so-called "wife." Some are most hardly used, made to wait on the new bride, fetch wood and water, and are even beaten.

Miss Tanner adds that drunkenness is much on the increase, especially in the country districts, and that when itinerating she constantly heard the drinking-drums at night, calling the people to their revels. A law has been made which forbids these drums to be sounded; but the native police seem afraid to enforce it. Trouble was also caused by the destruction, through the action of incendiaries, of the houses of the Muganda pastor and of the senior native teacher, and by the attempts to burn some other houses. For a time the authors of these crimes could not be detected, but eventually suspicion pointed plainly to two Christians, who were leading unsatisfactory lives and had imaginary grievances against the agents in question. The number of adult baptisms in the district was 363.

Ngogwe.

The Rev. G. K. Baskerville, the superintending missionary at Ngogwe, was much occupied in supervising the building of the new church, of which the foundation stone was laid in June, 1904, by Mr. Victor Buxton. The labour was being provided free of cost by the chiefs, who, in addition, had made themselves responsible for the payment of the masons and carpenters. The building operations prevented Mr. Baskerville from conducting a class for training teachers, and the men who would have joined one went to study at Mengo. Besides the two men who were in the ordination class at the capital, five read for the Senior Church Council Certificate and ten for the Junior, but a much larger number of candidates was expected in 1905. Very few came forward in January, 1904, to join the class for women teachers, which was conducted by Miss Tanner until she left on furlough in June, when it was taken by Miss T. L. Dyke, transferred from Ndeje. But some of those who did come had first set an example of devotion to their Saviour which has hardly been exceeded even by the martyrs who suffered in the great persecution in Uganda. Miss Tanner, writing at the beginning of 1905, narrated the circumstances as follows:—

Devoted women teachers.

A woman named Rachel came and definitely offered herself to go to the islands on the lake where teachers were needed. This woman knew that sleeping-sickness was raging on these islands, but, nothing daunted, she went with a friend and lived a whole year on one island, visiting about from house to house and trying to bring those poor dying people to the Saviour. When asked if they would like to return after six months to Ngogwe, they replied, "We are not afraid. If the Lord wants us we are ready to go; if not, we shall not get the sickness." One other middle-aged woman came and offered herself for this work in the same way. We could find no companion to go with her (it is impossible for one woman to go alone). This woman came back three times to our house to ask if we had found any one, and at last in great triumph came one day and said, "As you have not been able to find any one, I have," and she produced a friend of hers who was willing to go with her. Last January these four women returned to Ngogwe and joined the teachers' class, and when I left Ngogwe they were still there; but since my return to England I have heard that Rachel (the leader of the party) has succumbed to the sickness. I think I cannot do better than quote a letter I received from Miss Dyke about her:—"I went yesterday to see Rachel Sebulimba, for whom they have built a little house in the long grass. She is perfectly wonderful; she is so bright and so ready to accept God's Will for her in the sickness. She does not seem to regret anything but her work, and looks so happy. She is quite a model, and it did one good to go and see her. She is at present 'all there,' and still enjoys reading her Bible."

"If the Lord wants us we are ready to go."

Miss H. M. Thomas (now Mrs. A. Bond) says that when she visited this woman and asked how she was, she received the reply, "My body hurts me very much, but my spirit rejoices." The School contained rather over one hundred children. A sewing-class which was set on foot proved a great attraction to the girls, whom it is usually difficult to induce to attend. Miss Thomas took special pains in training some boys as pupil teachers, and was cheered by the diligence which they showed, some of them voluntarily staying on after eight hours' work to write out notes of what they had been taught during the day. Three of these lads were sent out in the summer to take charge of schools in the district. The work at the Dispensary, which also was under Miss Thomas's care, was on a large scale, more than 11,000 attendances being registered at Ngogwe and 2,500 during itinerations.

"My body hurts me very much, but my spirit rejoices."

Dispensary.

Pastorates.

The native pastorate scheme, described in last year's Report (page 114), was successfully launched. The Rev. Y. Kaidzi was in charge of the Ngogwe Pastorate, which included Katembe, Bukunja, and the Buziri group of islands, and also looked after two of the other pastorates, which were without a Muganda clergyman, so far as he was able. These were the Mpumu Pastorate, embracing the Koja and Mukomba peninsulas, and the Buikwe Pastorate, comprising the eastern part of the county extending to the Nile. Mr. Baskerville supervised the work of the Rev. Y. Nakumanyanga in the Mukono Pastorate until September, when the latter, as already stated, was admitted to Priests' Orders, and took full charge. Mr. Baskerville says of him :—

A boy teacher crosses a dangerous river daily.

> I first knew him some ten years ago, soon after this station was opened. He lived on a garden called Madudu, close to an important place called Ntenga, where the chief is Mulito (now Blasio, the Katikiro's son). A large river separated the two places, taking some twenty minutes to cross, and hazardous at that. I remember hearing of the recent drowning of two men in this river on one of my itinerations. In spite of this river and the distance, some five or six miles, this boy Yoeri used to walk over every day to teach the people at Ntenga. This he continued to do for some months until we were able to place a teacher there. He has continued teaching constantly since, except during the times he has been attending teachers' classes and the ordination class. For a long time he was in charge at Gulama, and during his time there everything went ahead—baptisms, book sales; and many a one did he bring to us whom his influence had stirred up to offer as a teacher. He has unbounded zeal and a real capacity for setting others to work.

The characteristics just mentioned were well displayed during the year under review, for half the sixty-eight candidates presented for confirmation in the autumn came from the churches under the charge of Mr. Nakumanyanga, although his district only comprises one-fourth of South Kyagwe. In some of the pastorates the Christians caused great sorrow. Especially was this the case at Katente, where many of those who are enrolled as communicants never partake of the Holy Communion. Mr. Baskerville writes :—

"Your village is worse than Sodom and Gomorrah."

> We have a zealous young teacher there. He addressed our monthly missionary meeting a little while ago, and spoke of the great difficulty of his work, and the active opposition on the part of some of the Christians who are living openly immoral lives. One Sunday they came to church armed with sticks as for a leopard-hunt, and he reproved them. Then they all came without any books and would take no part in the service. The teacher appealed to the chief to use his influence, telling him, "Your village is worse than Sodom and Gomorrah, and the judgment will be greater." The chief was able to put a stop to some of the open opposition. Still, even in that place good work is being done. Some seventeen old women became candidates for baptism as the result of a week spent there by Miss Tanner. Most of these have since been baptized, and some are leading bright Christian lives.

Miss Dyke and Miss Thomas made two short itinerations, visiting all the centres at which women teachers are located, and were pleased with their evident earnestness. Many of them receive no remuneration, since their husbands are not teachers, and therefore no control can be exercised over the wives. Seven of the village schools, which have attendances varying from fifteen in some places to seventy in others, are in charge of lads trained by Miss Thomas at Ngogwe. Several traces of the old heathen worship were met with in the form of offerings left by the people at two of the still remaining lubare shrines, and the ladies were informed that there was an increase of seekers after the lubare on some of the islands in consequence of the sleeping-sickness. The Natives turn from Christianity since they find that it does not confer immunity from the scourge, and consult the mandwa, or wizard.

Translation work.

Mr. Baskerville continued his work on the Commentary on St. Matthew's Gospel, and by the autumn it was approaching completion.

Nakanyonyi.

The northern portion of the county of Kyagwe is called Bukoba. The chief efforts of the Rev. G. R. Blackledge, who was stationed at NAKANYONYI, were concentrated on training fifteen young men to act as teachers. There was a marked difference in the mental capacity of the men, but all alike were keen and enthusiastic, and the time and trouble bestowed upon them were amply repaid. Classes for the women had to be suspended in July when Mrs. Blackledge proceeded to England, and the dispensary also was necessarily closed. The Rev. I. Lwaki had the pastoral oversight of the Christians, who numbered over 3,000. Attendances at the services and missionary meetings were well sustained, but the contributions of the people were not so liberal as they should be. Mr. Blackledge reports that they only amounted to Rs. 336, including the gifts of Europeans, from nearly 1,000 communicants, and he says that the minds of the Baganda were chiefly occupied with the endeavour to raise the Rs. 3 for the hut-tax, to build themselves good houses, and provide themselves with good clothes. Periodical visits were paid to the six centres in the district of Bukoba, around which the sixty churches are grouped. Each centre is placed under the superintendence of a head teacher, who is responsible for the work in it, and it is found that this decentralization encourages the people to read for baptism in their own villages, where they form an object-lesson for their heathen neighbours.

Unworthy conduct of Christian chiefs.

The work in the county of Bugerere was carried on under the supervision of Mr. Blackledge by a Muganda deacon, the Rev. E. Mukasa, who resided at Bale. The progress of the Gospel was seriously hindered by the unworthy conduct of some Christian chiefs, one of whom is said to be "persistent in his evil life." Happily, a different report is given of the chief—Malaki Nsibirwa by name—third in importance in the district. Mr. Blackledge writes concerning him :—

"Faithful just sums him up."

This man was baptized in the days of Alexander Mackay, and on the death of the latter was left in charge of all the mission-property at Usambiro. I can imagine how faithful he was to his trust, and that word just sums him up; he is faithful, and after ten years' acquaintance with him it is a joy to bear testimony to his life and conduct, for in all aspects of that life in which I have seen him, whether it be his home life, or his public life, or his Christian life, he has never to my knowledge been found wanting. And God has blessed him with a good wife, like-minded with himself.

The number of adults baptized in the district under Mr. Blackledge's care during the year was 282. Mr. T. Owrid resided at Nakanyonyi from July to October, and the Rev. E. Millar took temporary charge of the work in December, shortly after Mr. Blackledge left for Ndeje.

BULEMEZI AND BURULI.

The European staff of the Society at NDEJE underwent several changes. In March, 1904, the Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Leakey left for England, their place being taken by the Rev. and Mrs. C. H. T. Ecob until early in 1905 when they proceeded to Mengo, and the work was placed under the supervision of the Rev. G. R. Blackledge, transferred from Nakanyonyi; in July, 1904, Miss T. L. Dyke was transferred to Ngogwe. Mr. Ecob describes a nominal Christianity as prevailing, and illustrates the change which has taken place by a reference to a sermon preached by the Rev. N. Mudeka, the Muganda pastor. He writes :—

A Muganda pastor on nominal Christianity.

He contrasted the early days when Christianity was new, with these days when it is a thing no longer unknown. His illustration was the incident in the life of the patriarch Jacob when Hamor and Shechem persuaded their countrymen to ally with the sons of Jacob, on account of the wealth and the daughters of the Israelites. "Thus," said the preacher, "are many of the Christians of to-day—anxious only to ally with Christ's people for the wealth and glory obtained by Christian influence: women seeking the Church lest they lose a husband, peasants being baptized lest they miss becoming chiefs."

We cannot but sadly acknowledge that the spirit of the times is so. We could hardly expect it otherwise. We are certainly not disappointed—nay, rather, we are glad that the forces of evil have acknowledged the superiority of good, and now are willing to be friendly. Yet herein lies the danger to the infant Church of Uganda. "In all time of our wealth, good Lord, deliver us," must be the prayer of the Christian Muganda at this time in his Church's history.

Several of the Christians fell into sin, including some of the chiefs, but even the weaker converts, Mr. Ecob says, are greatly altered from what they were as Heathen. He gives as an instance the case of a man in a village who at first refused to help Mrs. Ecob across a deep swamp, but afterwards came and performed the kind office sought. When asked what had made him change his mind, he replied, "I did not want to come, as I had still a long way to get home, and the light was fast fading; then I remembered what God's kindness had done for me, and I felt ashamed not to do something for Him." A second instance quoted by Mr. Ecob is that of an old Christian chief, living many miles from any missionary, who every day walked a considerable distance in order to teach some twenty or thirty persons —men, women, and children—who were reading for baptism.

"I remembered what God's kindness had done for me."

The nominal Christianity, which has been spoken of as generally existing, has not entirely excluded the old lubare worship, which is still secretly carried on in certain places, and occasionally is openly indulged in. Miss Thomsett gives the following account of this worship on a garden about half an hour's walk from the residence of the Rev. S. Mukasa, the Muganda deacon, who is also the Kangao, or overlord, of Bulemezi. She writes:—

Lubare worship secretly carried on.

Lebeka, the Kangao's wife, was visiting Nkata, the Kangao's father, who is a bigoted old Heathen, and he told Lebeka about a wonderful spirit he worshipped, and how he sent messengers to this place every day who took firewood and presents constantly. On her return home Lebeka told her husband all about it, and he sent off men to see if this were so, and to remove all charms and spears which were in the house, and also the drum, and then to burn the house. The house was built a short distance from the garden in the long grass and no one was living in it. After they had burnt the house they discovered that there had been a body within it. There are various opinions as to what body this was. Some say it was the body of an old Kangao; another version is that years ago a man by the name of Kiwunga was dying, and he ordered his people not to bury him; so they embalmed the body, wrapped it round with bark cloths, and stood it up against a post. 'Kiwunga' then became the spirit of the place, and was supposed to prophesy. We are told that the people used regularly to take tithes of their crops, wine, and marriage dowries to this place, and inquiries were made as to whether certain marriages, which were about to take place, would be successful. If the lubare disapproved then the marriage did not take place.

The spears, which have been brought in to us, are very curious, two of them having spikes down the shaft of the spear. Another has no spear head, but a pointed end, and shells are strung on in rings near the top. Among the charms are many connected with the birth of twins, also tiny iron shields which belong to the lubare, and a small gourd covered with skin which was kept full of butter. If any sick one were taken to the lubare some of the butter was smeared on him or her, which was supposed to effect a cure.

Also a small piece of wood brought to us, about an inch in circumference, and in the shape of a cork, was used as a charm against snake bites. Another charm consisted of small pieces of stamped leather dedicated to the lubare Kaumpuli (plague). There was also a drum in the house, which the Kangao will use in his new church at Bowa when it is built. It is pathetic to hear how the people are bewailing the loss of their god, and are sitting in tears; and Lebeka tells us that Nkata says he is sure his son will die for having offended the lubare.

At Ndeje, where the missionaries reside, Mr. Ecob gave instruction to fourteen men, who were in training as teachers, while Miss Thomsett taught the women. The school work was in the hands of Miss Dyke, who experienced great difficulty in ensuring regular attendance on the part of the children. Constant visiting was the only effective method of procuring it, for the children had no desire to be taught, and even the Christian parents were backward in sending them. A training class for pupil teachers was set on foot.

The ladies made several brief visits to the country districts. In Kisalizi, in the county of Buruli, the Kimbugwe, the great chief, does all in his power to further education. The Rev. D. Bafirawala, a Muganda deacon, who is stationed in that district, resides at DAMBA.

SINGO.

Mityana. The Rev. and Mrs. F. Rowling and the Rev. W. Chadwick were joined by the Rev. W. B. Gill in November, 1904, at MITYANA, in the county of Singo, but in January, 1905, Mr. Chadwick removed to Entebbe to take the place of the Rev. J. J. Willis. The teachers' classes were conducted by the European missionaries with the assistance of a Muganda deacon, the Rev. Y. Njovu, who was transferred from Kasaka during the year. Fifteen men, including some from Kikoma and Kasaka, were under training for the Junior Teachers' Certificate conferred by the Church Council at Mengo, and seven of the twelve who were presented for examination were successful. It was, however, increasingly difficult to obtain a supply of suitable Baganda teachers, so many being drawn away by the prospect of higher wages and greater freedom in secular employments. A variety of other classes were carried on, with from thirty to forty members, and the school contained about forty children. Some 5,000 attendances were registered at the dispensary, which was conducted by Mrs. Rowling. More than one hundred persons, the majority of them women, were confirmed by Bishop Tucker when he visited the station in October, but the candidates, and also the adult baptisms, were rather fewer in number than in 1902 or 1903. The falling-off in the baptisms is partially accounted for by the new marriage regulations made by the Government, which came into force in April, 1904, and which do not recognize the simple declaration before a clergyman that there has been a native marriage, in consequence of which rule one of a couple, who may be divorced by his or her heathen partner at a week's notice, cannot be baptized. Another cause was the foolish rush for land. Mr. Chadwick writes :—

New marriage regulations.

A foolish rush for land.

> The people watch with intense interest the surveying parties who are mapping the country, and all the chiefs are rightly anxious to get good security for their property, and it has been impressed upon them that the expenses and difficulties will be greater if delayed. Unfortunately the common people, seeing their eagerness, are ridiculously anxious to get grants of plots of land, and many good gardens and houses are being left on the hands of the chiefs, while the tenants go off into the bush to clear a new spot for themselves. There is, of course, a natural desire for independence at the bottom of some minds, but the chief reason for this emigration is an exaggerated idea of the value of the land, and many who were comfortable before suffer great hardships for many months in these new clearings. Elderly men leave good occupations to obtain a grant of land, which they must actually live on to make secure. The result is, that by the side of the rush to a few centres, there is an emptying of most of the small prosperous villages. This scattering of the population makes the work of the native teachers very much harder.

Many sad cases of immorality, even among the Christians, came to light, but, nevertheless, Mr. Rowling regards the work as a whole as affording great cause for thankfulness.

Mr. Chadwick and the Muganda pastor travelled about the district, so far as their work at head quarters would permit. At one place there was a great movement towards Christianity. Mr. Chadwick says:—

An old chief named Ndalaki was one of the Church's most bitter opponents and among the worst rebels. He burnt Mr. Lewin's house down among his other escapades, and after the war he had a term of imprisonment. Just lately he consented to learn to read, and we sent an energetic teacher to his village, and now nearly half his people are anxious to be baptized. Some had been willing years ago, but feared Ndalaki; some, I believe, have been really converted now; and some simply follow the fashion, and we cannot refuse them or judge their hearts. It was a great pleasure to visit this village the second time and see a real change there, though one cannot help feeling that politics more than religion turned the old man himself. A former opponent asks to be taught.

At several other country centres there was real advance, the small but steady number of baptisms being almost equalled by the number of candidates for confirmation, a fact indicating perseverance on the part of the converts.

Among the translations made by Mr. Rowling were one of the Rev. J. C. Hamar's Old Testament History, a second year's course from Norris's Manual on the Prayer Book, and the Bishop of Durham's Aids to the Christian Life. When Mr. Rowling wrote his Annual Letter, at the end of December, he was engaged on selected portions of the Oxford Helps to the Study of the Bible. Literary Work.

BUWEKULA, BUYAGA, AND BUGANGAZI.

Mr. H. B. Lewin had the Rev. D. A. O'Connor as his European colleague at KIKOMA, in the county of Buwekula, until September, when the latter returned to England. The Rev. M. Bagenda is the Muganda pastor. A conference of teachers was held in July. Among the subjects discussed were the questions of bringing about an increase in the native contributions, and of reclaiming converts who had fallen away or turned to Roman Catholicism. Concerning the former of these matters it was decided that every teacher should preach on the subject, and himself set the example of giving. The various classes were better attended in 1904 than in the previous year, and the weekly prayer meeting which was set on foot had an average Kikoma.

attendance of ninety. Some of the people who wished to be taught found it difficult to attain their end. Mr. Lewin tells of one woman who desired to be instructed for baptism, but was stabbed to death by her enraged husband, apparently on account of her wish. A number of small churches were opened in the district, one of them being at Nyondo, where one of the Bayima mentioned in last year's Report (page 119) had been the means of gathering a little congregation.

A woman stabbed to death because of her desire to be baptized.

Mr. Lewin made several itinerations in his district. In the county of Buyaga two Roman Catholic chiefs joined the Protestants. At Kikangala 200 children are under instruction, and the number might be largely increased if more teachers were available. At another place, where lubare-worship prevails, several persons promised to become learners if a teacher were sent, but that opportunity also had to be suffered to pass unutilized. In this county a woman, because she wanted to be baptized, and demurred to being given in marriage to a Heathen, was put into the stocks for eight days. At the end of that period, when asked, "Which do you choose now, marriage or reading?" she unhesitatingly chose the latter, and happily was suffered to have her way.

"Which do you choose now, marriage or reading?"

The county of Bugangazi was troubled by huge herds of elephants, which, gaining courage by not being hunted as of old, destroyed a number of villages. A good work was in progress at Namiganba, near the Kafu River, where three chiefs and 150 people were under instruction, and at Butengza a Christian boy was found to have taught sixteen people to read. More than 200 adults were baptized in the district superintended by Mr. Lewin.

GOMBA, BUSUJU, BUTAMBALA, AND MAWOKOTA.

Kasaka.

Mr. T. B. Fletcher, who resided at KASAKA, in the county of Gomba, was in general charge of the evangelistic work in that and the three other counties named above, the pastoral work being in the hands of three Baganda clergy, viz., the Rev. A. Nkangali at Kasaka, the Rev. D. Lwanga at BWEYA in the county of Butambala, and the Rev. S. Kamwakabi at BUWERE in the county of Mawokota.

BUDU.

Kajuna.

The Revs. G. H. Casson and E. S. Daniell resided together at KAJUNA, in the county of Budu, until June, 1904, when the former left on furlough. A Muganda clergyman, the Rev. S. Kibuka, "a man of sound judgment and a very consistent Christian," was in charge of the pastoral work. Many of the workers displayed great eagerness for further instruction, and at the beginning of the year when the teachers' class was being formed fifteen men desired to join it. Since this would have upset the work in the villages too much, eight had to be selected, and Mr. Casson says that it meant real self-denial to the remaining seven to consent to wait another year and join the class in January, 1905. All who were selected were most diligent in their studies, and none ever missed attending the class unless it was quite impossible for them to be present. Two of the teachers trained in 1903 died from small-pox, which was fatal to many of the people. Another teacher was lost by his joining the Mohammedans, but on the other hand Mr. Daniell had the joy of witnessing the return to Christianity of an ex-policeman, who had taken a similar step. He writes:—

Return of a pervert to Mohammedanism.

He was baptized in 1894 and became a teacher in Kyagwe, and finally came to Budu and joined the police. This year he left the police and went to visit his relatives. Presently Satan entered into his heart, he said, and for the sake of obtaining a second wife he joined the Mohammedans and remained with them ninety-two days. After a while he became convicted of sin—not through the mouth of a Christian, but through the Holy Spirit "bringing to his remembrance" things he had learnt years before. He told me that he lay on his bed at night and, instead of talking for a long time, as is the custom of the Baganda, he remained silent, thinking of his sin, and was very sad at heart. His wife asked him why he was so quiet, and eventually he told her how uncomfortable he was, and finally he decided to come back to the true religion and leave Mohammedanism, which, to use his words, was the worshipping of lubare and the gratification of sensual lusts. All this time he kept his Bible, &c., as did also his true wife. She is very happy at his return, as she in heart was a Christian, but conformed to Mohammedanism for his sake. He is now taking his second "wife" back to her father. I relate this incident because it shows even in this comparatively new Mission that early lessons leave an indelible mark on a man's soul. It was thinking over what he had learnt of Christ in his boyhood and youth that brought him back.

The "indelible mark" of early lessons.

While Mr. Casson was at Kajuna, Mr. Daniell devoted himself to itinerating, and visited most of the out-stations. There are churches in sixty villages, but twenty of them were without a teacher, and in many of the others the workers failed to show much zeal. Mr. Daniell spent some time superintending building operations at Kikise, a large village two and a half hours' walk from Kajuna, where it is proposed to open a new station. Kikise has been selected because the chief, Tomasi Mukise, who in 1890 was a trusted teacher, but afterwards became a Roman Catholic, returned to Protestantism, and gave the Mission a good site near the junction of two Government high-roads. The number of adult baptisms in the district was 189.

KOKI.

The year 1904 was marked in Koki by "distinct growth" especially in the work among the women. Two points in particular were noticeable; the power of Divine Grace as evidenced by the "zeal and marvellous devotion" of some of the Christians, and the manifold temptations which came upon the people, beneath which some of them fell. Miss A. H. Robinson, who with Miss A. A. Jacob resided at RAKAI, says:—

Rakai.

"The love of some has waxed cold."

The "lust of other things" has entered into many a heart, and the love of some has waxed cold in consequence. There are not the same large contributions from the Natives to the Uganda Church as there were before European goods came into the country; and there are not so many people as there were attending the daily classes, because they go away more to trade that they may get the money to buy these goods. There has been more intoxicating drink taken by our Native Christians in Koki this year than before; and worse still, there has been (at least, in two or three cases) a turning to Mohammedanism, not from any belief in it as a purer form of worship, but simply because evil-living may be enjoyed in it in a way it cannot in Christianity. Backsliding there has certainly been, but, thank God, there has been the brighter side also in Koki, and we can tell of real work done.

The pastoral work was in the hands of the Rev. S. Aliwonya, who laboured incessantly, and whose example, Miss Robinson says, often acted as a spur to her. Under Miss Jacob's care, the school grew from thirty or forty pupils to seventy or eighty, including not children only but also adults, but the attendance fluctuated a good deal, for the chiefs took their boys with them on their frequent journeys. Among the old people who were learning or trying to learn to read was an elderly man who day after day vainly sought to master the alphabet and two-letter syllables. At length a teacher was appointed to explain to him the truths which had to be acquired before baptism, and great was the old man's delight when he succeeded in passing the examination held by the pastor. Miss Jacob writes:—

"He will give me all His riches."

He used to repeat my words after me, applying them to himself in the most touching way. When he came to tell me he was going to be baptized I talked with him a little to be sure he really knew what it all meant. I remember saying to him, "Kalugiri, will you be glad when Jesus comes?" He said, "How glad I shall be to see him! I shall just throw all my poverty into that lake and He will give me all His riches." It is months now since he was baptized. He still tries to read his Testament, although I fear he never will, and when he meets me out visiting it is his great delight to follow me round and add his persuasions to mine.

Just one hundred adults, including this man, were admitted into the visible Church at Rakai. The ladies made two itinerations in the district. During the first of these, many of the thirty-six little congregations, most of them taught by young Koki lads, were visited, but the second tour was mainly to the heathen villages. On this latter the ladies were accompanied by two of the six women who at the beginning of the year expressed their desire to devote themselves entirely to God's service, and admirable assistance did they render. Indeed the Europeans did little more than serve as an attraction to draw the people together, and the greater part of the preaching was done by the women and a young lad who went with them. They seemed "absolutely tireless" and in their zeal often forgot even their mid-day meal.

SESE ISLANDS.

There was unhappily no diminution in the ravages of the sleeping-sickness on the Sese and Kome groups of islands on the Victoria Lake, and notwithstanding the baptism of more than 200 persons, the number of Christians at the close of 1904 was 300 less than twelve months before. The Rev. H. T. C. Weatherhead writes concerning the scourge :—

It is a trial to the faith of many, and it is not to be wondered at that some have failed and gone back. We hear it said that the English have brought this sickness by their "magic," that they may "eat" the land. "Has not the Government made a law that all uninhabited land shall belong to the English? Therefore they want to kill the people off the coast lands and islands that they may claim them." It is a shock to find Christians giving way to such suggestions, for we are so apt to forget that only yesterday, as it were, Uganda was a heathen country, where the power of the wizard was believed in without dispute, and nearly every ill ascribed to it. But those who stand firm must become stronger Christians.

Sleeping-sickness ascribed to English "magic."

Mr. H. O. Savile, who visited the Kome group, on which the population is not more than one-tenth of what it was five or six years ago, says that nearly all the people look upon themselves as doomed, and in consequence kill all their livestock and eat it, and then settle down into gloomy despair.

In January, 1904, the Rev. H. W. Weatherhead was removed to Mengo, and in the following month Mr. H. T. C. Weatherhead was joined at BUGALA by Mr. Savile, who had been in charge of the industrial work at the capital. The staff was strengthened in June by the marriage of the last-named to Miss K. E. Barton, but in October, Mr. and Mrs. Savile left on furlough, and Mr. T. Owrid went to the Islands from Iganga. At the end of 1903, the nine members of the Teachers' Class passed the Junior Teachers' Examination at Mengo, a Musese repeating the success of a previous year by gaining the second place among the candidates from all Uganda. A new class was formed in March with thirteen members; but two of them proved not to be up to the required standard, and after three months' instruction were sent out to resume their work as local teachers; three others developed sleeping-sickness; and two left the work in a "strike" of teachers. The strike, which took place in the summer, was for a time a cause of anxiety. Mr. Weatherhead writes :—

A "strike" of teachers.

With the advance of civilized ideas in dress and houses, &c., what the teachers receive has become absurdly small; but it cannot be raised (and, indeed, the clergy have the first claim), unless the Baganda Christians quickly learn to give better. At our August meeting the teachers made a request for higher pay. A letter was written to the Central Church Council at Mengo suggesting that the number of teachers should be cut down, until such a number only remained as could be properly paid. So far good, but what was not good was that they all left the work while awaiting the answer (a matter of a week or fortnight), the majority with the determination not to take it up again unless their request were granted. It was, therefore, a strike. The Church Council replied courteously that the proposal could not be entertained. Thereupon, the majority of our teachers left the work, only eight remaining. My class was broken up, and the organization seemed to have received a heavy blow from which it would take some time to recover. I ran up to Mengo, and the Archdeacon promised to get an influential member of the Church Council to come over and talk to the men. But no Muganda would venture into the sleeping-sickness area! Eventually I brought before the men as best I could the call to them as Christians to make some sacrifice, and the result was that only some six left the work after all, so the final result has not been bad, but perhaps good. A sifting is just what is needed in the Uganda Church.

The rebuilding and roofing of the church, which was struck by lightning in 1903 (see last year's Report, page 122), was successfully accomplished under Mr. Savile's supervision, and the consecration took place in September. The funds for the purchase of the iron roof were provided by the Christian chiefs, but Mr. Weatherhead says that the subscriptions of the people could hardly be regarded as voluntary. The chiefs in informal committee drew up a list of all the Protestant Christians in the district, and taxed each according to his reputed wealth. Many attempted to escape giving their subscriptions, but the influence of the old feudal system was seen in the fact that none thought of refusing them outright. The congregation in August was placed under the charge of the Rev. T. Bazira, a Muganda deacon, as quasi-pastor. The children's school and the general Bible-class were conducted first by Mr. Savile and then by Mr. Owrid, and during the few months that Mrs. Savile was at Bugala she held a dispensary.

Influence of the old feudal system.

Mr. Weatherhead paid bi-monthly visits to Kome and Bukasa, and, accompanied by the teachers under training, he made a short itineration in the spring of 1904.

II. WESTERN PROVINCE.

Miss A. E. Allen came home in March, 1905. The Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Fisher sailed to return to the Mission in November, 1904; and Miss E. C. Pike in April, 1905. Dr. A. Bond married Miss H. M. Thomas at Mengo on January 11th. The Rev. C. H. T. Ecob was transferred to the Uganda Province in February, 1904, and Miss A. K. Attlee in December, and in May the Rev. A. L. Kitching was transferred to the Nile Province.

ANKOLE.

Mbarara.

The European missionaries at Mbarara in Ankole were the Rev. and Mrs. H. Clayton and Miss M. T. Baker. The latter laboured among the Banyankole women, while Mrs. Clayton devoted herself to the Baganda women and the children in the school. There were in all about 150 people under daily instruction—a smaller number than in 1903, partly owing to a scare about small-pox which led many of the readers to retire to their homes in the country, and partly to the falling away of those who originally came merely to please their chiefs or in the hope of some material gain. Mr. Clayton mentions that comparatively few of the Banyankole Christians offered their services as teachers, and he asks for prayer that greater evangelistic zeal may be shown by them. The total number of persons baptized in the district was 164, all but twenty-three being adults. Sixteen were received into the visible Church at Egara, twelve at Buweju, and seven at Ibanda, where one of the converts, a woman, is the chief. In old days she was a person of importance, for when any enterprise was on hand she was sent for to consult the omens and see whether they were propitious. The Christians at Kazinga, the most forward of the out-stations, were much disturbed by a visit from some Belgian officers of the Congo Free State, who claim that part of the country as belonging to their sphere, and urged the people to discontinue reading. Two young teachers from Toro opened a new out-station, and accomplished good work among the Bairu, or cultivating class. They are harder to influence than the Bahima, or herdsmen, who are regarded as the aristocracy of the country.

Belgian officers urge the people to discontinue reading.

TORO.

The staff of the Society at KABAROLE in the Toro district consisted of the Rev. T. B. Johnson, Dr. A. Bond, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Maddox, the Misses A. E. Allen, A. K. Attlee, and M. Ostler, and the Rev. A. Kivebulaya, the Muganda pastor. Mr. Maddox remarks that it is difficult to decide whether on the whole there was advance or retrogression during the year under review. A persistent war had to be waged against sin in many forms, but at times encouragement was met with when little expected. Some of the Christians made a firm stand against evil; cheering reports were received of the two teachers who were labouring in Bunyoro, where they bravely kept to their posts though severely tried by scarcity of food; other teachers, again, were sent to Ankole, and did good work there; after many fruitless appeals for volunteers, two young men offered themselves for and took up work among the Bakonjo tribe, who live on the mountains; and the character of the teachers as a body certainly manifested improvement. Mr. Maddox gives one or two instances:—

Kabarole.

A teacher who was married recently refused to have busera, a very intoxicating drink, at the wedding-feast, and endured a good many hard words. Another, whose wife was in hospital a month, attended to her wants, and, while doing so, earned the affection of all the other patients by innumerable little acts of kindness and consideration. This kind of thing does not come naturally to the Batoro. In my teaching I emphasize rather than hide the fact that the life of a teacher in Toro is one of poverty and difficulty, and often scarcity of food, offering them the service of Jesus Christ on these terms for His sake. It appeals to the best part of their natures, and many a time have I seen a teacher, worried with difficulties, brighten up when I explain that such-and-such a difficulty cannot be removed for the present, but must be borne for Christ's sake.

Difficulties must be borne "for Christ's sake."

Steps were taken to grapple with drunkenness and other evils by remodelling the Church Council, which had suffered both in numbers and efficiency, and by forming a Women's Council, composed of the queen and sixteen other trustworthy members elected by the whole body of women communicants, which proved instrumental in elevating public opinion on the subject of morality. The preparation of those who aspired to become official messengers of the Gospel, too, was carefully attended to, a Teachers' Class for men being conducted by Mr. Maddox, and one for women by Mrs. Maddox and Miss Ostler. The women teachers possessing certificates from the Church Council numbered fifty-five, and of these twenty-six (as compared with nineteen in 1903) were working at a distance from the capital, some being five or even eight days' journey away. An effort was made in the summer to stir up the people to greater zeal in the support of their teachers and the provision for the up-keep of the church, the funds for these purposes having fallen off in consequence of the exhaustion of the private supplies of ivory, and the prohibition of hunting. Mr. Johnson writes :—

Teachers' Class.

The matter was considered in the Church Council and warmly taken up, and some of the chiefs said, "Leave the matter to us for a little; we want to talk it over among ourselves." The resulting development was that a meeting of thirty of the most influential was called to discuss the best plan. Almost unanimously they were of opinion, led by the king and his mother (who ranks as a man in the country, and so was included, the only other such "man" being the king's sister, who was prevented from coming), that the best way to meet the difficulty was by the promise of annual subscriptions; the king led off with Rs. 100, followed by the Katikiro with Rs. 30, and the king's mother with Rs. 40, but, then relenting, she added, "Perhaps sixty, if God give me strength."

A native subscription list.

One after another they spoke up till at length all had promised, when the total was found to reach Rs. 430 towards the estimated Rs. 600 for the year. Apolo, our native pastor, offered a few words of thanksgiving to God for the "enabling," and it was decided that a meeting of all the Christians should be called for the next Friday in place of the monthly missionary meeting.

At the general meeting nearly 300 came, and after a short service and explanation over 200 offered, bringing up the total to over Rs. 500. The happiest feature about it all was the really enthusiastic way in which the people undertook the effort.

The classes for communicants (attended by the king and most of the chiefs), for candidates for confirmation and for baptism, &c., were continued as before, but the mixed school suffered on the departure of Miss E. C. Pike on furlough in February, 1904, for Miss Ostler, who took over that branch of the work, was so occupied with the women that she could not devote more than one period of the day to the children. Visiting the parents in their homes, too, had to be largely discontinued, and in consequence the attendance at the school fell from 250 to 90. Dr. Bond, who was in charge of the Medical Work, was able to take possession of the new hospital early in 1904. The building contains two wards, one for men and the other for women and children, each capable of accommodating seventeen people. At first the timidity of the Batoro was so great that they had to be asked to become in-patients, but as the year wore on many came requesting admission, while some made gifts of money and others of kind as an expression of thankfulness for the attention which they received. A gratifying sign was the number of Heathen among the patients, who represented at least six different tribes. Miss A. E. Allen and Miss Attlee assisted the doctor, especially in the operating room and the women's ward, and the latter endeavoured by means of visiting to keep in touch with those who had been brought under Christian influence in the hospital. She enumerates three special difficulties in the way of imparting spiritual truths to the heathen patients: their contentment with their present lives, and lack of conviction of sin; their ignorance of any idea not connected with their ordinary life—food, clothing, &c.; and their erroneous notions concerning the nature of Christianity. She mentions one patient in whom she was specially interested:—

Medical Work.

She was in the hospital about three weeks, at the end of which her friends suddenly took her away one day when we had just left the hospital. She was very ignorant and absolutely indifferent when she first came in, and did not seem to want to hear anything of the Gospel. She said, "I shall only die, and they will bury me in the ground. I do not fear to die; I shall not go anywhere." Later on she got much brighter, and seemed interested in seeing Bible pictures on the life of Christ and hearing about them. After she was taken away I visited the village where she lived, and after some difficulty managed to find her. She was a pitiable sight. She had grown so thin I could hardly recognize her, and all over her body were large cuts and gashes, where her relatives had cut her in the hopes of curing her. She was surrounded by three men, one of whom was cupping her with a small horn used by the Natives for that purpose. When I remonstrated with them on this treatment of the poor girl they answered, "She is only a Heathen; she is not baptized. Why should not we do it?" They had been pouring cold water over her several times daily as well, but they said her "disease beat them; they could not conquer it." I was only able to speak a few words to her. She had hardly strength to speak. I have since heard of her death.

Cruel treatment of a patient by Batoro.

Twice as many attendances of out-patients were registered as in 1903, and on one day 240 persons came for treatment. A service was held and an address given each dispensary day, before any of the people were seen by the doctor. Miss Attlee was transferred to Kajuna in December, 1904.

Literary Work.

In his Translational Work Mr. Maddox completed the rendering of the New Testament into Lunyoro, and made good progress with an Old Testament History in that language. The sale of books, unhappily, fell off greatly, partly, it was believed, because the people had so many other things on which to spend their money. They now buy boots and other articles of European clothing, although the king does not lend his countenance to such folly.

The work in the district was mainly in the hands of Mr. Johnson and the Muganda pastor. Early in 1904, the former visited the province of the Sekibobo of Toro, whose perversion to Mohammedanism was recorded in last year's Report (page 127). It was feared at the time that the chief's action would have great influence for evil, but, happily, he did not draw many after him, and the effect of his example was rather to deter the Heathen from accepting Christianity, than to lead the Christians astray. On the little island of Kakuli, lying off Katwe, there is a congregation composed of members of the Bakonjo tribe, but none of them as yet have been baptized. At Mboga, three days' journey from Kabarole, there are 200 Christians.

Butiti.

Prior to May, 1904, when the Rev. A. L. Kitching left BUTITI for the Acholi country, his residence was interrupted by visits to Mengo and Kabarole. After he left, the work was carried on by the Rev. A. Muyinda, a Muganda deacon, under the supervision of the Rev. T. B. Johnson. The latter stayed at Butiti for a fortnight in November to watch over affairs during the first days after the arrival of some Roman Catholic priests, and when he left the Rev. A. Kivebulaya took his place for a time. These visits were productive of much good, the attendance at the Sunday services being doubled.

A man calls himself an evil spirit.

In Kitagweta, the county of which the Katambala is chief, Mr. Johnson met a curious character, who called himself an evil spirit. The man professed to have the power to produce sickness and death and earthquakes with his formidable iron spear, but he listened attentively as the Gospel message was proclaimed to him.

BUNYORO.

Hoima.

At HOIMA, as at so many other stations in the Mission, several changes took place in the staff of European workers. The Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Ladbury and Misses J. E. Chadwick and L. O. Walton were there throughout the year, but in February, 1904, Miss M. Ostler was transferred to Kabarole, and about the same time Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Lloyd left, the former for the Acholi country, and the latter for England. Among the African labourers were the Rev. N. Nakiwafu, a "beacon-light of Christianity," of whose "untiring efforts, beautiful humility, tact and keen insight into character" Mr. Ladbury testifies; and also a number of lay teachers. The senior Muganda woman teacher, having completed her year of service, returned to her home, and her place was filled by Juliya Kulopa, who, in spite of very poor health, visited unwearyingly, and who is "immensely beloved and respected." Four Banyoro women were sent out into the district during the year, and Miss Chadwick hoped to find some other local teachers from among the communicants for whose benefit she conducted a class. The life of several of the Christians was inconsistent, but Miss Walton says that the darkness and degradation of the Heathen as witnessed in their own homes are awful, and that the evil surrounding the converts is so terrible that it is a marvellous testimony to the power of God's grace that any of them stand firm. Besides the communicants' class several other classes were held,—one for women lately baptized; others for candidates for confirmation and for baptism; a sewing-class, attended among others by Miriya, the queen, and Vikitoliya, the king's sister; and a geography class for men and boys able to write fairly well. A growing number of people of all ages, anxious to learn to read, came to the school, but a large attendance of children was out of the question owing to the terrible infant mortality in the country which makes the number of children small as compared with the population. Many adults as well as the young suffered from sickness; Mr. Nakiwafu was laid aside from July to September by an illness which brought him to death's door; and the race in general, and the women in particular, are weak and ailing. The dispensary therefore attracted a large number of patients, including some of the leading women in the country, and also of the poorest peasants who, but for their desire for medical treatment, would probably not have come in contact with the missionaries. The natural timidity of the Banyoro makes some such means of attraction specially useful. They are "superstitious and nervous to the last degree," and absurd reports easily find credence among them. One rumour, which caused a great scare and led to the workers being almost boycotted for a time, was to the effect that the English had become cannibals, that numbers of Natives had been devoured in Uganda, and that the supply running short there, the Commissioner was turning his attention to Bunyoro!

A "beacon-light of Christianity."

Converts surrounded by terrible evil.

Rumour that the English had become cannibals.

Once a month the ladies were accustomed to spend a Sunday at one of the villages in the district, and on such occasions realized, Miss Chadwick says, the value of the work of the African teachers, and the difficulties by which they are confronted. She writes:—

The difficulties of African teachers.

> Steeped in sin and superstition as the people are, giving evangelistic addresses in a village where there is no teacher (or, almost worse, an apathetic one) is like talking to a stone wall. Purity and unselfishness are like words in an unknown tongue to them, the love and goodness of God unintelligible, their need of a Saviour folly. And yet misery, disease and weariness are written on almost every face—certainly on almost every one of over early middle age. The difference is most marked where there is an earnest, though perhaps quite junior, teacher, and one almost gets to judge the teacher by the welcome given one on arriving in a village; for even a few months of the regular Sunday services, with the daily grinding at syllables and texts in the reading-primer, seem to put a new intelligence into their faces and a new desire, at least, to hear what we have to say.

"Misery, disease, and weariness are written on almost every face."

At Kibero, on Lake Albert, whence the best salt in the country is obtained, the teachers for some years met with but little success. When Miss Chadwick went there in 1903, there seemed to be barely half a dozen houses which a "reader" dare enter; now the chief himself has begun to learn, numbers have followed his example, and a promising little Church is springing up in the midst of the surrounding darkness. In the autumn Mr. Ladbury paid a visit to a village called Bulyabwa, where the people are very degraded, and entirely given up to devil-worship. He thus describes his experiences:—

> The night after my arrival a man who had been suffering for some time had called for the various ornaments and implements used in devil-worship, in order that he might propitiate the devils for his recovery. Putting on the head-dress and other ornaments, he took hold of the wand and was just about to perform the usual rites when he fell dead. Next evening a woman died of consumption, and in addition to this one man is deaf and dumb, two youths are suffering from a wasting disease, and a child is covered with sores from head to foot—and all this in a small community of about seven households.
> Calling all the men together, I spoke to them of the great power and love of God, of the penalty of sin and the futility of devil-worship, trying to persuade them to give it up, accept the Lord Jesus Christ, and learn to read His own words for themselves. They made various excuses, and I knew from their manner and from private information that they feared the medicine-men. At length, however, we all started to burn two devil-huts near by. At the last moment the old white-haired man of the village lost courage and hurried away, fearing the consequences. Both huts were burned to the ground, and in them were found a hippopotamus's jaw-bone and eight cowrie-shells, offerings to the spirit. The old men and women were very much afraid lest some dreadful calamity would befall us; but the younger men said, "See how many among us are sick, and have not two of our number just died, one even when in the act of propitiating the evil spirits?" "Why should we serve the devils when this is all we get in return?"

Burning devil-huts.

Unfortunately Mr. Ladbury was obliged to pass on in order to visit other places, and the African teacher had to be left to cope as best he could with the opposition of the medicine-men. The total number of adults baptized at Hoima and in the surrounding district was 220.

Notwithstanding the occurrence of some cases of immorality the character of the Christians attached to the station of Bugoma, where the Rev. H. W. Tegart resided, showed that a real work of grace has been accomplished in the hearts of many.

Bugoma.

Two lads, about fifteen years of age, refused to regard the custom which forbade them to partake of the totem (i.e., article of food prohibited to the tribe) of their tribe or family, and others besides broke free from their old superstitions. Their contributions for religious purposes were often large in proportion to the means of the converts, one lad, who earned about 1,440 shells, or two shillings a year, giving no less than 200 shells every quarter; and several responded nobly to the appeals for teachers, one man leaving his wife and family in the custody of a steward, and occupying a post on the further side of Lake Albert. Three men read with Mr. Tegart for their first Teachers' Certificate, and six offered themselves for instruction as junior teachers. A Sunday-school was organized with good results, all the teachers being either communicants or candidates for confirmation, and the school held during the week was attended every morning by about 180 men and boys, and in the afternoon by nearly 100 women. The invention of a new system, by which the teacher built up the syllables in the presence of his pupils by means of moveable tapes in a fixed frame, made it possible to do away with wall sheets, and enabled men and boys to go through the first reader in three months, instead of in eight or nine as under the old system.

Good response to appeals for teachers.

One out-station is occupied in the Bulega country, a part of the Congo Free State, to the west of Lake Albert, at the place where Stanley met Emin Pasha in 1888, and which he called Kavalli. That, however, is not in reality the name of a place, but of the man who was chief at the time. He has since died, and has been succeeded by his son, Dudoyi by name, who is now about eighteen years old. The young chief and five of his people are under instruction for baptism, and Mr. Tegart hopes that from his village advance may be made into the populous region beyond, which is largely inhabited by the Babira tribe. There are six other out-stations in the plains along the western shore of the Lake. The advent of Christian teachers has wrought a great change among the people. Mr. Tegart quotes a remark of one of his canoe men, to the effect that until he entered the country they did not dare to land on that particular part of the shore, and mentions that on his first expedition he slept outside a chief's courtyard in which were lying the bodies of three persons who had been murdered. "Now," he adds, "such a thing never occurs." Sixty-nine adults were baptized in the district during 1904.

Change wrought by the advent of Christian teachers.

III. NILE PROVINCE.

Mr. A. B. Lloyd came home in February, 1905.

ACHOLI.

Occupation of Patigo.

The "cords" of the Uganda Mission were lengthened in April, 1904, by the occupation of PATIGO in the Acholi country by Mr. A. B. Lloyd. The Acholi, or Gang, as they term themselves, occupy a district originally called Shuli but now Acholi, which is bordered along the Nile bank to the west by the Madi and Bari tribes, to the south-east by the Lango, and which stretches away to the north towards Gondokoro. The principal places in the country are the two Government stations at Nimule and Wadelai. The Rev. A. L. Kitching, who joined Mr. Lloyd in June, describes the people as follows :—

Customs of the Acholi race.

There is none of the elaborate feudal system, so prominent a feature of life in Uganda; none of the loyalty of peasant to chief, of chief to superior chief, and of the whole nation to the king. Independence is perhaps the most marked characteristic of the Acholi race; most of the chiefs hold a few villages in their own right, and only with closer Government supervision is the idea of a single paramount chief being carried out, although at one time one man was partly recognized as a sort of king among them. In physique and intelligence they are no whit the inferiors of the Baganda; in the former they are probably superior. Though according to national custom they wear no clothes, yet a large number of the older men and chiefs have acquired old uniforms (to say nothing of a few new ones), old European clothes, or calico as worn by other tribes farther south. Of ornaments they affect a varied selection, made of beads, glass, ostrich-plumes, teeth, gun-caps, and brass or iron wire. These are worn mostly by the young unmarried men, and the beads also by the women. The children sometimes wear pretty girdles made of copper wire and little round discs of metal like threepenny-bits. A pleasant trait among these people is the equality between the men and women, who treat each other with a mutual respect and affection very different from the marked inferiority of the women among the Baganda or Banyoro.

Precautions against immorality.

Great precautions are taken by the householders to guard against immorality among the young men and women. The latter are shut up in their houses shortly after dark, and the young unmarried men have to live in curiously constructed houses, erected on piles many feet above the ground, the entrance to which consists of a circular hole, not more than a foot in diameter, to reach which they have to climb a rough wooden ladder. After the occupants have retired for the night, ashes are sometimes sprinkled round the base of this ladder, the object being to render easy the detection of the slightest footprint of any who might attempt to enter or leave the house. Like almost all African tribes the people have a vague belief in the power and presence of evil spirits. Before each house are erected little devil-huts, as in so many parts of the continent, and one big hut, set apart for the favoured spirit of the tribe. The latter is neatly built, with fine dried grass on the floor, in the centre of which is a curious iron spear, stuck into the ground blade uppermost. The blade is about two inches long, with two or three barbs, one to two inches in length. Into this hut no stranger may intrude. In the other smaller huts are placed pots of honey, grain, and other propitiatory offerings. A dead stick with several branches is planted by the side, and on this are hung trophies of the chase—antelope skulls and horns, heads of lions and leopards, giraffe skulls and rhino horns: all these are regarded as sacred.

The commencement of work among this people may be traced to an urgent message which Mr. Lloyd received while in Bunyoro from Awich, the paramount chief of the country, begging for teachers and for a visit from himself. In response to the appeal he went to the country in August, 1903, and was cordially welcomed by a number of the chiefs. A full account of his visit appeared in the C.M. Intelligencer for November, 1904. At Acholi the chief, an old man named Obona, had made every preparation for his reception, and as the sun set Mr. Lloyd was able to tell "the Old, Old Story" to some hundreds of the people gathered before his tent. He writes:—

A former servant of Sir S. Baker asks for teachers.

It was dark before I had finished, and then the old chief began to tell me his story. It ran something like this:—"I am an old man; I have seen many Europeans in the Gang country, but the greatest of them all was the man who called himself Baker Pasha. He had with him his wife, and he built a house on the hill over yonder, and there he lived for many months. I went to him as a young man and became his personal servant. He used to tell us many things, and we loved him because he talked to us; he was kind and helped us in our sorrows and fought against our enemies. He tried to teach us, and then was taken from us, but not before he had become a veritable father. We loved him and his wife, and we love their memory still, because they were kind to us. And now you have come. You tell us that you are a teacher: you have allowed us into your tent and shown us all your things, and have spoken to us with loving words. Will you stay with us and be our teacher always? We will listen to your words; we will eagerly seek to be taught by you. I am old, but I look to my son: he was born when Baker Pasha was with us; he is strong and will quickly learn wisdom. When I am dead he will be chief; for his sake stay and teach us. I have said my words." The old man's pleading was touching in the extreme, and one could not but feel that here was a grand open door.

"A grand open door."

Other places, however, had to be visited, and at length Mr. Lloyd met Awich at Nimule, where he was residing at the time. The chief was friendly, and suggested that they should travel together to his own village, Payera, sixty miles south-east of Nimule, on the following day. Early in the morning, however, Mr. Lloyd was told that Awich had been put into prison on an "old-standing charge." Accordingly he commenced his return journey, leaving three young Banyoro, who had volunteered for work in the country, with Olia, another chief, until Awich should be released.

The story told by Mr. Lloyd on his return led to the resolve to undertake work among this people who appeared so ready to listen to the Gospel, and in March, 1904, Bishop Tucker, accompanied by Mr. Lloyd and Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Cook, proceeded to the country to select a site for a permanent mission-station. Mr. Lloyd remained at Patigo, where he was joined in June, as already stated, by Mr. Kitching, and in August he wrote as follows to Bishop Tucker, telling of a chief named Owin who had died:—

A chief dies expressing his faith in Christ.

I fear there was foul play, and the story is that he has been poisoned by a man who was once his over-chief. . . . Well, the poor man is dead, but you will rejoice to hear that the young teacher who was with him to the last declares that he died with absolutely firm faith in our Lord Jesus Christ as his Saviour. The story of his begging Yohana (the teacher) to take off the charms that the Heathen had placed around his neck, and how the teacher did so and at the same time pointed out to him that the one and only Saviour was at hand to help and to save him, and how Owin said that he trusted entirely in the saving arm of Christ and fell asleep in this simple faith—has cheered our hearts and made us feel quite sure that the beginning has come, and that the first-fruits of the Acholi have been gathered into the fold of Christ.

One of the first things to be done was to reduce the language to writing. The task was attempted with such success that by the middle of November a reading-sheet, one hymn, parts of Morning and Evening Prayer, the First Catechism, and half of St. Mark's Gospel, had been rendered into the Gang language. This, however, was not accomplished without difficulty, for apparently the people have no word for "God," or for "create," or "Creator," and the Lunyoro word "Ruhanga," signifying "God," had to be adapted for use. Arrangements for regular reading and services were made in October. Mr. Kitching says:—

Commencement of regular services.

I found Awich and some of his chiefs already settled here, not far from our station, and at once regular reading, twice daily, was commenced, with two services on Sunday. An average of about forty come each day; sometimes as many as eighty turn up, at present practically all men, with a few small boys. We have some difficulty in finding teachers for all, as we have only our boys to draw upon, besides two teachers here, and many of the boys are themselves only beginners and themselves need teaching in Lunyoro. Awich, and some of the others, seem really anxious to learn to read, but at present do not evince any interest in the Gospel story or desire to leave their old customs and drink for a Christian profession.

Two Banyoro, who resided in a village one day's march away, seemed to be really in earnest as inquirers. Many visitors came to see the missionaries, and Mr. Lloyd wrote in September:—

A whole country "stretching out its hands."

At present the whole country seems stretching out its hands to us, and there is no hindrance to our work. I cannot believe this will last; there will come a time when the cry will become less distinct, and the yearning soul will be taken up by some passing shadow that will bring an indifference, and the subtle power of the Enemy will deaden any desire for the truth of God. I do earnestly pray that the followers of Christ may not be slow in coming forward for this great fight, and so will win the land for Him.

The Rev. A. E. Pleydell has been assigned to Patigo, where he arrived in December, 1904.

IV. CENTRAL PROVINCE.

Mr. T. Owrid and Miss A. L. Allen were transferred to the Uganda Province in July, 1904.

ELGON.

Nabumale.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Purvis, who resided at Nabumale in the Masaba district, 150 miles from Mengo, were the only Protestant missionaries in the Teso-speaking countries of Bugwere, Masaba, Bunyudi, and Budama, which lie between the Mpologoma River and Lake Rudolph. The Roman Catholics have three European missionaries in the district, which is as large as Uganda, Toro, Ankole, and Bunyoro put together, and placed one of them within a mile of the Society's station, notwithstanding the fact that all the countries to the north, east, and south, were unoccupied. The Sunday congregation increased in size until it included from 150 to 200 persons. Several small out-stations were opened with the help of the four Baganda teachers, who were supported by the Christians belonging to the Baganda colony, under the chief Semei Kakungulu, at Mbale, eight miles from Nabumale. The people of that place, about 700 in number, contributed £20 for religious purposes, and did all in their power to evangelize their heathen neighbours.

Kamuli.

The Rev. A. Wilson, who resided at Kamuli, had the Rev. J. E. M. Hannington as his colleague at the beginning of the year under review, but in July the latter was transferred to Iganga, and his place was taken at the close of the year by Mr. H. Mathers, who had been working at Nassa. The congregations were small, and some of the Christians fell into sin, but happily the majority of them hearkened to advice and abandoned their evil ways. The seven men who were in the teachers' class when the year opened were sent out as local teachers in the summer, and ten others entered in their stead. Two Basoga teachers were under instruction at Mengo, where they showed marked ability, gaining the first and third places in the examination, for which from sixty to seventy men entered, all of them Baganda excepting these two. The chief, Yosiya Nadiope, was also at Mengo where he joined Mr. Hattersley's High-school for chiefs. Superintending the building of a new mission-house prevented Mr. Wilson from doing much in the district, but he was able to make one tour of ten days towards the end of February. Four new out-stations were opened, and two of the older ones abandoned. The sons of four of the country chiefs are being educated at Kamuli. Seventy-four adults were baptized.

Iganga.

Miss E. L. Pilgrim, who is a trained nurse, was alone at IGANGA for part of the year 1904, for in July both Mr. T. Owrid and Miss A. L. Allen were transferred to the Uganda section of the Mission—the former on account of ill-health. There was a scarcity of African workers also, for the Muganda deacon, the Rev. Y. Kiwavu, left the station, and some of the lay teachers went to work with Indian traders, others contracted sleeping-sickness, and others, again, were disconnected. The lack of regular agents was supplied in some degree by the zeal of the Christian women of the station, for each woman had a little district assigned to her, and engaged vigorously in visiting. They met at the prayer-meeting which was held every Friday, and reported on the work which they had done. Sewing-classes were held twice a week, and were greatly appreciated. The dispensary was attended by from thirty to forty persons every day. Several of those who came asked for medicine to drive out the evil spirits in which the Basoga have firm belief.

Zeal of Christian Women.

The young chief, Gideoni Joji, whose baptism was recorded in last year's Report (page 134), went to Mengo in the summer to enter the new school for chiefs opened by Mr. Hattersley. Another chief, named Kasubi, one of the great opponents of the work, was deposed, and a third, Katikalusi, became much more friendly than he had been. Although he never attended the services, and would not allow his women to visit Miss Pilgrim, he yet permitted them to be taught in their own homes, and took four of his boys, including his heir, to various Christian men, with the request that they might be instructed. His attitude, however, was still uncertain, for in November one of his wives ran away to her father's house because he refused her permission to read. Miss Pilgrim says that it is not easy for Basoga women to become Christians, and that they often have to suffer persecution if they do. She writes :—

What it means for Basoga women to become Christians.

> I do not think we Europeans realize all that it means to them when they come out from their heathen customs. They have often to stand alone and be jeered and laughed at, often beaten and tied up. I have three women and one girl who have taken refuge with me because of persecution. One woman was beaten by her husband every time she went to read, and when he found that beating her did not prevent her reading, he tied her up and burnt her books. When she got free she came to me, and has been reading faithfully ever since. The little girl also was beaten and tied up, and told that if she went to read again they would kill her, but one day she got free and ran away, and Lebeka, my native woman teacher, found her and asked her where she was going. She replied that she was going to the European lady. I took her in, but her people have never been to claim her yet.

Miss Pilgrim was joined at Iganga by Miss M. A. Taylor towards the end of the year.

Jinja.

The population of JINJA, where the Rev. T. R. Buckley resides, consists chiefly of people who go there to work as hut-tax labourers for a month, and then return to their homes.

This fact precluded much work from being done among the adults. Some, however, came to church to learn to read, and among others who attended the Sunday services were several members of the police force, including the sergeant-major and the senior sergeant. These men were earnest Christians, and by their consistent lives testified for their Master. Some of the chiefs sent their sons to reside with a teacher so that they might be educated. Two of those thus brought under instruction were a son and a daughter of Luba—Mwanga's instrument in the murder of Bishop Hannington. The sleeping-sickness, which carried off the Rev. N. Kikwabanga, of Bukaleba, and depopulated some of the islands on Lake Victoria and adjacent districts, affected the work in the country. Some idea of its ravages is conveyed by the following extract from Uganda Notes:—

Terrible ravages of sleeping-sickness.

Bugaya is a small island belonging to the Buvuma group, and is best known as a port of call for the Lake steamers, where firewood is taken on board. At one time the island had a dense population. A few years ago the chief, Muzito, was capable of putting 2,300 fighting-men in the field; and the people were so crowded that each man had his plot of ground marked out for him, a long strip some three or four yards in width and perhaps half a mile or more in length. These plots were marked off by stones laid in a line, and no one was allowed to dig in another's plot. The stones still remain, a melancholy mark of past prosperity; but the gardens are for the most part indistinguishable from the field. The whole island has a deserted appearance. Where a few years ago there were 1,900 houses occupied, there are now barely 200. In one shamba stood 200 native huts, now only six of these are tenanted. In another of 170, only two remain; in a third, of 250 houses, there is left a solitary one; and in another shamba, high up on a hill-top, of seventy huts there is now not a single one occupied.

Callousness of the people.

One of the saddest facts in regard to this visitation is the absolute callousness with which it is regarded by the bulk of the people who are, so to speak, lying within its grip. It would naturally have been expected that such trouble would at least have had a softening and awakening influence on the islanders, and have made men in earnest about receiving the Gospel. But the effect is, in the great majority of cases, exactly the reverse. They point to the Christians who have died—"So-and-so," they say, "was a Christian; did not he die? If God loves us, how is it that He allows such a sickness as this?" and the like. Nor is the disease at an end, though opinions differ as to whether it is on the wane or not. Daily on Bugaya the sound of heathen mourning is to be heard, and from two to ten bodies are carried out each day for burial. With no apparent hope of remedy at hand, it would seem that the annihilation of the entire population cannot be very far distant.

When Mr. Buckley visited the islands, he found that several of the teachers had died; that the work had been abandoned excepting at a few places; and that in those the congregations had dwindled down to a few people.

V. KAVIRONDO.

Occupation of Maragole.

In January, 1905, the Rev. J. J. Willis removed from Entebbe to Maragole, in the Kavirondo country, near Kisumu, to commence work among the Luo tribe. The site chosen for the station is at an elevation of 5,500 feet, on a range of hills looking away to Mount Elgon, and southwards over Kavirondo Bay. Bishop Tucker and Mr. Willis visited the country in the summer of 1904, and the latter wrote shortly afterwards :—

At present the only Mission at work in the country is a Quaker Mission, with a single station some twenty miles from Port Florence. Kavirondo has a population of probably a million and a half, whereas that of Uganda is now under 700,000. Yet all our efforts have so far been centred on Uganda. I do not expect that the work in Kavirondo will compare with that in Uganda for rapidity of results, as the people are very different and much lower in the social scale. In Uganda a great deal has been done through the influence of the chiefs, but in Kavirondo there are no really important chiefs, and the work must be accomplished in individuals.

"Work must be accomplished in individuals."

Mr. Willis speaks of two distinct languages being spoken in the district, one Nilotic and the other Bantu, and writes :—

I cannot find that the Bantu Kavirondo have any word for God; but the Nilotic call Him Nyasaye. Their word for "to ask" is sayo, which suggests a connexion between the two. Certainly, they do in a vague way call upon Him in time of sickness, and that as Father. Of course, such faith is vague indeed, but it affords some foundation for teaching. Translation into Nilotic Kavirondo will be a difficulty, as the people seem to have so few grammatical forms. Anything like nicety of expression would seem to be impossible.

VI. USUKUMA.

Mr. H. Mathers was transferred to the Central Province at the close of 1904.

Nassa.

Nassa is a district of the large tract of country south of the Victoria Nyanza known as Usukuma, and is in German territory. The district has a population of some 10,000, but the Rev. F. H. Wright reckons the population of Usukuma at 500,000, while beyond lies a great population reckoned at from one to two millions, among all of whom Kisukuma is understood. The chiefs are called batemi. Their principal work seems to be to obtain rain. If they fail to produce copious showers in the right season, they are in danger of being driven from their kingdom by their subjects. Kapongo, the ntemi of Nassa, appears to have little real faith in his ability to get rain, but he has to pretend to try, in order to please his superstitious people. Their ideas of a future state are very vague, a man's future existence depending apparently on his wealth in flocks and the number of his children. A belief in evil spirits, who cause various sicknesses, combined with a species of ancestral worship, is all the religion they practise.

Rain-makers.

Concerning this point and some of the characteristics of the people, Mr. Mathers writes :—

There are a great many spirit-huts, where food and drink are placed to propitiate the spirits. Before the doorway of many are to be seen two sticks or trees, where offerings of native beer and corn are made, so that the inmates of the house may have a good harvest and no sickness. When sickness comes, perhaps they will send some one with a present to one of the priests to get the evil spirit removed. As I was visiting one day with a teacher I was talking to a medicine-woman, when two men came with a spade as a present to this woman. A friend of theirs was ill a long way off. She said they would abide there that night, and during the night the spirits of her ancestors, who she seriously affirmed were in two calabashes, would tell her what to do. I took the opportunity of preaching Christ to both the medicine-woman and people. Sometimes when sickness comes to a house the relatives of the sick one kill, perhaps, one or two cows, call the people to dance, eat, and drink in order to drive away the evil spirit. The dance lasts for three days. The morning following the first day of the dance a number of men take baskets, fill them with ashes, and go to every house about, open the door, and, if possible, throw a handful of ashes on the inmates. Sometimes the people resent it very much. It is supposed that when these ashes are thrown into the house the evil spirit departs. The Wasukuma are very deceitful. They love to please at the expense of truth, and will seldom vex with a bad answer. There is much immorality. Much of it springs from their dances at night. Betting is also much practised.

Native efforts to cure sickness.

In the early part of 1904 the district suffered from drought, and earnest prayer for rain was therefore offered in the presence of the Heathen at one of the evangelistic services. In one night, soon afterwards, three inches of rain fell, but the signal answer to prayer apparently had no effect upon the people beyond supplying them with more corn from which to make beer, and so leading to even greater drunkenness than usual. Sixteen adults were baptized, but few were available to act as teachers, for the young men preferred to go to the large trade centres to seek their fortunes. Two of the sons of the king were anxious to be admitted into the visible Church, but their father objected on the ground that the ceremony of baptism would, in the eyes of the Basukuma, practically constitute them kings. He himself, he said, went through a similar ceremony on his accession, being sprinkled with water and changing his name; and while he had nothing to say against any of his people coming forward for baptism, he threatened to disown his sons if they were baptized, urging that they, being eligible for the throne, would be like kings in his kingdom. All the chiefs in the neighbourhood were visited, but while interested enough in the matters concerning this life, they appeared utterly indifferent to religion. The son of the chief of Masanza, however, a district containing about 10,000 people, expressed his desire that a teacher should be sent to him. At Kabita, whither Mr. Mathers went in August, a fortnight's work brought the number of readers from six to over one hundred, and at Ngwamanyiri, where there had been no readers for more than a year, the number rose to 270 during his short visit, some of the chiefs coming with the children to be taught. The leading chief was afterwards removed by the king of Nassa, and most of the people then ceased to come for instruction.

At the end of 1904 Nassa was revisited after the lapse of several years by Archdeacon Walker. He says that a good deal has already been accomplished at the station, and that although there may be no very decided Christians, yet many people have been influenced by Christianity. He adds that in his opinion the work is encouraging, but that progress is likely to be slow. "Few will learn to read the Word, but many may be won without the Word, as the missionaries live among the people and love them."

Mr. J. S. Herbert has been appointed to Nassa.

EGYPT MISSION.

The original object of the Missions formerly grouped under the heading of the "Mediterranean Mission," which were begun at Malta in 1815, at the close of the great war, and were afterwards extended to Egypt, Abyssinia, Greece, Turkey, Asia Minor, and Palestine, was twofold: first, to revive the Eastern Churches; and, second, through them to evangelize the Mohammedans. Some very able and devoted missionaries were employed in this work—Jowett, Gobat, Krapf, Pfander, Koelle, &c. But the hopes of the founders of the Society were not fulfilled. Oriental Christendom manifested no readiness to be quickened into life by emissaries from the West; and Moslem fanaticism, which barely tolerated Greek and Armenian Christianity, utterly repudiated the Gospel when presented in a pure form. Despite treaties and concessions on paper, missionary effort among the Moslem population of the Turkish Empire is carried on under the most vexatious restrictions, and a Mohammedan can only become a Christian at the imminent risk of liberty and life.

The Society had formerly a Mission in Egypt, as part of its scheme for the revival of the Eastern Churches. Many of the Coptic clergy and one Bishop were trained in the C.M.S. Seminary at Cairo; but the visible results were small, and the work was discontinued in 1862. In 1882, in response to the appeals of the late Miss Whately, and in consequence of the British occupation of Egypt, the Rev. F. A. Klein, formerly of Jerusalem, was sent to Cairo to begin a new Mission among the Mohammedans. A medical mission was opened in 1889, and ladies were added to the staff in the following year. Helouan was occupied in 1903. After Gordon's death at Khartoum in 1885 a Gordon Memorial Fund was opened, and soon after the defeat of the Mahdi's forces Omdurman was occupied in 1899, and Khartoum in 1900, under some restrictions, however, as to evangelistic efforts.

Egypt is included in the jurisdiction of the Anglican Bishop in Jerusalem.

Reinforcements.

The Mission has been reinforced by the following:—Miss May Broadfoot, of Wheatley, Oxon, trained at The Olives; and Miss Collinette Virginia Beaumaris Harris, of the Canadian C.M.S. Mrs. Eva Hall, the widow of Dr. A. C. Hall, of Omdurman, who, as Miss Jackson, joined the staff of the Society in Egypt in 1891, offered to continue in the service of the Mission, and her offer was gladly accepted by the Committee; she sailed for Egypt in October, 1904, and the other ladies in November. The Rev. Ll. H. Gwynne has been appointed Archdeacon of the Soudan, and has consequently resigned his connexion with the Society. He will continue, however, to superintend the work at Khartoum.

Miss F. M. Sells came home in June, 1904; Dr. and Mrs. F. O. Lasbrey in April, 1905; and Miss A. E. Rowan and the Lady Hilda Clements in May. The Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Thornton and Mrs. E. B. Bywater took their summer leave in England. Dr. E. M. Pain sailed from Melbourne for the Mission in July, 1904; and the Rev. and Mrs. W. H. T. Gairdner and Miss F. M. Sells left England for Egypt in October. The Rev. R. MacInnes is the Secretary of the Mission.

CAIRO.

Cairo.

Slowly but surely the little Congregation is being increased at Cairo, which is described by the Rev. D. M. Thornton as an international centre. At a meeting of converts and inquirers and catechists just before he came home, there were present in the room, besides himself, representatives of five nationalities.

Boys' School.

In March, 1904, the Rev. A. J. Toop, who resided in Old Cairo, took over the charge of the Boys' School from the Rev. W. H. T. Gairdner. Two of the boys were successful in the Government Primary Certificate Examination in June. Much anxiety was felt during the summer concerning suitable premises for the school, for the landlord had given notice to quit those then occupied, and no others could be found. Eventually, after negotiations lasting nearly three months, arrangements were made for staying on in the old building at a slightly increased rent. A more permanent anxiety was that concerning the best steps to take to render the educational work among boys effective. The conditions of the problem are stated by Mr. Toop as follows :—

Educational problems.

> There is before us the choice of only two classes of schools. One is the simple vernacular school where the teaching is of the most elementary character; the other, the school in which English is made an important subject. The former attracts the poorest boys, who at the age of eight, or at most nine, leave school to begin work, i.e., at the age when Scripture instruction would begin to tell. If we aim at the other class we have to compete with the excellent Government or Coptic schools, well-manned with European professional masters, and where, therefore, the teaching is better than we can command. But in these there is either a minimum of Christianity taught or, as in the case of the Government schools, the only religious teaching is Mohammedan. This, though, is undoubtedly the class of school that, next to a boarding-school, would repay us most as a missionary agency. But by a general consensus of opinion such schools can never become effective until we have a missionary-hearted Englishman appointed to each school who, together with his supervision of the work, has time to get into personal contact with the boys. When I state that at the present time many of the boys come at the age of seven and stay with us till seventeen, the attractions and possibilities of such a work will at once appear.

Girls' School.

The Girls' Boarding-school, in the Bab-el-Luk quarter of the city, was under Miss J. E. B. Bywater, who had Miss A. G. Bewley as her colleague until the removal of the latter to Helouan in the spring of 1904. Miss. M. W. Welch was responsible for the kindergarten teaching until the autumn, when she was relieved by Miss C. V. B. Harris and removed to Old Cairo. In the summer the Training Class, which previously had been regarded as a part of the school, was removed to the premises of the day-school. It contains nine girls, four of whom are Protestants, one a Copt, and one an Armenian, while three are Mohammedan in name, but Christian at heart. Miss T. H. Bird, who is in general superintendence of all the educational work among girls, devoted herself to the training of these students after her return from Khartoum in June, 1904 (see infra, p. 139). The removal of these older girls deprived the school of a much-prized influence for good, but those who then became the seniors did their best to set a bright example to the younger children. Miss Bywater speaks of a "gradual but very sure growth in the spiritual life" of many of the thirty-five pupils, but few of whom are Mohammedans. The Scripture Union had twenty-six members, some "old girls" being included among them. The Girls' Day-school, under Miss G. M. Western, has thirty names on its rolls. It can accommodate many more pupils, but is affected by the opposition of a long-established and well-known Mohammedan school, which moved during the year to premises close to the Society's institution. A large proportion of the children are Mohammedans, and the majority of them are under eight years of age. Miss Western paid frequent visits to the mothers of the girls.

Evangelistic work.

In the Evangelistic Work the Revs. D. M. Thornton and W. H. T. Gairdner devoted special attention to reaching the educated classes, for whom they commenced meetings in the mission-house. Addresses were given on subjects of general interest, followed in some cases by debates in English and Arabic, while occasionally a religious meeting was held in place of the ordinary lecture. Among those who attended were students of the law and other colleges, of the secondary schools, and even of the Al Azhar; there were also some teachers from the Government schools, and a number of the better class of sheikhs. These gatherings had to be suspended during the summer in consequence of the absence of the missionaries in England, but they were resumed in November. The definitely evangelistic meetings attracted a class of men whose presence unfortunately repelled the better educated members, and the religious work among the latter consequently was hindered. Before long, too, vigorous opposition was offered by a sheikh, who produced some vile tracts combating the truth of our Lord's Divinity and the doctrine of the Holy Trinity, and caused the same to be distributed among those who visited the mission-house. His efforts resulted in some stormy scenes at the meetings, and checked the flow of inquirers.

Opposition by a sheikh.

Book depôt.

At the Book Depôt, which was set on a sound financial basis, thanks largely to the help given by the Religious Tract Society, 2,615 Bibles and Scripture portions were sold in 1904, besides 1,810 which were disposed of by the colporteurs working in connexion with the depôt. There was also a sale of 2,900 religious and controversial books in Arabic, and of 391 English books.

A weekly magazine for Mohammedans.

Early in 1905 a new weekly illustrated magazine, entitled Orient and Occident, was published. It soon found its way into every town and village of importance in Egypt; copies were allowed to be sent to Egyptian and Syrian Christians in the Soudan; and several missionaries in Palestine, and other workers in Mohammedan lands, became subscribers. Mr. Thornton and Mr. Gairdner are joint editors of the magazine.

Women's Work.

The Work among Women was carried on by Mrs. E. B. Bywater and Miss H. Adeney. The attendance at the mothers' meeting kept up well, and a new women's meeting was commenced in February in a native house. Miss Adeney says that several of the Mohammedan women with whom she came in contact in her house-to-house visiting were able to answer clearly as to the meaning of Christ's coming and His death upon the Cross, and could repeat texts and the Lord's Prayer.

OLD CAIRO.

Old Cairo.

The missionaries of the Society at OLD CAIRO during the whole or part of the year were Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Harpur, Dr. and Mrs. F. O. Lasbrey, Dr. E. M. Pain, of the New South Wales Association, Misses L. Crowther, L. E. D. Braine-Hartnell, and A. E. Rowan, trained nurses; Miss M. Cay, Miss H. Adeney, Miss F. M. Sells, the Lady M. Hilda Clements, and Miss M. W. Welch. The Congregation improved both in size and in reverent participation in the services, the attendance averaging about eighty on Sunday mornings. Among those present were usually a number of boys—Christians, Jews, and Schools.

Mohammedans side by side—belonging to the Boys' School, which was superintended by the Rev. A. J. Toop. Of recent years many of the lads have left after the summer holidays to go to other schools, but in 1904 hardly a single boy was lost in that way, notwithstanding the fact that the fees had been raised, and in the following spring the pupils numbered eighty. For some months the Girls' School was without a resident missionary. In the autumn, however, Miss Welch was placed in charge, and she soon succeeded in working it up, so that in January, 1905, it had the names of seventy children, half of them Mohammedans, upon its rolls. The evangelistic aim of the school is kept well to the fore, and the Scripture lessons are treated as the most important part of the curriculum. The Hospital, containing thirty beds, was not nearly large enough for the many patients who came, and temporary accommodation was therefore provided by the erection of a ward in the compound, which gave twelve additional beds. In March, 1905, Sir Algernon Coote, President of the Hibernian Church Missionary Society, laid the foundation-stone of a new hospital for women and children, to be erected in memory of Mrs. E. M. Pain, whose death was recorded in last year's Report (page 137). The native staff was strengthened by the admission as a probationer of a sister of Lydia (see Annual Report for 1898–9, page 130; 1902–03, page 147), who was baptized at Easter, 1903. The in-patients numbered 1,767 as compared with 864 in the previous year, and the visits of out-patients increased from 19,730 to 25,057. A Soudanese woman while in the hospital confessed her faith in Christ. Dr. Pain writes :—

She came because, as she put it, she had seen in a dream some one come and say to her, "Go to the English hospital in Old Cairo." Very soon after admission she showed great interest in the Gospel story, and expressed herself as certain that the One she had seen in her dream was Christ Himself. She has been daily taught and learns rapidly, with the full intention of being baptized after she has put her affairs in order. She has some land she wants to sell, in order that, if, as is most likely after baptism, she is cast out by her people, she may have wherewith to live. She quite recognizes the probability of persecution, but says she will say to her son, "We have been on the wrong road. Christ has found me and put me on the right one. Will you come with me along it? Even if you won't I must keep on it."

"We have been on the wrong road."

On the other hand, many of the patients caused disappointment, turning back after apparently being willing to accept salvation through Christ. Some even of the children displayed great bigotry, one little six-year-old girl telling her father that she wanted to return home because she did not wish to be a Christian and the "Sitt" (lady) spoke to the boys about baptism. Many of the children who were brought to the dispensary, as well as several others, from sixty to ninety in all, attended the Ragged Sunday-school. Miss Adeney had the assistance of a young Bible-woman, educated in the mission-school, in the Work among Women. The latter is nearly blind, and her finger reading often attracted attention and secured a good opening for an explanation of the Gospel. Most of the women attending the weekly meeting conducted by Miss Cay were in some way related to the men in the employment of the Mission.

Dr. Harpur's plans for itinerating work were interfered with by a variety of circumstances, and he was not able to travel among the villages of the Delta so much as he had hoped. He spent several weeks at Rod-el-Farag, where he carried on dispensary work, and whence he visited a number of the neighbouring villages. For three months he stayed on his house-boat at Beltan, a village about twenty miles north-east of Cairo. A little house was hired in a neighbouring village and used as a dispensary. The doctor wrote in April, 1904 :—

The total number of attendances for thirty-one dispensary days was 1,187, and ninety-seven small operations were done. Nearly every patient is accompanied by one friend, and sometimes more, and it has been gratifying to notice brothers bringing their sisters, and uncles bringing their nieces, showing the power of family ties among these simple village people. From an evangelistic point of view, the number of "friends" has the advantage of bringing a large number within the sound of the Gospel. One morning, for instance, I counted seventy-nine in the courtyard at the time of the address, and we had forty-six patients that day. The "friends" always want to crowd in with the patient to hear what the doctor's opinion is, and this we find a decided disadvantage in a room that is not too large. As a rule we have not entered any names and addresses, but on that particular morning I noted the villages from which the forty-six patients came, and found that fourteen were represented.

Fourteen villages represented among forty-six patients.

Dr. Harpur was often called to see patients at other places in the district, and their fees, which were willingly given, more than covered all the expenses of the dispensary and the house-boat. He had frequent requests from people in the villages to open a school at Beltan.

HELOUAN.

Helouan.

HELOUAN, where Miss P. A. Jackson resided, is a town containing about 3,500 inhabitants, situated in the desert some sixteen miles south of Cairo. In the summer the climate is intensely hot, and many of the Turkish families leave the town, thus causing a temporary diminution in the attendance at the day-school for high-class girls. At the end of November, 1904, the school had forty-two pupils, aged from four to fifteen. There was some opposition to the Scripture-teaching, and one girl belonging to an influential family was taken away because the Bible was taught. Miss Jackson, who was assisted for short periods by Miss Warburton, an independent helper, Miss A. G. Bewley, Miss M. Broadfoot, and Miss C. V. B. Harris, writes:—

Love of school-girls for the Bible.

> We have been greatly gladdened by several asking, "How much does a Bible cost? I want one"; and several have told me they do love Christ. The girl who was taken away on account of Christian teaching, seemed at that time to have no love for the Bible, but now she really has, and although she has left the town for several weeks, she has taken a Bible with her, and has said that she will read and pray daily. Another girl, who would gladly have stayed away from the Scripture class when she first came to our school about two years ago, told us she would on no account miss it, and that she did love Christ and pray to Him. This girl has now gone to the Government school, and we need much prayer for her that she may continue in the faith.

Miss L. Crowther visited former Old Cairo Hospital patients in the town once a week. One day as she left the house of a woman who had been in the hospital for an operation to her eye, an old woman volunteered to take her to some houses. Miss Crowther speedily found herself in the house of a Mohammedan saint, who commenced to reproach her in unmeasured language for teaching Christianity to the people. Eventually she was able to obtain silence on the part of the opponent and of others present, and opening her Bible, she read the Parable of the Sower. The people allowed her to explain and apply it, and all were thoroughly interested, including the "saint." When Miss Crowther left he put out his hand, saying, "Forgive me. I will not again speak to you as I have spoken to-day. I was mistaken."

An opponent silenced.

At a village some ten minutes' walk from Helouan there is a small school, which was commenced, like that at Helouan, by Mrs. S. W. Edwards of Clifton, and was by her handed over to the Society in 1903. The instruction is very elementary, but the school secures openings into the homes of the pupils, and the Bible is read to many of the mothers.

EGYPTIAN SOUDAN.

Khartoum.

The Rev. (now Archdeacon) Ll. H. Gwynne resided at KHARTOUM, and conducted the English Services and also a meeting for some Abyssinian Christians whose people had been carried off from their own country and brought to Omdurman as slaves in the Khalifa's time. He also gave the Scripture teaching twice a week in the Girls' School, which was superintended from February, 1904, to the end of May by Miss T. H. Bird, who went up from Cairo to put the work on a better footing. She found about forty-three girls in the school; by the end of March the number had risen to sixty-one; and by November 24th to ninety-two. Of the eighty pupils whose names were on the rolls when Miss Bird left, sixty-three were Mohammedans; only four of them were withdrawn at all from the religious instruction which was given, and those four were allowed by their fathers to be present when the teaching was on the Old Testament. Miss Bird, who bears cordial testimony to the good work accomplished under great difficulties by the Syrian mistress formerly in charge, writes :—

Girls' School.

Mohammedan children allowed to receive Bible instruction.

> Children of all ranks and of all complexions sit happily side by side, and learn and play together, though they may be as different as the homes from which they come. They range in hue from the comparatively fair children of Egyptian officers and officials employed by the Soudan Government, to the warm chocolate-brown of the real Soudanese, and to the coal-black of the true Negro.

In October Mr. Gwynne was joined by Mrs. A. C. Hall and Miss A. G. Bewley, the last named temporarily undertaking the superintendence of the school. The foundation stone of a new building for the school was laid in March, 1905, by Bishop Morley, the ceremony being attended by practically the whole British community of Khartoum.

The "Call" to the Soudan.

It was mentioned in last year's Report (page 143) that the Committee had made inquiries concerning the openings for commencing missionary work in the Pagan region south of Fashoda in accordance with the repeatedly-expressed desire of the Government authorities. That desire received fresh and emphatic expression in the following important letter written in December, 1904, by Lord Cromer to the Hon. Secretary of the Society :—

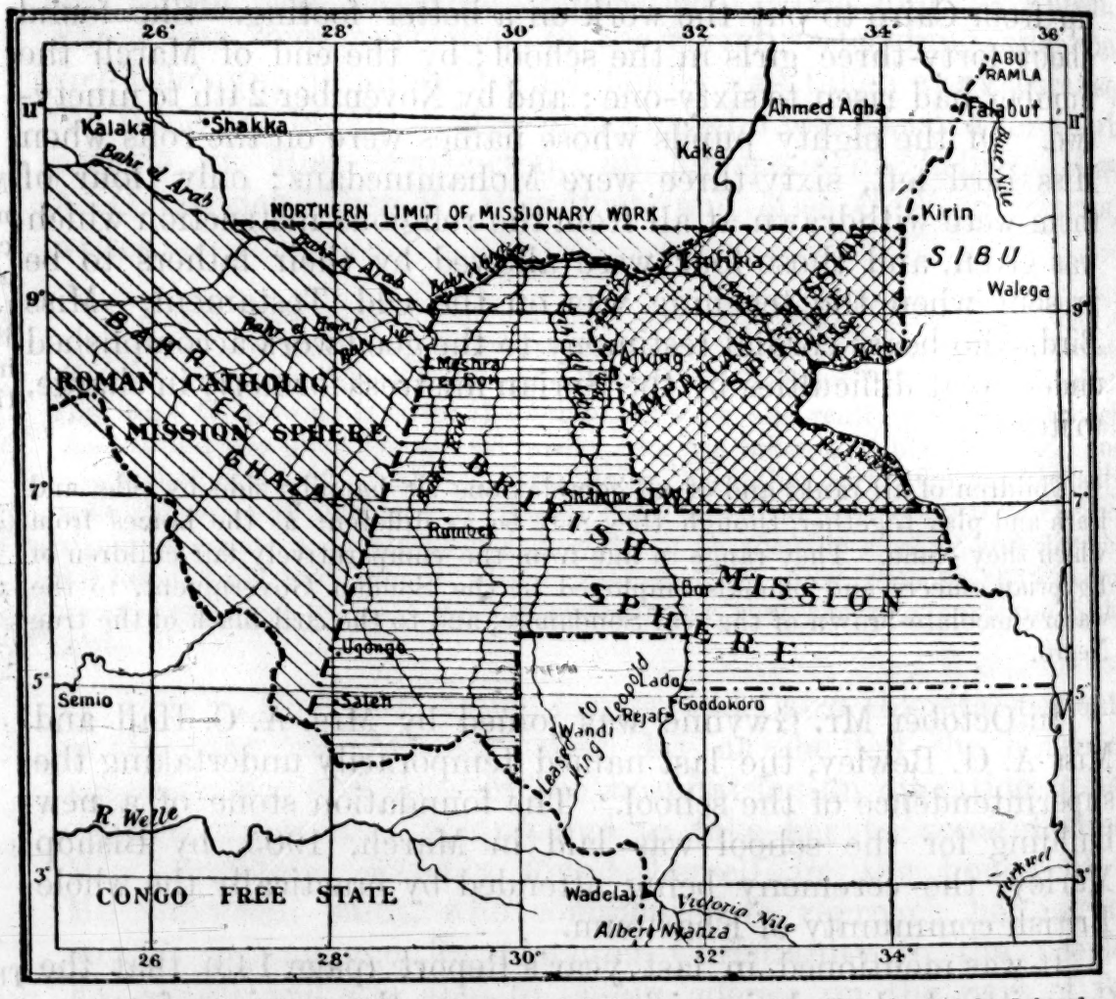
Lord Cromer's letter.

> Sir,—I understand from Mr. MacInnes, the Secretary of your Mission in Egypt, that you are desirous to obtain an expression of my opinion as to the prospects of missionary work in the Soudan.

In my annual report for 1902 (p. 60) I stated that both Sir Reginald Wingate and myself were of opinion that "the time is still distant when mission work can, with safety and advantage, be permitted among the Moslem population." I added that there was no objection to the establishment of Christian schools in Khartoum, provided that parents were warned, before they sent their children to those schools, that instruction in the Christian religion is afforded.

These opinions remain unchanged.

The case of the more southern provinces of the Soudan, which are inhabited by a Pagan population, is widely different. In these regions, not only is there no reason for imposing any restrictions on missionary enterprise, but the Soudan Government would welcome the co-operation of missionaries in the work of civilization now being undertaken. This is more especially the case as regards education. I venture to express a hope that, in any work undertaken by your Society, special attention will be paid to some simple forms of industrial and agricultural instruction.



An American, and also an Austrian Mission, are already established in the Soudan, the former on the Sobat River, the latter on the White Nile, a short distance south of Kodok. The Austrian Mission has already established two mission-stations in the district lying west of the Nile.

I enclose for your information a map showing that a large and populous district is still unoccupied. It is bounded on the north by the Bahr-el-Ghazal; on the east by a line proceeding south from the White Nile, starting at a point about half-way between where the Nile is joined by the Bahr-el-Zeraf and where it is joined by the Bahr-el-Jebel, to Ajiung, and thence southwards to Twi. From Twi the line proceeds due east to the Abyssinian frontier, and thence follows the frontier to the Uganda border on the 5th parallel of North latitude.

On the south it is bounded by the northern border of the Congo Free State, the Lado Enclave, and the Uganda Province; on the west by a line drawn from Mashra-el-Rek to a point where the frontiers of the Congo Free State, the French Congo, and the Bahr-el-Ghazal meet, near N'darama.

No permission to establish missionary centres in this district will be given until a sufficient period has been allowed to elapse for your Society to consider whether it wishes to occupy the extensive field now thrown open to it. I should be glad in due time to receive information on this subject. A district reserved for the C.M.S.

No communications have as yet been received from private individuals requesting permission to establish schools in the southern Soudan, at their own expense, in which the religion of Islam would be taught; but in order to avoid any possible misapprehension as to the nature of the policy adopted by the Government, I wish to add that, should such requests be received, they will be favourably considered. The object which the Government has in view is educational. It is for those who voluntarily, and at the expense of private Societies or individuals, enter this field of work, to adapt the secular and educational policy of the Government to the needs of their special religious persuasion.

I should add that Sir Reginald Wingate has seen this letter, and fully agrees in all that I have said.

I remain, Sir, yours very truly,
(Signed) CROMER.

This letter having been considered by the Committee on January 17th, they passed a resolution thanking Lord Cromer for it, and authorized the issue of the following appeal :— The Committee's appeal.

A NEW CALL FROM THE HEART OF AFRICA.

Twenty-seven years have elapsed since General Gordon, when Governor-General of the Soudan under the Khedive of Egypt, appealed to the Church Missionary Society to send a Mission to the Pagan tribes on the Upper Nile, promising all possible help. But the C.M.S. was occupied farther south, in Uganda, and could not respond; and soon after this Gordon resigned his post, and the whole country relapsed into confusion.

Twenty years have elapsed since General Gordon's heroic attempt to restore order ended in his deeply-lamented overthrow and death at Khartoum. Within a few weeks spontaneous contributions began to pour in to the C.M.S. to establish a Gordon Memorial Mission in the city of his martyrdom and to the Mohammedans by whose hands he died. But for thirteen years more the Mahdi reigned in the Soudan, and the door was shut.

Six years have elapsed since the great victory of Omdurman opened the way to British rule and influence, and now the Pax Britannica prevails over the whole vast territory from the Mediterranean to the Equator. In due time, moving step by step in obedience to the cautious policy of the Government, the Society was enabled to post missionaries at Khartoum. Little by little the way has opened for a quiet and judicious witness for Christ; and the first witnesses have been greatly encouraged by the friendly attitude of the people. No large or speedy fruits can, humanly speaking, be reasonably expected, but at least "a flag for Christ" is uplifted in Khartoum, and this is all that man can do. Results are with the Lord: conversion is His work alone.

No other spot than Khartoum could have been the place for a Gordon Memorial Mission; but Gordon's own scheme for a Mission to the Pagans farther south still awaits the hour and the man, so far, at least, as England is concerned. The American Presbyterians have gone up the White Nile and established an excellent Industrial Mission in one district; and the Austrian Roman Catholics are occupying another district. What shall England and the Church of England do?

For two years past Lord Cromer at Cairo and the Sirdar (Sir Reginald Wingate) at Khartoum have been expressing their desire to see British Missions established among these Pagan tribes. The reasons that have compelled the Government to restrict within narrow limits any attempts to give the Gospel message to the Mohammedans do not apply to the non-Moslem population; and both Lord Cromer and the Sirdar are alive to the benefits, even from the point of view of the State, which might be derived from a Mission conducted by men who would combine wisdom and tact with evangelistic zeal.

Lord Cromer has now actually pointed out a definite field for such a Mission, and has invited the Church Missionary Society to undertake it. The territory is an extensive one, stretching southward, on both sides of the White Nile, to the northern border of the Uganda Protectorate and the north-eastern corner of the Congo Free State. A Mission established there will be a link between Egypt and Uganda, being about equi-distant from Khartoum and Mengo.

Such a Mission should be Industrial, Medical, Educational, Linguistic, and, of course, above all, an Evangelistic Mission.

A Band of Men is required at once; men of practical capacity, manliness of character, good physique, tact and judgment; above all, men "full of faith and of the Holy Ghost." Who will offer? And who will help to support such a Mission?

The missionary enterprise as a whole—the Church Missionary Society in particular—requires a fresh rallying cry at the present time. Never have there been more inviting openings for development and extension in all parts of the mission-field; yet notwithstanding the great increase of interest in the work and study of its conditions and self-sacrifice in giving—as the C.M.S. has so signally experienced of late—there is a lack of offers of service from capable men ready to give their whole lives to the service of God in the evangelization of the world. If this new call should be blessed of God to inspire fresh zeal and devotion, it will not be the first time that Africa, by stirring the hearts of men, has not only given an impetus to its own evangelization, but has helped India and China and the whole mission-field.

The Committee of the Church Missionary Society call upon their friends throughout the country and the world to pray earnestly and definitely that it may please God to prosper the attempt to seize this great opportunity, and to raise up the men and supply the means that shall enable the Society to embrace it.

PALESTINE MISSION.

The Society commenced work in Palestine in 1851, in response to an invitation given by Bishop Gobat. The following places are occupied by European labourers: Jerusalem, 1851; Nazareth, 1852; Salt, 1873; Jaffa, 1876; Nablous, 1876; Ramallah, 1877; Gaza, 1878; Haifa, 1884; Acca, 1890; Kefr Yasif and Bir Zeit, 1892; Ramleh and Kerak, 1894. In 1887 the Society commenced to send unmarried ladies to this Mission, and their efforts among Mohammedan women have been greatly blessed. In 1899 the work of the late Female Education Society at Nazareth, Bethlehem, and Shefamer, was taken over by the Society. Medical Missions have done much to diminish prejudice. The first mission-hospital was opened at Gaza in 1891. Since then Nablous, Acca, Salt, and Kerak have been made centres of medical missionary work.

The Bishopric in Jerusalem was founded in 1841 on the initiative of King Frederick William IV. of Prussia, the arrangement being that England and Prussia, who shared the expense of the See, should alternately nominate its occupant. The first three Bishops were Dr. Alexander, Dr. Gobat (1846), previously a C.M.S. missionary, and Dr. Barclay (1879). On the death of the last-named the German Government failed to nominate a successor, and eventually declined to continue the arrangement. In 1887 the Bishopric was revived by Archbishop Benson, the London Society for the Promotion of Christianity among the Jews and the Church Missionary Society having undertaken to make an annual contribution to the stipend of the See to supplement the endowment, and Dr. Blyth was appointed.

Reinforcements.

The staff of the Palestine Mission has been increased by the addition to it of Miss Katherine Morris, of Willenhall, trained at Highbury, and of the Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Parfit, formerly of the Turkish Arabia Mission. On the other hand Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Griffith have been transferred to the Turkish Arabia Mission, and the Committee have accepted the resignations of the Rev. D. M. Wilson, on medical grounds, and Mr. H. G. Harding.

The following missionaries came home:—The Rev. and Mrs. J. R. L. Hall, on account of the health of the former, Miss E. A. Lawford, and Miss F. L. A. Roberts, in June, 1904; Miss H. J. Dewe, in July; Miss M. B. McConaghy in September; Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Griffith in November; the Rev. H. Sykes and Miss E. M. Thorne, the latter on medical certificate, in January, 1905; Mrs. S. Gould (invalided) and Miss N. K. Fisher, in February; Miss A. Cooper, Miss M. Hicks, and Miss J. Wenham, in April; and Miss L. M. Townsend and Miss K. Patten in May. Miss A. M. Elverson also came home to spend her summer leave in England. Miss K. E. Erwood arrived in Australia from Palestine in August, 1904. Miss E. A. Cooke and Miss L. W. Lewis sailed for the Mission in October, 1904; the Rev. J. T. Parfit and Miss A. N. Jarvis, in November; Mrs. J. T. Parfit and Miss H. J. Dewe, in January, 1905; Miss F. E. Newton in February; and Miss E. A. Lawford, in April. The Rev. F. Carpenter married Miss Elizabeth M. Wolters, a daughter of the Rev. T. F. Wolters and a granddaughter of Bishop Gobat, at Jaffa on November 3rd, 1904, and Dr. F. Johnson married Miss F. E. Neale at Jerusalem on February 28th, 1905.

Ordination.

The Rev. S. C. Webb was admitted to Priests' Orders by Bishop Blyth at St. George's Collegiate Church, Jerusalem, on October 16th, 1904.

The Rev. H. Sykes has been appointed Secretary of the Mission in succession to the Rev. J. R. Longley Hall, who held that office for twenty-four years, and whose return to England in consequence of an accident was mentioned in last year's Report (page 146).

JERUSALEM.

Jerusalem.

The missionaries of the Society in JERUSALEM were the Revs. H. Sykes and S. C. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Ellis, Mr. A. E. Mitchell, Mr. L. H. Hardman, the Accountant of the Mission, and Miss A. Welch. The Rev. I. Baz is the Syrian pastor.

English College.

Mr. Sykes was the Principal of the English College, which has now taken the place of the Preparandi Institution, Mr. Mitchell being in charge of the educational work. An education is given both in English and Arabic—of course, on Christian lines. Some twenty students, all of them Syrians, were received when it was opened in October, 1904. The Rev. J. T. Parfit became Acting-Principal when Mr. Sykes came home. The Bishop Gobat School.

Bishop Gobat School, of which also Mr. Sykes was the Principal, and where Mr. Ellis was in charge of the educational work, had eighty-six boarders on its reopening in October, a greater number than in any other year since its foundation in 1853. A large audience, including Bishop Blyth, the German Consul, and the Minister of Education, assembled at Christmas, 1904, to listen to the recitations of the boys. Cheering news was received of some former pupils, and one in particular is mentioned who wrote of the blessing vouchsafed to him in the evangelistic work which he had undertaken. Through the kindness of some friends from England who visited Jerusalem during the year and of a lady resident in the country, a suitable plot of land was purchased as a playing-field for the boys. Miss Welch had the superintendence of the Girls' School. Work among Women was carried on to some extent by Miss A. M. Elverson, who visited the city twice a week from the Mount of Olives, and conducted meetings for the branch of the Y.W.C.A., which had about eighty members, and for other women. On the Mount of Olives, where she resided, she had the companionship of Miss H. J. Dewe until the summer, when the latter came home. The number of children attending the girls' school fell off owing to various reasons. Some beggar-women, who sit by the roadside in the Kedron Valley, came regularly to be taught, and evinced an absence of bigotry. Visits were paid to Siloam, Bethany, Anathoth, and other villages.

Bethlehem.

The Girls' Boarding-school at BETHLEHEM was worked by Miss F. E. Neale (now Mrs. F. Johnson), Miss M. Brown and Miss A. H. McNeile: Miss Brown superintending the household arrangements, and the other ladies undertaking the educational work. The children were happily free from any serious illness. The various classes for women were well attended, but at the end of the year the Greek priests threatened to excommunicate any who went to them. The ladies visited the homes of the people in the town, and also went to the surrounding villages. The receptions with which they met varied. Sometimes they were listened to with attention; at other times they experienced either direct opposition or else indifference. Girls' Boarding-school.

Miss F. Nuttall, who, with Miss K. M. J. Sandreczka, resided at RAMALLAH, has witnessed many changes during her sixteen years of residence in Palestine. The village is now regarded as an excellent sanatorium during the hot months, and visitors flock to it; a good road connects it with Jerusalem; and lately a Governor has been appointed, who puts down drunkenness with a strong hand, and compels the people to keep the streets clean. Spiritual progress has hardly been commensurate with the progress in material matters, but nevertheless the behaviour in church was better, and signs of a real change of heart were to be seen in some of the people. Several of the communicants, however, are said to "mind earthly things," and two of them left during the year to rejoin the Greek Church. At the monthly meetings of the Christian Endeavour Society there was more thoughtful study of the Bible, and the members displayed greater readiness to engage in prayer. About 1,500 patients received medical treatment. The arrival of Dr. Cropper, formerly a missionary of the Society, who has taken up independent work at Ramallah, relieved Miss Nuttall of the care of most of the patients, but she still devoted a portion of three days in each week to them. In visiting the women in their homes, Miss Sandreczka found among them a much greater sense of sin than she anticipated. Although very ignorant, many of them displayed the saving characteristic of being eager for instruction. The older women generally declare, "We cannot learn anything, for we are animals," but in course of time they succeed in grasping a little of the truth, much to their delight. Ramallah. "We cannot learn anything, for we are animals."

Regular visits were paid to Tayibeh by Miss Nuttall, who carried on a little medical work there. There are only two Protestant women in this village, one of whom is treated with great cruelty by her brother-in-law, but bears it all with patience.

Miss G. F. Tindall (until she was invalided to Egypt in March, 1905) and Miss F. Cooper, together with Miss Balfour, an independent worker, laboured among the women at BIR ZEIT, where the Rev. B. Musa is the Syrian pastor. They also carried Bir Zeit.

on a village dispensary and a boarding-school for "fellaheen" girls.

Jaffa.

The congregation at JAFFA was under the pastoral care of the Rev. A. Mansur. The two boys' schools were full to the limits of their accommodation, and that in spite of the fact that there are three large schools in the town besides those of the Society. This was partly due to the recognition of the superiority of the C.M.S. institutions, and partly to the increased interest taken in education. Even the Mohammedans are said to be bestirring themselves in this direction, but they put pressure on the members of their faith not to send their children to the Protestant schools. Mr. Wolters says:—

Christian girls' schools unmolested because Mohammedans despise women.

> We had here in Jaffa two boys of a neighbouring Moslem grocer. The elder of these got the prize for Scripture knowledge. They have now been withdrawn because some one has interfered. In the case of girls there is not the same pressure. The Moslem despises woman. She does not enter into his reckoning. But from our point of view, nothing can be more hopeful than the opportunity given of influencing in favour of Christ those who will later on become the mothers of families.

JAFFA.

A considerable portion of his Annual Letter is devoted by the Rev. T. F. Wolters (who has completed forty-four years of service as a missionary of the Society, twenty-nine of which, exclusive of furloughs, have been spent in Palestine) to the consideration of the question as to how far Mohammedans in that land are accessible to direct missionary work. He writes:—

> It is true that the medical missions are breaking down the fence of social separation between Mohammedans and Christians, and that medical men and nurses have precious opportunities of pressing the claims of Christ upon Moslems of all classes, and of establishing bonds of friendship, more or less sincere, with their patients. But all this is as yet strictly confined to "medical work." An ordained missionary, whether European or Native, soon finds that his efforts to reach the people are limited by barriers which have not been broken down. A catechist employed to follow up cases that have been in a hospital by visits to the villages from which these cases come has often told me how exceedingly limited even his work is. An occasional visit may be satisfactory, but as soon as it is repeated, say once a month, the people retire and will have nothing to say to their visitor. Whether the "day of visitation" for the Moslem has come or not, the hard fact, as far as my observation and experience lead me to judge, is that the Moslem is still very far from accessible to direct effort except when he is under medical care. It is undoubtedly the case that many individual Moslems have been influenced by our missionary agencies. Men come from time to time expressing their desire to become Christians, and some have been baptized. It is, however, a noteworthy fact, as far at least as my observation goes, that one fails in the most favourable cases to trace any indications of the "still small Voice" of the Holy Spirit. There may be a conviction that Christianity is better than Islam, that Islam has no foundation to stand on, but one misses any indication of the anxious question, "What must I do to be saved?" having laid hold of the individual. Religion is too much treated as a cloak of convenience.

Mohammedans "far from accessible to direct missionary effort."

Religion treated as a "cloak of convenience."

Miss M. B. McConaghy carried on the work among the women until the end of August, when she returned to England. Her place was temporarily taken by Miss E. A. Cooke two months later.

Miss E. M. Thorne and Miss I. J. Morphew resided at Ramleh, but in the autumn the former was attacked by purulent ophthalmia, probably the result of infection while attending to the sick, and she was obliged to go to Jerusalem for treatment, and at the beginning of 1905 to return to England on medical certificate. All the Mohammedan boys attending the school were withdrawn, as was the case also at Lydd.

GAZA.

Gaza Hospital.

The Hospital at GAZA, under the Rev. Dr. R. Sterling, was evidently appreciated by the people, for during the first three months of 1904 there were 305 in-patients, and 8,364 attendances of out-patients. So numerous were the applicants for relief that numbers of them had to be refused admittance. Writing in April, 1904, Dr. Sterling said:—

> Quite recently five women came a three days' journey on foot from the mountains, sleeping by the wayside, and bringing with them the remnants of bread they had provided for the way. The day preceding eight came from a village north of Askelon, five hours' distant. Nearly all of them were for eye operations. This is a constant occurrence. It is impossible to turn them away—they obtain what they come for and are thankful for the poor accommodation we can offer them—a mat on the floor; they leave us full of gratitude. To-night there are twenty-eight women beside children, with accommodation only for twelve. So, too, with regard to the men, mats are spread in the out-patient hall, and later on in the courtyard.

A sheikh prays to the Saviour.

In some cases there was evidence that the words spoken about salvation through Christ sank into the hearts of the hearers. One instance is given, that of a sheikh, a former patient in the hospital, who before his departure confessed his belief in Christ's death. After a considerable interval of time, he paid a visit to the doctor, and informed him that every night he and his little daughter prayed to the Saviour in the simple words which he had been taught. Miss M. Tiffin, a trained nurse, assisted in the wards, and Miss M. Hicks talked to the out-patients while they were waiting to see the doctor. Miss Hicks also conducted a meeting of women, which was well-attended by both Greeks and Mohammedans, and superintended the Girls' School. The average number of names on the rolls was 450. There was no difficulty in gaining admittance into the homes whence the pupils came; indeed Miss Hicks says that the difficulty was to get away when she visited them, for the people listened attentively to what she said, and always said, "Do come again; we like to be taught."

Girls' School.

"Come again; we like to be taught."

In the spring of 1904, Dr. Sterling itinerated among the Bedouin in the wilderness of Beersheba. He was treated with kindness by the sheikhs, and was able to afford relief to a number of sufferers. He writes:—

Mohammedan charms.

> The most profound ignorance prevails among all classes in respect to the nature of disease and its treatment. The popular remedies are firing and blood-letting. There is, too, a widespread belief in the efficacy of charms. Inflammation of the eye, for instance, is believed to be cured by the wearing of an old coin or bead. Passages from the Koran written down by sheikhs are extensively worn by the patients, and the livelihood of the former is thereby ensured. Moreover, as all things are ordained of God, be they good or evil, so the diseases which attack them are predetermined, and in consequence are borne with passive submission. It is not too much to say that our work is increased two-fold by the neglect and indifference which this fatalistic doctrine begets. Wounds and diseases which would readily yield to treatment are allowed to progress to such an extent that recovery is either prolonged or rendered impossible.

Dr. Sterling returned to Gaza with the conviction that the whole of the district he visited, together with the Plain of Philistia, is open to the Gospel.

NABLOUS (DENIS CROFTON MISSION).

Nablous.

The work at NABLOUS, which is known as the Denis Crofton Mission because it is supported by the income derived from a legacy of the late Denis Crofton, Esq., a friend of the Society in Ireland, was carried on by the following European missionaries, some of whom, however, were only at the station for a part of the year under review:—The Rev. F. Carpenter, Dr. and Mrs. G. R. M. Wright, Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Griffith, Misses A. A. M. Bedells, M. I. Kitchen and E. A. Lawford, trained nurses, and Misses E. E. Brodie, A. Cooper and M. Rosenhayn. The Rev. C. A. Manley, of Nazareth, was in general charge of the work in the district, and the Rev. H. Musa was the Syrian pastor. When

Medical Work.

the year opened the Medical Work was being superintended by Dr. Cropper, a former missionary of the Society; but in February Dr. Wright returned to his post, and Dr. Griffith also arrived. The hospital was very full throughout the year, and although the number of beds was increased to forty-eight, it was often necessary to choose between putting two patients in one bed and sending someone away before his cure was complete. The 495 in-patients included Government officials and prisoners, rich landowners and poor peasants, Christians and Mohammedans; and they came from all parts, one even hailing from Morocco, and one from Egypt. The majority stayed long enough to understand something of the way of salvation, and although some hardened themselves against the Gospel, yet none could fail to be impressed by what they saw and heard. The whole atmosphere was so different from what they were accustomed to in their homes, and the remark was often made, "It is like being in heaven to be here." Services were held daily both for the

in-patients and for the 18,000 out-patients whose visits were recorded, and the missionaries were cheered by one or two cases in which the truth was evidently accepted. Dr. Wright mentions one woman who came suffering from tuberculosis, which is sadly common among the people, and says that "she is rejoicing in the knowledge of sins forgiven, and the hope of everlasting life through Christ;" and he writes of another:—

Fatimah was a poor girl lying huddled up in a corner of a dark and dirty room. Her case was considered hopeless, and probably she would have died if one of our ladies had not found her and prevailed upon her people to bring her to the hospital to see if anything could be done for her. She could not walk, for her knees were bent up to her chest—she was a mere skeleton and dreadful to behold. Some dead bone in her hip was removed, and gradually her legs were straightened out. To-day she is fat and strong, and walking about with cruches, which we hope she will be able to discard in a few months. You would not recognize her as the same girl, for instead of pain and misery she has joy written on her face, and not only the joy of health, but the joy of the knowledge of the love of God. "Joy written on her face."

More than 800 visits were paid to patients in their own homes. The number of children in the schools for boys and girls, which were under the care of Mr. Carpenter and Miss Cooper respectively, fluctuated. Two of the village schools were closed.

NAZARETH DISTRICT.

The Rev. C. A. Manley was in general charge of the work in the NAZARETH district, and the Rev. C. Jamal, who has since been transferred to Ramallah, ministered to the congregation. Nazareth.

The Orphanage, which contains seventy children (not twenty-seven as erroneously stated in last year's Report), was managed by Miss F. L. A. Roberts until June, 1904, when she was invalided home, and then by Miss M. A. E. Newey, Miss H. M. E. Scott rendering these ladies much assistance. Several of the elder girls left during the summer holidays, two of them to be married, two others to help in the hospital at Tiberias, and one to take up work as a teacher at Haifa. All the vacancies were filled in October. A gathering of "old girls" was held in November, and was attended by a fair number. The Orphanage was visited by more than 700 persons during the year, many of them having come to Palestine to attend the Sunday School Convention which took place at Jerusalem. Miss K. Patten superintended the day-schools after her return from Haifa in February, 1904, and Miss F. Brownlow had charge of the meetings for women and girls, and supervised the work of the Bible-woman. The latter says that in the homes of the people the name of Miss Lee, who formerly was responsible for the schools, is a household word, and that constant inquiries after her are made. Miss Brownlow was joined by Miss F. E. Newton in February, 1905. Orphanage.

The Rev. S. Saba was the Syrian pastor at Shefamer, where work among the women was carried on by Miss L. M. Townsend and Miss K. E. Erwood, of the Victoria Association, until the summer, when the last-named went to Australia on furlough.

Acca Hospital.

The Hospital at Acca was well filled during the first half of 1904, the patients including Mohammedans, Druzes, Persians of the Babi sect, Protestant and Greek Christians, and one Jew. The reputation of the Rev. Dr. S. Gould, of the Canadian C.M.S., as a surgeon was firmly established, and several of the Mohammedan officials of the town came to him for treatment. Miss N. K. Fisher laboured among the patients, but a serious illness in the summer obliged her to go to Jerusalem for a time, and the work also suffered in consequence of the claims of language study upon the doctor. The Misses M. A. and E. C. Wardlaw-Ramsay laboured among the women and the girls in the school. Miss E. E. Watney, Miss F. M. Biddington, and Miss Thompson, an independent worker, resided for part of the year at Kefr Yasif.

Haifa.

The Rev. S. Gomri, the Syrian pastor at Haifa, says that the little church was generally well filled in 1904, and mentions with thankfulness the increasing accessibility of the Maronites, the people at whose hands the first Protestant Syrian met his death on Mount Lebanon. The Boys' School prospered under the care of two native teachers. The ladies at the station, Miss E. G. Reeve and Miss J. Wenham, the latter of whom was transferred thither from Bethlehem in February, 1904, visited the school weekly to give instruction in the Bible, English, and singing. The average attendance at the Girls' School was about ninety, but the rivalry of the fifteen other schools in Haifa made it difficult to keep up the numbers. A sewing-class for Mohammedan girls who have left school was set on foot and attracted a fair number. Miss Reeve conducted two weekly meetings for women which were attended by both Christians and Moslems. She hoped at one time that she would be able to commence a third meeting in the house of a woman who showed great friendliness. Her husband gave his permission, and one meeting was held, but then apparently the sheikh intervened, for when Miss Reeve went the following week she was told that she could not have the room. When the ladies visited the homes of the people they were usually listened to with politeness, but there seemed to be little real interest or conviction of sin among either Christians or Mohammedans.

SALT AND KERAK.

Salt.

Salt, which contains a population of about 15,000, two-thirds of whom are Mohammedans, is supposed to occupy the site of the ancient Ramoth Gilead. The work there was carried on in 1904 by the Rev. N. abu Hattum.

The only European missionary at KERAK was Dr. F. Johnson. His medical work was the means of bringing a number of people within the sound of the Gospel, but he felt the need of women missionaries to follow up the preaching. This need has happily in some measure been supplied by the doctor's marriage to Miss Neale which has already been recorded. The Syrian pastor, the Rev. H. Dimishky, conducted a daily Bible-class; while Dr. Johnson made special efforts to influence the young men with whom he came in contact, and itinerated from time to time in the surrounding country. Concerning the prospects of the work he writes :— Kerak.

The most I can report as I look back over the past year is that the slow and gradual processes of enlightenment and of dissipating prejudice are maintained and are taking effect. Some few at least of the more intelligent of the people know and confess that the presence of the Mission stands for Mercy, Light, and Truth in the midst of surrounding darkness and gross superstition with their attendant evils. This acknowledgment, more often tacit than expressed, is encouraging as far as it goes; but we look and pray for yet further fruits of our labour—fruits which we believe will surely appear in due time. The progress of the Kingdom may be apparently slow, but no hostile powers of evil can destroy its hope. Up till now the people of these parts have been sadly behind in the march of civilization and its benefits. One would fain believe, however, that a better era is about to dawn. The railway is now a fait accompli as far as Maan, a town on the Hajj Road, one quarter of the distance between Damascus and Mecca. Already the presence of the railway is making itself felt, and has given an impetus to trade. It is evident that this East Jordan district will grow in importance with the advance of time. No other missionary society is operating in this sphere. Surely the time has come for developing the work of the district and rendering it more adequate to the increased opportunities. Prejudice being slowly dissipated.

TURKISH ARABIA MISSION.

Baghdad, which is in the Turkish Empire, is in the immediate neighbourhood of the sacred places of the Shiah Mohammedans. Thousands of pilgrims flock to it from all parts of Persia, and in order to reach them the city was first occupied by C.M.S. missionaries in 1882. Medical mission work was commenced in 1887. In 1898 the work, previously carried on in connexion with that in Persia, was constituted an independent Mission. In 1900, Mosul, near the site of ancient Nineveh, was occupied.

Death of Miss H. Kelsey.

THE Mission experienced a heavy loss by the death at Baghdad from cholera on July 31st, 1904, of Miss H. Kelsey. A member of the congregation of St. James's, Holloway, Miss Kelsey was engaged in teaching when accepted for training in 1898. After eighteen months at The Willows and the Mildmay Cottage Hospital, she was accepted as a missionary of the Society in April, 1900, and left home in the following December for Baghdad. She had charge of the Armenian Girls' School and also assisted in the medical mission work, visiting patients in their homes; further, by reason of her knowledge of French and Arabic, she obtained access to some high-class Mohammedan families. She was a most diligent worker, and Dr. P. W. Brigstocke says that her daily time-table was full from 4.15 a.m. until 9 p.m., saving for a short time in the middle of the day which was reserved for rest.

Reinforcements.

The staff of the Mission has been reinforced by Miss Eva Ann Ryan, of Southsea, trained at The Willows, and by Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Griffith, transferred from the Palestine Mission. The above sailed for Turkish Arabia, viâ Bombay, in February, 1905. On the other hand, the Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Parfit have been transferred to the Palestine Mission. Miss E. E. Martin came home in October, 1904.

BAGHDAD.

Baghdad.

During the first half of 1904, the European missionaries at BAGHDAD were Dr. P. W. Brigstocke, Miss H. Kelsey, and the Rev. E. E. Lavy, but at the end of July, as already stated, Miss Kelsey was called to her rest, and the station was left without any woman missionary.

Medical Work.

The Medical Work was carried on by Dr. Brigstocke in a native house, part of which was used for in-patients, and part as a dispensary. For want of a larger and more convenient building numbers of patients had to be turned away, for it was out of the question to receive any who were likely to require long treatment.

A mullah reads the New Testament to his household.

Many of the in-patients evidently took a real interest in the Gospel. One old man bought a large Bible before he left, and a mullah, one of whose family had been at the hospital, commenced to read the New Testament to his household every evening. An epidemic of cholera which prevailed from July to September, made it necessary to abandon the out-patient work in order to visit the sufferers in their homes.

The number of pupils in the Boys' School, under Mr. Lavy, increased, and at one time reached eighty-three. In the autumn, however, the attendance was adversely affected by the action of the Board of Education, who endeavoured to close the school. It was deemed advisable under the circumstances to send away all Mohammedan boys who were Turkish subjects, retaining only those of other nationalities. The Girls' School prospered while Miss Kelsey was in charge, but after her death it was perforce neglected, and the number of pupils dwindled. The native worker at the Book-shop was an earnest man, and by means of the conversations which he had with visitors was able to exercise a real though quiet influence in behalf of the truth. Several men came to the mission-house to read the Bible and discuss their difficulties, among them a man who had been strongly influenced in favour of Christianity some years previously when an in-patient under Dr. Sutton. He desired to become a Christian, but was unwilling to pay the cost. Mr. Lavy mentions two other inquirers who had read with the Rev. J. T. Parfit and appeared to be in earnest. They were endeavouring to make their way out of the country to some freer land when they were seized and ordered to be taken to Baghdad, but all efforts to gain tidings of them there were in vain. Schools. Arrest of inquirers.

With so small a staff in Baghdad, itinerating on any considerable scale was impossible, but Dr. Brigstocke made one trip in the spring of 1904, to the excavations at Babylon and elsewhere. While on board the steamer he had many opportunities of speaking about Christianity, and the number of people who flocked to him at the places at which he stopped, in the hope of getting some treatment for their ailments, was sufficient to show the possibilities of itinerating work.

MOSUL.

Miss E. E. Martin, of the Victoria Association, was at Mosul until August, 1904, when she started for England, and the station was left without a foreign missionary. Dr. P. W. Brigstocke and the Rev. E. E. Lavy visited the town in September, and found about thirty pupils in the boys' school, and rather more in that for girls. Apparently the opposition to the attendance of Mohammedan children was less than in Baghdad. Mosul.

PERSIA MISSION.

Persia, though one of the youngest of the Society's Missions, was among the first countries thought of by the Committee, and was mentioned in each of the first two Annual Reports. Henry Martyn stayed ten months in the country in 1811. Since 1834 an American Mission has laboured with much blessing among the Nestorian Christians. The Archbishop of Canterbury's Assyrian Mission is also partly within the Persian Kingdom. In 1869 the Rev. R. Bruce, of the C.M.S., visited Persia on his way back to India, and, finding the Mohammedans of Ispahan and its neighbourhood not unwilling to discuss religious subjects, he took up his abode at Julfa, and gathered round him some few of these, and a considerable number of Armenian Christians who were dissatisfied with their corrupt form of worship. He also opened schools, &c. In 1875 the Society adopted his work as one of its Missions. A medical missionary was sent out in 1879; and ladies were added to the staff in 1891. Kerman was occupied in 1897; Yezd in 1898; and Shiraz in 1900.

Outbreak of cholera.

THE land of Persia suffered in 1904 from a dire visitation of cholera. The disease first appeared at Hamadan, on the western side of Persia, then it travelled by the pilgrim route to Teheran and down the road towards Ispahan. On the south it travelled up from Bushire to Shiraz. Both in Teheran and Shiraz at one time as many as 1,000 deaths occurred in one day, and the panic-stricken survivors in their flight carried the epidemic to the surrounding villages and districts. People were left to die by the side of the roads, and as a rule the sick had none to help them. In consequence of the outbreak the women missionaries assigned to the Mission postponed their departure from England for some months.

Reinforcements.

The Mission received the following recruits during the year:—Mr. Stuart Holman Biddlecombe, of Islington College; Miss Catherine Mary Ironside, M.B., London; and Miss Edith Agnes Thomas, of Gravesend, trained at The Willows and Bethnal Green. Mr. Biddlecombe sailed for Persia in November, 1904, and the ladies in March, 1905. The Committee have accepted the resignation of Miss M. R. S. Bird on family grounds, and of Dr. Elsie R. C. Taylor on her marriage.

Dr. Elsie Taylor and Miss E. J. Buncher sailed for the Mission in November, 1904; and the Rev. and Mrs. N. Malcolm and the Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Walker in March, 1905. The Rev. W. A. Rice came home in December, 1904; and Miss M. E. Brighty, Miss K. E. Mothersole (on medical certificate), and Miss A. Stirling, in May, 1905.

Ordination.

On Advent Sunday, November 27th, 1904, the Rev. H. B. Liddell was admitted to Priests' Orders by Bishop Stuart, acting under a commission from the Archbishop of Canterbury.

The Rev. C. H. Stileman is the Secretary of the Mission.

JULFA AND ISPAHAN.

Julfa.

The staff of the Society at JULFA in 1904 consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Stileman (until March, when they went to Kerman), the Rev. M. George, an Armenian clergyman, Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Carr (until October, when they removed to Ispahan), Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Allinson, Mr. S. H. Biddlecombe (from December), Miss A. P. S. Braine-Hartnell, Drs. Emmeline M. Stuart and Lucy S. Molony (the latter until October, when she was transferred to Yezd), Misses H. McKim, of the Canadian C.M.S., and E. Procter, both trained nurses, and Miss M. Ward. Miss E. G. Butlin, of the Turkish-Arabia Mission, also stayed at Julfa for six months en route to Baghdad. The work at the station proceeded during the year without much interruption, though some murmurs of opposition were heard at the approach of the cholera, and an influential mullah spoke against the educational and medical work at a mass meeting assembled to pray that the impending visitation might be averted. The Persian and English Services were conducted by Bishop Stuart, with the assistance of the Rev. H. B. Liddell, both of whom resided in Ispahan, while Mr. George was responsible for the Armenian Services. The Centenary of the British and Foreign Bible Society was duly observed on March 6th, 1904, by the Christian community, but there was an element of sadness in the celebration because of the continued refusal of the authorities to allow the importation of the Scriptures in Persian. Bishop Stuart, through the kind offices of the British Legation, obtained two cases of Bibles which had remained for eighteen months at the Bushire Custom-house, but only on condition that the remaining three should be sent out of the country. Mr. Allinson superintended the Persian Boys' School, of which Mr. Z. Aratoon is the head-master. Until February, 1904, it was held in Julfa with an average attendance of eight, but in that month the out-patients' wing of the new hospital in Ispahan became available for use, and the school proceeded to occupy that portion of Bishop Stuart's house which had previously been devoted to the dispensary. The number of pupils increased after the move to twenty-four, and though the school suffered a little from the opposition already referred to, the depression was but temporary, and by the beginning of December there were over thirty names on the rolls. Bible-teaching is regularly given, and the English books used throughout the school are those published by the Christian Literature Society for India, which contain graded Scripture lessons, specially composed for non-Christians, together with stories and generally instructive reading. Mr. Allinson mentions as a fact worth noting that these books are freely used for teaching English even in the Mohammedan schools opened of late years. Visits were paid to the homes of the scholars as often as possible, and afforded opportunities for the quiet discussion of religious topics. Mr. Allinson took up his residence in Ispahan early in 1905. Mr. C. M. Johannes, the veteran head-master, continued his work at the Armenian Boys' School, which had 140 names on its rolls. Many of the boys obtain situations in the Telegraph Department and other business offices in all parts of the land, and often are the only Christians in the midst of a Mohammedan population. The Armenian Girls' School had nearly 300 pupils, and was under the management of Miss Ward, to whom first Mrs. Stileman and then Dr. Emmeline Stuart rendered assistance in the English and Persian teaching. The opening of a rival school by some nuns from Paris, who took in boarders without charge, drew away some of the teachers and children, and at the end of the year a Russian lady was building a large Gregorian school which is likely to prove a formidable competitor. Some of the girls seemed to be trying to live as Christ's servants, for one day when they had been rather unruly, one of them remarked to Miss Ward, "Khanum, Satan is very bad, and it is hard when he makes you say things quick!" For some months Dr. Lucy Molony conducted the class for Armenian girls, most of them hospital assistants or school teachers, which had previously been carried on by Mrs. Stileman.

Armenian Girls' School.

The Medical Work, superintended by Dr. Carr, had its home in Julfa until the middle of October, when the new premises in Ispahan were taken possession of. While at its old quarters the men's hospital was overcrowded. Mr. Allinson (until February, 1904) and Miss McKim worked among the patients, and were cheered by the baptism in May of Khusro, the boy mentioned in last year's Report (page 160), and his mother. The youth died a few months after his baptism. Dr. Carr writes:—

Medical Work.

Baptism of a boy and his mother.

> He had tubercular disease of the bones of the neck, and gradually became completely paralyzed, being unable to move hand or foot. He was a whining, grumbling boy when he came to us, but as he grew worse and became more and more paralyzed and helpless the Light of God shone into his heart, and he became happier and happier. His continual bright joy in the midst of all his suffering has been a lesson and help to us all. He was till his death such a keen missionary, always trying to teach others who came near him. His uncle, who came to see him and knew that he had become a Christian, was much struck with all his joy and happiness, and said that at any rate there was nothing in his former religion which could have given him so much joy in suffering. He passed away peacefully on Sunday morning, October 2nd.

The number of patients in the women's hospital was affected in the summer by the outbreak of cholera, which carried off one of the inmates, a cripple, apparently the girl whose baptism was recorded in last year's Report (page 160). Dr. Emmeline Stuart writes:—

A keen little Christian.

> She was a keen little Christian, and, though almost always in pain, was ever trying to shine for Jesus in her small corner of the hospital ward. As we thought she needed a change of air this summer we let her go to her native village, with one of the hospital women servants, for a few weeks. While she was there cholera broke out in the village, and we sent to bring her back, but she had already taken the infection, and only arrived here to die. As I feared the infection spreading in the hospital I let no one go near her but Dr. Molony and myself. We nursed her till she passed away, about twenty-four hours after her return to us. We performed all the last rites ourselves, even to laying her in her coffin; and, as she had no relatives or friends to interfere, we gave her, as far as possible, a Christian burial—the first of our converts to receive that. It was late in the evening when she died, and Dr. Carr kindly brought four of his hospital assistants with the ambulance, on which they placed the coffin and took it to the Christian burial-ground, and there, by the light "of a lantern dimly burning," they laid her to rest, Dr. Carr reading some of the beautiful prayers from the Burial Service over her grave.

The first convert to receive Christian burial.

Two of the patients, among whom Miss Braine-Hartnell worked as well as Drs. Emmeline Stuart and Lucy Molony and Miss Procter, were baptized. One of them, a Sayyid, after two months in the hospital went out expressing her faith in Christ, and did not hide her convictions from her bigoted brother, with whom she lived. Miss Braine-Hartnell tells her story as follows:—

God sent her back to us after a while, and her faith in Christ and knowledge of His Word increased, and she begged to be baptized, saying she knew she would never be allowed to come back to us. However, she did come, and this time she had her wish, and confessed Christ in baptism, and straightway told her friend who was staying with her in the hospital that she had been baptized. Since then she has steadfastly witnessed in her home and suffered the loss of all her worldly possessions, so that she has become dependent on her brother (she is a widow). Recently she has been beset with a new trial which was nearly a cause of stumbling to her. Her brother arranged a marriage for her with a well-to-do Mohammedan, and said that she could have no other means of livelihood; if she did not marry she would not be allowed work, and he would not support her any longer. She came to us for advice, and left in a severe struggle of mind on the subject, but in a few days she returned, looking very happy. She said, "It is all over; I felt on the way back that it was a temptation to me to choose the world before Christ, and I just told my brother I was not going to marry."

"A temptation to choose the world.'

Several of the converts, it is said, were tempted in the same way as this woman by the offer of comfortable positions in Mohammedan homes, with the design of drawing them back from their faith and keeping them from contact with the missionaries and from attending the services and meetings, but most of them detected the snare, and only one yielded.

The missionaries residing at ISPAHAN were Bishop Stuart and his daughter, Miss A. I. Stuart, the Rev. H. B. Liddell, and, from October, Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Carr. The removal of the men's hospital and dispensary to the new buildings, which has been recorded above, was followed in the autumn by that of the women's dispensary. The last-named was well attended, and Miss Stuart, who read and talked to the people in the waiting-room, says that although some of them showed unmistakable signs of bigotry, others listened to the addresses with evident appreciation. Miss Stuart was responsible for a weekly Bible-reading and prayer-meeting for the Christians and an evangelistic meeting for women, and also visited the homes of the women, both rich and poor. One of those whom she taught was a princess who asked to receive instruction in English two or three times a week. The girls' school in the Jews' quarter had fifty-five scholars, one of whom received baptism.

Baptisms in Ispahan.

Five women were baptized in Ispahan itself, besides several who were admitted into the visible Church in Julfa, among them being the mother of Sakineh (see Annual Report for 1895–6, pages 154–6), who for long violently opposed her daughter, but was at length won over by her consistent life and filial behaviour. Bishop Stuart received visits from several men who were inquiring after the truth, and who in some cases had been impressed by reading the Scriptures. One was an elderly man from a village, who had received a copy of the Bible from Dr. Hoernle, a missionary in Persia from 1879–88. Of another the Bishop writes :—

> One day when I was preaching in the Julfa mission-church, I noticed a young man listening apparently with great attention. After the service he followed me to the vestry, and desired to ask some questions, especially on the subject of our Lord's Death, Resurrection, and Ascension, which had been my subject on that Sunday—the first after the Ascension. I invited him to my house in town for further conversation. He came morning and evening the following day, and on leaving for his home, some thirty miles from Ispahan, took with him a Testament, saying he would read it with prayer, and would come again after twenty days. He kept his promise, and again we had a long and interesting discussion. We were then on the eve of leaving for Asfarjan, and the young Sayyid, on parting, said that, God willing, on our return he would come again, as a candidate for baptism, as he was now convinced that the Lord Jesus was the only Saviour. Alas! it was not so to be. Weeks passed after our return to Ispahan, and he neither came nor wrote. Then we heard a rumour that he had died of cholera, which had carried off many in his village. We made an expedition there to ascertain the truth of the report, and found it was the case. He had been the first victim claimed by the fell pestilence. I could not but cherish the hope that he had died in the Faith.

Death of a promising candidate for baptism.

The Bishop and his daughter paid two visits to Najifabad, one woman from which place was baptized in December, 1904; and one to Teroon, a village sixteen miles farther up country, where they were kindly received by a wealthy Persian gentleman, a former patient in the Julfa hospital. In August they went to Asfarjan, a large village on the road to Shiraz. On their way back to Ispahan their host in a village where they halted for a night produced letters which he had received at different times from Dr. R. Bruce, and pointed out the garden where the latter used to read and expound the Scriptures. Dr. Emmeline Stuart and Miss Procter stayed for a fortnight at Natanz, a town one hundred miles from Julfa, holding a dispensary with a daily attendance of fifty or sixty women. At first the Gospel addresses which were given aroused argument and some antagonism, but towards the end of the time a few of the women appeared to be really interested, and some bought Gospel portions. The presence in Tarkh, a day's journey nearer to Julfa, of the parents of a baby boy on whom the doctor had successfully operated some months before, procured a favourable reception there for the missionaries. In the spring of 1904 Dr. Lucy Molony went by invitation to see the wife of one of the chiefs in the Bakhtiari country. She writes :—

Visiting the Bakhtiari country.

> I must say I felt very like a prisoner shut up in a robbers' castle, at the mercy of my captors, for we had no means of returning, until the chief chose to send us, and whenever I suggested that the lady was better, and we must go back to our work, he said that he thought her still very ill. However, in a little more than a week we did get away, leaving the patient quite convalescent. These ladies are in many ways very attractive, but one feels what a small world they live in, and longs that they should have more opportunities of hearing the good news, which alone can bring true joy into their lives.

YEZD.

Yezd.

The missionaries of the Society resident at Yezd throughout 1904 were Dr. and Mrs. H. White, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Clifton, and Misses A. Stirling, M. E. Brighty, J. Biggs, and A. M. Macklin. The Rev. and Mrs. N. Malcolm and Dr. Elsie R. C. Taylor were at the station until February, when they left for England, the places of the two first named then being taken by the Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Boyland. Miss K. E. Mothersole arrived in May, 1904, and Dr. Lucy S. Molony in October. The work, however, was not on quite so large a scale as the number of missionaries would appear to indicate, for Dr. White was laid aside by illness in May, and Miss Biggs contracted typhoid fever, which not only kept her away from her post for some months, but also made great demands upon the time of her colleagues who nursed her.

After Mr. Malcolm's departure Mr. Boyland was in charge of the Services and the Boys' School, the latter of which proved of great value. More than 100 persons, most of them male relatives of the boys, were present at the prize distribution in January, 1905. The Parsi Girls' School, under Miss Brighty and Miss Mothersole, contained thirty pupils. The mothers and some other relatives of the children, to the number of one hundred, were present at the annual treat held at the Persian New Year, and were delighted at the gifts which the girls received. The parents were visited in their homes, but although pleased enough to see the missionaries, they manifested but little interest in their message. Towards the end of the year the Bombay Parsi mentioned in last year's Report (page 164) as endeavouring to draw the children away from the school, reappeared in Yezd and renewed his opposition. The Medical Work was superintended by Dr. White. The men's hospital, which contains twenty-eight beds, was often more than full, as many as forty-five patients being accommodated on one occasion, and during the year almost twice as many in-patients were received as in 1903. The spiritual work among the inmates was carried on by the doctor, and by Mr. Clifton and Miss Macklin, the latter a trained nurse. Every Sunday afternoon a well-attended evangelistic service for the patients and their friends was conducted in the large ward, and the daily prayers were evidently appreciated. One man was baptized—a dervish, who was suffering from acute bronchitis when admitted—and many of the people evinced much gratitude for the kindness shown to them. One patient, who on first entering the hospital was afraid to touch anything lest he should be defiled, quite changed his demeanour, and at length even took off his large black turban during prayers. The women's hospital, with its accommodation for twelve patients, suffered from the absence of a woman doctor, though Dr. White managed with the help of Miss Biggs to keep the work going until June, when the hospital had to be closed until the arrival of Dr. Lucy Molony. Notwithstanding this interruption the number of in-patients was in excess of that of the previous year. The hospital servant, a Christian, was helpful in teaching the new-comers, but another of the converts who was employed in connexion with the medical work had to be dismissed. Several of the patients seemed interested in the teaching they received. The attendance of out-patients, both men and women, was adversely affected by the cholera outbreak, which led to a panic, although it did not cause a very large number of deaths. Dr. White says :—

A dervish baptized.

> We dispensed a great quantity of medicine and saw a good many cases in their own homes. The Persians, however, are rather shy of taking our medicine for cholera, thinking it too hot for such a hot disease. It was most pathetic night by night to hear their dismal chanting of their "Passion Play," and then their frantic calling upon God and the Prophet. Charms had a ready sale, and a prayer was printed by the mullahs and sold at a cheap rate. This prayer, of which I obtained a copy, consisted principally of the different names of God in Arabic, and was used, I think, as a kind of charm.

Charms against cholera.

Many of the people who came for treatment did not belong to Yezd itself but to the villages of the district, which covers an area of 120 square miles and contains a large population. Miss Stirling, who spent two months at Dehbela in the summer, was prevented by the illness of Miss Biggs from doing much work there, but earlier in the year the latter and Miss Brighty visited a few of the villages. They obtained a ready hearing for their message, and were able to afford relief to some sufferers. One woman, who had been taught by Miss Stirling, was baptized at Shiraz in February, 1904.

KERMAN.

Kerman.

KERMAN, a city 200 miles from the Persian Gulf, containing a population of about 60,000, and said to be the "most wicked city in Persia," was visited by two epidemics in 1904, the one of small-pox and the other of cholera. During the prevalence of the former between twenty and thirty deaths, mostly of children, occurred daily, and it was estimated that in the month of October 3,000 persons were carried off by it. The cholera first broke out towards the end of that month among those present at a wedding feast of some Parsis. The guests were about 200 in number, and some of the water used at the feast was taken from a running stream in which, doubtless, was the infection, brought by pilgrims from Meshed, who had just at that time arrived in the town. These troubles led many to endeavour to drown their cares by smoking opium, a habit which, with opium-eating, is said to be sadly prevalent in Kerman and the surrounding villages.

Cholera epidemic leads to increased opium-smoking

When the year under review opened the missionaries at Kerman were the Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Walker, Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Dodson, Miss M. McClure, Miss E. Skirrow, and Dr. Winifred Westlake; Dr. J. O. Summerhayes of Quetta was also temporarily at the station. The last named returned to India in March, and in that same month Mr. and Mrs. Walker proceeded to England. The lack of a European clergyman was supplied in the emergency by the Rev. C. H. Stileman, who although he had only shortly before returned to Julfa accompanied by his wife, after a bicycle tour of 860 miles from Julfa to Kerman and Yezd and back, rode the 425 miles to Kerman. This important reinforcement of the staff, however, was but temporary, for in October the greater needs of Shiraz summoned Mr. and Mrs. Stileman to that station.

The Persian Services held in the hospital on Sunday mornings had an attendance ranging from seventy to one hundred, and included people of all ranks of society, from (literally) prince to peasant. The khans and upper class Persians were reached through the Boys' School, which Mr. Stileman reopened, shortly after his arrival, with four pupils. There were soon thirty names on the books, and Mr. Stileman found that homes were thrown open to him all over the city, and that a good deal of time had to be spent in visiting the parents and friends of the scholars. It was by no means uncommon for him to be questioned concerning Christianity in the course of these visits, and he frequently had an opportunity of proclaiming Christ for more than an hour at a time to those assembled. One day in September Mr. Stileman received an interesting visit from a Persian gentleman. He writes :—

Boys' School.

> He asked me if I remembered spending a few days in a place about 480 miles away from our Persian home some six years ago. I remembered my visit perfectly, and that my friend was at that time the Governor of the place, upon whom I had called. He admitted that this was so, and reminded me that on that occasion we had had a long conversation, in which I had dwelt upon the power of Christ to save men from sin, including the terrible power of the opium habit, to which he was then addicted. He went on to say that he had claimed that power and had obtained almost complete victory over this besetting sin. He also reminded me that I had give him a Persian New Testament, and said that through the study of it he had gradually come to full light in the Lord Jesus Christ. Now he wanted to know how he was to follow Him, and whether it was possible for him to be baptized secretly. I pointed out to him the necessity of confessing Christ openly, and trusting Him for grace to help in every time of need. He dwelt upon the exceedingly difficult position in which he would find himself in this Mohammedan country, and said that as far as possible he had confessed his faith in Christ and witnessed for Him among his own friends. He also told me with evident joy that his daughter had become a Christian through the reading of the same New Testament, and that a cousin of his, whom he had brought with him to see me, was an earnest inquirer, though not yet a convinced believer. The young man corroborated this statement, and said he hoped that his faith would before long be as deeply rooted as that of his relative. I had a very interesting time with them both, and was greatly encouraged at having such conclusive testimony to the fact that the seed sown several years before had during that time been watered by the dew of God's blessing. In October my wife and I had the opportunity of paying this man and his family a visit at their residence, some fifty miles from Kerman, and we were rejoiced to find the whole family—father, mother, sons, and daughters—reading the Word of God and other Christian literature. Let me ask earnest prayer for this family, that He Who hath begun (and carried on) a good work in their hearts will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ.

Hospital.

The little Hospital occupies a position of special importance, seeing that there is no other in the country to the north, south, or east of it, the nearest being the C.M.S. hospital at Yezd, distant twelve days' caravan journey to the west. The people are beginning to realize the superiority of western science over the ignorance of their own local hakims, especially in surgical cases; and the cholera epidemic, before which most of the hakims fled, rendered the Persians, and even in greater measure the Parsis, who were the chief sufferers from that malady, additionally anxious for the ministrations of the European doctors. In November, a letter was received, signed by seven leading Parsis, enclosing a gift of about £10 to the medical work, and certain small sums of money were promised by the governing body of that people to provide Parsi wards in the hospital. The number of assistants was doubled, two Persians and a Parsi joining the three Christians, one an Armenian and the others Persians who had been baptized in December, 1903, already on the staff. At the beginning of September the little house formerly used by the Armenian assistants was opened as a Women's Hospital with twelve beds. Dr. Winifred Westlake carried on a weekly dispensary for women and children for some months in a house in a very poor quarter of the city which previously had been used for medical work among men only. There were usually over one hundred patients, and many were thus reached by the Gospel message, but in the summer the negotiations for continuing to rent the premises failed, and the work had to be abandoned.

Miss McClure ministered to the hospital patients, and also carried on the Work among Women with the assistance of Miss Skirrow. A new venture was a weekly "At Home" for people of the working class. It began in the autumn of 1903 by an invitation being given to eleven women to meet Miss Skirrow. After conversation for an hour or so, followed by tea, a hymn was sung and the Bible read, and the little gathering closed with prayer, Miss McClure remarking that she would be "at home" again the following week. On the next occasion twenty-five came, and as time went on the numbers increased until one day as many as seventy-two women were present. A similar effort on rather different lines was made for the benefit of the upper classes, twelve or fourteen ladies being invited to spend the afternoon with the missionaries. Four adults were baptized at Kerman, one of them being the first woman convert in the district. Miss McClure tells her story as follows:—

Women's work.

"At Homes."

Baptism of four adults.

Won through reading a tract.

In a little village far away from the city she had been led through the reading of a little tract six years ago to seek for a Gospel to study, which she diligently did for four years. Our faithful God answered that "seeking soul," though prayer was unknown to her, and sent her not only a Gospel to read but through the reading of it the Light of the glorious Gospel of peace into her own heart. She has suffered much from most bigoted relatives for Christ's sake, her own mother being worse than anyone else. This woman abused and beat her daughter when she heard her for the first time declare that she believed Jesus Christ to be the Son of God and Saviour of the world. A few days after, when her daughter was lying at the point of death, as all her friends believed, she said "she hoped she would indeed die, as it would be a pity if such a blasphemer should live," and she would not go into her room to see her, nor allow her to have food out of any vessel from her house, as "she would cause them to be unclean." But, praise God, that terribly bigoted mother is to-day quite softened, and will sometimes, when she is feeling tired and sad, ask that same daughter to "Come and read me a bit from that Book," meaning the Bible. And although she herself would not come to the service, she knew all about it, and gave her consent to her daughter's baptism. A little time ago this mother's youngest and much-loved son was operated upon by our doctor, in our hospital. During the afternoon of that day, when she was in great terror that her son would die, many of her neighbours were gathered round her, all crying and calling upon their prophets, but she called openly upon Jesus Christ to save him, and said, "Why call upon dead prophets? Jesus Christ, the living Prophet, is the only One Who can help." Her neighbours pitied her, saying, "Poor thing, she has become mad."

"Why call upon dead prophets?"

There was reason to think that there were many secret believers who were prevented by the fear of man from openly confessing their faith in Christ.

SHIRAZ.

Shiraz.

The Rev. W. A. Rice continued at Shiraz until November, 1904. The city was visited in July by cholera, which was very severe for six days, and carried off 4,000 people, including two Europeans. The school contained about thirty young men and boys, nearly all of whom received a Bible-lesson two or three times a week. Since the station was opened in 1900, more than one hundred pupils have thus obtained some knowledge of the Scriptures. At the end of the year the teacher, a convert who had been baptized at Yezd, was beaten and imprisoned for several weeks, only regaining his freedom by promising not to return to the school. This action on the part of the authorities caused all but six of the boys to leave the school. Gradually some of the others returned, only, however, to be again intimidated and driven away. There were four regular inquirers, and Mr. Rice says that the Persians are growing more open-minded, and that many who cannot be regarded as actually inquirers are nevertheless interested in Christianity. The Rev. C. H. Stileman, who arrived at Shiraz on November 1st, to take the place of Mr. Rice when he left on furlough, pleads earnestly for the establishment of a medical mission at the station. He writes:—

A Christian teacher beaten and imprisoned.

Need of a medical mission.

> Without it I am convinced that we shall never reach with the Gospel message thousands upon thousands of the people of this district who would undoubtedly hear the good tidings of great joy if only we had a doctor here. The Persians in Shiraz dare not come freely to a clergyman's house on Sundays, and only one or two have the courage to come to our services, whereas the experience of other stations shows that if it were a doctor's house or dispensary we should have on an average not less than from seventy to 100 present. This is one of the indirect blessings of a medical mission which is not always remembered. The women, too, often say to my wife, "If there were a doctor we could come freely for teaching, but without that excuse we dare not come."

This appeal is emphasized by the fact that a leading Persian in the city proposes to erect a hospital in memory of his mother, and to place it when completed under the charge of the doctor attached to the Indo-European Telegraph Department.

BENGAL MISSION.

Lutheran missionaries under the S.P.C.K. laboured in South India in the eighteenth century, and many thousands of converts were baptized; but the Missions, after the death of Schwartz and other leaders, languished, and at length only a few Christians remained. For some years prior to the renewal of the East India Company's charter in 1813 no missionaries were allowed to reside within the British Dominions, and Carey, the famous Baptist missionary, and his companions had to take refuge in the Danish settlements. Among the Government chaplains, however, there were men like Brown, Buchanan, Henry Martyn, Corrie, and Thomason, who did what they could to prepare the way for future workers. The C.M.S. had an important share in the establishment of the Bishopric of Calcutta in 1814, by its publication of Claudius Buchanan's work on the subject; and it granted the first Bishop, Dr. Middleton, £5,000 towards the cost of Bishop's College. His successors have been: Bishops Heber (1822), James (1826), Turner (1829), Daniel Wilson (1832), Cotton (1858), Milman (1867), Johnson (1876), Welldon (1898), Copleston (1902).

Before India was open to missionaries, a Corresponding Committee of the C.M.S. was formed at Calcutta, of which the above-named chaplains and several influential laymen were members. Two English missionaries were sent to Calcutta in 1816; Burdwan was occupied in 1817; Krishnagar (Nadiya) in 1831; and Bhagalpur in 1850. Great interest was aroused by a remarkable movement in the Nadiya district in 1838, when some 3,000 persons forsook Heathenism, and on one occasion 900 were baptized in the presence of Bishop Daniel Wilson. Work among the Santals, an aboriginal tribe in Bengal, was begun at Hiranpur in 1860; Taljhari was occupied in 1863; Godda in 1872; and Bhagaya and Barhawa in 1878.

Death of Mrs. L. K. Morton.

On December 30th, 1904, the death occurred of Mrs. Morton, the wife of the Rev. L. K. Morton, of the Old Church, Calcutta. She had joined her husband in the Mission just twelve months before.

Reinforcements.

The names of two clergymen have been added to the list of Bengal missionaries—viz., the Revs. Bethel Grundy and Ernest Claude Smith, both Islington men, who were admitted to Deacons' Orders in St. Paul's Cathedral by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, May 29th, 1904, and sailed for India in October. Miss Agnes Dora Cole, a daughter of the Rev. Canon Cole, of Santalia, has been accepted as a missionary in local connexion. The Rev. S. R. Morse has been transferred to the United Provinces Mission. The Committee have accepted the resignation of the Rev. G. H. Parsons, on medical grounds.

Ordinations.

On Christmas Day, 1904, in the Cathedral, Calcutta, the Bishop of Calcutta admitted Mr. Pran Nath Biswas, B.A., Calcutta University, to Deacons' Orders, and the Revs. W. V. R. Kamcké and M. N. Molla to Priests' Orders; and on April 24th, 1905, the Revs. P. C. Biswas and N. Hansda to Priests' Orders.

The following are the members of the Calcutta Corresponding Committee:—The Bishop of Calcutta, Dr. P. D. Bose, the Hon. J. A. Bourdillon, Mr. A. F. Cox, Mr. R. E. Currie, Mr. J. C. Dutt, Mr. F. E. Pargiter, Colonel Ranking, the Revs. C. H. Bradburn and A. C. Kestin, and the Acting-Secretary, the Rev. E. T. Sandys.

I. CALCUTTA AND BURDWAN.

THE Rev. C. B. Clarke and Miss A. M. Sampson sailed for the Mission in October, 1904. The Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Knight and the Rev. L. K. Morton came home in March, 1905; and the Rev. Canon and Mrs. W. H. Ball, Miss V. Macfarlane, and Miss M. K. Wolley, in April. The Rev. S. H. Clark and Miss Minnie Collins were married in Calcutta on May 11th, 1904, and the Rev. A. Le Feuvre and Miss Alice Mary Butler at Blackheath on June 8th.

CALCUTTA.

Calcutta. Old Church.

The work connected with the Old Church, CALCUTTA, which in many respects resembles that in a parish at home, was carried on by the Revs. S. H. Clark and L. K. Morton, the latter of whom, as already stated, was bereaved of his wife in December, 1904. The Divinity School was under the charge of the Rev. C. Grant during the greater part of the year, for in March the Principal, the Rev. A. G. Lockett, left to take furlough in England. The students, of whom there were ten, besides one man who read in English for the Universities' Preliminary Examination for Candidates for Holy Orders, were in camp when the year opened, and remained at Birpur, a large village ten miles from Bollobhpur, until the middle of February, when the School removed to Kapasdanga, awaiting the completion of the new premises at Cossipore. The married students lived with their wives and families in houses hired in the village, and by dint of adapting a large cow-shed as a class-room sufficient accommodation was obtained. Some of the buildings were damaged by a storm early in the summer, and the health of the men was indifferent in September, but the quiet of village life was appreciated, and "real, steady, hard work" was accomplished. Besides theology, instruction was given to the men in Bengali music and singing. Some of them made themselves responsible for carrying on the Sunday-school and a class for cowherds.

Divinity School.

The College Class.

Eighteen of the students of the College Class went up for the First Arts Examination in March, 1904, and ten of them passed, a proportion which may be regarded as creditable, seeing that only one-third of the total number of candidates were successful. The places of the men who left were easily filled, several applications for admission into the second-year class being refused, in consequence of the determination to limit the number in each class to twenty-five. At the end of the year the students numbered thirty-six, seven of whom were Christians. The Bible lecture, which was delivered daily, was as a rule listened to with attention by the first-year men, most of whom had come straight to Calcutta from country schools, but the other students were not so reverent. The Rev. R. F. Pearce, the Principal, wrote in November:—

> Most of the members of the second-year class just now are "plucked" students, who have spent a few years at non-Christian colleges in Calcutta, and having failed in their examination, are taking a year with us before trying again. Their attitude towards the Bible is often contemptuous and defiant. They used at first to try and confuse me with vexatious questions during the Bible lecture, or post themselves in places where my eye would not directly fall on them, and laugh and make signs to their friends while I was talking; and I know that outside the lecture-rooms they used very objectionable language about Christianity. In the course of a few months, however, they seem to have toned down, and I trust that they will leave the College with different feelings from those with which they came. There are signs of encouragement, too, even among the "plucked" students, some of whom have come and spoken to me privately and asked very thoughtful questions. More than one have spoken about prayer, and asked how they ought to pray, and I feel that when they get to that point they have come very near the root of the matter. In expounding the Bible, I find it wise, at first at any rate, to lay stress on moral questions rather than on the miraculous aspect of the Biblical stories. The Hindus have been accustomed from their youth up to laugh at the miracle stories of their own scriptures, which, indeed, are ludicrous, and are held up to ridicule by the pundits themselves; so that they come to regard all miracle stories as nursery tales. They are generally ready, however, to listen to anything that is founded on deep moral principles, and are willing to acknowledge the truth of such principles when clearly placed before them.

Vexatious questions during religious instruction.

The Christian Hostel had ten inmates, some of them old students who had passed through the College. There is great need of a similar institution for the Hindu students, who live without any supervision in the city, for Calcutta has the character of being "unspeakably wicked." An increase took place in the circulation of Friendly Greetings, a paper edited by Mr. Pearce.

An "unspeakably wicked" city.

The Rev. A. F. Ealand was Acting-Principal of the Boys' High School, with its seventy Christian boarders. Four out of the five who went in for the Entrance Examination of the Calcutta University passed, three of them being placed in the second division.

Boys' High School.

The ladies working at the Girls' Boarding-school, Misses K. Farler, M. K. Wolley, and H. C. Watney, the last-named of whom was absent for some months through ill-health, welcomed the Principal, Miss A. M. Sampson, on her return from furlough in the autumn of 1904. At the end of the year there were seventy-four boarders and thirteen day-scholars, one of the former being the Brahmo girl whose baptism was recorded in last year's Report (page 173). She was confirmed in the spring, and led a consistent Christian life. Only one of the boarders was a non-Christian; it had been hoped that she would be baptized during the year, but she halted between two opinions, and there was some cause to fear that the inconsistencies of the Christian girls were stumbling-blocks in her way and in that of some of the heathen day-scholars. Some of the elder children, however, appeared to be in earnest. Miss Wolley wrote in December:—

I might mention how they come together every morning for a little prayer-meeting, and how all the Entrance class in a body volunteered to staff a neighbouring Sunday-school, but here one writes with great hesitation. One knows how eagerly any new suggestion has been welcomed, and for a few days or months carried out with enthusiasm, and then—well, such things are not unknown in the homeland, so we will not judge our Bengali sisters too severely.

Our hearts are very full now of the need of special blessing in our school. As we read an account of the blessing given in the Osaka school we longed for a similar experience here. We are hoping to have some special meetings at the beginning of the New Year, and are praying much for clear guidance in the matter.

Prayer for a blessing on special meetings,

An account of the revival at Osaka referred to by Miss Wolley is given below in the chapter on the Japan Mission. The prayers offered for guidance and blessing were not fruitless, for the special meetings, which were conducted by Gyan Babu, an Indian catechist of the Society, were attended with marked blessing. The story is best told in Miss Watney's own words as contained in her journal. She wrote:—

Monday, Jan. 9th.—Our meetings began on Friday evening, Jan. 6th, with a little preparatory address on "O Lord, show me myself." That was followed next morning by a talk on what God sees us to be—wicked, bad—"quite rotten," was the Bengali term used by the missioner, Gyan Babu. To-day we have had "How to get a new Heart."

Tuesday, Jan. 10th.—This has been a wonderful day! God has been working marvellously. The morning meeting was the turning-point. It was very simple, but so full of power. "Forgiveness" was the subject. Some were in tears. Yesterday we had school from eleven to one o'clock, but to-day it was absolutely out of the question. No sooner had we come up from breakfast than one or two of the girls began to come and with tears ask for forgiveness for various acts of disobedience and naughtiness. From eleven to one p.m. a continuous stream of girls came to talk to us, some singly and some together in little groups, to confess their faults and to ask forgiveness. They also went to the teachers and to each other. Long-standing quarrels were made up. In every quiet corner all over the house girls were praying. It has been a never-to-be-forgotten day. The subject at the afternoon meeting was, "Jesus saving us from the guilt and punishment and the power of sin." At the close we had a prayer-meeting at which many, even among the little girls, prayed. The meeting lasted two and a half hours, but no one seemed tired.

Long-standing quarrels made up.

Thursday, Jan. 12th.—Another wonderful day yesterday! The last part of the meeting for the girls was turned into a praise and prayer meeting. Numbers of them gave thanks for blessings received, and others prayed so earnestly that they might have what the others had got. Among them was "N.," who has been most miserable all the time, not the least bit decided. Giving her heart to Jesus means a tremendous cost to her, for her relatives will probably cast her off.

Girls praying for their schoolfellows.

The afternoon meeting was for prayer only, but so many wanted to take part that it lasted one and a half hours, and would have gone on much longer if there had been time. Gyan Babu from about four o'clock till seven p.m. was talking to girls individually. "N." professed to have given her heart to Jesus, and said she wanted baptism. After dinner Miss Sampson found a whole room full of girls crying and praying. She asked them what they were crying for, and they said, "Oh, we are praying for the girls who are not back, that God will bless them." God had so laid the burden of those other souls on them that they were actually weeping for them. Everywhere one hears girls praying in low voices, or talking about Jesus. "X.," the naughty little girl in the school, seems absolutely changed, and is the leader of all the little ones.

I do not think there was much sleep in the dormitory last night. In the middle of the night Miss Sampson was awakened by four little girls coming in. They said that they could not sleep because they remembered they had said untrue things about her, and would she forgive them? Whoever doubts that there is a God Who answers prayer would not doubt any longer if he was here. It is simply "exceeding abundantly above all" that we ever "asked or thought." Before we sat down to breakfast "N." brought a letter which she had written to her relatives telling them the news. One sentence I must quote: "I have weighed my relatives and Jesus in the balance and my Jesus is the heavier." So God has answered the prayer of years. She is simply radiant with happiness now, though it is a chastened joy, for she thinks that her relatives will be very angry.

"I have weighed my relatives and Jesus in the balance."

A fortnight later Miss Wolley wrote:—

Baptism of a schoolgirl.

To-day we have had the joy of welcoming into the Church by baptism a non-Christian girl, one who has long heard of the truth, but till the special meetings had been groping in darkness. Some people deny the possibility of miracles to-day. We have seen them here. Into that young heart, after the darkness and conflict, a great light shone, and her life has been irradiated ever since. We have seen naughty, troublesome, disobedient children turned into industrious and obedient ones; but perhaps the most striking feature is the sense of weakness and the consequent clinging to the great Keeper. Two little ones were found in tears one evening, and when asked the cause, replied, "Oh, we are so afraid Satan will make us naughty again!"

"We are afraid Satan will make us naughty again."

It is, too, with the deepest sense of thankfulness that we have seen how God has been putting into the hearts of some of our elder girls the desire to work for Him among the Heathen. We need very special prayer that these holy desires may be deepened and intensified.

Time, of course, is needed to test the durability of the work described by Miss Watney, but undoubtedly there is a call for thanksgiving for the answer vouchsafed to prayer at the school, and for intercession that similar blessing may be experienced in the other educational institutions of the Society. Although the work of the Holy Spirit in the hearts of the girls is of vastly greater importance than their progress in secular knowledge, yet the latter demands brief record. Two of the three girls who went in for the Entrance Examination of Calcutta University passed, and in the annual scholarship examination two passed in Standard VII., and every girl in Standards VI., V., and IV., five of them gaining scholarships. One child was successful in the Junior Trinity College Examination in music. The majority of the teachers attended the training-classes conducted for their benefit, and four of them were about to present themselves for examination at the close of the year.

Work among Mohammedans.

Mr. A. H. Phillips, who was in charge of the Hindustani Mission, was responsible for the oversight of the three schools connected with it. The Garden Reach High School has the names of 326 lads upon its rolls, of whom sixty-four are Mohammedans, two Parsis, four Christians, and the rest Hindus. The chief inspector of schools praised the work of the boys highly, and there was reason to believe that several of them were on the brink of proclaiming their desire to become Christians, but were dissuaded from doing so by some of the Indian masters, who compose just half the staff of the school. The Muttia Burj School was temporarily given up owing to the insanitary condition of the building in which it was accommodated. The names of about sixty boys were on the rolls of the Burtolla Primary School, some five miles from Calcutta. The general evangelistic work among Mohammedans was hindered by the smallness of the Indian staff of workers, for Mr. Phillips had but two new and untrained men to assist him in his efforts to reach a Hindustani-speaking population of 54,000 souls in Garden Reach and the southern suburbs of the town, among whom no other Mission is at work, besides those in Kidderpore and Alipur in the neighbourhood of the mission-premises. Twelve persons came forward who might be regarded as inquirers, but most of them drew back when they understood what it means to become a Christian.

Hindi work.

The efficacy of prayer was illustrated in the history of the Hindi Mission as well as in that of the Girls' Boarding-school, referred to above, for the Rev. A. C. Kestin, who, until the Rev. B. Grundy arrived in the autumn, had no European helper excepting his wife, records the fact that the quarterly issue of a brief intercessory paper to some 150 praying friends in England was very soon followed by answering blessing. The congregation continued to grow, and the various meetings and classes, many of them conducted by Mrs. Kestin, were well attended. Twice a week for three months instruction was given to the Indian preachers. The schools, which contained 114 boys, suffered through the death of one master and the ill-health of another, but there was a cheering incident in connexion with this branch of the work in the baptism of a former pupil, the first of them to be received into the visible Church by a C.M.S. missionary, though one was baptized a few years ago by the agent of another Mission. A hostel for the Christian lads attending the schools was opened during the year. The special effort made at the close of 1903 to reach the people living in one of the most congested quarters of the city (see last year's Report, page 175) led to the baptism of a Hindu, and to two of his relatives putting themselves under instruction. A similar effort was made twelve months later in the Bara Bazaar district. Every house whose inmates were willing was visited twice and received a letter written and printed for the occasion, containing six leading texts of Scripture, and hundreds of these papers were distributed at the annual festival held just outside Calcutta. These steps were followed by preachings twice each morning and evening in a room hired for the purpose in the midst of the district, and at the three bathing places of the people. Inquirers were more numerous in 1904 than ever before. Many of them, it is true, proved to be influenced by unworthy motives, and others were unwilling to meet the demands made by Christianity upon their heart and life, but twenty-eight adults, besides those already mentioned, were baptized. They included two Brahmans, one from the West Indies, and the other a member of the Calcutta Police Force; a Hindu and a Mohammedan, who were brought in by recent converts; and a number of persons who were admitted into the visible Church on December 18th. Of these last named Mr. Kestin writes:—

Twenty-eight adults baptized.

> The candidates consisted of four Hindustanis, two Urauns, seven Murdaries, one Uriya, and one Tamil, illustrating the varied character of the inhabitants of Calcutta, and consequently of our work. Seven were adults and six children, including a village family of seven, the fruit of the work done by the preacher whom a Hindi congregation supports, an ex-policeman, a young man who read for a few months in one of our Chamar schools, and a relative of his and an unbaptized Christian girl. Two of the Hindustani men came to us through the keeper of our hired room in Bara Bazaar, himself a Brahman convert of some time back. In regard to the baptism of the village family there is a fact of some interest. An S.P.G. Christian from the Ranchi district had influenced the father somewhat, and our preacher used to visit him from time to time. The wife fell ill and continued sick for some time, when our preacher went and prayed for her. Soon after she recovered, and her husband's wavering faith became more confirmed thereby, so that he became a professed inquirer and asked for instruction.

Church Council.

The Rev. E. T. Sandys, the Chairman of the Calcutta Church Council, had the assistance of the Rev. J. W. Knight. Six adults were baptized at Trinity Church on April 10th, 1904, and three more a fortnight later. Mr. Sandys gives the following account of these converts:—

Mohammedan converts have to escape for their lives.

> One was Wazuddin, from the Mohammedan mosque at Barnagore, with his wife. For some four or five years he had been thinking of becoming a Christian. He had been taught by the Rev. A. Le Feuvre and his preachers, but lacked the courage to come out. When the final step was taken a month ago, they had to escape for their lives. A relative rushed at them with a sickle-shaped knife. On arrival at our mission-compound their wounds were first washed and then quarters were provided for the night. Augustine (Kunju Behari) Kundu was a Hindu youth who came across our preacher at Burdwan and was sent to Calcutta for instruction. He fetched away his young wife, a mere child, and now both, after seven months' preparation, have been baptized. Jiban is a Hindu carpenter, the elder son of a woman, Golap, who some ten or eleven years ago was baptized at Krishnagar with her younger son. The mother has been praying for her son, and now he has come forward with his wife for baptism. The service was attended by a large congregation.
> On Sunday, April 24th, three women were baptized. One, an orphan of Mohammedan parents, had been brought up in a Christian family. The two others were from Miss Mulvany's Home for Homeless Women.

At St. Mark's Church, which was in the pastoral charge of Mr. Knight, three persons were baptized, and steps were taken to liquidate the debt upon the building. The Bengali Evangelistic Work is carried on among a population of some 550,000 in the northern half of the city, the C.M.S. being the only Society which is working for the evangelization of the masses in that part of Calcutta. Mr. Sandys writes:—

To evangelize these vast throngs the C.M.S. had only a small band of street preachers whose numbers had gradually dwindled down to four men. This small band could make very little attempt to reach a definite district, and as a matter of fact their main efforts consisted in going to visit a few houses in the morning and proceeding in the evening to a street corner to preach for an hour.

How to awaken from this dull routine and infuse life into the work was a problem. No victory can be expected with soldiers who are disappointed and who are always leading a forlorn hope.

As we were thinking and praying about this, God put into our hearts a plan which has since had abundant proof that it was His idea alone. It was to send out our men to live at different centres, to be responsible for certain districts, and to undertake new work.

The Native Church Council started by placing its evangelist, Babu Rajoni K. Ghosh, in the suburban area of Narkeldanga, Beliaghata. An industrial school, tin smithy, and carpenter's shop were started for Christian boys, while the work of evangelization was also commenced. This was in January, 1903.

Evangelistic work in the wards of Calcutta.

At this stage the idea took still more definite shape, viz., that we should occupy every ward of Calcutta, so that, as for Government and municipal purposes each ward has its centre and its staff of overseers and workers, so each ward should be occupied in the Name of Jesus Christ with an evangelistic centre and staff of workers who should be responsible for reaching every house and every soul in that ward.

Advance was made on the lines indicated in the above extract by placing a preacher at Halshibagan in July, 1903, and sending with him two masters to open a school. The plan becoming known, Mr. Sandys received monetary help from certain friends at home and in India, so that more of these "Ward Missions" might be set on foot, and by April, 1904, three more wards, viz., Maniktollah, Shambazar, and Cooloottolla, had been occupied.

The Rev. E. P. Herbert has been stationed at Howrah, where he finds great openings for work.

Barnagore.

Early in February, 1904, Miss V. Macfarlane went to BARNAGORE to work with the ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S., to which Society her services were temporarily lent. She was not permitted, however, to remain at the station for long, for her health failed at the end of May, and she spent most of the remainder of the year at Darjeeling, returning to Barnagore in November. Five women, three of them Brahmans, were baptized by the Rev. K. C. Dey-Biswas.

BURDWAN.

Burdwan.

The work at BURDWAN was in the hands of the Rev. W. V. R. Kamcké, who was joined in the autumn by the Revs. C. B. Clarke and E. C. Smith. Three Roman Catholics, two of them

Indians, and the third a Eurasian, were admitted into the Anglican communion in the summer, but the attitude of the Heathen was one of indifference to the Gospel. Even the Maharajah of Burdwan, who has published a book advocating child-widow re-marriage, reform in Hindu marriage customs, female education, and greater freedom for women, believes Hinduism to contain all that man needs, and regards caste as a divine institution. Mankar, twenty-five miles from Burdwan, was occupied by two Bengali agents. Mr. Kamcké spent some weeks in camp at the beginning of 1904, and visited eighty-one villages, finding the magic lantern a useful adjunct in his work. He was transferred to Calcutta in March, 1905.

II. NADIYA DISTRICT.

MESSRS. S. W. DONNE and J. H. Hickinbotham came home in June, 1904; and the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Hewitt in March, 1905. Mr. Donne married Mrs. Lucy Graham Barker, of St. John's Wood, on October 19th, 1904, and the Rev. P. H. Shaul married Miss Minnie Hart at Blackheath on November 1st. Messrs. Donne and Shaul sailed for Bengal with their brides in November, 1904.

The annual meeting of the teachers in the Nadiya District took place at Chupra on Easter Tuesday, 1904. The sermon at the Holy Communion was preached by the Rev. C. H. Bradburn. Three sessions were held during the day, at which instruction was imparted as to how to give object lessons, the use of simple experiments to explain the lessons in the Science Reader, and the way to teach Scripture.

KRISHNAGAR.

Krishnagar.

In his review of the five years' work which he has been permitted to accomplish at KRISHNAGAR, the Rev. J. F. Hewitt dwells upon the success which has been granted, and attributes it to the efficacy of prayer. The number of teachers in training at the Training School has increased from fourteen to over thirty, and the provision of considerable additional accommodation is rapidly approaching completion; the attendance at the High School has grown from sixty-five to 246, and at the Girls' School from twenty-seven to eighty-five; and the premises of the last named institutions have been enlarged and improved. Moreover, the Government grants to the schools, which were Rs. 125 a month when Mr. Hewitt took charge, are now Rs. 265, the Girls' School, under Mrs. Hewitt, receiving a grant in 1904 for the first time in its history. The English Congregation showed great kindness and sympathy with the missionaries. The choir of the church was floored with marble by the Rev. R. Tahourdin, Chaplain-in-Ordinary to King Edward VII., in memory of his son who died at Krishnagar, and the European community contributed to complete the work within the chancel-rails.

CHUPRA.

Chupra. The "magnificent buildings" in process of erection for the Boys' Boarding-school at CHUPRA, where the Rev. C. H. Bradburn and Mr. R. Ayres, a trained schoolmaster, resided, of which the foundation-stone was laid in January, 1904 (see last year's Report, page 180), were practically completed by the end of the year. The number of pupils increased to nearly 300, and all of them without exception were present at every religious service and Bible lesson which took place while they were within the school compound. The boys are now obliged to remain in the school over the week end, and none are allowed to be absent for the festivals of their own religions. Seven lads left for the Normal School at Krishnagar, and eleven joined the works of the Eastern Bengal State Railway. The influence of the school is apparent not only among the boys themselves, but also in the villages whence they come, and in many places where a few years ago an evangelistic missionary could not gain an audience he is now warmly welcomed.

DISTRICT CHURCH COUNCIL.

The Pastorates. Conference of leading Christians. Two meetings of the NADIYA DISTRICT CHURCH COUNCIL, of which the Rev. E. T. Butler is chairman, were held in 1904, and also a Conference of 200 of the leading Christians, representatives of every Christian hamlet in the district. At the latter papers were read and discussions followed dealing with the government of the community, expenses at marriages, relations to Roman Catholics, the prevalence of superstitions, &c., and resolutions were drawn up which, having received the unanimous support of the Conference, were printed and circulated. Mr. Butler reports an improvement in the observance of Sunday, and speaks of evidence in connexion with several cases in which discipline had to be exercised, that the majority of the people are on the side of righteousness. He writes:—

Discipline by corporal punishment! A Christian man who brought a Mohammedan woman to live with him was escorted by a band of some 100 Christian men with sticks to a place a mile from the village, and then told to depart and not to return until he could do so with a clean character. A Church Committee member guilty of a breach of the Seventh Commandment was not only excommunicated for a time, but also caned over the back by two leading Christians.

The Rev. C. H. Bradburn, who has laboured for more than ten years in the Nadiya District, bears testimony to the character of the converts as follows:—

Character of the converts. Of none of our people need we be hopeless. They are immeasurably superior to their non-Christian neighbours in many ways, and they are looked up to in many instances by them. And when we come to the women, the difference between Christian women and non-Christian women of the same status is so great as to make a comparison almost impossible.

We are apt to employ artificial tests and measure the people by them. Concrete right-doing the people understand, and I, who have much to do with them, find them honourable. Any elevated ideas of Christian sanctity apart from the routine of daily life—righteousness in the abstract—they know nothing of. I confidently assert this from a thorough knowledge of my neighbours with whom I work side by side, as workman with workman, using the same tools, and striving my utmost, with God's help, to lift them up into a higher level of life. I do not think there could be happier relations between the missionaries and the people in Nadiya than now exist, and have done for some years.

Sixty men joining in prayer for blessing. It may be that some day the tide will begin to flow again, and we shall have an ingathering all the greater for the long winter, which seems now to be breaking up. What makes one confident in expecting this is that this very day on which I am writing is a day kept in memory of a revival which took place in Nadiya ten years ago. Sixty men from different parts of the district are now joining in earnest prayer for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the district. This is quite spontaneous on their part.

Zeal of a woman convert. Among the cheering incidents mentioned are the zeal shown by a woman convert from Mohammedanism in inducing her brother to put himself under instruction; the healing of a long-standing feud between two Christians after an address on the 133rd Psalm; and the unselfishness, so different from the spirit of Hinduism, manifested by a carpenter, who, when he and his wife were both prostrate with cholera, begged that his wife should have the medicine first lest there should not be enough for both.

"I always know when I am passing through a Christian village." During the year testimony as to the benefits wrought by Christianity was borne by an Indian non-Christian gentleman, who remarked to one of the ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S., "I always know when I am passing through a Christian village. There is an entirely different stamp about the people: the houses are cleaner, and the men are respectful and have more self-respect." The Bishop of Calcutta visited the district in February, 1904, and confirmed 186 persons. Mr. Butler occupied his few spare moments in translating and adapting the National Society's book on the Church Catechism for use in the Sunday-schools.

Most of the leading members of the Krishnagar Pastorate, under the Rev. J. F. Hewitt, are agents of the Society. Attendance at the services was fair, but there was room for more enthusiasm and initiative in Christian effort. The action of the Roman Catholics, who offer worldly assistance to the people as an inducement to join them, and are always ready to receive any of the Protestant Christians who have to be placed under discipline, was a hindrance to the work. The Rev. K. L.

"Lively Christians."

Biswas, who was in charge of the Chupra Pastorate, speaks of some meetings of "lively Christians," which stirred several up to undertake work for Christ. An Indian deacon, the Rev. M. D. Biswas, was quasi-pastor of the Bohirgachi Pastorate, containing forty-two Christian families. The vernacular school contained sixty-nine children, and three boys passed the annual Sunday-school examination. In the Ranabanda Pastorate, under the Rev. L. H. C. Dey-Biswas, the people were rather irregular in their attendance at the Sunday services, but some improvement took place in this respect. Seven families at Anandabash joined the Protestant Church. Some of the Christians lost their rice crop through floods, and others suffered from malaria. The Kapasdanga Pastorate was under the care of the Rev. J. C. Mallik, who, like most of his people, suffered from ill health during the year. Most of the converts in the Ratnapur Pastorate are cultivators and day labourers. Several families were totally ruined by a destructive fire which broke out in December, 1903, and the disaster was followed in April by a sudden whirlwind, which overthrew a number of houses. Some sixty of the Practical Christian sympathy.

Christians showed their sympathy by forming themselves into bands and doing their utmost to repair the damage. The Rev. D. N. Sircar, the Indian deacon, reports that several independent helpers joined him in his evangelistic work, and mentions that the results of the examination of the children in the primary school in Bible knowledge were very good. In the Bollobhpur Pastorate, of which the Rev. S. B. Biswas assumed charge in March, 1904, malaria and cholera were sadly prevalent. Some of the more earnest Christians accompanied the pastor when he went preaching in the villages. Mr. Butler, who resided at Bollobhpur, baptized three adults. The orphanage, which was superintended by Mrs. Butler, contained forty-two girls. The whirlwind mentioned above lifted off the roof, and a wall fell on two children and killed them, besides inflicting injuries on another, to which she soon afterwards succumbed. The Rev. G. C. Biswas was in charge of the Sholua Pastorate. Disputes acted prejudicially upon the spiritual life of the converts at Meliapota, and some of those at Putimari took part in a heathen festival. At Baliurah, however, much interest was displayed in spiritual work. The work in the Joginda Pastorate was carried on by the Rev. S. S. Biswas, who had some 1,000 Christians in his flock. A service for cowherds was conducted at Nityanandapur every Sunday evening.

An orphanage damaged by a whirlwind.

THE NADIYA ITINERANCIES.

The Ranaghat sub-division of the Nadiya district is occupied by Mr. J. Monro's independent Church of England Mission, which has its head quarters at Doyabari, where Mr. R. H. Cooper resided during the year under review while engaged in the study of the language. There are two fully equipped hospitals with a yearly average of about 600 patients, and 50,000 visits of out-patients are annually recorded. An offer by Mr. Monro to convey his Mission to the Society from January 1st, 1906, has been accepted by the Committee.

Mr. Monro's work taken over by the C.M.S.

The Southern Itinerancy was worked so far as possible by the Rev. J. F. Hewitt, who received some assistance from the Rev. E. Cannon and from Mr. P. N. Biswas, whose ordination has already been recorded. His district included three towns, Krishnagar, Nadiya, and Santipur, each with a population exceeding 20,000, and is rapidly being opened up by the new railway between Ranaghat and Murshidabad.

There was no European missionary at MEHERPUR, the head quarters of the Central Itinerancy.

A change was made in the constitution of the SANTIRAJPUR Band of Associated Evangelists which is responsible for the Northern Itinerancy, by the appointment of a married missionary, the Rev. E. T. Noakes, as its leader, when the Rev. A. F. Ealand was transferred to Calcutta. The former, returning to the district after an absence of four years, observed that the work had "intensified," and noticed many signs of blessing.

"Intensified" work.

He was brought face to face with the problem of providing for the needs of those who desired to confess Christ in baptism, a step which he says many are deterred from taking first by the fear of being excommunicated from village life, and secondly by the difficulty of obtaining a livelihood. The majority of the people are cultivators of the soil, and possess plots of land which in most cases have been in the family for generations, so that they are as it were tied to the soil. He gives a definite instance:—

Converts boycotted

> A family recently baptized elected to stay in their village because they had land at a low rental. This sounds ideal. But the results of that decision are very disappointing. The villagers joined together to make these people recant. They were refused water at the village well. A new one was dug at our expense. No one would help the man to cultivate his land, hence bullocks, plough, &c., had to be given. The crops were bad because weeding was not done properly. Rent time came, and there was no money to pay it because the crops were bad. To save the property we had to pay the rent.

One cheering feature of the work is the manner in which the agents of the Mission and their families combine to help the converts over their initial difficulties. When they are paid their wages the men return a small sum for the purpose, and each morning their wives, as they measure out the daily allowance of rice, give a handful for the converts' fund. Mr. J. H. Hewison spent the cold season of 1903-04 in camp in the western portion of the district. At a large village, called Solemaru, which is a stronghold of Mohammedanism, he learned incidentally what had been the cause of the growth of that religion. A moulvi in trying to prove his statement that Christianity and Mohammedanism are one, and that therefore there is no need for a Mohammedan to become a Christion, said, "If the two religions are not the same, why did Mr. So-and-So, who was a Christian, build us our mosque and subscribe monthly the salary of a Mohammedan catechist?" In another village a young Mohammedan was met to whom Mr. S. W. Donne had given a Bible a few years before. The young fellow had not only read the Book himself, but had also read it to his companions and all who cared to listen, and when Mr. Hewison went to his village crowds of young men came to his tent, asking, "Which is the true religion, Christianity or Mohammedanism?" One day Mr. Hewison met a boy, twelve years of age, who looked very tired. Inquiry showed that he had just returned from bathing in the Ganges, twenty miles distant, with the object of obtaining cleansing from his sins. When the camping season was over Mr. Hewison took up his residence at a village named Nooton Gram. At first it seemed as though the fruit of many years of patient sowing there was going to be reaped. He writes :—

Young men ask, 'Which is the true religion?"

"For the first few weeks of our stay the people, except one or two bigoted Mohammedans, listened most attentively to the preaching of the Gospel. After that, however, a considerable change took place in the attitude of the people. Outwardly they seemed bitterly hostile to our preaching. This was due not so much to the people themselves, but to an outside influence which was brought to bear upon them. The following fact will explain this. Some of the inhabitants being impressed with the truth of the Gospel expressed a wish to become Christians. This was not done on the impulse of the moment, but after carefully weighing and studying the two religions—Christianity and Mohammedanism. At night time they used to bring their Bengali Koran to the missionary's tent and compare it with the Bible, the result being that one man, who has for over twenty years wanted to become a Christian, at last came boldly out for Christ. A few days after his baptism his nephew, the son-in-law of the wealthiest person in the village, secretly left his home and went into our head quarters for baptism. This young man had been an orthodox Mohammedan. He used to say his prayers five times a day and keep the yearly fast. He was baptized by Mr. Butler, and confirmed the same day by the Bishop of Calcutta. When the people heard of this event their attitude towards the missionary entirely changed. They became aggressively hostile. A meeting of the villagers, convened by the principal shopkeepers, who before had seemed very friendly towards the missionary, passed the following resolution:—"That any one giving the missionary or any of his preachers a seat will be fined."

Baptism of a wealthy Mohammedan makes villagers hostile.

The evening after the passing of the resolution I went with two of the preachers to preach at the shop of a young shopkeeper. This shopkeeper had a short time before stated his intention to become a Christian, and was then busily selling off his goods. A short time after our arrival we found that we were in for a serious disturbance. No sooner did one of our preachers begin to preach than he was met with the cries "We won't listen—we won't listen! We don't want your new religion. The religion of our fathers is good enough for us! You are trying to break up our families!" Finding that they could not stop us by these means they began to adopt other means.

"The religion of our fathers is good enough for us."

Seizing paraffin tins they began to beat them with all their might. They began to dance and sing, and, strange to say, in their excitement they shouted the Hindu cry, Hori bol, Hori bol! This noise continued for some time, and when it subsided we wended our way back to tent. Since then, afraid lest some more of their flock might become Christians, two Mohammedan moulvis have made their stay in the village and enforced the aforesaid resolution.

The young man whose baptism is referred to above, went to the Training School at Krishnagar for a time, and when the holidays came round returned to his village in order to see his wife whom he had left behind. There he was forced to recant, but it is said that he does not take any part in Mohammedan prayers or other rites. Two other men were received into the visible Church, the one a Mohammedan and the other a Brahman. The latter, a son of a retired judge, had been a student at Mrs. Besant's College at Benares. At one time he was pundit to some of the Society's missionaries, and had been an inquirer for some years. He was called upon to suffer a good deal for his faith, but when the year closed was living with his Hindu relatives. In June, 1904, Mr. W. J. Tillott removed to Santirajpur from Bhagalpur, where he had been studying Hindi, and commenced to learn Bengali.

A convert forced to recant.

The Rev. E. Cannon, who spent the hot weather at KUSHTIA, had one or two inquirers who came to him for instruction, but the people as a whole manifested no desire to embrace Christianity. Several young Hindus and some F.A. students read the Bible with him for a time, and copies of the paper, Friendly Greetings, were distributed each month among the pleaders and other English-speaking babus. During the cold weather of 1903-04, Mr. Cannon visited 100 different villages. A great many people came to him for medical assistance, and in all he treated some 2,000 cases. In the course of his work he met with many instances of the ignorance and superstition of the people. He writes :—

At a village to which we went one day there was a grave of a pir, or Mohammedan saint. We inquired in what respect this man was holier than others, and the villagers replied that he had the power of giving life to the dead, and it was he that caused Christ to rise from the dead! One feels extremely sorry for such darkness and ignorance, and as far as possible we tell them of Christ, the mighty to save, Who is able to raise a man from a life of dead works to living ones.

Idolatry among Mohammedans.

Mohammed strongly condemned those who worship images, and yet in this district one constantly finds his followers doing what he condemned. Many of them worship the tombs of pirs, offering horses made of earth to them; also they do puja to the Hindu goddess Durga. One man told us that Fatima and Durga were the same, and that Fatima was the mother of Mohammed! A Kabuli said to me one day, "Sahib, these people are not true Mohammedans; they know nothing of the religion of Mohammed our prophet, and do not perform the works enjoined by him; they are all Kafirs."

Near a village called Bagdanga we saw a wonderful tank or pond; it was wonderful in this respect, that during the previous year a pair of buffaloes were ploughing on some land, when one of them put its foot into a hole, and water issued forth, a spring having been accidentally tapped. The water increased until it became a good-sized tank, and then somebody stated that he had heard that a friend of his who was sick had bathed in the water and immediately was cured of his sickness. This authentic news spread abroad rapidly, as news does in the East, and soon people with all kinds of illnesses came in their thousands to bathe in this so-called miraculous water. The Hindu yogis and sanyasis, of course, flocked there and reaped a rich harvest from the credulous people. Mohammedan fakirs were not far behind their Hindu confrères, and made extraordinary statements as to the wonderful power of the water, and what cures had been effected. We soon heard of this, and our catechists went to preach there, but although they inquired carefully they could hear of no real cure. Now, a year later, we visited this place and found it deserted; its temporary glory had departed, and all that the people had obtained for their credulity was most probably a worse disease through bathing in the filthy water.

So-called miraculous water.

There were excellent opportunities of preaching the Gospel during this tour, and also during that which Mr. Cannon made in August and September. He then used a boat as a means of conveyance, and was able to visit some fifty villages, many of which could not have been reached in any other way.

In the Eastern Itinerancy, which is worked from KAPASDANGA, and which was without a European missionary during the year, thirty-two Hindus were baptized by the Rev. E. T. Butler, at Damukdia. Most of them are engaged on the railway, and the European officials, who cordially sympathize with the Mission, have testified to the change wrought in the lives of the converts by Christianity. It is an interesting fact that the work at Damukdia was begun by a missionary's wife, who, unable to engage in work out of doors, gave her head servant regular instruction. He was converted and baptized, and subsequently told his friends and relatives of his newly-found Saviour.

Sympathy of European railway officials.

III. SANTALIA.

A CONFERENCE of the missionaries engaged in the Santal Mission was held at Taljhari on October 26th to 28th, 1904. The Rev. Canon F. T. Cole preached the Conference sermon on Job xxi., 21. The Christians are over 4,000 in number, and there are more than forty village day-schools, all the teachers employed in them being Christians.

SANTAL NATIVE CHURCH COUNCIL.

Santal Pastorates.

Canon Cole, the Chairman of the SANTAL NATIVE CHURCH COUNCIL, reports contributions from the Christians amounting to Rs. 3,017, besides nearly Rs. 300 given to the special Native Missionary Fund, and Rs. 67 to the Bible and Jews' Societies. He says, however, that "it is easy for bad people to give," and that there was more cause for sorrow than in any other year within his recollection. One of the Santal deacons had to be deprived of his orders for carelessness, falsehood, and allowing and even encouraging his daughters to sin; two agents were dismissed for immorality; and the conduct of some of the Bible-women was unseemly.

Unworthy mission-agents.

The pastorates are ten in number, but seven of them were in the charge of lay agents. There were a few adult baptisms in the Taljhari Pastorate, under the Rev. Baijonath Murmu. Some of the Christians fell into grievous sin, but the majority led quiet, consistent lives. The Sunday-schools contained 123 children, one quarter of whom were never absent during the year. The Bario Pastorate contains twenty-eight Christians. Two families who for some years had lapsed, expressed their wish to return, but gave no evidence of any real change of heart. Several catechumens were under instruction. The Rev. Bhim Naeke Hansda, of the Barhet Pastorate, has been an agent of the Society for forty years, and was to some extent incapacitated by illness during the year. The Hiranpur Pastorate passed through a succession of troubles, but through the earnestness of one of the Hiranpur Christians a new church was built in the village of that name. A prominent Pahari Christian in the Tikruganj Pastorate was called to his rest. There were no adult baptisms in the Mehendi Pastorate, but some who had been influenced while resident in it were received into the visible Church in the Santal Colony. In the Dharampur Pastorate, eleven adults were baptized, and several inquirers came forward at a village called Amdanda. One Pahari congregation was broken up by the conduct of the chief man, in whose house it used to meet for worship. He married his son, who was quite a boy, to a heathen girl, the ceremony being conducted with heathen rites, and accompanied by a drinking bout. The people of the Chuchi Pastorate are described as "neither hot nor cold." Services were held every Sunday at seven different places in the Talpahari Pastorate. Ten adults were baptized, and several lapsed Christians were restored. The Rev. Nimbai Hansda, the Santal deacon, is quasi-pastor of the Santalpur Pastorate, in which 161 persons were confirmed, and sixty-eight adults baptized. A new church was in process of construction, and by November the roof was on, though the walls were still open and much remained to be done. Canon Cole, who, in November, paid his third visit of the year to the Colony, wrote shortly after his return:—

"Neither hot nor cold."

> We had a large meeting of the headmen and elders to consider ways and means for finishing the work. They are determined to do it themselves, and were most enthusiastic about it. Subscriptions were asked for and one after another promised, but others, more practical, thought that the first thing to be done was to make the roof more secure by tying it down with iron plates. A subscription list was opened for this purpose, and one after another rose up and said, "I will give two rupees." Then another, "I will give three."

Liberal gifts to a new church.

Then there was a pause, and some one said, "The iron is not yet hot. Warm it up." This brought out the gifts of others. We found that we had collected Rs. 46 that day. It was then decided to have a special offering on the Sunday, and notice was given in the villages to that effect.

On Sunday the church was well filled. It was splendid to see the people come up with papers promising that as soon as their harvest was reaped they would give; others then and there gave their offerings. The collection amounted to Rs. 85 more in cash, exclusive of the promises. Several villages did not hear in time to get ready. These have promised this week to send their offerings. Three families have promised to pay for the three east end windows, and we hope to get others to be responsible for the sixteen remaining. After the service we had the usual offertory, which amounted to Rs. 6.6. About four cwt. of rice was also given as firstfruits of the harvest. After I had preached we had the Holy Communion. There were 210 communicants.

TALJHARI.

Taljhari.

The Rev. H. J. Jackson, who resided at TALJHARI, says that education is making progress among the Santals, for not only is the number of schools increasing, but the people are more ready than of old to pay for the education of their children. The Boys' Boarding-school has 210 names upon its rolls, and in addition there are sixty-four day-scholars. The school really consists of two distinct Middle schools, the work in the one being carried on in Hindi and in the other in Bengali. The Government having abolished public examinations, the lads were tested privately. Eight of them passed the Middle Vernacular Examination, twenty-five the Upper Primary, and the same number the Lower Primary Examination. Several of the lads left for the High School at Bhagalpur. Seven boys were baptized. Mrs. Jackson took the sewing-classes in the Girls' Day-school, which has thirty-nine pupils. Nearly 6,000 attendances were registered at the Dispensary.

BARHAWA.

Barhawa.

The Rev. Canon and Mrs. F. T. Cole, and their daughter, Miss A. D. Cole, who, as already recorded, has been accepted as a missionary of the Society in local connexion, resided at BARHAWA. The ladies superintended the work among the 100 children belonging to the Girls' Boarding-school, and conducted meetings for Santal and Hindu women. Efficient help was rendered by a Santal at the Dispensary, at which 7,000 visits were registered. Canon Cole is a member of the Committees entrusted with the translation of the Old and New Testaments respectively into Santali. He wrote a four-page primer in that language for the benefit of those baptized as adults who have never been to school, and he also compiled a Second Book, containing such things as have to be learnt by catechumens, short passages of Scripture, and prayers for use in the morning and evening.

Literary work.

Bhagaya.

In April, 1904, the Rev. J. Blaich was transferred from Godda to BHAGAYA, and at one time or another of his twenty-eight years of service he has now been in charge of every station of the Santal Mission. A change was made in the district when Mr. Blaich took charge, the southern half of it being joined on to the Godda district in order that the congregation at Telgama, under the Rev. R. C. Dass, might join with that at Godda to introduce the Native Church Council system. Mr. Blaich writes as follows of the peculiar characteristics of his district:—

The work has to be carried on pretty equally in Hindi and Santali, for towards the west and south of my compound there are only Hindi-speaking people living, whilst on the east and north the Santals live. Among the former we count seventy Christians, and among the latter forty-nine. The process of welding them into one Church is a most perplexing one, for not only do they differ in language, habits, customs, but they are also divided politically. No Hindu, be he Christian or Heathen, is permitted by Government to settle down and hold land on the Santal side of the boundary, and very few Santals will voluntarily choose to settle down among the other race, with whom they know they have no chance in competition, even in agriculture. It will take many years for this difference to disappear. It must not be ascribed to caste distinctions, we happily know nothing of caste. It is the cleavage between the aboriginal and the Aryan races from immemorial time, and will only pass away by the gradual absorption of the one section by the other, or we must wait till the Christians of the one race are of such a preponderating number as to leave the others of no importance. This has been accomplished on the Eastern side in the Native Church Council, where the Santal Christians outnumber the other Christians, Hindu and Pahari.

The cleavage between the aboriginal and Aryan races.

A Preparandi Class was held with a couple of Santal youths as members, and instruction was also given to one or two junior readers. While travelling about the country Mr. Blaich was several times warmly greeted as the former superintendent of the Taljhari Boys' Boarding-school, and he met with traces of the influence of that institution in the case of a Pahari woman. She told him that some Pahari Christian boys belonging to it had been accustomed to put up at her house on their way to and from their homes; they had spoken to her about the Saviour, and she had in consequence forsaken the worship of her false gods.

GODDA.

Godda.

The mission-station is known locally as Pathra, but since the field of the work of which it is the head quarters, about 1,000 square miles, lies within the civil sub-division of GODDA, the station bears that name. The Rev. J. Brown, who had been labouring at Barhawa, took charge of the work early in 1904, and had as his European colleagues his daughter, Miss E. M. Brown, and the Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Brown, transferred from Taljhari.

Mr. J. Brown had three Pahari students reading in the Preparandi Class, while Mr. D. M. Brown paid special attention to the Boys' Boarding-school, which was full throughout the year, and to the general educational work.

The missionaries spent much time in itinerating. At Ratanpur, where there is a small church and rest-house, mixed marriages have unhappily been common of late years, and some of the Christians have given way to immorality. Mr. J. Brown writes :—

The village (like most Pahari villages) is a cluster of huts, all within a few feet of each other, the whole space occupied by the village being not more than 200 square yards. Such villages are so closely packed that all seem to be just one large family. Yet there may be distinction enough to admit of intermarriage without infringing the social laws of wedlock. But this close contiguity does not conduce to a healthy state of morals among Paharis generally, and in the case of their becoming Christians and still living in such close proximity, the Devil plays havoc with some of those who, while professing to be followers of Christ, are not established in the love and knowledge and fear of God.

Immorality among Pahari Christians.

Three adults were received into the visible Church at Chinadhab, and the baptism took place at Bhatonda of the wife and four children of a Santal who became a Christian in 1899. The two brothers of the woman, influenced by her husband, put themselves under instruction. The Rev. S. Besra laboured among the little congregations at Mohonpur and two neighbouring places. There are a few Christians at Dahwa, one of the out-stations opened in 1903. In the spring a tour was made in the southern portion of the district, where there are no converts. The people listened eagerly to the Gospel, and begged that they might have resident teachers. With the help of one of his students, Mr. J. Brown translated the General Epistles into Malto, the language of the Paharis.

IV. BEHAR.

The province of Behar lies between Bengal and Nepaul, and in it, as stated in last year's Report (page 190), but little missionary effort is being put forth. The small scale on which the work of the C.M.S. in the province is carried on was graphically described by the Rev. S. R. Morse, whose transference to the United Provinces Mission has been recorded above, at the C.M.S. Summer School, on August 2nd, 1904. He said :—

A sadly undermanned district.

Let us imagine that there is a society in India called the Indian C.M.S., and that it sends forth two missionaries and places them in heathen England at a town called Derby. Imagine that those two missionaries are working there and have opened a school for young men and boys, where not only the language of India, but the arts can be learned. They have also opened a medical mission where about sixty poor people daily come and have not only their sicknesses healed but the Gospel preached to them. They have also an orphanage for sixty boys whose fathers have died from famine in the district, or plague, or cholera, owing to the insanitary state of the town; or perhaps those boys are the sons of leper parents, separation from whom has saved them from a living death. Imagine another town, an hour's journey distant, called Nottingham. In this town there are 120 Christians, and a church has been built there by the great efforts of the missionary whom the Indian C.M.S. has sent forth, and by writing to India for his support a lay reader has been stationed among them. The missionary can only go once a month to give them the Holy Communion on Sunday, and that is all. Then there is another place from which the cry comes, and that is a town called Keswick, on the borders of a heathen land which they call Scotland, and the heathen Scots will have nothing whatever to do with the Gospel, because Scotland is a closed land. In this town of Keswick, which is twelve hours' journey from Derby, the few Christians there have built for themselves a mud hut, and they have managed to get enough corrugated iron to put a roof on it. The missionary can only go there once in six weeks. He cannot possibly go oftener because he has daily classes in his school at Derby to look after, as well as to preach in the medical mission, while in the native church he has his two services on Sunday. Then the heathen people in the streets of Derby need to hear the Gospel, and he must preach in different streets there as well as visit the members of his congregation. On the top of this there is a leper asylum to look after with 100 inmates.

The need of Behar was emphasized in 1904 by the occurrence of a case of suttee at a village named Sanchari. Thirteen men were arrested because of their complicity in the crime. A Bombay newspaper, the Advocate of India, of January 18th, 1905, gave the following account of their trial :—

A case of suttee.

The evidence goes to show that one Chandri Missir, alias Chaturbhuj Missir, a Brahman of Sanchari village, having died on October 8th last, arrangements were made for the cremation of his body on the banks of a small river. A piece was cut in the ground in the shape of a St. Andrew's cross and the funeral pyre was built over it.

The body being laid on the pyre, the widow, having bathed in the river and adorned herself as for her marriage, took her seat on the pyre, and called on her son, the accused Jagganath Missir, to do his duty as a devout Hindu. Jagganath lighted some wheat-stalks, and having walked round the pyre three times, applied, according to custom, the fire to the mouth of the deceased.

This failed to ignite the pyre, and it is said that he and the four Brahmans accused, performed the "Humad," which consisted of the burning of incense and the placing of lighted chips of wood dipped in ghee under the pyre until it ignited. By this time a vast crowd had assmbled.

As the smoke from the incense ascended and the flames reached the widow, she is said to have "moved about" or writhed, and finally to have stood up and turned towards the setting sun, but immediately fell back on the pyre, apparently overcome by the increasing flames, and amid cries of "Sat Ram," "Sita Ram," "Sati mai ki Jai," the beating of drums, the clang of cymbals and blowing of the conch or shell, was burnt to ashes with the corpse of her husband.

The case having come to the sessions the jury returned an unanimous verdict of "guilty" against seven of the accused, who were sentenced to various terms ranging from five years' rigorous imprisonment to nine months. The rest were found "not guilty" and acquitted.

Mrs. J. A. Cullen came home in April, 1905.

BHAGALPUR.

Bhagalpur.

The European missionaries of the Society at BHAGALPUR were the Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Cullen, the Rev. H. M. Moore, and the Rev. and Mrs. H. Perfect; Mr. W. J. Tillott also resided at the station for a few months while engaged in language study. The first named ministered to the English Congregation, and set on foot a weekly missionary prayer-meeting. The offertories devoted to the C.M.S. showed a considerable increase. The work among the Natives was greatly hindered by the appearance of the plague in epidemic form for the first time. Half the population of the town shut their houses and fled into the surrounding districts for safety, the schools were emptied, and bazaar preaching had to be suspended for a time. Mr. Cullen wrote in January, 1905:—

Plague in the mission-compound.

> In September the plague broke out in our compound. Our native doctor had been attending plague cases, contracted the disease, and died after a short illness, leaving a widow and three little children to mourn his loss. A little girl, the daughter of a Mohammedan inquirer, was next seized, and expired. As plague-infected rats were found dead in several houses in the compound, the civil surgeon ordered all our people to remove from the houses, and we were obliged to have huts erected for them on the fort near our church. This measure stayed the plague amongst us, but we were compelled to unroof nearly all the houses in the compound, so as to admit the sun, to thoroughly disinfect them. Our people lived for several months in the plague camp, and only returned to their homes before Christmas.
>
> In spite of all this trouble and hindrance, we can look back upon the year's work with deep thankfulness for many tokens of God's favour and blessing. Man's extremity has been God's opportunity. During this year of trial we have seen the largest number of adult baptisms that has been seen in the work in Behar for many years.

High School.

The High School, under Mr. Moore, suffered from the outbreak, but by the autumn it had 130 names upon its rolls, twenty-five of the boys being Christian boarders. The Vernacular School in the mission-compound was raised to the Middle Standard, and proved useful both as an evangelistic agency among the Hindu and Mohammedan population, and also for educating the children belonging to the Orphanage, of which Mr. Cullen was in charge. The difficulty of finding a means of livelihood for the boys was removed by the willingness of the authorities in the railway workshops at Jamalpur to give a number of them an opportunity of entering the works as apprentices. This led to the opening of a Hostel, with a Christian man in charge, and by January, 1905, eleven of the lads were learning various trades in the workshop. The locomotive superintendent and works' manager were so pleased with what they saw of the boys' work that they offered to take an almost unlimited number of boys recommended by the missionaries. The foundation-stone of the new buildings of the Leper Asylum, which is supported by the Mission to Lepers in India, was laid by Sir Andrew Fraser, the Lieut.-Governor of Bengal, in August. The asylum was full throughout the year, and numbers of applicants for admission had to be turned away because there was not room enough to receive them. The Bishop of Calcutta confirmed thirty-one of the inmates in the summer, and nineteen adult lepers were baptized. The twenty-eight other adult baptisms included those of two women, one a Rajput and the other a Bengali Brahman, and of a sadhu, who first heard the Gospel in the Bhagalpur Bazaar, and who had abandoned idolatry for some years. The Rev. P. C. Biswas has been transferred from Jamalpur to Bhagalpur.

Thirty-one lepers confirmed.

The Evangelistic Work was superintended by Mr. Perfect, who spent some time in the Colgong and Ghogha districts. In the spring he went to Jamoi, using the rest-house kindly placed at his disposal by the C.E.Z.M.S. missionaries. Some high-caste Hindus, teachers in a Government Upper Primary School, paid frequent visits to the workers, and one man from the town was afterwards baptized at Bhagalpur.

UNITED PROVINCES MISSION.

The Society's first agent in India was stationed in the United Provinces. He was a Native, Abdul Masih, Henry Martyn's solitary convert from Mohammedanism, and he was placed, under Corrie's auspices, at Agra in 1813. Abdul Masih was ordained in 1826 by Bishop Heber, being thus the first Indian clergyman of the Church of England. Meerut was occupied in 1815; Benares, 1817; Gorakhpur, 1823; Azimgarh and Jaunpur, 1831; Lucknow, 1858; Allahabad and Dehra Dun, 1859; Faizabad, 1862; Aligarh, 1863; and Muttra, 1878. A remarkable work was done by W. Smith and C. B. Leupolt at Benares, which began in 1832. In 1853, St. John's College at Agra was opened as a High School by T. V. French (subsequently Bishop of Lahore) and E. C. Stuart (subsequently Bishop of Waiapu, now in Persia). The Sepoy Mutiny of 1857 destroyed much of the Society's property, but the deep interest aroused by it caused a great extension of the work afterwards. Lucknow was occupied immediately on its re-conquest, on the invitation of the Chief Commissioner, Sir R. Montgomery. Allahabad was also occupied, and Christian villages established there and at Gorakhpur. In 1892 a new diocese (Lucknow) was formed for Oudh and the Jhansi Division of the United Provinces, the Bishop (Dr. A. Clifford, previously a C.M.S. missionary at Calcutta) having also, by consensual jurisdiction, episcopal supervision over the remainder of the United Provinces. In 1903, another new diocese (Nagpur), with Dr. Eyre Chatterton as Bishop, was formed, including the Central Provinces and Rajputana, and certain "assigned districts" of Hyderabad.

Conference of missionaries.

THE Annual Conference of C.M.S. missionaries in the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh was held at Allahabad from November 1st to 4th, 1904. About sixty were present. November 1st was observed as a "Quiet Day," when addresses were given by the Rev. Dr. Hooper on "The Second Epistle to the Corinthians as a Manual for Christian Workers." The Conference sermon was preached by the Rev. J. N. Carpenter, of Gorakhpur, in St. Paul's Divinity School Chapel on the 3rd, and at Morning Prayer on the 4th the Rev. C. G. Mylrea, of Lucknow, gave an address. The proceedings closed with a united prayer-meeting.

In December, 1904, nearly thirty persons, Indian students and Europeans, met at Fatihpur for conference, all living together in Indian style, and sharing the same food. The Rev. W. E. S. Holland speaks of the meeting as having drawn the missionaries and students very close together, and says that a deep impression was made upon several who were present.

Two members and two former members of the staff of the United Provinces Mission died during the year. The death of Death of Miss K. C. Wright,

Miss K. C. Wright, the fourth of the children of the Rev. Henry Wright, formerly Honorary Clerical Secretary of the Society, to go forth to the mission-field, took place at Simla on September 21st, 1904. Sailing originally in 1893 she was assigned to the Punjab, where she worked at the Alexandra High School, Amritsar. In 1900 she was appointed with her sister to the charge of the Girls' High School at Agra. The Punjab Mission News said of her:—

> The key-note of her life was joyful singleness of heart. She came to give herself to the training of Indian Christian womanhood in girls of the better classes, and this one thing she did. A woman of cultured mind, sensitive to many interests, she gave the resultant of them all to her pupils, and especially to those whom she loved to train in the normal classes at Amritsar and Agra as teachers. And in all her work its chief mark was conscientiousness and thoroughness. Her pupils were trained for character, even before knowledge. Such a life reproduces itself. The grain of wheat has fallen into the ground and died only to bring forth much fruit. Some of it is already evident. More is to come.

Mrs. W. E. S. Holland died from typhoid fever at Allahabad on November 21st, 1904. Her maiden name was Muriel Ardill Maxwell, and her marriage took place at Bombay in October, 1902. Mrs. W. E. S. Holland,

Mrs. F. A. Kreiss died in Berlin in August, after nearly fifty years of widowhood. Her husband went to the north-west of Persia under the Basle Society, but on the conquest of the district by Russia and the consequent expulsion of the Mission, he, together with Pfander, Schneider, Hoernle, and Wolters, senior, joined the C.M.S. All these, except the last, who was placed in Smyrna, went to Agra, and ultimately Schneider, Hoernle, and Pfander were ordained by Bishop Cotton, but Kreiss had by that time died after sixteen years of service, 1840 to 1856. Mrs. F. A. Kreiss,

The death of the Rev. D. T. Barry occurred at Brundall, Norfolk, on October 11th. From 1875 to 1880 he laboured in the North and South India Missions, having previously been Association Secretary for the North-Western District of England from 1857 to 1860, and for the Midland District from 1867 to 1875. After his return from India he held the Rectory of Fishley, near Great Yarmouth, and so long as health and strength permitted was ever ready to engage in deputational work for the Society. and the Rev. D. T. Barry.

The Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. Luigi Carlo Perfumi, formerly a priest of the Church of Rome, and a Carmelite monk, who worked as a missionary in Travancore. He was drawn to inquire into the theological position of Protestants by the lives of some C.M.S. Indian pastors and missionaries, and was received into the Church of England by the Bishop of Durham at Bishop Auckland on December 14th, 1903. The staff has also been strengthened by the addition to it of Miss Emilie Strœlin, who has been a missionary of the C.E.Z.M.S. since 1881, and for many years has superintended the C.M.S. Girls' Schools at Meerut, for which purpose her services were lent by her Society; and Miss Cicely Mabel Carrington, of Hertford, trained at The Olives. Mr. Perfumi sailed for the Mission in July 1904, and Miss Carrington in October. Miss Strœlin was already in India. Miss H. L. Stowell has been accepted as a missionary in local connexion. The Mission has also gained by the transfer to it of the Rev. S. R. Morse from the Bengal Reinforcements.

Mission and the Rev. Malcolm Ján from the South India Mission. On the other hand, the Rev. and Mrs. A. I. Birkett, the Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Challis, and Miss B. M. Newton have been transferred to the Central Provinces and Rajputana Mission. The Committee have accepted the resignation of Rev. C. C. Petch.

The Rev. J. P. Haythornthwaite came home in June, 1904; Mr. and Mrs. T. Law in October; Miss A. M. Cox (on medical certificate) in November; the Rev. W. E. S. Holland, the Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Pemberton, and Miss H. J. Worthington, in March, 1905; the Rev. and Mrs. R. Baker, the Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Wright, and Miss A. F. Wright, in April; and Miss E. M. Doyle in May. Mrs. J. A. F. Warren and Miss H. M. Forbes sailed for the Mission in October, 1904; the Rev. S. R. Morse in November; the Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Gill and the Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Proctor in February, 1905; and the Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Collins in March.

Ordination.

On Sunday, March 26th, 1905, the Bishop of Lucknow admitted the Rev. Hari Narayan to Priests' Orders, and Mr. Joseph Newman Mukand, B.A., Allahabad University, to Deacons' Orders, in All Saints' Cathedral, Allahabad.

The following are the members of the Allahabad Corresponding Committee: The Bishop of Lucknow, Hon. Justice Knox, Mr. H. O. Budden, the Revs. P. H. Chapman, J. P. Ellwood, W. McLean, H. Menzies, and E. H. M. Waller, and the Secretary, the Rev. C. H. Gill.

ALLAHABAD.

Allahabad.

The city of ALLAHABAD suffered in 1904 from a violent outbreak of the plague, and the missionaries freely offered their services in connexion with the steps which were taken to grapple with it. They acted on the voluntary committees which were formed for each ward, with Hindus and Mohammedans as their colleagues, and took their share in the systematic house-to-house visitation which was instituted with a view to discovering and relieving those who were attacked. This work brought them into close relations with the better class of non-Christians, some of whom worked splendidly, and revealed the fact that the Bible and Christian literature of all kinds are eagerly read in some Hindu homes.

The Bible read in Hindu homes.

Divinity School.

The Divinity School, of which the Rev. E. H. M. Waller is Principal, was quite full during the year. For the first time a member of the English Class sat for the Universities' Preliminary Examination for Candidates for Holy Orders, and it was a satisfaction that the student, Mr. S. J. Edwin, passed in the first class. The other member of the English class was being prepared for the Bishop of Lucknow's examination. The Vernacular Ordination Class contained two men sent by the Native Church Council, and one by the Dublin University Mission; nine students read for the grade of senior catechist, and eight for that of junior catechist. A modification in the regulations for the training of catechists came into force during the year. Previously those preparing as senior catechists had three years in the school, while those striving to qualify as junior catechists were expected to study for their examination by themselves. Under the changed regulations the latter go to the school for one year, and the course for the former lasts for two years. The new arrangement worked well, and there were far fewer failures in the examination for the junior catechist grade than in former years. Closer attention was given, too, to the practical preparation of the men. Lectures on Mohammedanism were not confined to any one text-book, but a general knowledge of the Koran was aimed at, and all the verses of that book relating to Christ and Christianity were studied with the aid of orthodox commentaries. It is hoped that this plan will make the students better qualified to combat the errors of Mohammedanism. In the vernacular teaching much help was rendered to Mr. Waller by the Rev. J. Qalandar, the Indian tutor, and the Rev. F. W. Hinton also assisted him so far as his language studies would allow.

Oxford and Cambridge Hostel.

The Revs. W. E. S. Holland (who has been elected a Fellow of Allahabad University) and P. B. Davis carried on the work of the Oxford and Cambridge Hostel, and when the former went away for a time after his sad bereavement, which has been recorded above, the Rev. L. C. Perfumi came to the rescue. The debt on the Hostel buildings, which have cost £4,000, was completely removed during the year (the whole of the amount having been raised privately), and the number of students belonging to the institution was greater than ever before. No difficulty was felt concerning discipline, which was left almost entirely in the hands of monitors elected by the men, and the relations between the students and the missionaries were cordial and happy. Ten lectures were delivered—by Lord Radstock, the Principal of the Government Training College, the Rev. A. Crosthwaite (of the Cawnpore Brotherhood), R. K. Sorabji, Esq. (Professor of Law at Muir College), and others, and the various organizations for athletics and the common-room, managed by the men themselves, went on well. At the beginning of 1905 two rooms in the Hostel were struck by lightning. They were empty at the time, and the man occupying the intervening room was unhurt and unconscious of his danger. This event and the daily peril of plague appeared to solemnize the students more than usual.

Rooms struck by lightning.

A Bible-class for men was set on foot by Mr. Davis in connexion with his work at Holy Trinity Church, and proved a success. Eleven adults were baptized at Muirabad, where the Rev. J. B. Ventura is the Indian pastor. Miss Fallon of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission, writes of one of the converts :—

Baptism of eleven adults.

> It is quite twenty years ago since I first met Ahmad Mirza and his wife. She was my first pupil in Ayodhya, a sad, weary, ladylike woman. I soon found out that a good deal of her sorrow was caused by her husband! She was just one of those "weary, heavy-laden" ones to whom no one but Jesus could give rest. She soon got interested, but it took years for her to make up her mind to "come out" and be baptized. However, she took the step, and was baptized by Mr. Baumann in 1890. The husband was very angry, but because of his family connexions he took no legal steps, but kept the matter as quiet as possible. But he certainly bore us a grudge! I saw him from time to time, and he came to see his wife once or twice. She died about two years after her baptism, and then I lost sight of the man. Five years ago his daughter and two children came out, and came to us here, and a few months after the old father came to see them. He was very much cut up at their having become Christians, and though he stayed with us some little time, he seemed no nearer Christ. So you can imagine my astonishment when he appeared here last June and said he had come to stay! I have had many talks with him, and he has spoken most earnestly about being a sinner, and really seems to have grasped the truth of Jesus being the only Saviour. I said how sad it was that he had not come to Him years ago. He answered so pathetically, "But I have come now."

"But I have come now."

In the Evangelistic Work the Rev. S. N. Singh had the help of the staff and students of the Divinity School. A reading room, built in memory of Henry Carre Tucker, formerly the Collector in Allahabad, was opened in July, 1904, by the Hon. Mr. Justice Knox, a brother of the Bishop of Manchester. A spirit of inquiry was manifested by several educated Mohammedans, and a guru of the Radha Swami sect (see last year's Report, page 195), named Dayal Saran, was baptized, and afterwards went as a Christian preacher to the Punjab, where he was born. Mr. Waller says of the sect just mentioned :—

A gnostic sect.

> They have discarded caste and have made a new religion, consisting of an amalgamation of doctrines taken from Hinduism, Mohammedanism, and Christianity of a gnostic type. The special part of their doctrine which appeals to the people is the claim to show God to the devotee. They believe that the True God, Radha Swami, is reincarnated in the guru of the sect especially, and in a measure in every one of his followers, and that by contemplation he becomes visible to his worshippers. They have a scheme of graded heavens and gods, among whom the Christians' God is placed low down, after the fashion of the gnostics. They keep their tenets very secret, and it is practically impossible for an outsider to see their books, but when one has had a sight of them, as I have, they are disappointing in the extreme. For dulness and want of imagination and insipidity I have rarely seen their equal. However, the sect grows stronger, and whatever may be our opinion of the literary merits of their books, there is no doubt that they are attracting followers. They are one of the few sects who regularly employ preachers to go round the villages, and their organization is very good.

The master of the Anglo-Vernacular School at Kutwa became disheartened by the death of his daughter from plague, and wished to return to the city, and consequently the school was transferred to Shudnipur, where a school had shortly before been opened to serve as feeder to that at Kutwa. During the early part of the year Mr. Singh made Hanuman Ganj his head quarters. The plague was severe in the neighbourhood, and at first the people eyed the evangelists with suspicion, but the chowdhari (chief man) intervened to calm their fears.

Suspicions calmed by the chief man of a village.

BENARES.

Benares.

The work of Jay Narayan's School, BENARES, of which the Rev. R. S. Bennertz is Principal, is divided into three departments: the Anglo-Vernacular; the Vernacular, in which students are prepared for the Vernacular Final Examination; and the Bengali, in which instruction is given in that language up to the third standard of the Anglo-Vernacular schools. The average attendance was about 250. Eight boys went in for the Entrance Examination of the Allahabad University, of whom seven passed, two in the first division and two in the second; the only one who was sent in for the School Final Examination passed in the second division; both of those who stood for the High School Scholarships were successful, one being placed first and the other fourteenth in order of merit; and two passed the Vernacular Final Examination. The two senior classes, containing twenty-one boys, five of whom had only entered the school a few months before, were examined in Scripture knowledge by a friend not on the staff of the school. The first two boys gained over 90 per cent. marks, the next twelve 50 per cent. or more, and the last boy 35 per cent. The boys take a keen interest in athletic exercises, especially in football, at which game they won or drew all the nine important matches which they played. The Sunday-school carried on in connexion with the school has an average attendance of 155. Mr. Bennertz asks for special prayer for those who leave the school after passing the Entrance Examination of the University, for nearly all of them go on to Mrs. Besant's Central Hindu College, attracted by the fact that its fees are only one-quarter of those charged at the Government College. Towards the end of the year a number of Brahmans for the first time met to make public protest against the work of Mrs. Besant in the city, the occasion being the delivery of a lecture entitled "The Theosophical Bubble Pricked." The audience was a mixed one, and the gathering ended in confusion. The grounds of the opposition of the orthodox Brahmans to the College are expressed in the following resolutions, which Mr. Bennertz says they are hoping shortly to see adopted:—

Jay Narayan's School.

Brahmans protest against Mrs. Annie Besant's work.

(1) "The Theosophical Society, founded in America by Colonel Olcott and Madame Blavatsky, in 1873, though not a plain Christian Mission, is considerably more destructive than the latter to the Vedic religion, the so-called Hinduism. An Indian Fellow of the Theosophical Society ought therefore to be treated as an outcast along with a Christian convert." (2) "The religious text-books of the Central Hindu College, written in the language of the Bible, and having the finishing stroke of the advice of Jesus Christ, cannot but teach Christianity." (3) "The interdining and non-interdining castes in the College boarding-house, though connived at by the guardians of the students, is destructive to orthodox Hinduism." (4) "The so-called national song for boys which contains the words 'I am not a believer in the Vedas,' is fit only for non-Hindus." (5) "If in the esoteric section of the Theosophical Society, Europeans give (teach) mantras to Hindus it is quite against the Hindu religion." (6) "The authorities of the Central Hindu College, having completely lost the confidence of the public in the matter of the religious education of the students, must deprive themselves of the same and place it (religious education) in the hands of persons chosen by the orthodox public."

Commenting on the second of the proposed resolutions, Mr. Bennertz says:—

Whatever Mrs. Besant's experience of mahatmas and spirits may be, it has been clear to us where she found her religious teaching. The little of life and truth her views contain have been derived from the Book in which we have learnt our lessons of faith and confidence. The lady has denied this. In the leading Anglo-Indian paper she has denied any connexion with the Christian Church. In action here she has more than once set herself to obstruct Christian missionary endeavours. On a public occasion I have heard her exhort the Hindus to retain their books, and to defend them as they would the honour of those nearest and dearest to themselves; yet, in spite of it all, the one force that remains in her is what she learned most probably at her mother's knees—the teaching of the Word of God given us in the Bible. The Hindus themselves see it. What do they fear? Not Mrs. Besant, not her philosophy, not her eloquence, but "the language of the Bible" and "the advice of Jesus Christ."

Hindus fear "the language of the Bible."

Girls' Normal School.

The Girls' Normal School was under the charge of Mrs. Barr, of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission, until March, 1904, and then of Miss N. Leetch, of that Society. The Education Department, by granting scholarships to promising girls from other Christian schools, brought about an increase in the number belonging to the Teachers' Training Class. All the five girls presented for the Teachers' Examination passed. One of them continued her studies at the High School at Agra, and two others were sent to the Lady Muir Memorial Home at Allahabad. When Miss Goetze, of the Berlin Ladies' Society, left on furlough, Miss Brett, of the Z.B.M.M., undertook the superintendence of the Girls' Orphanage, which, like the other institutions mentioned above, is at Sigra, a village a little way out of Benares, her helpers being the late Miss Lorbeer, also of the Berlin Society, who perished in the earthquake on April 4th, 1905, while temporarily at Kangra (see below, page 229), and Miss S. Willis. Much trouble was caused by the appearance of dead rats, the sure precursor of plague, first in the servants' quarters, and then in the out-buildings of the orphanage itself, which necessitated the removal of the eighty-six children to a large house belonging to the Society, while the whole compound was thoroughly disinfected. The Rev. T. Noah was in pastoral charge of the Congregation worshipping at St. Paul's Church, Sigra.

A number of inquirers came forward as the result of the Evangelistic Work in the city, but all but one of them drew back. Several students visited the Rev. J. A. F. Warren, who was in general charge of the station, and he was always able to turn the conversation to religious topics. The Rev. J. J. Johnson devoted himself to the Brahmans and the ascetic and monastic classes, visiting them in the localities which they affect, and endeavouring in his conversation to bring to their notice the distinct claims and character of the Gospel. His efforts among the religious leaders of the Hindus were not confined to Benares, for in the course of the year he went to Ajodhya (see infra, page 201), Jabalpur, Nasik, Mysore, &c.

Work among the ascetic and monastic classes.

The High School at Jaunpur contains about 200 boys, who are well taught by the head-master, Mr. Ghosh. Unfortunately he is the only Christian among the fourteen members of the staff. The Anglo-Vernacular school at Chunar contains 100 lads, and this out-station, like Jaunpur, suffered from the fact that Mr. Warren was only able to pay it one visit a month. Gharwah, where there is a small Christian community, and Ahraurah, which is nearly forty miles from Benares, were even worse off as regards supervision.

AZIMGARH.

Towards the end of November, 1903, the plague, which previously had been confined to the district around AZIMGARH, appeared in the city, and soon gained so great a hold that almost all the inhabitants fled, and both the school and the zenana work had to be discontinued. Dead mice were found in the teachers' room in the mission-bungalow, and the missionaries, Miss E. A. Luce and Miss E. M. Tottenham and their Indian companions, were therefore obliged to have recourse to tents and grass huts. They took the precaution of being inoculated, an example which was followed by the Native Christians and also by some of the Heathen, and happily they escaped unharmed. It was not until April, 1904, that any of the work could be resumed, and four more months elapsed before it was again in full swing. The Rev. R. Baker, of Faizabad, acted as superintending missionary after the departure of the Rev. W. B. Collins for England in the spring, and ministered as he was able to the members of the congregation, who attended the services well. The studies of the 300 boys at the High School suffered, like everything else, from the plague, and the inspection was held too soon after the enforced and prolonged vacation which the outbreak caused to enable them to do themselves much credit. In the Work among Women several incidents cheered the missionaries. The two Mohammedan women whose baptisms were recorded in the Annual Reports of 1902–03 (page 209) and 1903–04 (page 201) came out of the converts' home at Allahabad, whither they had been sent, and stayed for a fortnight at Azimgarh, before proceeding to Meerut to begin work as teachers. When their relatives came to see them they spoke brightly of the peace which they had found in Christ, and urged them to accept Him as their Saviour. At the end of the year another Mohammedan woman, Sakina by name, was under instruction for baptism. Miss Luce wrote in December:—

Mohammedan inquirers.

> She was one of our zenana pupils years ago, and she then learned to love the Lord Jesus and gave her heart to Him. We told her she must try to win her husband, too. He is a police official in a good position, and they are very comfortably off. To our great sorrow he was transferred to another place, and we lost sight of her for about three years. However, one day in September last he came here to see us, saying his wife had never ceased to plead with him to come to Jesus, and now at last he was willing. He has one daughter-in-law at home whose husband has forsaken her, and she has a small child. This forms the whole of their household. As he is soon going to retire on a pension he says he will come and settle in Azimgarh that he may be taught and prepared for baptism. He is studying the Bible very earnestly now, and has sent his wife for a time to the Converts' Home to be prepared for baptism, while he is busy settling up his affairs in the distant village, where he has property. Then when his wife returns to him she says she will take care of the baby so that the daughter-in-law may go there for teaching in her turn. So ere long we hope the whole family will be brought into the fold of Christ.

A schoolgirl leads her mother to abandon idolatry.

One of the Bible-women was one day accosted as follows by a Brahman woman whom she visited weekly:—"Oh, teacher, you cannot think what good things my little girl Kisori learns at school. She hears all about the True God there, just like you teach me, and she comes home and tells her father and me all she has learnt, and tells us we ought to give up worshipping our idols; so now both she and I have quite given up idolatry, and we worship the one True God. But Kisori's father is very angry with us, and he tells us we must bathe the god every morning and worship him as we used to do; but we tell him if the god is to be bathed he must do it himself, for we will never do it any more." Both mother and daughter adhered firmly to this decision in spite of the persecution which they suffered in consequence. Miss H. L. Stowell, who worked at the station until January, 1904, when she removed to Aligarh for a time, tells of a widow who took great pleasure in listening to the Bible and to bhajans, and said one day, "My heart is responding to the voice of God's Holy Spirit." Miss Stowell adds:—

> We need to pray much for these secret disciples of the Lord. This woman's brother-in-law, at that time holding an appointment in the Judge's Court, once or twice had some conversation with me. He said that the missionaries are doing a great work among the women of India, and that he wished they would visit their homes oftener. "For," he added, "we have to break through the superstitions of generations." He would have liked his wife to sit and eat and converse with him. He showed me a religious paper he had been reading, and marked passages which had struck him, and yet this man and his household performed puja.

"We have to break through the superstitions of generations."

Miss C. M. Carrington, one of the recruits of the year, has been assigned to Azimgarh.

GORAKHPUR.

Gorakhpur.

Gorakhpur, a city twelve hours by rail from Lucknow on the west, Benares on the south, and Patna on the south-east, gives its name to a district about the size of Wales, which is rapidly being opened up by railway extension, and in which the C.M.S. is the only Society at work. It is divided for administrative purposes into six tahsils or counties, each with a large town as its centre, viz., Gorakhpur, Bansgaon, Deoria, Hata, Padrauna, and Maharajganj. The Rev. R. J. Kennedy regards the district as of great strategic importance in the missionary enterprise, and says:—

A strategic position.

> It is co-terminous on the north with the boundaries of Nepal, and during the cold-weather months many Gurkhas and Nepalese pass to and fro. Nearly all the Gurkhas who enter the Indian army are recruited in Gorakhpur. They come here from Nepal for examination and enlistment, and this season it is estimated that no less than two thousand recruits will pass through here on their way to the various regiments which comprise the famous Gurkha Brigade. In addition to these, pensioned soldiers on leaving the army are sent back here every year, and accommodation is provided for them pending their departure for their villages in Nepal. It will thus be understood that excellent opportunities exist here for influencing Gurkhas and Nepalese, if a man could be set apart to learn Gurkhali and Nepali and to work among them.

He adds that the town of Kasia, thirty-four miles east of Gorakhpur, is supposed to be the place where Buddha died, and is visited from time to time by Chinese and other pilgrims; there are also facilities for influencing by means of schools the boys belonging to a tribe of inveterate thieves of whom there is a colony in the city.

A tribe of thieves.

St. Andrew's College.

St. Andrew's College has the names of thirty-seven students on its rolls, and is steadily winning the confidence of the people. Six of the thirteen students who entered for the F.A. Examination passed. Some of the youths commenced to attend the English services held on Sundays in the station church. The High School has 290 pupils. Twelve of them went in for the Entrance Examination, and seven were successful. The Alinagar Anglo-Vernacular Middle School is situated in a crowded and important part of the city, surrounded by the houses of bankers and other gentry, and is attended by 160 boys, including some lads from the Christian village of Basharatpur. There are just over one hundred lads in the Swinton Memorial Middle School. All these institutions, as well as five Primary Schools in various parts of the city, are under Mr. Kennedy's supervision. The Boys' Orphanage has nearly fifty inmates, and connected with it are two branches of industrial work, the carpenter's shop with three apprentices, and the printing press with seven. The Rev. J. N. Carpenter, who was in general charge of the station, says that the latter is self-supporting. There was some decrease in the number of children belonging to the Girls' Anglo-Vernacular School and Orphanage which was under the management of Miss T. G. Stratton and Miss M. H. Laurence, several of them leaving to be married, three proceeding to the Normal School at Benares, and one to the Medical School at Agra. The senior teachers exercised a good influence on those under their charge, and the ladies sometimes found the elder girls of their own accord holding a prayer-meeting with several of their younger companions. One of the three unbaptized children of the school was received into the visible Church during the year.

Orphanages.

English Work.

The missionaries at Gorakhpur are responsible for ministering to the English Congregations worshipping in Christ Church, the old civil church, and St. Andrew's Church, built for the railway employés, and found that it was an advantage thus to be brought into touch with the European community, since they were able to enlist their sympathy in missionary work. Many of the women belonging to the Hindustani Congregations were greatly helped financially by the drawn-thread work which was set on foot by Mrs. Ellwood in 1897, for which they have won numbers of prizes at various exhibitions.

There are three Christian villages connected with Gorakhpur. At Basharatpur, which lies three miles to the north, there is an orphanage with twenty-seven boys. Nearly forty of the people were carried off by the plague which raged in the winter of 1903–04. The survivors returned to their homes in February, and at the end of that month gathered in the church under the leadership of the Rev. G. Emmanuel, the Indian pastor, for a service of thankgiving. Sternpur and Dharmpur, to the east of Gorakhpur, contain ten and fifteen families respectively.

A service of thanksgiving for the cessation of the plague.

The Evangelistic Work in the city and district was superintended by the Rev. W. Walton. He found that the catechists neglected to prepare their addresses for the bazaar preaching, and had little idea of how to meet the arguments which were brought against them in the course of their work. Steps were taken to remedy these defects, but no definite results followed the open-air work excepting emulation on the part of the Mohammedans, which, however, soon died away. The workers had the advantage in September of the assistance of the Rev. J. Qalandar, of the Divinity School, Allahabad, who delivered two lectures in Hindustani in the hall of St. Andrew's College, which were well attended and drew forth much controversy of a friendly nature. At the request of the wife of one of the railway employés, who took much trouble in securing a good attendance, a Sunday morning evangelistic service was held in her house for servants. When this lady's husband was transferred to another station a second lady opened her house for the services. Mr. Walton's charge includes Basti, an out-station forty miles from Gorakhpur, the centre of a district containing over 7,000 villages. The High School in the town is attended by nearly 200 boys. Seven out of the eight sent up for the Allahabad University Matriculation Examination passed, and the only candidate for the High School scholarship examinations passed in the first division. Among those baptized in the Gorakhpur district were a girl of good family, who had been cast out of her home on account of her resolve to follow Christ, and had been adopted by an Indian Christian gentleman; also two servants, one in the employment of a missionary and the other in that of an Indian Christian.

LUCKNOW.

Lucknow.

The European missionaries of the Society at LUCKNOW consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Ellwood, the Rev. and Mrs. C. G. Mylrea, and Messrs. J. McIntosh and W. H. Gray, and they were joined in November by the Rev. S. R. Morse, transferred from the Central India Mission. The pastoral care of the Hindustani Congregation, numbering some 600 souls, was in the hands of an Indian deacon, the Rev. Hari Narayan, superintended by Mr. Ellwood. A large variety of meetings was held, with the double object of studying the Word of God and stimulating practical manifestations of brotherly love. After the transfer of the Revs. P. Webber and W. Walton, early in 1904, to Secundra and Gorakhpur respectively, the charge of the High School devolved on Mr. Ellwood until the arrival of Mr. Morse. Valued assistance was rendered by the headmaster, Mr. Roy, who laboured faithfully among the 200 boys in spite of the deep domestic sorrow which befell him by the death of his youngest son after a painful illness, borne with much Christian patience. The school had to cope with the competition of many non-Christian schools. A Bible class for young English-speaking Indians was conducted by Mr. Gray, but his language study prevented him from taking an active part in the missionary operations.

High School.

Mr. Mylrea superintended the Evangelistic Work in the city, but much of his time was spent in necessary preliminary work, and he was able to do little more than visit a few Mohammedan gentlemen in their homes. Although there were no apparent results in the form of baptisms, yet the work is undoubtedly playing its part in bringing about a change in the people. Mr. Ellwood says that it is his conviction, a conviction growing stronger year by year, that men are secretly seeking the Saviour, and his testimony is of special weight, seeing that he has had thirty-four years' experience in India. He writes:—

"Men are secretly seeking the Saviour."

> Men do not come to us as once they did, saying that they wish to read the New Testament in order to see what Christianity is like. Many of them now know something about Christianity, and they seldom move in this matter till their convictions grow strong, and they have practically made up their minds that Christianity is true. This certainly applies to our large cities, where education is open to all. The undercurrent is more subtle than in the past, and there is a longing for something these men do not possess. Christ is spoken of mostly with forms of respect, and none but the rudest would openly deride Him. It is not Christ who is spoken against, but the Christian; but this may only be a form of disrespect to the Master. Still, the truth remains, and we cannot ignore it, that a change is taking place in the convictions of men regarding Christ, and its results are manifest to any thoughtful observer.

"Has Queen Victoria become a goddess yet?"

In the district, which is about the size of the county of Kent, the people were greatly affected by the plague scare, and in many villages looked upon the visits of Mr. McIntosh and his evangelists with fear and disfavour. At other places, while the Brahmans held aloof, the lower caste people welcomed the teaching, albeit their ideas concerning Christianity were somewhat strange. Once a man asked Mr. McIntosh, "Has the Maharani, Queen Victoria, become a goddess yet?" and others remarked, "Why does not the Government give an order to force us all to become Christians? Then there would be no further trouble." At Fathganj, the evangelistic school suffered through a rival school being opened by a Hindu pundit; but, nevertheless, it furnished opportunities of giving Bible teaching to many who would not otherwise have received it. The Christians at Nigohan, between forty and fifty in number, took steps to commence building a church. The dispensary and two branch dispensaries were carried on by the hospital assistant, Mr. J. Williams, who qualified at the Agra Medical School. The visits of out-patients which numbered 2,200 in 1903, increased to 3,900 in 1904, notwithstanding the fact that the branch dispensaries were closed for five months on account of the plague, and the people appeared to recognize that the sympathy with which they met was an essential feature of the Gospel, and not a mere trap for the unwary. A man and his wife were baptized who were brought under Christian influence by the coachman of the ladies of the Z.B.M.M.

FAIZABAD.

The crying need of more missionaries may be appreciated by a consideration of the work which was under the supervision of the Rev. R. Baker during a great part of the year under review. He gave the details of it as follows in the summer :— Overwhelming work for one man.

1. Faizabad, population 20,000. (a) City preaching; (b) Middle School, 100 students; (c) Women's work—two Bible-women, 150 zenanas visited, girls' school, women's sewing-class; (d) Christian congregation, eighty souls. Ajodhya—(a) Two preachers; a most difficult place, crowded with temples; (b) Lower Middle School, 100 boys; (c) Christian congregation; (d) Zenana Hospital; Z.B.M.M. workers.

2. Sultanpur. Entire district in our care, and no other Society but C.M.S. responsible for population of 1,000,000.

3. Azimgarh, 100 miles distant, with a population of over 2,000,000, and no other Society working among them. High School, 350 students; city preaching; colporteur; village school nine miles distant; zenana work in charge of Miss Evelyn Luce; Christian congregation and all it entails.

The Middle School at FAIZABAD earned the commendation of the Government Inspector for the marked improvement in its work, tone, and discipline. It was carried on, however, in a rented building, and on notice being given to quit, no suitable premises for the institution could be found. This school, together with that for Hindu girls and the women's work, were all closed at the end of August, 1904, in consequence of the decision to transfer the head quarters of the superintending missionary to Sultanpur. The school at Ajodhya, however, was continued, and every effort was made to attract pupils, but only the very poorest boys attended, and they were of limited mental powers. Evangelistic work was carried on at the great melas, to one of which 240,000 passengers were brought by rail from the north side of the river, while an equal number came by road and rail from the south. Serious opposition was experienced at one of these festivals from the adherents of the Arya Somaj. Mr. Baker writes :— Faizabad. Opposition by the Arya Somaj.

They hired preachers, who came unpleasantly near us where we were preaching to the people, and by every means in their power spoiled our work. One such speaker, carrying a long staff and wearing an imitation leopard-skin on his back, came within earshot of our position and began in a violent manner to harangue the crowd, ridiculing us in every way. At short intervals the crowd was encouraged to shout, "Ram, Ram, Sita Ram ki jai," so that we were quite overpowered and our few listeners attracted away for the time being. This went on for some time, and finding we did not give in to them and go away, they grew more and more bold and came nearer and nearer, until we could clearly hear what was being said. We, however, stuck to our guns, though our crowd had several times been dispersed by emissaries from them, and when, at last, as night fell we closed our work for the day, their crowd at once broke up and got out of hand, closing around us as we walked away, gnashing upon us with their teeth, spitting on the road in their anger as we passed, and heaping all manner of abuse on us and upon Christ Whom we preach. It was a stirring moment with the hundreds of yelling, frantic people at our heels, and it was a thing to be thankful for to get safely away.

The Rev. J. J. Johnson, of Benares, stayed for a fortnight in Ajodhya, visiting the Sanscrit monasteries and colleges. In the chief Hindu temple he had several conversations with the four Work in Sanscrit monasteries.

mahants (heads of the Hindu community), who are followers of the Vaishnava doctrines, and believe in God as distinct from the soul, in the reality of the world, and in Divine incarnations, and are therefore more ready than some of their co-religionists to listen to the truth. These men showed great friendliness, and at the last interview which Mr. Johnson had with them spoke of his paying another visit in order to teach them more fully. In the pathashalas (Sanscrit Colleges), too, a kind reception was given, and in one of them the classes were suspended in order that the students might hearken to the discussion which took place. Two sabhas (public discussions) were held in the Ram Kot, or Fort of Rama, where the Bara Mahant, the supreme head of the bairagis of Ajodhya resides. Mr. Johnson thus describes the first of them :—

Public discussions.

> It was a striking scene. By half-past four in the afternoon there had assembled in the huge courtyard on the broad platform surrounding the main entrance, a great crowd of pundits, bairagis, and representatives of all the religious classes in Ajodhya, and the crowd continued to swell in numbers till it reached, as some estimated, to between three and four thousand. In the middle there were carpets spread, and chairs and benches placed for us and some twenty or more learned pundits and sadhus. Soon after we sat down the discussion began, and continued for two hours and upwards till darkness came on. The chief points discussed were the differences between Christianity and Ramanujaism, of which the leading pundit was a follower. One of the great merits of this system is that, according to it, the world is ultimately a reality, not an illusion—nay, God, matter, and soul are all real and distinct in their own nature. In opening the discussion, I spoke of the common ground between Christianity and the Vaishnava doctrines—the right thing was to investigate further and see whether in holding the eternal existence of the soul, as according to the general Hindu belief they must and did, and thus setting aside its dependence for existence on God, they were not committing a great error. The soul was real and distinct, as they held, but not eternally existent, or how could it be dependent on and subordinate to God, as they also held? Even if the three eternal distinct existences which they held were possible, what reason could be given for the subordination of souls to the Supreme Soul? Only one reason for such subordination seemed fitting, namely, that all souls derived their existence from Him. Hence their dependence on Him for salvation, as for all other things. Another and kindred error to this was the holding the eternity of the world's existence, and therefore the bondage from all eternity of souls, and the necessary and by them admitted inference of the eternity of the world's existence in the present mixed condition of physical and moral evil. How much more reasonable and worthy the Christian doctrine of the soul's origin from God, and so real dependence on Him, and the trust and hope given to us of "the restoration of all things"—of "the creation being delivered from the bondage of corruption into the liberty of the glory of the children of God."

An eloquent speaker in Sanscrit.

Various speakers took up the discussion on the Ramanuja side, but the most prominent one was the most learned pundit in that system, who is supported by the Bara Mahant at the Ram Kot. I have never in Benares or elsewhere met with this man's equal in command of Sanscrit. He was the most eloquent speaker of it that I have ever heard. The streams of speech he poured forth were wonderful, full of long Sanscrit compounds, and displaying a marvellous proficiency in all the great treatises of his sect. As the discussion went on on these and other points, the excitement grew extreme, the tension great, and the enthusiasm on the part of the bairagis correspondingly great, until at last, as they crowded round and listened, a prolonged shout from the surging multitude rent the air of "Sita Ram ki jai, Sita Ram ki jai." It was an exciting moment, but the Mahant rose and spoke, and the assembled bairagis' shouts sank into silence. The remainder of the sabha was very quiet and attentive while I expounded in Hindi, for the crowds of young vidyarthis (students), the meaning of all we had talked about.

Besides this public work Mr. Johnson accomplished some of a more private nature, visiting or receiving visits from individuals, and conversing with them. One of those who came was a yogi, whom he first met at the sabha already described. He writes of him:— A remarkable yogi.

He was strongly impressed with the idea of spreading the Vaishnava faith, and had therefore made his head quarters at Ajodhya—to his mind (as stated in a prospectus which he presented) "the holiest place on earth"—in order to work among bairagis and others there, after the manner of a Christian missionary, and to found at Ajodhya, as "earth's holiest place," a "library of God-showing books," and a "college for Bhaktas"; while his wife, as a "nun," would superintend the training of women. He was a very remarkable man, of keen intellect, and deeply earnest in his views.

This yogi, who was accompanied by several friends, said that he wished to find some basis of union with Mr. Johnson, something to which they both could subscribe, so that they might work for one common end.

Once a month Mr. Baker visited Sultanpur, a town thirty-seven miles from Faizabad, and called on a few of the better educated babus and Government clerks and officials.

AGRA AND SECUNDRA.

The Rev. H. B. Durrant, who became Acting-Principal of St. John's College, AGRA, when the Principal, the Rev. J. P. Haythornthwaite, left for England in June, 1904, reports several changes in the staff. The Rev. W. Huntly, M.A., M.D., B.Sc., a Scotch missionary in charge of the Christian Medical Boarding-house in the city, most kindly gave his services, without remuneration, in teaching philosophy to the third and fourth year classes, and also took the M.A. class in English literature; Mr. J. Devadasen, an Indian Christian, who for five years had been superintendent of the Hindu Hostel, was appointed assistant professor of science and mathematics; and Mr. S. W. Bobb, the best athlete the College has ever turned out, who was placed fifth in order of merit in the whole Allahabad University in the 1904 B.A. Examination, became second master in the school. The average monthly attendance in the College Department, which was ninety-six in 1902, and 135 in the following year, rose to 150 during the year under review, the numbers in the Collegiate School for the same years being 398, 412, and 495 respectively. There was a corresponding advance in the amount received in fees, which increased from Rs. 10,512 in 1903 to Rs. 13,786. Agra. St. John's College. Increase in attendance and in fees.

The Business Department paid its way, but suffered somewhat from growing competition. None of the students who entered for the M.A., LL.B., and D.Sc. Examinations were successful, but of the eleven sent up for the B.A. Examination eight passed, four of them in the second division, of whom two were placed fourth and fifth respectively, and were awarded Government scholarships. Forty-three men went in for the F.A. Examination, and twenty-six were successful: three passed in the first division, one of them being placed first in order of merit in the whole University, and all three being awarded Government scholarships. Seven out of seventeen passed the Entrance Examination of the Allahabad University, and three out of ten the School Final Examination. Some of the meetings of the Debating and Literary Society threw light on the real views of the men, and showed how hard the old ideas die. Mr. Durrant writes :—

Examination successes.

> We had a debate on the subject of the seclusion of women, the purdah system, and, much to my surprise, a large majority declared in favour of the system. Their arguments are sometimes rather ingenious. When the same subject was being discussed by the Debating Society of our neighbours, the Agra College, one speaker put forward the example of the English as a reason for abolishing the custom of seclusion. "Oh, but," said the next speaker, "the English have a purdah system of their own, where a lady and gentleman will travel 600 miles in the same railway-carriage and not speak to each other unless they have been introduced. Surely you have a very thorough system of purdah."

The purdah system of the English!

Concerning what he calls "the directly missionary side of the work" of the College Mr. Durrant says :—

> The 150 students, half a dozen Christians, a dozen Mohammedans, and the rest Hindus, are gathered in the big College Hall, and after the roll has been called the rest of the first period is given to the Bible-lesson. As a general rule they give close and, apparently, very sympathetic attention. Let us try, then, to estimate the results of this contact between the young minds of India and the Gospel of Jesus Christ continued through four and sometimes eight and ten years. As a whole, I think we may say thankfully that the tone is wonderfully high both of manners and of honour and duty. We get plenty of testimony as to this from outside witnesses. But though this is much, I think there is more than this. It has been said over and over again that Western education makes infidels of these boys; the Christian teaching given in mission-colleges, while it does not, at any rate on a large scale, make Christians, acts as a most efficient corrective to this. In all my years at St. John's I have only known one student who took up the position of blank atheism, and he had only been for a very short time in the mission-college. The general attitude, then, on the part of students who have been with us a few months, allowing for the measure of indifference which must be expected in any large number of people, may fairly be described as one of sympathetic interest towards religion, which they acknowledge must have a part in the complete life, and willingness (sometimes eagerness) to hear what Christ the great Teacher has to say on the eternal problems of "the Whence" and "Whither?" and the ever-present questions of Duty and Conduct.
> Individuals, of course, go farther than this. As a response to an appeal to them to give God some place in their lives, one student came to me and told me that he had started a religious society, which met weekly and discussed religious problems and read religious books. Another asked me to write out a prayer for him, which, apparently he uses every day. Another, coming, as they so constantly do, to get books to read, described what he wanted as some book which would enable him to live near to God.

A student learns that men's souls are equal in God's sight.

As an evidence of the result of the more general teaching of the College, I may cite the case of one of my best students, a fine fellow, of manly and independent character, who told me that the result of his education had been to leave his Hindu orthodoxy unshaken except in one point, and that was that he could no longer accept the teaching of his sacred books that the Shastras must not even be read in the hearing of the lowest caste—that he had learnt that men's souls were equal in the sight of God.

The College and Collegiate School Athletic Tournaments had to be postponed owing to the plague. The gathering of "old boys" held in December, 1903 (see last year's Report, page 205), was so helpful that it was repeated in 1904, and a good number were present. One former student who took his B.A. in 1902, and went on to Roorkee, the Engineering College of the United Provinces, passed out of that institution first among the Indian candidates, and was awarded the silver medal, and another, Mr. Edwin, who was placed in the second division in his B.A. Examination, after studying at St. Paul's Divinity School, Allahabad, was placed, as already mentioned, in the first class in the Universities' Preliminary Examination for Candidates for Holy Orders. A new wing with accommodation for fifteen men was added to the Hindu Hostel, but, nevertheless, many more applications for admission were received than could be granted. The Rev. H. W. V. Birney, the Vice-Principal of the College, superintended the Christian Hostel, which was so crowded that he was obliged to place beds in the dining-room. The average number of inmates was sixty-six. Three Sunday-schools were carried on by the students, and the Y.M.C.A. meetings were well attended throughout the year. An Indian Christian of high character, and with long experience as an inspector of schools in a Native State, was secured as headmaster of the Anglo-Vernacular Middle School at Belinganj, which is affiliated to the College.

Hostels.

The lamented death of Miss K. C. Wright (see supra, page 188), who with her sister Miss A. F. Wright was Joint-Principal of the Girls' High School, and the ill-health of Miss A. M. Cox, which obliged her to return home in the autumn, sadly depleted the staff of that institution, but Miss G. M. Dodson returned in August from Muttra, whither she had gone in February; Miss V. C. Saunders, Miss de Selincourt, of the Bombay Missionary Settlement for University Women, and Miss A. Brutton, of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission, gave temporary help; and in the autumn Miss W. M. Weitbrecht, whose services were lent by the Punjab Mission, joined the staff for a time. The school, which in future is to be known as the "Queen Victoria High School," is intended for the children of upper-class Indian Christians. The late Miss K. C. Wright wrote in the C.M. Gleaner for September, 1904:—

> It must not be thought that this means the daughters of rajahs or other wealthy men. Our girls are generally the children of small Government and railway officials, clerks, assistant doctors, teachers in our mission-schools and colleges, C.M.S. pastors, &c. Most of them live in very simple homes, and perhaps keep one servant, but their parents make a great point of their passing the Government examinations, and we work up to the matriculation examination of the Allahabad University.

Dedication of new buildings.

The new buildings erected for the school were occupied in July, 1904, and a solemn service of dedication, conducted in Hindustani, was held five months later. There was no candidate sent up from the school for the Middle Examination, and the one girl who went in for the Entrance Examination failed, but she had missed a great deal of her work through illness. The girls did well in the Diocesan Scripture Examination, all but two of them gaining honours, and one obtaining the first place among all the candidates, although many of them were English. Miss S. Bland had the help of Miss C. E. Fry and Miss M. E. Schneider in the superintendence of the Vernacular Schools, but the last-named was laid aside for several months by sickness. One Bengali school and two Mohammedan schools had to be closed, in the case of the two latter because of the irregular attendance of the children, but a new Hindi school was opened in the house of a temple Brahman, whose daughter became one of the most eager pupils. The total number of girls was considerably smaller than in 1903.

Women's Work.

The Work among Women in the zenanas was carried on by Mrs. W. McLean and many of the ladies already mentioned. Miss Bland speaks of some 250 women as under instruction, and tells in her Annual Letter of some former zenana pupils, who passed away during her furlough in the fear of God. Every Friday a large Bible-class was held by Mrs. Birney and Miss Fry for the Christian Hindustani girl students at the Dufferin Hospital.

In the absence of an Indian clergyman the Congregation was under the charge of the Rev. W. McLean. Nineteen candidates were confirmed, the offertories and subscriptions towards religious work showed an increase, and the systematic visitation which was carried on brought about an improvement in the attendance at the services.

Summer School for Village Christians.

In the summer a number of the village Christians were assembled at Agra for a Summer School. Classes were held daily for them for about a month, and instruction was given in simple Gospel truths. Some of the women are said to have "put their hearts into the work" and made great advance both in their own reading and in learning to teach. In the Evangelistic Work Mr. McLean had the Rev. W. V. K. Treanor as his colleague. Services of a simple Gospel character were held every Sunday evening in the three mission-halls, and the dispensary at Khandouli, a suburb of Agra, was instrumental in removing prejudice, and affording opportunities for the distribution of Christian literature. Once a month Dr. Huntly, whose kind help at St. John's College has already been mentioned, visited the dispensary and performed major operations. The chief opponents of the bazaar preaching in the city were the members of the Arya Somaj, which has been described as a "comfortable compromise between Hinduism and Christianity," but often the people listened quietly and attentively. Of the preaching in the muhallas—i.e., the quarters of the city away from the bazaars—Mr. McLean says:—

> This resembles village preaching. In the bazaar our catechists stand in some public place, or corner, where many people are likely to pass, so you get a constantly changing audience, and probably few of the people you preach to one day are present to hear you the next, whereas in the muhallas the people who hear live in the vicinity, and frequently take out their charpoys and sit down to listen, almost like a regular congregation. Thus you get an audience which is much the same every time you go. This form of preaching is, I think, likely to be more effective than that in the bazaar.

The Agra district contains a population of about 1,000,000 souls, and is divided into seven Tahsils, in three of which the Society has out-stations, while itineration is carried on in two of the others, leaving two quite untouched. The plague raged with violence for three months at Ferozabad, and the population of the town, which is normally 18,000, was speedily reduced by the death of some of the inhabitants and the flight of others to 3,000. The option was given to the catechist of coming into Agra, but he elected to remain at his post as long as there were people among whom to work. At the beginning of 1905 a deputation from the town waited upon Mr. McLean requesting him to take over the municipal school. The members of the Municipal Board expressed their willingness to hand over the school building, furniture, &c., to the Mission, and also 5 per cent. of their income—i.e., the amount ordered by Government to be devoted to the support of the school. Twelve adults (four men and eight women) and seven children were baptized at Amalkhera in December, 1904. In the summer, finding that but few listened to the bazaar preaching in the mornings, Mr. Treanor commenced to visit the villages in the immediate neighbourhood of Agra, going out to them in turn, and by this means reached many of them once a fortnight. Later in the year he and Mrs. Treanor and Miss Saunders spent several months in camp, for the second year in succession choosing Jarkhi as their centre, and working among the fifty-five to sixty-five villages found within a radius of four miles. Mr. Treanor wrote as follows in November, 1904, of one of his experiences in that part:—

A catechist cleaves to his post in spite of plague.

> Last year we opened a school near here for the Chamars (workers in leather) at their repeated earnest request. . . . The teacher in this school in the evenings goes out into the villages round about. He has about sixty on his list. I went with him to one of these on Saturday morning, where he has fourteen sweepers asking for baptism. I explained to them some of the things they would have to give up if they became Christians, such as child-marriage and food offered to idols, and they said they were willing to give up all these. The only points they hesitated about were the giving up of transgression of the eighth commandment, lying and thieving, which I think showed a certain honesty of purpose in them. They seemed disappointed that I was not going to baptize them there and then. I might add that in this village we were cordially received by the zemindar, although he knew we were working among the sweepers.

Secundra. Orphanages.

In February, 1904, the Rev. B. Herklots was transferred to Meerut, and handed over the work at SECUNDRA to the Rev. P. Webber. The buildings in which the Orphanages are accommodated were in a terribly dilapidated condition, and at the beginning of the rainy season the roof of the girls' school collapsed; happily no one was injured, though thirty girls had been sitting an hour previously just where the fall occurred. Under the circumstances Mr. Webber had to devote much of his time to arranging and superintending repairs. Nine of the children were received into the visible Church.

MUTTRA.

Muttra.

The missionaries at MUTTRA during the whole or part of 1904 were the Rev. P. M. Zenker and the Misses M. Stratton (until March, when she left on furlough), E. M. F. Major (who was obliged by ill health to spend six months in the hills), E. Worthington, G. M. Dodson (from February until August, when she was transferred to Agra), and M. S. Lawson. The two last-named were chiefly engaged in language study, in which they received much help from Mr. Zenker.

The story of one of the Indian helpers of these missionaries was told by Miss Stratton at the C.M.S. Summer School at Keswick as follows:—

"Are you not lonely?" "No, I have Christ."

Her name, as translated, is the Possessor of a Good Mind. She lived in a Hindu home for many years, and was very happy in it. She had a kind husband who treated her almost as his equal. She had been persuaded to learn to read, and eventually did learn. God visited this seemingly happy home, and in one year ninety-eight of her relations died. This led her to think about where she was going to spend eternity. She began to read all the religious books she could lay her hands upon. She said to her husband, "I have read the Koran and the Vedas; you must give me a Bible." Her husband had a Bible, and she read it, and God graciously revealed Himself to her in His Word. She became full of joy, and wished her husband to become a Christian. "No," he said, "I will wait until I have taken up my pension." But before he could take up his pension he passed away. When she became a widow, after great trouble and sorrow and difficulty, she obtained work, and she is working now as a witness in Muttra of what God can do with one who is determined to face the question of giving up all for Christ. She lives in the midst of a heathen city, with no Christian near her, and sometimes we say, "Are not you lonely?" "No, I have Christ, I have His Word, and I want no more; I am perfectly happy, I will work for Him as long as I have any breath, and I am longing to go to His home."

The whole of the work was affected by the plague which caused heavy mortality during the early part of the year, and not only led to the withdrawal from the city of nearly half the population, but also brought about a suspicious attitude on the part of those who remained. Happily none of the Christians were carried off by the dread disease. The schools, four in number, contained about 150 girls, that in the city accounting for half the total. The little school for the daughters of the poorer Christians had several tokens of blessing vouchsafed to it. Miss Major, who shared in the work of this school, also gave daily Bible instruction to some of the non-Christian servants of the missionaries, besides teaching several of them to read.

Work among Women in the city had to be suspended because of the plague, and advantage was taken of the opportunity to give a fortnight's regular instruction to the Bible-women. Miss Worthington says that it is almost impossible for most of the women to confess Christ in baptism, and adds:—

Difficulty in the way of a woman being baptized.

A dear girl who can read the Bible nicely, and has one of her own, given her by a little girl in England, came to me in a house next door to her own the other day, and said, "Take away the Bible, Miss Sahiba; they will not let me read it"—and "what should I do if they turned me out?" As we talked she had tears in her eyes. I did not mention public confession of Christ—it was quite from her own thoughts she spoke of being turned out. I said there is always an open door with us if it comes to that, but she mutely turned away at that. Now she is a widow, whom people might think to be freer than others to do as she might choose.

There were numerous openings for work in the villages, but comparatively few could be taken advantage of.

ALIGARH.

Aligarh.

The staff of the Society at ALIGARH consisted of the Rev. J. F. Pemberton, the superintending missionary, and Mrs. Pemberton, the Rev. J. S. C. Bannerjee, an Indian clergyman, Mrs. E. Durrant, Miss E. B. Durrant, and Miss J. E. Puckle. Miss H. L. Stowell also resided at the station for a few months. The plague broke out in the city in the autumn. On one Sunday 150 deaths occurred, and in one household, in December, nine out of ten persons belonging to it were carried off. The educational work naturally suffered from the outbreak, and the Anglo-Vernacular School experienced another trial through the fall of the head-master and his consequent dismissal. The master of the Primary Vernacular School is an earnest Christian, and has taught many of the Hindu boys under his care to pray in their homes both morning and evening. One day he requested those boys who had done so to stand up, and the majority of the lads rose in response. Mrs. Durrant had the management of the three Girls'

Schools.

Schools, for Hindus, Bengalis, and Mohammedans respectively. At the Bengali school a good teacher was found to take the place of the rather unsatisfactory worker who had left, and the attendance of the children increased during the first half of 1904. Soon after the rains three girls belonging to Mrs. Durrant's Bible-class in the Hindu School died of the plague, and all the schools had to be closed. That for Mohammedans was reopened early in November. Several hours each day were devoted by Mrs. Pemberton to teaching Scripture in the schools, and Mr. Bannerjee conducted a Bible-class for the non-Christian students attending the Government High School. Much help was rendered to Miss Durrant in the Dispensary work, by the new civil surgeon, and also by the daughter of one of the catechists. This girl who, though not fully qualified, has had some medical training, voluntarily offered her services, and carried on the dispensary during the six months when Miss Durrant was prevented by ill health from managing it. Six in-patients were received, and 2,000 visits of out-patients were recorded in eight months. The people listened eagerly to the teaching which was given, their attention being especially noticeable after the plague increased. Visits were paid to certain of the educated gentlemen of the town, and some who were once indifferent to Christianity commenced to read the Bible and consider the claims of Christ. The seven Bible-women superintended by Miss Puckle carried on the Work among Women, and between them paid nearly 5,000 visits, going every week to 180 different houses in the city, almost all of them belonging to the upper classes, besides twenty in the Police Lines. Two instances are referred to in which good impressions appeared to have been made: a girl having left Aligarh wrote saying that she daily read the Bible given to her and prayed to God; and a woman, a former pupil in a mission-school, said that when alone at night Bible stories often recurred to her memory and brought her much comfort.

Dispensary.

The school at Bulandshahr was attended by an increasing number of boys, and won the commendation of the Government inspector. That gentleman remarked in the course of a conversation with Mr. Pemberton that "mission-schools were doing a vast amount of good, that their influence was widely felt, and that many of the people preferred them for their boys, because there was a better tone pervading them than that in other schools." When itinerating in the villages of the neighbourhood the workers had a more favourable reception than ever before, though the Arya Somaj movement is fast leavening the people with a spirit of hostility against Christianity. The opposition of the adherents of that movement was in evidence at the time of the mela at Anupshahr. Mr. Bannerjee describes their action, the manner in which it was dealt with, and the sequel, as follows :—

They made various efforts to interrupt us in our preaching. Sometimes they would challenge us for public discussions, sometimes they would come to us in the garb of inquirers, and in the midst of our preaching try to put a stop to our work by putting indecent questions as to the Virgin birth of our Saviour, while at times they would even send some wicked men to cause disturbance in our preaching. Some of our men lost their patience and suggested that we should pay them in their own coin, but I restrained them by saying "Remember that we are Christian preachers. Let us show ourselves Christians. We shall win them with Christian love only. Let us wield the sword of the Spirit with the hand of love." And I am glad to testify that after all love was victorious. When our camp moved on from Anupshahr to Jahangirabad I made a point of visiting these enemies in their village called Sakhni. They were so much surprised with our visit and expressions of Christian love that instead of showing a spirit of hostility they gave us a friendly reception, and we preached boldly to a mixed crowd of Hindus, Mohammedans, and Aryas.

"We shall win them with Christian love only."

A number of Scripture portions were sold at the mela, and a Brahman priest was met who said that he had purchased a copy of St. Luke's Gospel in the previous year, and while he had come for the purpose of bathing he was also inspired by the hope that he would be able to obtain another book. Forty zenanas were regularly visited by the Bible-woman at Soron, and both zenana and school work were carried on at Bilaspur. At Hathras, where a school was opened in the autumn of 1903, a couple of Bible-women commenced work in the following August. Within six weeks they had gained admittance into thirty-five of the largest houses, but then the plague broke out, and the work had to stop for a time. The school at Secunderabad was given up in consequence of its lack of success. Miss Puckle spent four months of the year itinerating among the villages of the district, and often obtained permission to speak to the boys attending the Government schools, and sell books to them. One evening on returning to camp she found an old man and his son sitting outside her tent. Having heard that Miss Puckle was in the neighbourhood, they had walked several miles, in their anxiety to hear more from the Bible. The old man said that the Scripture portions given to him in 1903 had been read by the pundit of his village to the other men, and he asked for more books to carry home with him. Seven adults were baptized, among them an old man, his wife and daughter, and his adopted son. Mr. Pemberton writes :

Speaking to boys attending Government schools.

We called the old man Simeon, and his wife Anna. Before the immersion ceremony I asked Simeon if he would mind going under the water, as it might be cold. He replied, "Sir, if there were ice on the water I wouldn't mind. What is that in comparison to what Christ suffered for me?" He showed an interesting disregard for prescribed formulas. When in the service I said, "Wilt thou be baptized in this faith?" he rejoined, "I have come here for that purpose." There had been no special mission influence at work in bringing Simeon to Christ. The contact with Indian Christians was the primary cause.

A man won for Christ by contact with Indian Christians.

Another of the converts, in whose conversion Miss Harris of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission at Khurja was the instrument, nineteen years before had wished to become a Christian, but was then dissuaded by his elder brother. Later on that brother accepted Christ, and then Dharmjit, the convert in question, tried to hold him back, but without success. The elder brother with evident signs of emotion delivered an address at the baptismal service.

MEERUT.

Meerut.

MEERUT, one of the oldest of the Society's stations in North India, is the nineteenth city in India in point of size, with a population of 120,000 souls. There is a large military cantonment; the town is wealthy; and the country districts are fertile and prosperous. The European missionaries at the station during the whole or part of 1904 were the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Harrison, the Rev. and Mrs. B. Herklots, and Misses A. B. Davis and E. M. Doyle (transferred in January from Basharatpur and Ghaziabad, respectively), M. Cadman-Jones, E. Strœlin (formerly of the C.E.Z.M.S. but now on the staff of the C.M.S.), and H. L. Stowell. The Boys' High School, with 230 names on its rolls, which was superintended by Mr. Herklots, suffered through the fewness and lack of efficiency of the Christian masters on the staff. Strenuous efforts were made to improve the Scripture instruction both directly, by teaching the boys, and also indirectly, by teaching the masters how to teach the Bible. Miss Strœlin, who was in charge of the Girls' Schools, recalls the great change which has taken place in the city during the twenty-three years that she has been privileged to work there. In old days the only means of inducing the children to attend was by paying them to do so, but that custom was abolished long ago, and though female education is not yet appreciated as it should be, nevertheless a great step in advance has been made. The number of pupils has steadily increased in spite of competition and of the fear of Christian teaching, which was felt to an exceptional degree during 1904; there are now the names of 173 children on the rolls. Better still, several of the pupils have shown that the teaching they have received has not been in vain. Some of the children were carried off by the plague during the year. One of them died with the name of Christ on her lips, and during her illness would not allow her Gospel to be taken from under her pillow, and of another it is said that she "loved to hear of the Saviour, and was not afraid to die, as she knew that she was going to Him." Miss Doyle tells of a former pupil who was married, and, when ill, begged to be spoken to about Christ, declaring that she and her husband were both Christians, and were only waiting for the death of his parents to declare themselves as such; and Miss Cadman-Jones writes:—

Mothers of mission-school children found to know about Christ.

Two or three times when visiting the mothers of school children I have been surprised to find how much they knew about the Lord Jesus. No Bible-woman had visited them, they could only have learned from the children. One little girl was not allowed to come to school for some time because her father did not approve of "the Old, Old Story," which shows he must have read it when she took it home.

Women's Work.

The increased facilities for Work among Women can be appreciated by comparing Miss Strœlin's statement that twenty-three years ago "most of the zenana doors were jealously closed to the Christian teacher, and it was only with difficulty that we could enter a very few of the respectable houses," with the following extract from the Annual Letter of Miss Cadman-Jones:—

Numerous openings.

Many zenanas where the women want to learn have to be left unvisited owing to lack of workers. The other day, passing down a street, I heard shouted from the roof, "Miss Sahiba, come in here." At first, being in a hurry, I paid no attention, but as shouts of "Don't you hear?" followed me down the street, I stopped and asked what they wanted; of course, it was, "Please come and teach us to read." Reluctantly I had to refuse, as it was quite impossible to take up any new houses.

The baptism of the Mohammedan converts spoken of in last year's Report (page 214) closed the doors of some zenanas for a time, but they gradually re-opened. Several interesting incidents in connexion with this branch of the work are mentioned. In one house, from which the missionaries were temporarily excluded, a mother and her daughter continued to read their New Testament by themselves; in another, a Begum read and explained the Gospel as well as she could to the other women in the house; and in a third, a high-caste Hindu lady, who was leaving to nurse two invalids at Delhi, when told that the task would be heavy, replied, "Oh! I do not mind. I am trying to be like the Lord Jesus. He did more than that for us, He gave his life."

"I am trying to be like the Lord Jesus."

Evangelistic Work in the city was prosecuted by means of open-air preaching in the bazaars to fairly attentive audiences, and by the systematic visitation of the muhallas. Preaching was diligently carried on during the Nanchandi mela, a large fair and industrial exhibition promoted by the Government, which was held in April, 1904. An attempt was made to reach the educated Indian gentlemen by sending them a printed letter both in English and Urdu, accompanied by a copy of the Gospels and two or three tracts, stating the pleasure Mr. Herklots would have in making their acquaintance and exchanging thoughts with them on the highest of topics. He was able afterwards to exchange calls with five or six gentlemen, most of them barristers, with whom he had some long and interesting talks on spiritual matters, and he heard indirectly of other good results springing from the effort.

Mr. Harrison and Mr. Herklots divided the district between them, the former taking the eastern portion, and both unhappily agree that the character of the village Christians who have been gathered in from the low-caste Lal Begis during the last few years leaves much to be desired. The former writes:—

Painful report of village Christians.

As yet none of our Christians have broken away from their heathen customs. They attend the Hindu bathings in the Ganges. The household goddesses are still worshipped by the women. The Hindu festivals are kept, charms are retained, fakirs are consulted as to the propitious time to marry and fix the day, child-marriage is universal, women are bought and sold as wives, the Sabbath is not kept, marriages are conducted according to heathen rites. One feels that if our village Christians are to retain the name of Christians they must submit to instruction, and one must see some breaking away from old heathen paths. One great hindrance to those connected with the C.M.S. submitting to instruction is the fact that those belonging to another Mission have been baptized while they retain their heathen customs. Discipline has no effect on our people, for I have tried it.

To the same effect Miss Davis, who itinerated in the district, says, "The Christians seem to have no love for Christ, and no desire whatever to learn of him." The attendance at the boarding-school at Jeyi for the sons of village Christians fell to four, but the lads though few in number were promising. At Dadari, a village on the Saharanpur road, Miss Davis spent a fortnight visiting the women from house to house for four or five hours every day. She felt with respect to the majority of them that she had not "reached the stage of sowing," there was "so much ploughing to be done," but four of the women were hopeful. Open doors were found at two other villages in the same neighbourhood. As many of the missionaries as were able went to the Garhmukteswar mela, which was visited by 250,000 people, the largest number of late years. The enormous crowd was collected on both banks of the Ganges, and extended on one side for quite three miles. Instead of attempting combined preaching, each worker went off alone, armed with a large bundle of books and some tracts. These he sold, and while doing so had endless opportunities of preaching to sometimes large crowds. Mr. Harrison states that the people were more interested in the Gospel than at any other mela he has visited, and that over 1,000 Scripture portions and tracts were sold, while quantities of leaflets were distributed to those who appeared likely to read them. Inquirers were numerous, among them being many upper class Hindus and Mohammedans, but hardly one of them persevered. The need of careful investigation and testing before admitting any into the visible Church is illustrated by the following extract from the Annual Letter of Mr. Herklots:—

"Much ploughing to be done."

Work at a mela.

One day we went by train to a village named Sikri, famed for a temple at which there is a yearly sacrifice of goats to the goddess of the village.

Parents will make a vow that if a son is born, or a daughter is satisfactorily married, they will sacrifice a goat to the Devi of Sikri. I went there so as to see and examine a number of low-caste people who professed themselves as inquirers and had been receiving teaching for baptism. We found, however, on arriving, that these very people had taken the contract for the sacrificing of the goats, from which they doubtless made a handsome profit. In consequence of this the rumour spread about in Meerut that the money gained by this heathen observance went to the Christian missionary, and so these hypocritical inquirers bade fair to be a source of scandal to the Mission. I at once disowned them as inquirers, both in order to stop the scandal, and also that it might be a lesson to others of a similar type that there could be no compromise between Christianity and Hinduism.

A source of scandal.

Miss G. L. West and Miss E. R. Hall were able to carry on their work at GHAZIABAD without interruption, but they lost the help of Miss E. M. Doyle, who was transferred to Meerut in January, 1904. Miss Hall had charge of the English Sunday-school, and Miss West reopened by request a Bible-class for young people in connexion with it, which by December had a membership of sixteen. The Middle School for boys had 120 names on its rolls, and the school for Hindu girls thirty-five names. Some of the elder girls were married in the summer, and left the school, but those whose husbands lived in Ghaziabad continued their studies at home. There was an increase in the number of patients attending the dispensaries. The five Bible-women paid over 5,200 visits during the twelve months. Many of the people listened earnestly to the teaching which they received, and declared that they no longer believed in their idols or in the efficacy of the Ganges for the washing away of sin. Miss Hall mentions a young widow who began to say openly that she would like to learn more about Christ. At first her mother-in-law thought that she was joking, but as soon as she realized that she was in earnest she made arrangements for her removal, and nothing more could be heard of the younger woman. It was interesting to find that some classes of Rajputs never do any work on Sundays, and make a point of giving their animals a rest on that day. Miss Hall writes of a woman of one of these classes:—

Ghaziabad.

Sunday observance by Rajputs.

She has such strong ideas about "giving one day" to God that a month or two ago, when her brother and a few friends came to her house to attend some festival, and one of the friends wished to return on the Sunday following, she and her husband objected, saying their oxen had never been yoked on a Sunday and it would be a sin to do so. However, the young man got his own way, and as there was only the one cart to take them back to their village, about thirty miles away, the others went with him. On the road they had an accident going across some rough fields, and her brother was nearly killed. She hopes now they have had a lesson.

In the autumn the work at Dhoon, which had been suspended for two years, was recommenced, the people expressing their pleasure at seeing the missionaries again, and saying that they hoped the latter would not let "the tie of affection break."

ANNFIELD.

Annfield. The residence of Mr. and Mrs. T. Law, of the Victoria Association, at ANNFIELD, was broken by a trip to Kashmir in May, 1904, for the benefit of the health of the former, and in August was temporarily brought to an end by his having to proceed to England on medical certificate. The Rev. H. Bennett visited the station periodically from Dehra Dun, twenty-four miles distant, to administer the sacraments and exercise pastoral supervision over the nearly 400 persons belonging to the Christian Settlement. There were a good many troubles of one sort and another, which influenced the whole spiritual atmosphere and adversely affected the attendance at the Sunday services and the prayer-meetings. The number of children belonging to the school was smaller than usual, but there was some compensation in the fact that a Christian woman opened a school of her own, which soon had the names of forty non-Christians on its rolls. A Bible-class was conducted by Mrs. Law in each of the three villages which compose the Settlement, and she also commenced a class for the school-teachers at their request. Certain Sansis—i.e., members of the robber caste—took shelter at the station in 1903 with a view to learning about Christianity, but the police refused to allow them any peace, and they fled. Mr. Law says that some of them are upright and hard-working men, but in consequence of their being Sansis the authorities give them no resting-place. Only a few visits could be paid to the villages in Jaunsar.

Members of the robber caste seek instruction.

MUSSOURIE AND DEHRA.

Mussourie. From March to November, 1904, the Rev. Dr. W. Hooper resided at MUSSOURIE, and discharged the duties of incumbent of All Saints' Church, with its English congregation. At Eastertide he delivered a course of sermons on some of the "Amens" of Scripture, and on the Sundays after Trinity he took the Venite and the Magnificat as his subjects. At his Wednesday evening Bible-readings he dealt with the first seven chapters of St. John's Gospel, and at the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission Sanatorium he repeated by request the sermons which he preached in the church in 1903 on vegetable life as emblematical of the life of the Christian. Mrs. Hooper conducted some Bible-classes, and devoted much time to a new Home which was started in connexion with the local branch of the Y.W.C.A. The work among the Natives was in the hands of the Rev. H. Bennett, who made Mussourie his head quarters during the hot weather and the rains. The boys' school had to be discontinued owing to the lack of a good teacher and of a suitable room, but on the other hand a school for girls was opened and carried on during the greater part of the season. Another new organization was the Temperance Society, which had nearly thirty members by the close of the year. One Christian who for years had remained excommunicated was received back into Church fellowship, and one adult was baptized.

At DEHRA, thirteen miles from Mussourie, where Mr. Bennett resided during most of the winter months, the Sunday services were well attended. A small school was opened at the request of the headman in a village three miles to the west, and had the names of some thirty boys on its roll. Mr. Bennett paid occasional visits to Rajpur, where Miss Sharp has an industrial school for the blind, and to Markham Grant, a Christian farming settlement. At the latter place there was, alas! reason to believe that some of the people took part in heathen ceremonies, and one family was excommunicated on that account. A catechist was stationed on the tea-plantation at Arcadia. Dehra.

Dr. Hooper, with his colleague Dr. Lambert, continued the revision of the Hindi Old Testament, which is now approaching completion. In the winter of 1903–04 he visited a number of the Society's stations in the United Provinces, and after he left Mussourie in November, 1904, he proceeded to the Punjab. Translation Work.

CENTRAL PROVINCES AND RAJPUTANA MISSION.

The Central Provinces of India, together with Rajputana and the other Native States known as Central India, were formed into the diocese of Nagpur in 1903, the first Bishop, Dr. Eyre Chatterton, being consecrated on March 25th in that year. The Society's work, which is carried on in the Central Provinces (since 1854), and in Rajputana (since 1880), was separated from that in the United Provinces and placed under a separate Committee in the same year. Jabalpur, the oldest of the C.M.S. stations in the diocese, was occupied in 1854; Mandla, 1879; Marpha, 1892; Katni Murwara, 1893; Patpara, 1897. In Rajputana, Kherwara was occupied in 1880; Biladia and Lusadia, 1901; and Bhartpur, 1902.

Visit of the Bishop of Nagpur to the Gond Mission.

THE Bishop of Nagpur spent January 2nd to 14th, 1904, in the Gond Mission, being the first Bishop to proceed beyond Patpara. He held confirmations at that station and at Marpha, and thence travelled to Singpur over a pass with an unhappy notoriety as the haunt of a man-eating tiger. The Bishop wrote on January 13th:—

> I cannot recall any happier days since my return to India as a Bishop than those I have spent on this tour. The work seems most promising. In the year 1900 the Bishop of Lucknow, who visited the Mission, recorded the number of Christians as 388. To-day they are nearly 600. One hears, too, that many of the Christians are sincerely endeavouring to bring their heathen brethren into the fold of Christ.

A small addition has been made to the diocese of Nagpur as described in last year's Report (page 219). It now includes Neemuch in Central India and Nusseerabad in Rajputana, which formerly were left to the care of the Bishop of Bombay.

Conferences of missionaries.

The second Annual Conference of the Mission was held at Jabalpur on November 3rd to 5th. The opening day was observed as a "Quiet Day," the Rev. L. F. D. Blair, Chaplain of Saugor, being the conductor. The 4th and the greater part of the 5th were devoted to conference. Several useful subjects were brought up for consideration, and a paper by Mr. E. Peters on "The Chief Hindrances to the Spread of Christianity in India" provoked an interesting and profitable discussion. The first Women's Conference took place simultaneously with the men's. On the 5th a missionary meeting was held. The Bishop of Nagpur took the chair, and pleaded for more interest to be shown in missionary work, and Mr. G. C. Vyse, of Kherwara, and the Rev. L. F. D. Blair were the other speakers. The Conference sermon was preached on the 6th by the Rev. H. J. Molony.

Three missionaries have been transferred from the United Provinces to the Central India Mission. The Rev. and Mrs. A. I. Birkett on their return from furlough in November, 1904, and Miss B. M. Newton early in that year. On the other hand, the Committee have accepted the resignation of the Rev. A. Outram, on medical grounds, and of Mr. L. Ashby.

Ordination.

On St. Philip and St. James's Day, May 1st, 1905, the Bishop of Nagpur admitted the Rev. E. Walker to Priests' Orders, and Messrs. J. Fryer and Luxman Hari to Deacons' Orders in Christ Church, Jabalpur. The ordination of the Revs. H. Blackwood and Failbus on May 1st, 1904, took place at Jabalpur, and not, as erroneously stated in last year's Report, at Ranchi, which is in the diocese of Chota Nagpur.

The following are the members of the Central Provinces and Rajputana Corresponding Committee:—the Bishop of Nagpur, Archdeacon G. M. Davies, Mr. C. H. Candy, Mr. G. M. Harriott, C.I.E., and the Revs. E. A. Hensley, J. M. Paterson, J. M. Challis, and H. J. Molony (Secretary).

I. CENTRAL PROVINCES.

The Rev. H. Blackwood (on medical certificate) and Mrs. Blackwood came home in October, 1904; and the Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Hensley and Mr. E. Peters, in April, 1905. The Rev. J. M. Challis left Melbourne for India in April, 1904.

Jabalpur.

The staff of the Society at Jabalpur, consisting of the Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Hensley, the Rev. and Mrs. H. Blackwood, and Miss M. M. Crossley, of the Victoria Association, was strengthened by the arrival of the Rev. and Mrs. E. Walker at the end of 1903, which was followed by that of Mr. E. Peters, transferred from Patpara in March, 1904, and of the Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Challis in April. These reinforcements allowed Mr. Blackwood to assume charge of Katni Murwara, while for the first time for many years the High School was the chief care of one man—Mr. Challis. The names of 360 boys were on the rolls, but the outbreak of the plague in the autumn diminished the attendance until one day only seven lads came, and it was felt desirable to close the school temporarily. Of the twenty-eight lads in the highest class, only one was a Christian, but Mr. Challis says that he is sure that a Christian spirit existed among them, and he instances a Hindu who in an essay on "Courage" wrote, "Regarding self-sacrifice, Jesus Christ displayed one of the highest types of self-sacrifice ever displayed by man in this world. He shed his blood for the sins of mankind, and with fortitude endured all kinds of tortures put upon Him." Mr. Peters regularly visited and taught in the Middle School and the seven branch schools, and when the plague broke out he personally attended boys and others suffering from the disease. At the Widows' Home, under the management of Mrs. Hensley, the one remaining non-Christian among the inmates was baptized early in the autumn. The pastoral care of the Christian community, numbering about 240 souls, and including several Government clerks, railway employés, and other independent people, devolved upon Mr. Hensley. Almost all the converts attended the services regularly, and the moral standard of the congregation appeared to be high. Several of the Christians were attacked and carried off by the plague, indeed it is said that only one of those seized by it recovered. Miss Crossley, who temporarily left Jabalpur for Marpha in November, 1904, accompanied one of the Bible-women in her zenana visiting, and only found open hostility to Christianity in one Mohammedan house. Work among servants, and also work in the post office and the bazaar, was maintained by the catechists.

Plague causes a recrudescence of devotion to local gods.

In most of the villages the attitude of the people showed that the workers were hardly welcome. Mr. Walker attributes this to two reasons: first, that they regarded the Christians as disseminators of plague germs; and secondly, that the coming of the calamity had caused a recrudescence of devotion to the local and popular gods, which shut out all desire to hear about Christ, Who, they thought, as the God of those who brought the plague, ought to be avoided. There were, however, exceptions to this aloofness. At one place the evangelists were invited on three days in succession to sing, preach, and hold discussions with the inhabitants, and the men assembled in large numbers to listen; and in other villages it was found that the people had incorporated Christian bhajans, which they had heard on previous visits, into their festal songs. Three adults were baptized, one of these being a Mohammedan woman, the fruit of the work of the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies.

Katni Murwara.

After Mr. and Mrs. W. Holloway, of the Victoria Association, left KATNI MURWARA in February, 1904, the station was without a resident missionary for some months. In May, as already stated, Mr. Blackwood proceeded thither, but his stay was but short, for he was soon laid low by typhoid fever, and in September was obliged to proceed to England on medical certificate. From that time periodical visits were paid to the town by Mr. Walker, and he was able to induce many of the Europeans and Eurasians to attend the services who had previously been conspicuous by their absence. A new church was completed and dedicated in the spring of 1904.

MANDLA, PATPARA, MARPHA, AND SUKULPURA (GOND MISSION).

Mandla.

The Rev. H. J. Molony was frequently called away from MANDLA, where he had his head quarters, by his secretarial duties; and much of his time was also taken up in assisting the Rev. Failbus, the Gond clergyman, in his preparation for the examination for Priests' Orders, and in superintending the building of a mission-bungalow and mission-hall. The new buildings occupy the site on which the old school-house stood, and necessitated the pulling down of the latter, and the removal of the children to a small native house. Some of the elder girls left because of the extra distance from their homes to the school, but other pupils took their place, and the attendance increased to an average of twenty. Miss M. S. Molony, who superintended the school, visited in the zenanas, and at first found the women most inattentive, talking among themselves and shouting to their neighbours. Some improvement was brought about by dint of firmness, and by the end of the year twelve of them were learning to read. This number does not by any means represent all who were visited, for the women in the Gond muhallas are so lacking in intelligence that Miss Molony had to be satisfied with teaching them a few simple truths over and over again. Mr. J. Fleming resided at Mandla for seven months of 1904, while engaged in studying the language, and the Rev. Failbus was there during the early part of the year, and again from August. Mr. and Miss Molony were transferred to Jabalpur in March, 1905. An out-station was opened at Nainpur, a place on the new railway, thirty miles to the west of Mandla.

Gond women greatly lacking in intelligence.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Fryer had eighty-seven children under their charge in the Orphanages at PATPARA, eighteen less than in 1903. Nine of the lads, with their wives, all of them Christians, were about to leave the station at the end of the year for a village twenty miles distant, which the Government was opening for cultivation. The schools for boys, girls, and infants had the names of 132 children upon their rolls. Of that for boys Mr. E. Peters was in charge until his transference to Jabalpur in March, 1904; six of the lads proceeded to the Government Normal School at Jabalpur with a view to being trained as schoolmasters. Nearly 1,000 patients were treated at the hospital, and the leper asylum contained nineteen inmates. One of the latter, a Christian who had fallen away, but had repented and been restored, was called to her rest. Three adults were baptized, and several people, including a Gond family priest, who first heard the Gospel in the bazaar, were inquirers. On the other hand, the devotee of Kali, mentioned in last year's Report (page 223), seemed to be gaining ground. Many brought their sick to him to be healed, and he appeared to possess great power over the superstitious people.

The Rev. and Mrs. E. D. Price were joined at MARPHA in the autumn of 1904, by Miss M. M. Crossley, of the Victoria Association. During the hot weather and the rains Mr. J. L. Wakeling also resided at the station, and assisted Mr. Price in conducting daily classes for the catechists and other workers The dispensary grew in popularity, and was visited by more than a thousand patients. Encouraged by the success with which a similar effort met in 1903 (see last year's Report, page 223), a Christian mela was held at Diuari, an out-station fifteen miles to the west of Marpha, in February, 1904. The festival, of which a full account was given in the C.M. Gleaner for October, 1904, lasted for six days, and was attended by a large number of people. Ataria and Bargaon are two other out-stations, lying seventeen miles to the north-west and thirteen miles to the north of Marpha, respectively. Travelling in the district is perilous in consequence of the increasing number of man-eating tigers, and Mr. Price had more than one adventure with wild beasts. He says that the signs of heathen worship are becoming fewer in number, though there are still many superstitions remaining among the people. One day he met a man fasting and worshipping a river, in the hope thereby of gaining relief from rheumatism, and on another occasion a woman who came to see the missionary began to worship the books in a small bookcase in his room. Eight adults were received into the visible Church.

Sukulpura.

Sukulpura, thirty-three miles to the east of Marpha, was the head quarters of Mr. J. L. Wakeling. A good many converts came in from the surrounding villages for the festivities held at Christmas, 1903. The children were not neglected on the occasion, but the Sunday-school treat was held under widely different circumstances from those which prevail in Great Britain, for the preparation of the lantern exhibition was disturbed by a growl from a tiger in the jungle close by, to which, however, nobody paid attention, and one of the people was bitten by a snake, fortunately not a poisonous one, during the night. The Rev. Failbus spent three months at the station, and carried on preaching in the bazaar. Many of the people are said now to have a knowledge of Christianity, but to be deterred from accepting it by their caste prejudices. Like the Hindus, the Gonds believe in the transmigration of souls, and Mr. Failbus tells of an old Bhoi whom he went to see, who declared that his grandson was his own father! Both Mr. Failbus and Mr. Wakeling itinerated in the district, visiting Singpur—a notoriously bad village eight miles from Sukulpura, in which there is a little community of Christians drawn from the lowest classes—and travelling through the native state of Rewah.

II. RAJPUTANA.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. Outram came home in June, 1904; the Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Paterson (on private affairs) in August, sailing again for India in the following month; and Miss R. Carter in March. The Rev. and Mrs. A. I. Birkett sailed for the Mission in October, 1904; Miss A. H. R. Bull in January, 1905.

BHARTPUR.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Paterson were in charge of the work at BHARTPUR, excepting during their short visit to England, when Miss Fowler, an independent worker, kindly supervised the Indian agents. The friendliness of the members of the State Council, which was imitated by the officials of all classes, was of material assistance, and the Bishop of Nagpur, who visited the city during the year, observed a marked advance in the work since 1903, and a decided change in the attitude of the people towards Christianity. Growth was manifest both in the English and Indian congregations, that in the latter being due in part to the arrival at the station of two Christian families who came into the State for the sake of employment. The services were attended not only by Presbyterians and Methodists, but also by some Roman and Armenian Christians. In the city there was no difficulty in obtaining a hearing for the Gospel, and numbers of Bibles and religious books were sold, but in the country districts the Natives were afraid of the workers because of the plague, which they attributed to the English. In some places, too, the people had been alarmed by the visits of a Reform Hindu Society, called the Radha Swamis, who attempted to destroy caste by secretly defiling the food of the villagers. One woman was baptized, who for many years had been under instruction in the Agra district. Mr. Paterson writes :— Bhartpur. Efforts of a Reform Hindu Society to destroy caste.

> On the death of her husband she came to live with her Christian friends, but steadily refused to be baptized. At last, in obedience to two dreams, in which she saw her husband standing near her with two Mem Sahibs in white, and heard him say, "Why do you delay? Make haste and be baptized," she consented, and is now rejoicing in the freedom and fulness of faith. The beauty and purity of her life is an example to many an older and well-established Christian. She is a high-caste woman, and is accustomed to very good native society, and in one village a high-caste Thakoor recognized her, and abused her before everybody for forsaking her old religion and walking about in the open-air with an umbrella like a foreigner. The humble way in which she received her rebuke, and afterwards said to my wife, "Do you think God saw and heard?" was very touching. "Do you think God saw and heard?"

The convert, after her baptism, joined Mrs. Paterson in her work in the village zenanas.

KHERWARA, BILADIA, AND LUSADIA (BHĪL MISSION).

The Rev. A. Outram was stationed at KHERWARA until May, 1904, when he came home on medical certificate, his place eventually being taken by Mr. G. C. Vyse. Six of the twenty-four lads belonging to the Boys' Orphanage were baptized by the Bishop of Nagpur in November. Kherwara.

Biladia.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. Hodgkinson were absent from BILADIA for eight months in consequence of the need of a clerical missionary at Lusadia. There was some trouble through the senior boy of the Orphanage running away and contracting a marriage with a heathen girl, a step which necessitated his excommunication. One man and nine boys were baptized at Christmas, 1904, and two men were admitted into the catechumenate.

Lusadia.

The missionaries at LUSADIA in January, 1904, were Mr. G. C. Vyse, Miss R. Carter, and Miss A. H. R. Bull; in February Miss Bull left on furlough, her place being taken by Miss B. M. Newton, transferred from Meerut, and some months later Mr. Vyse left for Kherwara; from April to December, Mr. Hodgkinson was at the station, and in November the staff was reinforced by the arrival of the Rev. and Mrs. A. I. Birkett.

Girls' Orphanage.

The Girls' Orphanage contained forty-five children, a smaller number than in 1903, owing to several of the elder girls having left to be married. A pleasing incident which occurred is thus narrated by Miss Carter:—

> I spoke to the children about a little school which we were about to open in a neighbouring village. I told them that if they had learnt to love the Lord Jesus themselves they could best show their love by trying to send the good news to others and by all means in their power helping to spread Christ's Kingdom. A few days later the matron came to me saying the children had asked to be allowed to go without one-third of their daily allowance of food for a month and to give the amount of paisa saved to help support the Mori school. Perhaps some of the friends who read this can hardly realize what a real act of self-sacrifice this was on the part of these famine orphans, in whose minds the recollection of previous privations is still sufficiently vivid to make the giving up of part of their daily meals no light matter.

Self-denial of orphans.

The new church, which was mentioned in last year's Report as in process of erection (page 226), was dedicated by the Bishop in February, 1904. Later in the same day twenty candidates were confirmed. Unhappily two of them, both women, afterwards fell away, but one, being subjected to discipline, showed signs of genuine repentance and appeared to be endeavouring to lead a consistent life. On the other hand many of the Christians "walked worthy" of their vocation. Striking testimony to that effect was borne one day by an educated Hindu gentleman, the revenue collector of the Idar State, in a conversation with Mr. Vyse. He said: "Sir, I marvel at the change wrought in these people. Not many years back I knew this to be a place of terror and dread, the hills and jungles affording a good hiding place whence the Bhīls would emerge to slay and loot. But now the atmosphere for miles round from this spot is peace and quietness. Nothing but Christianity could bring about such a transformation." Sixteen persons were baptized in November. The converts were subjected to a severe test at the time of the annual Holi festival, held in February. Miss Carter describes this festival as follows :—

"Nothing but Christianity could bring about such a transformation."

The Holi festival.

It was originally instituted to celebrate the ingathering of the spring crops, and as such it was perfectly harmless. By degrees, however, the worship of the goddess "Holi" was introduced, and from a season of innocent rejoicing it developed into a time of idolatrous worship and of unbridled licence and vice on the part of the worshippers. This festival lasts throughout the month, its commencement at full moon being ushered in by drum-beating and dancing, which continue all through the Holi season. The great day of the Holi festival comes at its close, when the moon is again full. In the centre of each village a large fire is lighted, into which the people throw their offerings of ghee, cocoa-nuts, rice, &c., uttering meanwhile their invocations to Holi or Devi. All night they dance round the fire; many of the dancers are intoxicated and shout ribald songs, and give vent to their thrilling war cries. As the night wears on the drum beats quicker, the dance becomes faster and more furious, and the shouting and yelling more vigorous, until one might well imagine a scene from the infernal regions were being enacted in one's very midst. The fire smoulders all through the next day, and the feasting and dancing are prolonged nightly for a fortnight after.

Severe test of converts.

At Lusadia, the spot in which until 1904 the Holi fire had been lighted was under a large banyan tree near the houses of Sat Guru Das, one of the leading Christians, and others of the converts, and they were brought face to face with the fact that the Heathen would carry on their abominations in their very midst unless they took steps to prevent it. Unfortunately the Gameti, or head-man, shared the house of one of the Christians, and was the keeper of the large drum reserved for use on such occasions. Miss Carter thus describes what happened :—

A Christian's heart "burnt into a blaze."

On Feb. 1st, about nine o'clock in the evening, the beating of the drum began at the Gameti's. The next day we interviewed the Christians, and inquired what attitude they intended to adopt. While professing to be very sorry, the unanimous opinion seemed to be that it could not be stopped. "What has been, must be." "Leave it and it will die out of itself." "Surely if we take no part in it, it does not matter." Such were some of the answers given. Very gently but firmly it was pointed out that God demands something more than a passive abstaining from wrong-doing on the part of His servants, and that such dishonour to His name must not be permitted in the very midst of the Christian village. A promise that they would do their best to get some other arrangement made was apparently the only result of this interview. Four days passed, during which prayer was specially made for our Christians, and on the fourth day the first answer came. Sat Guru Das was walking home from his work at midday when suddenly, as he afterwards told us, the sound of the drum seemed to make his heart burn into a blaze within him, and he determined he must stop it. Watching his opportunity, he walked into the Gameti's house and finding it empty, he seized the drum and carried it off in triumph to his own house. His first thought was to smash it, but he hardly liked to do so as it was not his own property. He concealed it in his house for some days, but one morning when he was at work some one discovered its hiding-place and carried it off again, but this time to the house of one of the heathen Bhil devotees. After that it was beaten constantly, but not again in the vicinity of the Christians during the whole of the Holi season.

About a week before the end of Holi the whole village was summoned to meet the missionary in charge and discuss what was to be done about the fire. A goodly number responded, among others the chief Bhagat (i.e., devotee) and leader of the non-Christian party being present. The meeting was a decidedly animated one, and neither side showed the slightest inclination to give way. The non-Christians averred that the fire must be lighted in the accustomed spot, and the Christians firmly adhered to their decision that it should never again be lighted in the Christian part of the village. Eventually the non-Christians begged for time to consider the matter more fully, and promised to send in their ultimatum within three days. However, three days passed, but no word came until the actual day of the Holi arrived. At daybreak the Gameti and another man came and said, "Why did not the sahib give us longer notice?" They could decide nothing then, but would let him know by five p.m. At eleven a.m. we all gathered in the new church to seek strength and guidance for whatever work the day should bring. It was a very solemn time. In the little prayer-meeting that followed very earnest prayer went up that the hearts of the Heathen might be turned to God and that the name of Christ might never be dishonoured in our midst.

The long day wore silently on and a strange sense of stillness and tension pervaded the whole village, very different from the reckless mirth and loud revellings of previous years. Just at sunset, however, Sat Guru Das came up to the mission-bungalow, his face radiant with joy, bringing us the welcome news that the non-Christians had agreed to light the fire on the outskirts of the village right away from the Christians' houses. Many expressions of ill-will had been uttered against Sat Guru Das for the leading part he had taken in the matter, but nothing could damp his joy at the victory which had been so graciously given in answer to prayer.

"Nothing could damp his joy."

Two new schools were opened in the district, the one at Mori, where several women were anxious to be admitted as catechumens, and the other at Khetadara, where ten men were baptized and nine admitted to the catechumenate in November.

PUNJAB AND SINDH MISSION.

The Punjab Mission was begun in 1851, soon after the annexation of the province to British India. The first station occupied was Amritsar, the sacred city of the Sikhs; Kangra was occupied in 1854; Peshawar, 1855; Multan, 1856; Narowal, 1859; Dera Ismail Khan, 1861; Srinagar and Bannu, 1864; Lahore, 1867; Clarkabad, 1869; Pind Dadan Khan, 1876; Batala, 1878; Dera Ghazi Khan, 1879; Tarn Taran, 1885; Quetta, 1886; the Jhang Bar and Simla, 1899; Islamabad, 1902. Work was commenced at Kotgur in 1847, prior to the annexation of the Punjab. At Lahore, the capital of the province, the Divinity School was founded in 1870 by the Rev. (afterwards Bishop) T. V. French. The Rev. G. M. Gordon (who was killed at Kandahar, August 16th, 1880) established, mainly at his own expense, stations at Pind Dadan Khan and Dera Ghazi Khan, the latter as a base for work among the Beluch tribes. Several other stations fringe the British frontier, the most important of which is Peshawar, where work among the Afghans was established in 1855 under the auspices of Sir Herbert Edwardes, then Commissioner of the Division. In the valley of Kashmir a medical mission was started by Dr. Elmslie in 1865, which has been a great blessing to the people, especially at the time of the famine in 1880 and the earthquake in 1884. The work in the Punjab is deeply indebted to men like Lord Lawrence, Sir H. Edwardes, Sir R. Montgomery, Sir D. McLeod, Generals Lake, Taylor, and Maclagan, Colonel Martin, and others, who nobly exerted themselves to bring the Gospel to the people under their administration.

The Sindh Mission is older in date, having been begun in 1850, but is far behind in progress, owing mainly to its having always been quite undermanned. Yet important fruit has been granted to the patient labours of the Rev. J. Sheldon and others at Karachi (commenced 1850) and Hyderabad (1856), and later at Sukkur (1887) on the Indus.

The Diocese of Lahore was founded in 1877, the Rev. T. V. French, a C.M.S. missionary, being the first Bishop. He was succeeded on his retirement in 1887 by the Rev. H. J. Matthew; and he in 1899 by the Rev. G. A. Lefroy, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission.

Towards the end of 1904 Sir F. Cunningham, K.C.I.E., speaking at Devizes, bore cordial testimony to the value of missionary work in the Punjab. He acknowledged that when he first went to India as a young man he shared the common feeling about Missions—"not exactly cynical, not necessarily pessimistic, but a feeling of amused wonder that men could spend their lives in apparently such a hopeless task. They seemed to be as men fighting the wind and weaving ropes of sand." "But none of us are infallible, not even the youngest," Sir Frederick added, and as he grew older and more experienced he learned better. It had been part of his duty as a district magistrate in the Punjab to visit many schools—those maintained by the State, by private bodies, and by the C.M.S.—and he had seen that generation which filled the schools when he first went to India grow up and occupy important positions in the public service. His testimony was, "that those who came from the mission-schools seemed to have a higher sense of honesty and honour than those sent out from the Mohammedan, or the Hindu, or the secular schools maintained by Government."

High sense of honesty and honour among mission-school-boys.

An important modification of C.M.S. organization has been made in the Punjab Mission, whereby the whole C.M.S. Christian community is united in one, and the European and Indian workers, both pastoral and evangelistic, are brought into co-operation. The Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht thus describes the arrangements which have been made :—

The C.M.S. stations in the diocese of Lahore (which includes the Punjab, Kashmir, the recently constituted North-West Frontier Province, British Beluchistan, and Sindh) are now divided into six districts—Lahore, Amritsar, Frontier, Sindh and Beluchistan, Himalaya, and Kashmir. The last two we may consider to be incipient divisions, Kashmir having only one Christian congregation, and the other Himalayan district only two, viz., Simla and Kotgur. Their remoteness from each other and the existence in them of different languages forbid their amalgamation. Sindh and the North-West Frontier are as yet mainly evangelistic districts, with small congregations, largely composed of mission agents and their families, scattered at great distances from each other. In Lahore and Amritsar, especially the former (including besides Multan, Lahore City with its fluctuating Christian population, and the Jhang Bar with its 3,000 scattered Christians, and 1,200 in two Christian villages, Montgomerywala and Batemanabad, as well as 1,000 Christians at Clarkabad), the pastoral element is strongly in evidence. In Amritsar, too, the considerable village population, especially round Narowal, Batala, Bahrwal, and Ajnala, demands much pastoral care.

Pastorate Committees.

The unit of the new organization is the pastorate with its committee consisting of communicants elected by Christian subscribers to the Church Fund. The chairman of this committee is the pastor, who may be either Indian or English, though, of course, the ideal is that he be Indian. The pastor and the missionary evangelists of each pastorate are members of the District Council, together with a fixed number of delegates elected by each pastorate committee.

District Councils.

The District Council has charge of the readers and catechists in its area, and also makes recommendations regarding the location and support of its Indian pastors. It is to raise funds from the pastorates for the support especially of pastors, but also of evangelists, to be supplemented by the fund of the Central Council.

Central Council.

This latter is the chief administrative body of the Mission. It consists of the Bishop as chairman, a vice-chairman elected by the Council, the secretary of the Corresponding Committee (which continues to exist for the purpose of regulating the relations between the missionaries and the Parent Committee), who is nominated from home, the members of the Corresponding Committee, and delegates from the District Mission Councils. This body numbers at present under thirty. Its general meeting is to be held, as a rule, annually, and in the intervals the various departments of the work are to be managed by sectional committees (e.g., pastoral and evangelistic, medical, educational, &c.), and by an Executive Committee representing the Central Council as a whole. In each and all of these the three constituents of the Council have their voice directly or indirectly, viz., the nominated English and Indian lay members, the clergy (of both races), and the delegates of the districts. The objects which we hope to attain by the new procedure are (1) to weld together Indians and foreigners in the work, (2) to promote an evangelistic spirit in the pastorates, (3) to advance self-support (this will depend mainly on the District Mission Councils), and (4) by unity of organization to work with more directness and less of friction than before.

From November 22nd to 25th was held a combined meeting of the six District Mission Councils at Lahore. The first two days were spent in common devotion and prayer for a blessing on the new departure. The third day was given to a combined business meeting for conference on the chief features of the scheme and elucidation of difficulties, and the fourth was occupied by separate meetings of each District Council. We have had many testimonies that the meetings were found to be helpful, both spiritually and otherwise. The first meeting of the Central Mission Council was held on January 12th and 13th, 1905.

The earthquake in the Punjab.

A terrible earthquake took place in the Punjab in the morning of April 4th, 1905, whereby 16,000 persons lost their lives. Kangra and Dharmsala suffered most, and in the former town the Society's mission-house was levelled to the ground. The Rev. H. F. Rowlands, Mrs. C. G. Däuble, and Miss M. Lorbeer were killed. The last-named was a member of the Berlin Ladies' Society, working under the auspices of the C.M.S., who had just been transferred temporarily from Agra to Kangra. Several other missionaries and Indian agents of the Society had narrow escapes. Dr. S. W. Sutton, with his children, was buried under a great mass of débris, but mercifully was not seriously hurt; the Rev. Brij Lal Dat, the blind Indian clergyman, was involved in the ruin of his house, but was unharmed; the Rev. Paras Nath, another Indian clergyman, was injured, and his wife and several children were killed. At Dharmsala Miss Michaelis, of the Berlin Ladies' Society, who was in charge of the little C.M.S. school, was unhurt, but all the fourteen children lost their lives. The Rev. R. H. A. Haslam had a providential escape at Tarn Taran. He had asked permission to enter one of the tank bungas on the occasion of the great mela. He was at the tank when the earthquake came, but while waiting for permission to enter the bunga he had turned aside elsewhere. During this interval the shock occurred. The bunga fell and nine bodies were crushed under the roof. At Lahore, Amritsar, and Kotgur serious damage was done to the Society's property, but none of the missionaries were injured.

Death of the Rev. H. F. Rowlands,

The Rev. H. F. Rowlands, whose death has just been mentioned, was a son of the Rev. W. E. Rowlands, Rector of Bonchurch, Isle of Wight, the Society's former missionary in Ceylon, and a brother of the Rev. F. W. Rowlands, of the Japan Mission. He went out to India in 1895, and laboured first at Narowal and afterwards at Kangra. His young wife had only just reached England in a delicate state of health when the telegram arrived which told of the earthquake.

Mrs. C. G. Däuble,

Mrs. Däuble, as Miss Stoephasius, reached India as a missionary of the Berlin Ladies' Society in 1868, and in 1882 was married to the Rev. C. G. Däuble, who joined the Society's staff twenty-five years before. After her husband's death in 1893 she continued her connexion with the C.M.S., residing at Dharmsala, and spending much of her time in itinerating. Mrs. G. T. M. Grime wrote concerning her shortly after the earthquake:—

> I thought I would just mention a little talk I had with Mrs. Däuble on her last visit to me. We were talking of old times. I said to her, "How wonderfully we both have been blessed in being allowed to work all these years. We ought to be very thankful." Then she said, "Yes, indeed; you know I have always prayed that the Lord would allow me to work thirty-six years like my dear husband, and He has given me my wish. Now, I will not ask for a single day more, but I shall be so glad and ready to go any time He calls me." That was six weeks ago. How soon the call has come!

Mrs. S. W. Sutton, and the Rev. Q. K. Nehemiah.

Mrs. S. W. Sutton was called to her rest at Dharmsala on January 29th, 1905.

The Rev. Qasim Khan Nehemiah, the Indian Pastor of Majitha, died on December 25th, 1904, the fortieth anniversary of his baptism. He was a devoted servant of Christ, and his special forte is said to have been individual dealing with non-Christians.

Reinforcements.

The Mission has received the following reinforcements: The Rev. George Brocklesby Davis, M.A., M.D., Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., a son of the late Rev. Brocklesby Davis, who died at Benares in 1897, after nearly forty years' service as a C.M.S. missionary, and a brother of the Rev. P. B. Davis and Miss A. B. Davis of the United Provinces Mission; the Rev. Donald Stanier Harper, of Islington College, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders in St. Paul's Cathedral by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, May 29th, 1904; the Rev. James Frederick Snee, formerly a member of the staff of the C.M. House, and lately Rector of Cheviot in the Diocese of Nelson, New Zealand; Mr. Charles Frank Hall, of Islington College; Mr. Loftus Wigram, M.A., M.B., B.C., Trinity College, Cambridge, a son of the late Hon. Secretary of the Society, the Rev. F. E. Wigram, and the fifth member of his family to take up work in the mission-field; Miss Ellen Andrews, B.A., London University, trained at The Willows and at the Home and Colonial Training College; Miss Annie Jane Edgley, who went out to India under the C.E.Z.M.S. in 1888, and since has been Acting-Principal of the Alexander High School, Amritsar; Miss Kate Knowles, M.B., London, L.L.A., St. Andrews, who resided for some time at the C.M.S. Hostel for Medical Students; Miss Florence Adèle Mary Van der Pant, of London, a trained nurse, who also had a course at The Willows; Miss Winifred Margaret Weitbrecht, trained at The Olives, a daughter of the Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht, of this Mission; and Miss Evelyn Anne Wright, of Hampstead, trained at The Willows and Bermondsey. The Misses Andrews and Wright sailed for the Mission in September, 1904; Miss Weitbrecht (going in the first instance temporarily to Agra) in October; Messrs. Harper, Snee, Hall, and Wigram, and Miss Knowles in November; Mr. Davis in January, 1905; and Miss Van der Pant in February. Miss Edgley was already in India. The Committee have accepted the resignations of the Revs. E. A. Causton and C. H. A. Field on medical grounds; of Dr. C. Lankester and Mr. H. B. Claxton; and of Miss E. C. Waymouth on her approaching marriage.

The following are the members of the Lahore Corresponding Committee: the Bishop of Lahore, Dr. N. P. Datta, Mr. W. de

M. Malan, R.E., Major R. S. Maclagan, Mr. H. E. Clark, Mr. C. F. Barrett, and the Revs. T. R. Wade, and P. Ireland-Jones (Secretary).

The Rev. T. R. Wade was Acting-Secretary of the Mission during the year under review.

I. PUNJAB.

Miss M. Peto came home in May, 1904; Mrs. H. U. Weitbrecht in September; the Revs. T. Bomford, C. E. McQuaide, and E. Rhodes, the two last-named on medical certificate, in December; the Rev. and Mrs. D. J. McKenzie and the Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht, in April, 1905; and the Rev. and Mrs. E. F. E. Wigram, Dr. S. W. Sutton, and Miss A. J. Edgley, in May. The Rev. and Mrs. H. F. T. Beutel went to Genoa in March, 1905. The Rev. A. C. Clarke sailed for the Mission in September, 1904; Miss M. H. Millett and Miss M. Peto in October; the Rev. T. Holden in December; the Rev. and Mrs. P. Ireland-Jones in January, 1905; and Miss M. J. Farthing in February. The Rev. E. F. E. Wigram married Miss V. Dewey at Lahore on August 3rd, 1904.

The Rev. W. P. Hares was admitted to Priests' Orders in Lahore Cathedral on Sunday, December 18th, 1904, by the Bishop of Lahore.

LAHORE.

Lahore.

The Society's staff of European missionaries at Lahore, the capital of the Punjab, consisted of the following: The Rev. and Mrs. T. R. Wade, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. H. U. Weitbrecht and the Rev. T. Bomford (until April, 1904), the Rev. and Mrs. E. F. E. Wigram, the Rev. W. P. Hares, and Mrs. E. Inglis. Miss E. A. Wright, one of the recruits of the year, arrived at the station in the autumn. Mr. P. J. Coyne is the manager of the C.M.S. office. In the work of the Divinity School Mr. Wigram, the Principal, had the help of Messrs. Bomford and Hares, and of an Indian clergyman, the Rev. J. Ali Baksh. Two of the five students in the vernacular class left during the year to take up work, one at Bahrwal and the other at Bannu, and in their place a member of the indigenous Punjab Missionary Society was admitted. Three men joined to form an English class, viz., a son of the late Dr. John Williams, of Tank; a son of the late Professor Ram Chandra, one of the earliest and most remarkable of the S.P.G. converts at Delhi; and Faiz Ullah, an old Batala boy, who came from the Narowal district. A number of the students belonging to the Hostel volunteered their services in connexion with the steps taken to grapple with the plague, and took an active share in disinfecting houses where deaths had occurred from the disease. Three boys of the Industrial School were placed in good positions as carpenters, one as a cabinet maker, and two in the piano-making trade. Five times a week a night-school was held for the lads, and on Sundays instruction was given to them by the divinity students. Carpentry was taught by Mr. J. D. Finlay, of Belfast, and the tailors were trained by Mrs. Inglis, who was also in general charge of the Work among Women. Three of the members of the Widows' Home were called to their rest, two of them being carried off by the plague. Mr. Ali Baksh was obliged by the pressure of his duties as Professor at the Divinity School, to resign the pastoral charge of the Congregation worshipping at Holy Trinity Church, and early in 1905 the Rev. T. Howell was transferred from Montgomerywala to succeed him. During the interregnum the visiting naturally suffered, but Mrs. Inglis was able to keep in touch with some of the people. The church was completed by the addition of a chancel, south aisle, porch, and vestry. Among those baptized were a father and a son of whom Mr. Bomford writes :—

Divinity School.

Women's Work.

> During the winters of 1885–96 it was my practice to make a preaching tour from Multan in the Mozuffergarh district. In it was one out-of-the-way town called Daira Din Panah, which I visited every third year or so, and where, as usual in that district, I had audiences of two or three hundred people every night. During the winter of 1904 an old man, a blacksmith from that town, arrived at the Divinity School in Lahore, bringing with him his small son aged fourteen. He requested Mr. Wigram to take charge of the boy and bring him up as a Christian, and explained that he had heard the preaching of the Gospel from time to time in his town, and believed that Christianity was true. He had also read something of the Gospel. Knowing that he had not long to live, for he had enemies who he was sure would make away with him, it was his wish to make over his boy to be brought up as a Christian. Mr. Wigram persuaded him to stay in Lahore himself to receive further instruction. The old man agreed, and read the Gospels readily with his son. Both were baptized. Shortly afterwards one morning it was found that both were very ill from the effects of poisoning. The old man died, but the son recovered. How the poison was administered or taken was not found out.

Two converts poisoned soon after their baptism.

A sham inquirer.

Some of the inquirers, however, proved to be deceivers, notably a young Mohammedan belonging to a respectable family, who stayed in the Hostel for several weeks at his own expense. The day for his baptism was fixed; all was in readiness for the service; Mr. Ali Baksh was robed; when information was received that the lad's profession of Christianity was a sham, and that he had some understanding with his old co-religionists. The report unhappily proved to be true.

Mr. Ali Baksh spent three months in South India, delivering lectures in Hindustani at Ellore, Masulipatam, and Bangalore, and at Hyderabad in the Deccan.

AMRITSAR.

Amritsar.

When the year opened the Rev. C. E. McQuaide was Acting-Principal of the College at AMRITSAR, and Mr. Mistra the Indian head-master, some help in the teaching being rendered by the Rev. R. H. A. Haslam, of the Canadian C.M.S., and by Mr. H. C. Guyer. During the summer Mr. McQuaide's eyesight failed, and he was obliged to leave for England on medical certificate in the autumn, shortly after the return from furlough of the Principal, the Rev. A. C. Clarke. The latter writes of his colleague :— The College.

He had just completed five years in the country, three years and a half of which he gave to the College. The affection and confidence he won for himself were remarkable, his uniform tenderness and kindliness of heart captivating masters and boys alike. When it became known that he had practically lost his sight, the deepest sympathy was expressed, and we heard of Hindus and Mohammedans in the city offering up special prayers for his recovery, while the students themselves subscribed towards most handsome testimonials, which were presented to him before he left Amritsar. Nor was his influence confined to the College and school—among the English residents his magnificent fortitude and spirit of cheerful resignation produced an impression beyond all telling, and his farewell sermon in the English church, where he had so often ministered before, will never be forgotten. He preached on behalf of medical missions, and his text was "Occupy till I come"—a fitting close to a missionary career, the two characteristics of which had always been love and readiness. Love and readiness the characteristics of a missionary.

And the Rev. D. J. McKenzie, the superintending missionary of the station, says :—

No one who had the privilege of his friendship, or the joy of being in any way associated with him in work, can possibly forget the lessons his patient hopefulness under his affliction brought to us. His natural cheeriness and buoyant spirits seemed to receive a sanctifying touch from the hand of his Master, and what to most of us would have been an untold trial, for him was turned to a living witness of the Master's power in and through him.

The number of students in the College is thirty-four, and in the Branch School 310. Eight of the fifteen men who went in for the F.A. Examination passed, and the results of the Middle and Entrance Examinations were good. Both the boarding-houses were fairly full throughout the year. Systematic Christian teaching was given, and the lives of some of the lads afforded indications of the working of the Holy Spirit in their hearts. Towards the end of the year Mr. Guyer was transferred to Dera Ismail Khan. Miss A. J. Edgley, of the C.E.Z.M.S., who has since been placed on the list of missionaries of the C.M.S., superintended the Alexandra Girls' High School, and had the assistance of Miss Price, of the C.E.Z.M.S. In the autumn the latter left on furlough, and her place was filled by the return of Miss M. Peto from England, and the arrival of Miss E. Andrews, one of the year's recruits. The matron and the resident teachers, without exception, are former pupils of the school, whose rolls contain the names of forty-seven girls, all of them boarders. Gratifying testimony to the efficiency of the institution was borne by the Inspectress, who, in her Annual Report for 1903-04 on the schools of the Province, wrote, "On Alexandra Girls' School.

"The best school in the Province."

the whole Amritsar stands first in the Province for female education, and the Alexandra is the best school in staff and quality of teaching." In the Senior Vernacular Teachers' Certificate Examination the only candidate presented was placed in the second division, first grade, while for the examination for the Junior Vernacular Teachers' Certificate, one candidate entered, and she was placed in the first division, first grade, and obtained the highest place in the Province in that division. All the three girls who were presented for the Entrance Examination of the Punjab University passed, and three of the five who went in for the Middle School Examination. Good results were obtained, also, in the General Lake Memorial Scripture Prize Examination, which is open to all persons under twenty-three years of age who have been born in the Punjab, without reference to sex, sect, or creed. Nine candidates went up in the senior division, and thirteen in the junior division. All of them passed, two of the seniors being awarded the second and third prizes respectively, and one of the juniors gaining the fourth prize. All the prizes in the Mary Mohan Bir Prayer-book Examination, both in the senior and junior divisions, were won by girls of the Alexandra School. These successes were the more gratifying because in 1903 the results of the Scripture examinations had not been so satisfactory as those gained in the examinations in secular subjects. The attendance at the Middle Class Girls' School, under Mrs. G. T. M. Grime, increased materially. The health of the children was good, but at one time they were very nervous owing to the near approach of the plague. All the girls were inoculated, and the precaution allayed their fears.

Examination successes.

Hospital.

Dr. A. H. Browne had to cope with the extensive work of the Hospital, without the help of any European medical colleague, but in December, 1904, Mr. S. Gillespie was transferred from the Jhang Bar to act as evangelist among the people who came for treatment. The in-patients numbered 371; 329 major and 3,469 minor operations were performed: and 96,910 visits of out-patients were recorded. Some of the people came from great distances. One family travelled 350 miles to consult the doctor, and two other cases came over 200 and 300 miles respectively. Another patient, a Mohammedan who had lost his sight, made a journey of eighty miles to reach the hospital: his case appeared almost hopeless, and an operation was only attempted because it was impossible to make him worse. Happily it was successful, and the man thanked God, Who, he said, had restored his sight for Jesus Christ's sake. Dr. Browne mentions one specially interesting incident:—

A family travels 350 miles to reach the doctor.

A Mohammedan woman in the early part of 1904 had a relative as an in-patient in the women's ward for a couple of months, and this woman stayed in hospital to be near and attend to her. A long time afterwards the woman herself became ill, and made her way back to the old quarters. Shortly after her return we admitted a young married woman as an in-patient, and her old mother came too, so as to look after her daughter. A day or so later one of the workers was endeavouring to make the old woman hear and understand the Gospel message, but this was an unusually difficult matter. The Mohammedan patient, noticing the obtuseness of the old woman, at last put in her word, and succeeding in getting the woman's attention, she said, "Oh, mother! You are a Hindu; I am a Mohammedan. You call hell narak, we call it dozakh, but whatever its name may be it seems to me we are both of us going there very quickly. The Miss Sahiba is telling us that if we believe on the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved." And then the Mohammedan woman went on to explain God's plan of Salvation, and to tell of the redeeming love of the Lord Jesus Christ. She spoke with evident earnestness, and in a clear, connected way. On being questioned as to the source of her teaching, she referred to her previous stay in the hospital, and how she used to listen to the ladies teaching the women patients.

A Mohammedan woman telling of the Saviour's love.

Early in 1904 the Rev. N. C. Dass was compelled by failing health to leave Amritsar, and Mr. McKenzie was then assisted in the pastoral charge of the Congregation by the Rev. Fazl-ud-din, an Indian deacon, who was transferred from Jandiala. For some months a contentious and unbrotherly spirit prevailed among the Christians, but the more earnest among them rose to the occasion, and peace was restored. Evangelistic work was carried on at the two large melas held at Amritsar, as well as in the preaching-hall in the town and in the villages of the district, and the people showed themselves willing not only to listen to the Gospel, but also to discuss it intelligently. At one place Mr. McKenzie met a former mission-schoolboy. He writes:—

Congregation.

He referred spontaneously to the progress of Christianity in the Punjab since he was a boy at school fifteen years ago, and to the fruitless attempts some of his bigoted fellow-countrymen made to stop it. "Sir," said he, "these people know I am not a Hindu in faith." "What are you, then?" I asked, "—a member of one of the various Somajes, in which so many in your position take refuge in these days?" "No," was the reply, "I'm free to live according to the light God has so far given me." But the real point of his frank remarks made before the group of people sitting there was in the opinion he expressed that his countrymen had no faith in their old forms, that confidence in their pundits and mullahs was a thing of the past, and that time and patience were alone needed to see hundreds of them break away. "Sir," said he, "we want a leader, and then crowds who are now unbelievers in their old faiths, but secret believers in the Christian religion, will take their stand."

"We want a leader."

There were about a dozen inquirers at Kakunangal, an out-station which was opened in 1904. The late Rev. Qasim Khan Nehemiah, whose death has been recorded above, baptized twenty persons at Majitha. The school, which is a branch of Amritsar College, has the names of 199 boys on the rolls, and did well in the examinations. At Jandiala, where Mr. Fazl-ud-din laboured until March, 1904, several people manifested a spirit of inquiry. Three adults were baptized in the Bahrwal-Atari district, where the Rev. Wadhawa Mull was in pastoral charge. He wrote in December, 1904, of one of them, a Mohammedan in Government employ:—

A convert persecuted by his wife.

About ten years ago when the Rev. H. G. Grey accompanied me into camp, this man asked him for a Bible. Since that time the Holy Spirit has been working in his heart, but his wife always opposed him, and this year when he was baptized in April she became very bitter towards him and left him, taking away all the children with her. However, she came back to him after two months, but persecutes him to this day, and does not allow any Christian lady or gentleman ever to enter her house, so much so that his young son treats him with contempt, but we are thankful to say he is still firm.

The Rev. Mian Sadiq Masih was pastor in the Ajnala district.

BATALA.

Batala. Baring High School.

Among the visitors to the Baring High School for Christian boarders at BATALA was Mr. R. Maconachie, a member of the Committee, who has known the school since its foundation in 1878. When he was there the Principal, the Rev. J. A. Wood, gave him a printed list of "old boys," containing ninety-four names, including those of men who in various departments of public service or professional life are "centres of wholesome influence." The head-master of the school, Mr. James Marr, B.A., is himself an "old boy." A swimming-bath was completed during the year with the help of gifts of friends, masters, and former pupils, in memory of Mr. I. C. Singha, who was head-master from 1878 until his death in 1903. The boys take kindly to athletics, and write in their essays of cricket as "our national game." Mr. Wood's duties included the supervision of the A.L.O.E. High School, which was originally commenced by Miss Tucker in a very small way, and was called by her "The Plough," because she believed that it would be used to prepare men's hearts to receive the good seed. The school, which has Mr. L. M. Sircar, B.A., as its head-master, contains nearly 300 boys and young men, the ages of those in the highest class ranging from seventeen to twenty-three. Miss E. C. Waymouth was transferred to Batala from Amritsar early in 1904.

The Rev. R. Force-Jones superintended the work in the Batala district with its two out-stations, Fathgarh and Uddoke.

NAROWAL.

Narowal.

The work at NAROWAL and in the surrounding district, which was under the charge of the Rev. C. M. Gough, suffered from a lack both of European missionaries and of Indian agents. Until November, 1904, when Miss Reuther, of the C.E.Z.M.S., returned from furlough, Mr. Gough had no European colleague excepting his wife; there was no Indian pastor; the senior catechist, who is the superintendent of the village schools, and also looks after the industrial work, was at the Divinity School at Lahore for a great part of the year; and altogether there were nine fewer catechists and readers than in 1897. Mr. Chatterji continued his good work in the Anglo-Vernacular School, from which in past years such converts as the Revs. Mian Sadiq, Wadhawa Mull, and Ihsan Ullah, and Drs. Datta and Utarid have been won. At the end of the year under review the industrial pupils of the Christian Boys' Boarding-school consisted of four shoemakers, four tailors, four washermen, and one bricklayer. The Hospital, which is worked as a branch of that at Amritsar, suffered through many changes in the staff, but the appointment at length of Dr. Mohammad Hussain (see last year's Report, page 233) afforded good reason for expecting an improvement speedily to take place.

One hundred of the 250 villages in the district contain Christians, but the many claims of the chief station made it impossible for Mr. Gough to supervise the work of the Indian agents thoroughly. Much difficulty was experienced in persuading the people to observe Sunday, and their standard of Christian life was low, which Mr. Gough says is not surprising, considering their ignorance and natural tendency to superstition, the inability of the great majority to read, the Heathenism which surrounds them, and the temptation to inter-marriage and intimate association with the Heathen. Fifty-seven adults were baptized during the year.

Hindrances to a high standard of Christian life.

TARN TARAN.

The immunity from plague which last year's Report (page 236) mentioned as being enjoyed by the people of TARN TARAN and the surrounding district at the end of 1903 did not continue for long, for the disease broke out early in 1904 with even greater virulence than that which characterized the previous visitation. The Rev. E. Guilford, who gives in his Annual Letter a sad and graphic account of some of the scenes which he witnessed, did all in his power by burning the rats which after dying of the plague had been thrown into the lanes and bazaars of the city, disinfecting houses, and acting as "foreman scavenger," to stay the progress of the disease, and the people openly acknowledged that his labours were but the result and exemplification of his teaching. The Natives displayed a strange fear of inoculation in spite of the numerous proofs of its efficacy. Mr. Guilford writes:—

Tarn Taran.

> In one village none but Hindus would be inoculated, and of these not quite all that were in the place. The Mohammedans declared that not even death would induce them to be inoculated. "Had not Allah decreed their fate from eternity, and could any device of man upset the decrees of heaven?" Of the 150 or more deaths from plague that occurred in that village, all, except one, and he a Hindu who had not been inoculated, were among the Moslems! Our Christians, thank God, have again been wonderfully preserved from the fell disease. For the most part they were again inoculated against it.

The educational work suffered through the prevalence of plague and fever, and most of the schools both in the town and the villages had to be closed at one time or another. The Prem Sabha, or mothers' meeting, was conducted by two Indian workers during the months when Mrs. Guilford was laid aside by illness, and was fairly well attended. Of Bibi Jhandi, one of those who carried it on, and of another helper, Mrs. Guilford wrote in January, 1905:—

Effective work by an Indian woman.

Jhandi brought her work to a close in Zunar and the surrounding villages in that distant centre of our district this autumn. When staying down there this November, I was greatly comforted in tracing everywhere the marks and impress of her work. Several girls and women have learned under her teaching to read God's Word for themselves, and the Christian women of Doder and Zunar are far beyond the women in any other of our village congregations, as a result of her visits, and loving, insinuating teaching. Several high-caste Sikh women also seem to have received the Word from her lips with real faith. As Jhandi's husband has now taken service under the municipality of this town, she is able to give much help in the work around us here, and she has about nine women to teach daily, while once a week she visits the women of one of the village congregations.

Another kind, loving woman has joined our ranks this year, Mrs. Kewal Singh; both she and her husband were formerly converts from this town, and the latter is so clever that he has translated Plato into Urdu. They live in their own house and ancestral property on the other side of the town, and she is most regular with her children in attending our services and Sunday-school, and my Bible-reading. To my delight the other day I found she had opened a school of her own accord for the children of her heathen friends and neighbours, and that every morning she had open reading of the Bible and prayers in her yard for all who liked to join her, and that about six women came and read with her.

Leper Asylum.

The Rev. Qutb-ud-din, an Indian deacon, was quasi-pastor of the Congregation. He paid periodical visits to the Leper Asylum, which contained from thirty to forty Christians. Many generous gifts were received towards the new buildings of that institution, which were opened in April, 1904, by Sir C. M. Rivaz, the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab. The manager of the Sikh temple at Tarn Taran gave Rs. 250 from the funds of the temple, and a similar amount from one of his friends; the Kaur Sahib of Nabha contributed Rs. 500; Sardar Sant Singh, who gave Rs. 1,200 in 1903, added another Rs. 200; and a Mohammedan gentleman made a donation of Rs. 2,500, besides bestowing a warm blanket on each inmate of the asylum at the beginning of the cold weather. Service was held every day for the Christian lepers, and the spiritual interests of the inmates were promoted by the appointment as medical officer of an Indian Christian, Dr. Dina Nath, whose wife was at one time connected with the C.E.Z.M.S. medical mission in the town. The Home for the untainted children of lepers continued its good work: the boys improved in every way, and one of the girls was happily married during the year.

Four members of one of the six village congregations returned to Heathenism, but Mr. Guilford regards the disposition of the people in the rural districts as distinctly favourable to the Gospel, and attributes the fact to the honest and upright dealings of the Christian officials who served as munsifs. He mentions the testimony of a Sikh farmer, who one day remarked to him, "There is all the difference in the world between Christian and non-Christian officials. Among the latter where you find one really good and honest fellow, you will discover ninety-nine tyrants and bribe-takers, but the reverse holds good among the former." He also quotes the words of a Sikh who said: "You know how we used to scoff at your message. All that is now passed." Mr. Guilford gives other instances of testimony borne by non-Christians, directly or indirectly, as to the impression made by the preaching of the Gospel and the lives of the Christians. He writes:—

A Sikh's testimony to uprightness of Christian officials.

At the monthly mela here in November, I noticed in the hand of a youth who was listening to our preaching a small book, and on requesting him to let me look at it I found that it was a scurrilous brochure against Christianity in general and padris in particular. One thing in it struck me forcibly. The writer said that he was led to publish this work because he saw that in the no distant future there was a danger of the Sikhs of the Manjha and the Malwa (i.e., of the Tarn Taran and adjoining districts) being for the most part won over to Christianity. He would, therefore, by all that was good and noble and true, beseech his Sikh brethren to exert their utmost powers at once, before it be too late, to avert the awful calamity of a large number of Sikhs leaving their pure religion for one which would destroy both soul and body, and bring them under the tyrannical power of the padris, &c., &c. Alas! I fear that the danger is not so imminent as the writer would have his co-religionists believe. However, it is a striking indication as to the tendency of things, and as to the direction in which the most strenuous effort to propagate the "truth as it is in Jesus" should be made at the present juncture.

Fears of a Sikh lest his co-religionists should become Christians.

On two different occasions during the year widows have been to us to ask the missionary to take over their affairs and to act as their attorney, or to appoint some Christian who would do so, saying that they could not trust their own people. On another occasion a Government official—an Indian—came and asked that some Christian might be nominated whom he could send on commission to investigate on the spot civil cases, the truth of which he found it hard to elicit in his Court.

Speaking of one of our Christian congregations in the district, a Sikh, in a village near by, said a few days ago, "Before those people became Christians our crops were not safe for two miles around, and we had to sit up all night and watch them."

When opposition was experienced it was almost always in villages which were not visited often or regularly. Unfortunately there were many such, for with only one missionary for more than 300 villages some of them only receive a visit once in two years. Fifty-seven persons were baptized during the year. Four of them were relatives of Pundit Parmanand, an ex-fakir, who two years after his baptism entered the Divinity School at Lahore. The Rev. E. F. E. Wigram writes:—

Fifty-seven persons baptized.

Pundit Parmanand first, with great difficulty, recovered his wife, severed from him twelve or fourteen years ago when he first became a fakir. About the same time his brother-in-law came to talk to him about the way of salvation, and was sent to the medical mission, Amritsar, for employment and instruction. Meantime, the wife was receiving instruction in Lahore with the greatest interest, and we quite hoped for her speedy baptism, when most unexpectedly she died while her husband was out of the house fetching medicine for what was believed to be only a slight complaint. But Parmanand saw in this sorrow and disappointment only the opportunity of winning others of his family, and succeeded in bringing his sister to Lahore to keep house for him in the place of his wife. She is the wife of the brother-in-law who had previously come, and she brought her little daughter with her. Next he persuaded his youngest brother to give up Government work near Quetta and come to him just before the autumn itineration, and he took him into camp in the Kulu district. Meantime, his sister had been learning more, and finally on Christmas Day, to Parmanand's great joy, brother, sister, brother-in-law, and niece were all baptized together.

An ex-fakir wins four of his relatives for Christ.

Literary Work.

Pressure of other duties prevented Mr. Guilford from accomplishing much literary work, but he saw The Life and Conversion of Chandra Lila, the biography of a Brahman Christian woman, through the press, and revised the proof-sheets of a new edition of the Gurmukhi New Testament.

CLARKABAD.

Clarkabad.

Mr. A. Dungworth was joined at CLARKABAD in September, 1904, by Mr. S. Gillespie, who had been at Multan for a few months. At the Boys' Orphanage, much care was devoted to the development of the industrial work, which had suffered from the lack of a permanent superintendent. By the end of the year some of the lads were being trained as joiners, others as tailors, and others again as bootmakers. Miss E. M. Hall, took charge of the Girls' Orphanage on her return from England in April, 1904. There was a great improvement in the attendance at the day-school, and the services conducted by the Indian pastor, the Rev. Fath Masih, attracted a fair number of people. Miss M. H. Millett and Miss M. J. Farthing proceeded to Clarkabad on their return from furlough in November, 1904, and February, 1905, respectively.

THE CHENAB COLONY.

Chenab Colony.

For mission purposes the CHENAB COLONY is divided in two by a line which runs a little south-west of Lyallpur, the American United Presbyterian Mission being responsible for the district lying to the north, and the C.M.S. for that to the south. The head quarters of the Society's work are at Gojra, where the Rev. and Mrs. E. Rhodes resided during the year, and Mr. S. Gillespie for a short time, but the Christians are found in the greatest numbers at Montgomerywala and Batemanabad, which contain about 1,200 of the 4,000 or 5,000 converts. The Bishop of Lahore, accompanied by the Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht, made a confirmation tour in the district in January, 1905.

Mr. Rhodes had the privilege of baptizing a large number of people, forty-five of them on one day. He says:—

Forbearance of Indian Christians.

I have reason to believe our Christians are growing in grace. Although many are poor and ignorant, they bear persecution in the spirit of the Master. The other day one of our teachers came from a village bruised and bleeding. After a short time the Christian youths of the place came to escort him back. I asked them their intention and their attitude to the Mohammedan persecutors. They immediately replied, "According to our Lord's own teaching."

The Rev. Ihsan Ullah, with the help of Munshi Waris-ud-din, gave instruction for six weeks in the summer to ten students at Toba Tek Singh, with a view to qualifying them to act as village readers, i.e., as pastoral assistants in places where Christians reside. Five of the men went up for the Village Board's examination, and all of them passed. A Mohammedan blacksmith with his wife and son were admitted into the visible Church. At Montgomerywala, a cemetery was consecrated by the Bishop of Lahore when he visited the station. At the end of the year Mr. Howell was transferred to Lahore, and a little later the Rev. J. Ali Baksh temporarily undertook the duties of pastor.

MULTAN.

Multan.

In December, 1903, the Rev. W. F. Cobb resumed the superintendence of the work at MULTAN on his return from furlough. He describes the people as characterized by apathy and sensuality, and says that missionaries who have worked at other stations besides Multan always agree that wickedness and indifference are more marked at the latter place than elsewhere. The Christians, about 100 in number, are ministered to by the Indian pastor, the Rev. Talib Masih. Some of the young men among them took up posts on the railway, in which they were exposed to great temptation, but several at least of their number used the opportunities of helping others which their positions afforded them. The High School, under the Rev. E. Johnson-Smyth, had to cope with a good deal of hostility at the beginning of 1904. New boys wishing to join the school were warned not to do so lest they should "be made" Christians, and some damage was done to the school premises. On the resignation of the head-master in the summer, a trained and certificated Christian master, Mr. R. C. Banerji, was appointed in his stead, and the efficiency of the staff was further increased through the retirement of three elderly masters, and the filling of their places by young and trained teachers. One boy asked for baptism, and two others appeared to be earnest seekers after truth. The number of lads in the Hostel fell off in consequence of one of them speaking openly against Mohammed in the bazaar, a step which caused several parents to withdraw their sons. A Lower Primary School was opened in the city in Apathetic and sensual people.

High School.

January, 1904, to act as feeder to the Upper Primary Department of the High School. An effort to set such a school on foot which was made in 1901 came to naught owing to the opposition of the Arya Somaj. By the end of the year there were the names of 116 boys on the rolls, and twenty lads had been sent to the High School. Dr. Annie W. Eger, who carried on the Women's Hospital with the help of Dr. C. Muriel Scott, reports that the prejudices of the people which were referred to in last year's Report (page 242) showed signs of breaking down, and that their fear of entering the hospital diminished wonderfully. The statistics which she gives support her statement, for whereas in 1900 the number of in-patients was twenty, in 1902 eighty-nine, and in the following year 166, in 1904 it was 389. Much of the spiritual work among these women was done by Miss L. Eger and by the Bible-woman, Imam Bibi, at one time a bigoted Mohammedan opponent, who with her three children and her mother-in-law embraced Christianity in 1901. The attitude towards the Gospel of the patients, many of whom were purdah women, changed, and although as a rule they began by paying little or no attention to what was said, or even by refusing to listen at all, many of them were won over, and there was reason to believe that in some cases the seed fell into good ground. There was a falling off in the number of out-patients owing to the increase of inmates of the hospital, and the consequent impossibility, with the small staff of workers available, of reaching the villages. Dr. Annie Eger had three girls from the Secundra Orphanage in training as helpers, and says that they promised better than any whom she had had before. The Work among Women was in the hands of Misses L. Eger and M. L. H. Warner. Several new zenanas were opened to the missionaries, and at the end of the year a school for Hindu girls was successfully started in the house of one of Miss F. L. Wadsworth's old pupils. The school for Mohammedan girls has thirteen names on its rolls.

Hospital.

New zenanas opened to missionaries.

The school at Bahawalpur, the only missionary agency in the State of that name, is under a Christian head-master, who was formerly a pupil in the High School at Multan. Mr. Johnson-Smyth visited the school once a month, and always remained at the out-station over a Sunday to conduct services. On New Year's Day, 1904, a man belonging to a village thirty miles from Multan was baptized, after being kept under instruction for two years. Mr. Cobb says that he is the first convert from any village in the district who has been able to stay on and work for his living in the place whence he came, and adds that the convert is teaching his wife and child, and trying to help others in his neighbourhood who are inquiring regarding the claims of Christianity. Mr. S. Gillespie resided at Multan for a few months while studying the language.

SIMLA AND KOTGUR.

Simla.

The congregation at SIMLA, where the Rev. J. Redman was in charge, numbers about seventy souls in winter and 134 in summer, and is composed of three classes. There are the clerks, most of them English-speaking Bengalis, who are engaged in the Government offices, and among whom are some earnest, spiritually-minded men; the men employed in the Government Press, most of them Urdu-speaking, who are regular in attendance at the services, but rather lacking in aggressive Christianity; and the servants, of some of whom their masters speak in high terms. Four Bible-classes were held every week during the season, and weekly Bible-studies for those babus who were desirous of reading the Scriptures. Mr. Redman took some part in the work of the Y.M.C.A. for the sake of the opportunities which it afforded him of getting into contact with non-Christians as well as Christians. Bazaar work was carried on throughout the year, and occasional visits were paid to the hamlets scattered on the hills. Among the inquirers were an ayah and her husband. The latter had been blind for some years from cataract, and had tried native remedies and offerings to the Hindu gods, without obtaining relief. At length the mistress of the ayah, who urged them to pray to the True God, persuaded the husband to apply to an English doctor for treatment. The operation was successful, and the man and his wife were so impressed that they placed themselves under Christian instruction.

Revision of the Urdu New Testament.

In the spring of 1904, the committee for the final revision of the Urdu New Testament, of which the Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht was chairman, and the Revs. T. Bomford and S. Nihal Singh members, met at Simla, and they continued their session until September. Dr. Weitbrecht wrote in January, 1905:—

> The tentative version published in 1900 has not been greatly altered, but improvements have been made in accuracy and uniformity of rendering. This final revision has since been accepted by the Lahore and Allahabad Auxiliaries of the Bible Society, and recommended by them for publication as the substantive version of the Urdu New Testament. Its actual publication has, however, been somewhat delayed by a controversy which has arisen as to the Greek text which is to be used as the basis of the Urdu version. In order to secure the uniformity of the Greek text used in all foreign translations and revisions, the British and Foreign Bible Society at its Centenary published a resultant Greek text of the New Testament, based on the three great recensions of Tischendorf, Westcott and Hort, and Bernhard Weiss, and most accurately edited by Professor Nestle, of Maulbronn. This, being recommended to the translators and revisers of the Society for use in their work, was adopted by the Urdu Revision Committee at Simla. Objections have since been raised to the text by some who think that the readings of the English revisers should be retained, and the matter is still under consideration.

Kotgur.

At KOTGUR, the oldest mission-station of the Society in the Punjab, where the Rev. H. F. T. Beutel was in charge, there is a little congregation consisting of some seventy baptized Christians. The Medical Work was in abeyance from January to March, 1904, owing to the absence of Dr. A. Jukes at Simla. During the first eight weeks after his return twelve in-patients were received, and 680 visits of out-patients were recorded. Several of the people made thankofferings for the relief they received, and there was a manifestly increased attention to the preaching of the Gospel. Regulations for the guidance of the teachers in the eight schools in the district were drawn up, and all the agents, both Christians and non-Christians, were gathered together for special instruction for a fortnight in October.

The Rev. J. Tunbridge resides at Simiala, which lies about forty miles east of Kangra, and thence itinerates in the district. He reports that all the converts baptized by him in 1903 (see last year's Report, page 244) stood firm. One family went back to their home, and were much persecuted by their Mohammedan neighbours, but the trials they met with only had the effect of weaning them more completely from their old associates, and their conduct led to signs of a sympathetic interest in Christianity on the part of three families of relatives. Nurpur, the first place visited in the spring of 1904, is a small town with a very bigoted population of Hindus and Mohammedans, but Mr. Tunbridge was allowed to give three lantern lectures in the Government school, and afterwards had an invitation to exhibit the pictures in the yard of a Hindu temple. At Jawali, where a few years before Mr. Tunbridge's then colleague was pelted with mud in the open street and grossly insulted, the people crowded round the workers for medical treatment, and gathered in large numbers at the preachings in the bazaar and at the lantern exhibitions; and at Nagrota, a few miles distant, experiences were even more cheering. In the neighbourhood of Haripur Mr. Tunbridge went to see a rajah, and stayed the night with him, though doing so involved facing the ordeal of a native dinner of eighteen courses! He writes:—

Persecution weans converts from their old associates.

A rajah gathers his people to listen to the Gospel.

> Twice his Majesty gathered his pundits and people together to listen to the truth, when by question and answer much light was shed, we trust, on their Hindu darkness. They took a good selection of Scriptures and other books, and wrote afterwards that they had carefully read them. At night a large room in the palace was cleared for a lantern lecture. This rajah takes precedence of all the ruling chiefs and rajahs of the district. His son and heir is an intelligent young man, and has been educated in the Punjab Chiefs' College. He told me more than once that he fully believed in Christ, and afterwards wrote that no one could doubt that He is the Son of God.

While at Jawala Mukhi, a great pilgrim resort, there were abundant opportunities of reaching the people. As the Indian Christians of the place were in some difficulties in a dispute concerning some land, a special meeting was held to pray about the matter, and soon afterwards the case was decided in their favour. The event led several of their relatives who were halting between two opinions to determine in favour of Christianity. In the autumn a visit was paid to the annual mela in Kulu, at which tribes from hundreds of miles around are represented. Among those who came to see Mr. Tunbridge were a Brahman of position, another high-caste youth, a cultivator, and two low-caste men. All of these were believers in Christ, but, with the exception of the high-caste youth, who was afterwards baptized, they have not yet confessed Him openly. From May to September, when he was at Simiala, Mr. Tunbridge made some progress in the translation of St. Luke's Gospel into the local dialect, and in collecting materials for a grammar. Literary Work.

KANGRA AND DHARMSALA.

The earthquake of April 4th, 1905, which destroyed both Kangra and Dharmsala, and in which the Rev. H. F. Rowlands, Mrs. Däuble, and Miss Lorbeer were killed, has been referred to above (see page 229).

On his return from furlough in November, 1903, the late Rev. H. F. Rowlands resumed the superintendence of the work at KANGRA, and Dr. S. W. Sutton once more devoted himself to itinerant medical work. He spent February and March, 1904, in camp, from time to time going into Kangra and Bhawan to see in their own homes any patients in those towns who were too ill to make the journey to the camp. The average daily number of patients was thirty, and those who came were drawn from thirty-eight different villages. In consequence of the decision which was arrived at to discontinue the medical work at Kangra, Dr. Sutton went in the autumn to Peshawar temporarily. Kangra. Medical itinerations.

The late Mrs. C. G. Däuble had her head quarters at DHARMSALA. The school for Christian girls and that for Gurkha girls each had a treat at Christmas. Some of the Gurkhas were so eager to answer the Bible questions which were put that they stood upon the table, hoping thus to attract attention and get their turn sooner. Mrs. Däuble visited the little bands of Christians at Sidhpur and Jawala Mukhi, and spent some time at Palampur, where she found an old Mohammedan couple who were almost Christians at heart. Dharmsala.

II. KASHMIR.

THE Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Barton came home in December, 1904; and Dr. A. Neve and Dr. Minnie Gomery in March, 1905. Miss M. N. Neve sailed for the Mission in September, 1904; and the Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe in February, 1905.

SRINAGAR.

Srinagar.

In the absence of the Principal, the Rev. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe, in England, the Rev. J. H. Knowles was in charge of the High School, SRINAGAR, and its five branch schools in different parts of the city, containing in all more than 1,500 boys. With so large a number of pupils, and but two Indian Christians among the masters, the Scripture teaching was a matter of some difficulty, and it has been decided to reduce the number of pupils by the simple expedient of raising the fees. The Rev. C. E. Barton did what he could to help in teaching the Bible to the lads. Many of the boys who left the Central School in April, 1904, after passing the Entrance Examination of the Punjab University, went away with clear ideas of what Christianity means and teaches, and with the recollection of practical exemplifications of the influence which it should have on the daily life. Mr. Barton gives an instance of the latter:—

High School.

Practical Christianity.

> One day while going down to the school I saw a man lying across the road evidently in a very exhausted condition. I selected four of the bigger boys of the class and told them to go and ask the man who he was, and what was the matter with him, and if he was ill to take him to the hospital. They went off gladly, and found that he had come from Islamabad, and was very weak from want of food, which they procured for him; they then took him by boat to Dr. Neve, who discovered that he was incurable from some spine disease and handed him over to the State hospital doctor, who provided for him. The man was a Mohammedan, and these boys were Brahmans.

Towards the end of the year Mr. Knowles became seriously ill with pneumonia, and, as Mr. Barton had left on furlough, the Rev. M. E. Wigram was transferred from Peshawar in November to take charge of the school and the clerical work at the station until the return of Mr. Tyndale-Biscoe. Miss C. A. Churchill Taylor opened three Girls' Schools in the city, one of them for Hindu children and the others for Mohammedans, and by November had forty pupils.

Medical Work.

The Medical Work carried on by Drs. A. and E. F. Neve, with the help for six months of Dr. F. M. Graham, of Edinburgh, was on a large scale. Although the hospital contains accommodation for 150 patients, the numbers who came for treatment in the summer were so large that beds had to be spread on the floors of some of the wards. The out-patients numbered 20,000, many of whom paid more than one visit to the dispensary. Systematic religious instruction was given to the occupants of the wards, who listened with greater attention and more apparent receptivity than the out-patients. Miss A. Robinson, a trained nurse, tells of a crippled girl, twelve years old, who was in the hospital for a couple of months. She writes:—

Beds have to be spread on the floors of the wards.

> She was really a marvellous child. She remembered every Bible story she was told, and could repeat it the next day perfectly accurately. I really believe she gave her heart to Christ. She so often said she wanted Jesus to come into her heart, that there was room for Him there, and she wanted Him to stay. She asked me one day if she would soon get well. I said to her, "Supposing it is not God's will to make you well; supposing He wants to take you to Himself—what then? Are you afraid?" She answered, "No. Why should I be afraid? He is preparing a place for me." Her friends took her home, and I have heard since she died shortly afterwards. "God is preparing a place for me."

Miss Robinson adds, however, that the majority of the women by no means resemble this girl, for they are "dull, stupid, self-righteous, and superstitious, trusting in their own good works and the prayers of their saints." She mentions, as an instance, a woman suffering from tetanus, whose mother, convinced that a devil had taken possession of her daughter, spent a whole night at the door of the ward beating her breast, tearing her hair, and imploring a saint, whose tomb was not far distant, to cast out the devil. The hospital was honoured by a visit from the Acting-Viceroy, Lord Ampthill, who made a donation to its funds and expressed the pleasure and interest he had felt in witnessing the good work carried on.

Leper Asylum.

The Leper Asylum had on the average from sixty-five to eighty inmates. The lepers in general are said to show but little gratitude for what is done for them, and to evince no desire for a higher and holier life. The Sikh convert, whose baptism was recorded in last year's Report (page 248), died at the beginning of the year, and one of the other Christians turned out badly and left Kashmir. Drs. A. and E. F. Neve itinerated over a large area, and many of the patients whom they first saw on their tours afterwards came to Srinagar for further treatment.

ISLAMABAD.

Islamabad.

The isolation at ISLAMABAD of Dr. Minnie Gomery and Miss C. A. Newnham, a trained nurse, from all their fellow-countrymen is said to have one advantage in that it enables them to exercise a wider influence over the people. This was shown during the year in connexion with the inoculation for plague. In most parts of Kashmir there was terror at the mere mention of the word, but at Islamabad it became almost the fashion. Most of the local officials and State servants were inoculated at the State dispensary, but the non-officials went of their own accord to the Doctor Miss Sahiba, and, in proportion to its size, four times as many people were inoculated at Islamabad as at any other place in Kashmir. A few purdah women came to the hospital, and most of the patients listened to the daily Gospel teaching without raising any objection, but there was apparently little sense among them of any spiritual need. Several illustrations occurred of the cruelty and callousness of the people. Miss Newnham wrote in November :—

Little sense of spiritual need.

> Quite recently a man brought his wife from Eishmaqam, thirteen miles off, with a terrible gash in her leg from a fall. The usual remedy for hæmorrhage—cotton-wool burnt black—had been applied, without effect as to stopping the bleeding, but with great effect as to preventing healing. The very day after bringing her in her husband began to agitate and worry us to let her go home. He came every day and worried and begged, and though we tried to explain to him the necessity for his wife staying to let the wound heal, it was of no use, for he said he would divorce her if she did not go home with him, so we had to give in. She went, and he was heard telling her that if she did not walk faster he would beat her, and that was only the fifth day after her admission. Many of the poor women live simply in terror of their husbands and parents-in-law, and many have left the wards or ceased to attend the out-patient dispensary because of the wrath of their relatives.

The ladies took the Scripture classes in the branch boys' school, which had about fifty pupils, and carried on evangelistic work by means of lantern exhibitions for men and women.

III. NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

DR. W. H. LOWMAN came home on medical certificate in December, 1904. The Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Hoare sailed for the Mission in October, 1904.

PESHAWAR.

Peshawar.

The European staff of the Society at PESHAWAR consisted of Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Lankester and the Rev. M. E. Wigram. They were joined in the autumn by the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Hoare on their return from furlough, and by Dr. S. W. Sutton, but in November Mr. Wigram was suddenly called upon to go to Kashmir. The last named was Acting-Principal of the Edwardes College in the absence of Mr. Hoare. Of the thirty-one men in the College Department, eleven went in for the Intermediate Examination of the Punjab University, and five of them passed. Eighteen out of the twenty-two boys in the School Department who were sent up for the Entrance Examination were successful. Mr. Wigram, who had the help in the Scripture teaching of the Rev. Aziz-ud-din, an Indian clergyman, of the Hon. M. Waldegrave, an independent worker, and of a young Mohammedan convert from the south of India, says that, although none of the students applied for baptism, yet he is sure that the work of the College is not in vain. He writes :—

Edwardes College.

> As we look at a river we can see no change on the rocks in its bed day by day, and little year by year. But the water is gradually wearing away the rocks, and the jagged points are being smoothed off. So in the school, the regularly applied teaching of the Word of God and the Gospel of Jesus Christ is gradually wearing away the superstition and prejudice and bigotry of generations, and preparing polished stones for the living temple of the Lord.

Ten of the students in the College Department were in residence at the Hostel. Most of the inmates were Mohammedans, but there were a few Hindus and one Christian. A certain amount of trouble was experienced, but on the whole things went smoothly. The number of patients attracted to the Hospital continued to increase, and it became necessary to seek for better accommodation than that afforded by the three caravanserais which were adapted in 1897 for the medical work. A site for a new hospital was obtained by Dr. Lankester close to the city on the side most frequented by the trans-frontier travellers, many of whom are among the patients, and the foundation-stone was laid in December, 1904, by the Bishop of Lahore. Dr. Sutton conducted a Bible-class for the members of the hospital staff, all of whom are Christians with the exception of one who is a catechumen, and Mr. Aziz-ud-din preached daily to the visitors and patients. The latter also carried on evangelistic work in the Anjuman Institute. During a three months' tour in the Hazara, he met some converts who had been baptized in Kashmir, but had relapsed into Mohammedanism.

BANNU.

Bannu. High School.

Dr. T. L. Pennell had 350 boys under his care in the High School, BANNU; only seven of them were Christians, and the remainder Hindus and Mohammedans. The boys maintained their reputation for athletic prowess, regaining the Waterfield Football Cup for Schools of the Frontier Provinces, which had been wrested from them in 1903, and in the District Sports winning both the Donald Football Cup and the Gunter Cricket Belt. Connected with the school is a hostel, which contains nine Mohammedans and seven Hindus, among whom Dr. S. Gaster worked until his transference to Dera Ghazi Khan in March, 1904. Some of these lads manifested a deeper seriousness regarding religion according to their meagre light, and formed themselves into a society for the furtherance of devotion. The inaugural meeting of the society is thus described by Dr. S. P. Barton:—

Mohammedan and Hindu lads form a society for the furtherance of devotion.

> When the boarders were all present I asked L. R. to explain the reason of our coming together, so he got up and made a speech on the subject. He said how that some evenings before the thought had been laid on his heart concerning the neglect of religion, that he recognized the fact that if this matter was neglected in youth it would probably be also in old age, therefore he had consulted with some other boys on the subject and they had concluded that the formation of a society among the boarders would be of assistance. He proposed that one of the main objects of the society should be the furtherance of religious devotion by rising punctually at 5 a.m. every morning, and spending some time also at sunset in devotion—be they Mohammedans or Hindus. The punishment for neglect of this should be either a small fine or else (and this he advocated warmly) a ducking in the swimming tank! Several other boys got up and spoke, and it was wonderful to hear them, for they were decidedly more thoughtful than the great majority of boys of their age in an English school.

Hospital.

The fifty beds of the Hospital sometimes proved insufficient to accommodate all the patients who were anxious for admission. Many of them came from Afghanistan, which is still closed to missionaries. In 1902, out of 678 in-patients, 108 came from the Amir's dominions, and 165 were members of independent trans-border tribes; and in 1903, out of 728 in-patients, the numbers of the same were 127 and 144 respectively. The branch dispensary at Shekh Mahmud, under the care of a native assistant, did a good work. An unexpected donation of Rs.1,000 from a Frontier officer led Dr. Pennell to hope soon to open a second branch dispensary at Karak, a town of the Southern Khattaks, thirty-three miles from Bannu, in the direction of Kohat.

A "fakir tour."

At the end of 1903 Dr. Pennell, in company with a Pathan lad, undertook a tour in North India, travelling as a Christian fakir—clad in ochre garments, and unprovided with money; the doctor having one pair of shoes, one blanket, and his bicycle. He visited twenty-two places, preaching in all but four of them. During the summer months, when the school was closed, he revisited the Kurram valley, where, however, he was not allowed by the Political Officer to engage in direct missionary work, and thence proceeded to the Miranzai valley and Thal. In the autumn Dr. Barton went to the Khattak Hills, with Dr. Pennell's first convert, "a fine example of the transforming power of the Glad Tidings," as his companion. On every hand he met with traces of the influence of the medical work. In one village he was visited by three mullahs, all of whom had been under treatment in the hospital, and who displayed an entire absence of bitterness; and it was the general rule for the people, who flocked literally in hundreds to the medicine-tent, to listen quietly and attentively to the preaching. So far from the mullahs driving the patients away, they themselves came and brought their families and friends to be treated, to hear the Word of God expounded, and to enter into friendly conversation, and in some cases they took away with them a Persian or Afghan New Testament to study at their leisure.

"A fine example of the transforming power of the Gospel."

DERA ISMAIL KHAN.

Dera Ismail Khan.

Hospital.

There was a decided increase in the number of in-patients at the Hospital at DERA ISMAIL KHAN under Drs. H. W. Lowman and C. Somerton Clark. Many of them were Povindahs, i.e., traders from Khorassan, whom Sir Herbert Edwardes once described as "the rudest of the rude," but who, Dr. Somerton Clark says, possess warm hearts, though they display but little interest in the Gospel. Among others who came for treatment was a man who said that he had killed one of the Amir's men, and as a punishment his eyes had been cut and lime put in them. One young woman declared that she wished to become a Christian, but two nights afterwards she suddenly disappeared from the hospital. The number of patients at the dispensary held in one of the main bazaars of the city was smaller than in 1903, owing to the comparative absence of malarial fever. Mr. H. C. Guyer was transferred from Amritsar towards the end of 1904, to take charge of the High School. Dr. Somerton Clark paid several visits to Tank, forty-two miles nearer the frontier than Dera Ismail Khan, where Dr. Nathaniel Williams, a son of the late Rev. J. Williams, who laboured there for twenty-eight years, was stationed. One or two itinerations were made by Dr. Lowman, but in November the state of his health obliged him to come home. A widower and his three daughters were baptized in December, 1903.

DERA GHAZI KHAN.

Dera Ghazi Khan.

The foundation-stone of a new church at DERA GHAZI KHAN was laid by the Bishop of Lahore in February, 1904, and the completed building, capable of seating about 150 persons, was dedicated by him ten months later. The building fund dates from 1891, great delay in carrying out the work having been caused by the uncertainty as to the constantly changing course of the River Indus. Dr. W. F. Adams who had Dr. S. Gaster as his colleague at the Men's Hospital from March, 1904, reports a larger number of in-patients than in 1903 in spite of the year having been exceptionally healthy, and says that an interest in the Gospel was manifested by some of them. Two mullahs, in particular, appeared convinced of the truth, and one of them confessed his faith quite clearly. He was, however, prevented from taking any decisive step by the threats of the Mohammedans. In the work of the Women's Hospital Dr. Eleanor I. Dodson had the help of a trained Indian assistant, while Miss A. W. Gross devoted herself to ministering to the spiritual needs of the people. The number of in-patients grew from 150 in 1903, to over 300. Dr. Eleanor Dodson writes:—

Hospitals.

> I see many signs of interest among the women, and some of them are being influenced, but it seems almost impossible for them to get any further than this. Hardly any of them can read for themselves, and indeed as soon as they show any real interest in the Word in their own homes they are either not allowed to come to the hospital again or else are persecuted in many small ways by their friends and relatives. I think we Europeans can hardly realize how terribly difficult it is for them to take a decided step. One woman whom I knew as a dai in the Punjab before, and who has been working with me here for six months, is, we believe, quite convinced of the truth of Christianity, and would, if she were free, confess Christ openly, but home ties are very strong, and she has not yet found strength to break them and leave all (as she would certainly have to do) and follow Christ. I would like to ask for prayer for her especially.

A Hindu lawyer refuses to accept fees for his work in a law-suit for the Mission.

The influence of the medical work was seen in the action of a Hindu lawyer who defended the case of the Mission in a law-suit respecting some ground for the Women's Hospital, and absolutely refused to accept any fees for his work. There was no reason for thinking that he was interested in Christianity, but he believed in English doctors, and on that account supported the work.

A dispensary was held at Sakhi Sarwar in the cold season. During the five summer months that the hospital at Fort Monro was kept open 119 in-patients were accommodated in the eight beds. Many of them came long distances over the hills of Beluchistan, and several expressed a desire that the doctors should visit them in their villages to give them further teaching.

IV. BELUCHISTAN.

THE Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Dixey were transferred to the North-West Frontier Province section of the Mission in January, 1905.

QUETTA.

Quetta.

The dedication in March, 1904, of a new church at QUETTA, where the Rev. A. E. Ball was in general charge, was followed by a great increase in the number of those attending the services, among them being many non-Christians. The Congregation consists of 188 persons, of whom forty-seven are communicants. One member went back to Mohammedanism during the year, the name of another was struck off the list, and a third left with a view to entering the Church of Rome, immorality being the cause of the defection in each instance.

Medical Work.

The Medical Work was under the care of Drs. J. O. Summerhayes and H. T. Holland. At the suggestion of the ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S., Mrs. A. D. Dixey opened a school for Parsi girls, and soon had a good number of pupils. Twelve adults were baptized during the year.

Bigoted and fanatical people.

The Rev. A. D. Dixey spent several months itinerating in the district, having the advantage of the company of Dr. Holland from time to time. He speaks of the people, both Pathans and Beluchis, as very bigoted and inclined to fanaticism, and says that though the men may sometimes be seen at prayer, most of them do not understand the words they use, even their mullahs often being unable to read. They frequently offer their prayers at the shrine of some local pir or saint, the shrine being marked by an erection of mud with many dirty rags flying from small pieces of stick or from some tree in the vicinity. Mr. Dixey writes:—

> While admiring many of the manly qualities of these Pathan tribes, it is impossible to speak of the worst side of the characters of many of these men; and I may add that experience from a medical standpoint was fully corroborated by the many cases of murder, and the events leading to the same, that I heard of from political officers from time to time. Blood-feuds are of every-day occurrence, but of the causes that lead to such things I cannot speak. As a former worker in East London, I can only say that Whitechapel murders, with many ghastly horrors added, can only describe the cases that constantly came to my knowledge.

The medicine-chest which he took with him soon brought the people round Mr. Dixey, and he had abundant opportunities for short talks with his patients about the Gospel. While he was at Khazak, a village with a population of 2,000, a girl was brought with a compound fracture of one arm, in which, owing to the want of attention, gangrene had set in. Mr. Dixey writes :— Medical itinerations.

I immediately cut the sinews and arteries by which it was hanging, and, having bound it up, I requested the chief for some men to carry the little thing to the nearest hospital, less than a day's march away. After much discussion and at first refusal, the headman sent me four men to carry the bed to the next village. We set out about 2 p.m., but had not gone far when my horse (a borrowed one), being left to a man to hold while I gave some stimulant to the little girl, ran away into the jungle and was not seen again. We walked to the next village, and then, having called for the headman, I requested help to continue our journey. He replied, "I am going to say my prayers and have no time." At the same moment the other men disappeared, and I was left alone with the father of the child. We then started to carry the bed between us, but after a short distance I called three big boys and forced them to assist, and so arrived at our destination. This illustrates the utter callousness of this people to human life and suffering. Callousness to suffering.

In this village the people were at first very unfriendly, but their confidence was gradually won, and when the place was visited later on the missionaries were the guests of a Beluchi headman every other day, and were treated to the choicest native fare. A stay of several days was made at another village named Lohni, where Dr. Holland performed a number of operations and prescribed for some serious cases. Among the places visited was Tulli, on the border of the Marri Country, an independent tribal area which has so bad a reputation for murder and crime that the Natives are not allowed to leave their own country without special permission. Mr. Dixey writes :— A country with a reputation for murder and crime.

Hearing medicine was being given at Tulli, several hundreds of people came down from their mountains, bringing their sick with them. My knowledge of medicine, &c., being very elementary, I was somewhat taken aback, especially as these gentlemen have not the best of characters. Finding it impossible to deal with so many serious cases, I sent off a camel to the nearest telegraph office, asking Dr. Holland to come over and help us. After three days he joined us, and a busy time we had. Our tent served as a dispensary, and a small room built of mud, with wooden shutters for windows, was used for operating and dining, and as a bedroom. From the roof hung large cobwebs two or three feet long; crowding round the door were dozens of Afghans and Marri Beluchis with their long hair and flowing garments, often armed with swords and knives. Three native beds for headmen, instruments, and operations filled up most of the space within, and here in two days we had fourteen major and fourteen minor operations; the Marri chief and his heir being spectators in one serious case.

And of his experiences at another place, Smallan, Mr. Dixey says :—

The people here were certainly some of the lowest Pathans I had met, and had an exceedingly bad character. Only two years ago the political officer of the district was cut down here by a Ghazi, and the night I stayed in their village some of the tribe murdered a man carrying letters and dispatches.

Yet, though unable to speak except with great difficulty, owing to my Pathan having run away, we had no trouble, and in two days saw some 200 patients, and on the Sunday afternoon had a few words with a mullah, who accepted a Gospel in Persian.

V. SINDH.

THE Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Abigail sailed for the Mission in November, 1904.

KARACHI.

Karachi. The Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Redman resided at KARACHI during the year. The ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S had more opportunities of work than they could take advantage of.

HYDERABAD.

Hydera-bad. A Mohammedan girl, the fruit of the labours of the C.E.Z.M.S. missionaries, was baptized in January, 1904, at HYDERABAD where the Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Abigail were stationed.

SUKKUR.

Sukkur. The Indian deacon, the Rev. Tulsi Das Mansukhani, was in charge at SUKKUR, under the supervision of the Rev. A. H. Abigail.

WESTERN INDIA MISSION.

For fifty years after Bombay became a British possession the English had neither church nor chaplain in the city, and it was not till a century later still that any effort was made for the evangelization of its inhabitants. The first Protestant missionaries, agents of the American Board of Foreign Missions, arrived in 1813. It was in 1820 that the C.M.S. work was inaugurated in Bombay by the Rev. Richard Kenney. The operations of the Society there have been very limited, but in 1832 the work was extended to Nasik; Junnar was occupied in 1843; Malegam, 1848; Aurungabad, 1860; and Poona, 1882. Special efforts are made to reach the Mohammedans and Parsis.

The first Bishop of Bombay, Dr. Carr, was consecrated in 1835. His successors have been: Bishops Harding (1851), Douglas (1869), Mylne (1876), Macarthur (1898), Pym (1903).

Death of the Rev. G. Yesudian,

THE Rev. Gnanamuttu Yesudian was called to his eternal rest on July 29th, 1904, from his own village in Tinnevelly, after forty years' work in connexion with the Society. Mr. Yesudian went to Poona from Tinnevelly in 1894, to act as quasi-pastor of the C.M.S. Tamil congregation there. When the present Divinity School buildings were opened he was one of the first set of students who entered, and while carrying on his pastoral work he studied hard for Deacons' Orders, in spite of considerable difficulties. He was ordained by Bishop Mylne in 1897, and admitted to Priests' Orders by Bishop Macarthur in 1900. When his health failed the doctors ordered him to return to his own country, and at first there seemed some real progress towards recovery, but it was not maintained. His son writes: "His end was peace. He said just before his death the following words in Tamil: 'I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord,' and 'Jesus, have mercy upon me.'"

Mrs. Pym,

The missionaries also experienced a real loss through the death from cholera of Mrs. Pym, the wife of the Bishop of Bombay, which occurred while her husband was away on tour in his diocese.

and the Rev. E. Sampson.

The Rev. Edward Sampson, a missionary of the Society in Western India from 1866–71, died at Dacre, Leeds, on February 18th, 1905. The Rev. George Shirt was his travelling companion on his way out to India, and the ship in which they sailed was wrecked off the Cape of Good Hope. The missionaries spent four days in a lifeboat on the open sea, and then they were rescued by a passing sailing ship, and eventually reached Bombay in a destitute condition. Mr. Sampson retired in consequence of broken health. He afterwards successively held the incumbencies of St. James's, Selby; Maryport, Cumberland; and Dacre, Leeds.

Reinforcement.

One of the recruits of the year has been assigned to the Western India Mission, viz., the Rev. John Henry Robinson, M.A., Durham, Curate of Widcombe, Bath. He sailed for India in December, 1904. The Committee have accepted the resignations of the Rev. Canon W. A. Roberts, tendered after thirty-five years' service on his acceptance of a living, and of the Rev. A. E. Richardson, on medical grounds.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. Manwaring and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Hodgson came home in November, 1904. The Rev. and Mrs. L. B. Butcher sailed in January, 1905, to return to the Mission. The Rev. J. P. Butlin married Miss Edith Emala Richardson, of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission, at Bombay on November 8th, 1904.

Ordination. The Rev. W. Wyatt was admitted to Priests' Orders at Poona by the Bishop of Bombay on St. John the Baptist's Day, June 24th, 1904, and the Rev. C. W. Wootton by the Bishop of Madras in St. Paul's Church, Vepery, Madras, on Sunday, December 18th.

The following are the members of the Bombay Corresponding Committee:—The Bishop of Bombay, the Ven. Archdeacon Scott, Lieut.-Col. W. F. Cahusac, the Hon. I. Jacob, I.C.S., Mr. R. G. Monteath, Mr. H. E. E. Procter, and the Revs. E. J. Jones, H. McNeile, and R. S. Heywood (Secretary).

BOMBAY.

Bombay. The missionaries of the Society in BOMBAY were the Rev. and Mrs. R. S. Heywood, the Rev. and Mrs. W. Latham, the Revs. T. Davis, H. McNeile, and A. E. Richardson (until February, 1904), and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Hodgson (until October). The first-named added to his secretarial duties those connected with the incumbency of the Girgaum Church, Mr. McNeile assisting him in the clerical duty, and also superintending the Sunday-school during the absence in England of the friend who usually is responsible for that work. Steps were successfully taken to procure a new organ, and, thanks to an anonymous gift of Rs. 2,000 for that purpose, the money which the congregation in general had subscribed for the organ was rendered free to be utilized for building a vestry. Nine candidates were confirmed in November at a service remarkable for its solemnity, and a monthly gathering for communicants was instituted. After Mr. Richardson's departure the smallness of the staff made it impossible for the members of the congregation to be visited as they should be. The lack of evangelistic workers militated against any marked increase in the Marathi and Gujerathi Congregations. The Rev. D. L. Joshi, the pastor of the former congregation, who also ministered to the latter so far as he was able, writes:—

Nominal Christians hostile to Christian work. When the great movements in the camps of non-Christians, with their congresses and conferences, as also other organizations, are calculated to keep the people from joining the Christian fold, backed up as they are by the wealth and nobility of the land; when nominal Christians are not only hindrances, but sometimes positively hostile to Christian work; when the indigenous Christians are a small and feeble folk, and left behind in the race of life; when Christian workers are so few, and many of them are unable to cope with the magnitude of the forces they have to combat with—it is enough to damp the spirit of earnest men. It is only when they remember that it is the command of their Great Captain to go forward that they cast off all doubts and leave the issues in His all-guiding Hand. Take the case of our Bombay Marathi and Gujerathi Mission. In this premier city of India we have no regular missionary, European or Indian, set apart for this most important work. There are but one junior catechist and a junior reader to do evangelistic work among the tens of thousands of the Marathis and Gujerathis.

Death carried off ten members of the Marathi Congregation, and a careful revision of the register further brought its numbers down to 153, as compared with 186 in 1903. Under the circumstances it was a matter for special thankfulness that the contributions of the people increased to Rs. 865, the highest figure on record. Many of the converts, it is said, would do credit to any Christian congregation, but there is a lack of cohesion and aggressiveness among them, due in some measure to their homes being widely scattered. Most of the Gujerathi Congregation belong to the Dhed caste, outcasts of Ahmedabad and Kaira districts. Their ordinary occupations were formerly farming and carpet-weaving, but during the famine which lasted from1896 to 1900 they fled to Bombay and took service under the Municipality as sweepers. They are described as a "simple and loyal people," "absolutely honest in money dealings," and it is said that though backward spiritually, "they have germs in them of the right sort." Sixteen adults were baptized in Bombay and seven at Bandra, where there is a little congregation of thirty-three souls, among whom Mr. H. Mody, a Parsi convert of many years' standing, did valued work. The Urdu Congregation, under Mr. Davis, numbered 177, about half of whom were communicants.

Increased native contributions.

A "simple and loyal people."

Baptisms.

Mr. W. Latham, who had the help of Mr. Davis in the English work at the Robert Money School, reports an increase in the number of pupils from 180 to 212, and says that four out of the six candidates who entered passed the Matriculation Examination of the Bombay University. In past years there has been an evident lack of esprit de corps among the lads, and steps were taken to stimulate this by having a prize distribution and entertainment, the first at the school for forty-six years, and by starting a cricket club, which soon had eighty members. A Bible was given to each of the nine boys who left the school from the Seventh Standard. The Boarding School for Christian Girls was superintended by Mrs. Jackson of the Z.B.M.M., widow of the Society's missionary, the Rev. J. Jackson. It was closed for two months in the spring of 1904 in consequence of the plague, but was well filled during the remainder of the year.

In the account which he sends of the Mohammedan Mission, Mohammedan Mission.

Mr. Davis dwells upon the injury to the work which is sometimes done by the publication of details concerning its success, and which is experienced in other portions of the mission-field besides Bombay. The boys' school had an attendance of forty-six, rather more than in 1903, in spite of the disadvantage of changing its quarters three times during the year. Eighteen of the lads belong to a Bible-reading circle. Comparatively few people visited the library at the mission-hall in the mornings for quiet reading and conversation, but the audiences at the public discussions held in the evenings were large, attentive, courteous, and fair. Twenty-seven persons were baptized, fourteen of them adults, a greater number than in any previous year in the history of the Mohammedan Mission.

Twenty-seven Mohammedans baptized.

Work among English-speaking Indians was carried on by Mr. McNeile, chiefly by means of preaching in the open air, for the house used as a lecture-hall and reading-room and hostel for Parsi inquirers was required by the landlord, and no other suitable premises could be found. Mr. McNeile does not take a hopeful view of the prospects of his work. He writes:—

Parsis difficult of access.

> The Parsis are difficult of access, not socially, but religiously; they resent what they call domiciliary visits; they will not attend lectures, even when delivered within a stone's throw of their residences; they bravely assert the superiority of their own religion, without knowing what their own religion is; and the few who will come and listen to open-air preaching seem to regard the Gospel message as having little interest for them—it is not commercial, it is no passport to employment under Government or in business firms, and therefore it is outside the purview of their desires. The one grand assurance of success is that the Holy Spirit can overcome all these hindrances.

Two courses of lectures were delivered to English-speaking Christians by Mr. McNeile, the one on the "Canon of Scripture," and the other dealing with "Evidences for Christianity." Mr. Hodgson continued to act as Secretary of the Bombay Auxiliary of the British and Foreign Bible Society until he left on furlough.

NASIK.

Nasik.

The Rev. A. Manwaring was in general charge of the work at NASIK until November, 1904, when he left for England on medical certificate, and was succeeded by the Rev. E. J. Jones, who from July had been superintending the work at Manmad while living at Nasik. The Rev. W. Wyatt resided at the station throughout the year, and the Rev. J. P. Butlin from June to October, while in charge of the work at Malegam. The Indian deacon, the Rev. B. L. Salvé, who ministered to the Marathi congregation, reports that forty-six candidates were confirmed in December. The preaching-hall was opened five nights in the week until the plague caused the discontinuance of that part of the work. On three of the evenings the addresses were in Marathi, and on the other two in Urdu. After about two months the Mohammedans became angry at being worsted in controversy, and several of them refused to attend the meetings any longer, and endeavoured to terrorize those who did. Several inquirers came forward, most of them the result of the Marathi work.

The Orphanage at the Christian settlement of SHARANPUR, close to Nasik, contains over 300 inmates. Their health was good on the whole, and although three cases of plague occurred in the village the disease did not attack any of the orphans. All the industrial departments—carpentry, aërated water manufacture, printing, gardening, and drawn-thread work—prospered, but the printing-press, which is the newest industry, still calls for much outlay before it can be self-supporting. Three of the thirty students in the Normal School finished their course and took up work as schoolmasters. Sharanpur Orphanage.

The pastoral work in the Igatpuri and Deolali District was in the hands of the Rev. D. P. K. Shindé until May, 1904, and then of the Rev. S. S. Suryawanshi. In the former town the Christians are exposed to much temptation from the numerous un-Christian European and Eurasian employés of the G.I.P. Railway, and one woman who fell into sin had to be excommunicated, and another suspended from the Holy Communion.

POONA.

The Rev. A. D. Henwood removed from Junnar at the beginning of 1904, and succeeded the Rev. E. J. Jones in the superintendence of the work in POONA, the Rev. G. Clark taking the place of the former in the city when he was absent on itinerations in the Poona-Khed and Junnar districts. Until July, however, when he removed to Nasik, Mr. Jones made Poona his head quarters, whence he carried on the work at Manmad. The Divinity School was closed during the year under review. The English Services appeared to be appreciated, and the local branch of the Gleaners' Union contributed Rs. 150 towards the expenses of the evangelistic schools in the district. The Rev. S. Suryawanshi was quasi-pastor of the Marathi Congregation until May, 1904, when he changed places with the Rev. D. P. K. Shindé, of Igatpuri. Two of the Christians, who number 179, were carried off by the plague. The Tamil Congregation suffered a great loss by the death of the Rev. G. Yesudian, which has been recorded above. A joint feast for them and the members of the Marathi Congregation took place on the last day of 1904. The number of children attending the Tamil School was higher than ever before. In October, the Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji gave a series of addresses to the Indian Christians, which were succeeded in the following month by some special services conducted by the Rev. James Lyall, and attended by converts attached to the Poona. Addresses to Indian Christians various missionary societies at work in the city. Evangelistic Work was continued as in previous years. Every alternate Saturday an English lecture was delivered to students, but Mr. Henwood feels that more adequate efforts should be put forth to influence this class of the community, of whom there are some 3,300 in Poona. The colporteur sold about 3,500 portions of the Scriptures during the year. As illustrating the difficulties attendant upon the work Mr. Henwood mentions the case of a woman who became greatly interested in Christianity and asked for baptism. Her relatives, however, soon heard of her desire, and gathered round her, at times as many as eight of them together, to see that she did not take this step. Her old grandmother kept guard over her daily from morning until evening, and at length the woman disappeared. Yet Mr. Henwood says "The dawn is breaking."

Relatives keep guard over a woman lest she should be baptized.

The school at Khed, in the Poona-Khed District, maintained its standard of efficiency, and at Kirkee the boys' night-school was changed into a day-school and a girls' school was opened with good results.

Junnar.

Mr. Henwood's charge included JUNNAR and the surrounding district. In the early part of the year some helpful meetings were held in the northern part of the district, where the Christians number about thirty. Their lot is not an easy one, but the majority of them are said to be growing in grace. A small school was open at Avsari Khurd, about twenty miles south-east of Junnar, in the house of a Hindu farmer who has been considerably influenced by Christain teaching. Thirteen adults were baptized in the Poona and Junnar portion of the Mission in 1904.

MANMAD.

Manmad.

Early in the year under review the Rev. E. J. Jones relinquished his work in Poona to take charge of that in the MANMAD district, which he superintended first from Poona and then from Nasik. He took the place of the Rev. A. Manwaring at the last-named station in the autumn, and the Rev. J. P. Butlin then added the charge of the Manmad district to his own special work at Malegam until he was relieved by the arrival of the Rev. L. B. Butcher at the beginning of 1905. The advent of the railway has modified the relative importance of places in the district, and Malegam, which is twenty miles from the line, now occupies a position of secondary importance as a centre for mission-work, and is regarded as an out-station of Manmad. The Manmad and Nandgaon Pastorate was under the charge of the Rev. R. G. Jagtap, who was transferred from Dhulia early in the year. He was responsible for the pastoral oversight of 250 Christians, and records the baptism of sixteen adults. One of these was a young Brahman who had been an inquirer for about two years. When asked, "Why do we sign you with the sign of the cross in baptism?" he replied, "In order that if there is any trouble or persecution to be endured for Christ I may endure it." His two witnesses were another Christian Brahman and a Mahar. The Sunday-school, which was organized in the summer, had the names of seventy-five children on its rolls.

Malegam.

Mr. Butlin took up his residence at MALEGAM, a Mohammedan city containing some 20,000 or more inhabitants in the summer of 1903, but after June, 1904, he had to superintend the work there first from Nasik and then from Manmad. Soon after his arrival the mission-compound was attacked by plague, which carried off one of the schoolmasters. Prompt measures were taken to meet the emergency, and a camp was formed outside the city to which the schools were removed, among the children being some Bhīl boys from Nandurbar. Soon afterwards Mr. Butlin set off on an itineration, but he had not proceeded far when a messenger reached him with a note to the effect that one of the Bhīl boys had died and that two others had been attacked. He returned as quickly as possible, only to find that the two lads were dead and another boy was ill. The camp was accordingly removed to Manmad, and happily the plague was stayed. It committed great ravages among the Mohammedan weavers who congregate in Malegam. Mr. Butlin writes of them and of the efforts which were made to minister to them in their sore need :—

Plague in a mission compound.

> They are often very poor when they come, and for this reason, and also because accommodation is very limited, they are crammed together in long lanes of hovels, low-roofed and dirty. As in the old days in Yorkshire, before the introduction of the factory, each family had their own looms in their own houses, at which all the family worked, so now at Malegam, with this difference, that the house is only one large room, the roof is very low, and weaving, spinning, sleeping and eating all go on in the same room. Hence the people are of a low class, and do not have the regular purdah system of the higher classes, being, in fact, often Hindu converts of the time of the Mohammedan invasion.
> Among these people the plague came in all its fierceness. It had already attacked our Christians, but owing to the prayers of God's people the plague was stayed. Then came the news of the awful condition of the city, and how the people wondered that the Christians did not help in the hour of need. Just then my catechist (a former Mohammedan) volunteered for the work, to go himself and visit the people and give the medicine.
>
> We were able to penetrate into many a slum and give hope to the hopeless. It was the middle of their Moharram Festival, but very little festival could there be with very often seven or eight people down with plague and five or six dead. To my catechist there was real danger, but he never flinched. I accompanied him as often as I could, but being a European the danger for me was not so great. The hours were long, often from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the hot weather, with the thermometer at 110°, and then in the cool of the evening those who were able would stroll up to the cantonment for medicine, and there would hear the glad tidings of salvation.

"He never flinched."

The children of the Nandurbar Orphanage were transferred to Sharanpur in March, 1904. A cemetery for Indian Christians was consecrated at Dhulia, the capital of Khandesh, a large educational and industrial centre, in December.

AURUNGABAD.

Aurungabad.

The Rev. C. W. Thorne, who succeeded the Rev. W. C. Whiteside in general charge of the work in and around AURUNGABAD when the latter left for England at the end of 1903, describes the district under his care as equivalent to one extending from London to Grantham and from Birmingham to Norwich, and adds, "There ought to be several bishops with their bands of clergy working in such an area instead of one poor missionary." He is able to speak, nevertheless, of a readiness to become Christians on the part of the people "which is almost astonishing," and says that many of the Hindus exhibit a feeling of detestation towards their gods, caused by their failure to help their votaries in the time of famine and plague. "The gods," he writes, "have been tried and found wanting." In the hearts of some there is not only disbelief in their own gods, but something approaching faith in the true God, as is shown by an incident which occurred during the year under review. It should be explained that Aurungabad was threatened with famine in consequence of the failure of the rains up to the beginning of September. Monday, September 5th, was therefore set aside as a special day of intercession, and the two Congregations, the Marathi, under the Rev. S. C. Kurhade, and the Urdu, under the Rev. H. J. Smith (who was transferred to the station from Bombay in November, 1903) gathered together in the early morning, and again at midday and in the evening, to plead for the much-needed rain. Mr. Thorne writes:—

"The gods have been tried and found wanting."

Rain granted in answer to prayer.

> It was a time of much blessing and of much expectation, though the clear sky and bright sunshine gave no indication of a change. But on the Wednesday the clouds began to gather, the sunshine faded away, and two days after, to our great joy, down came the welcome rain, bringing life and strength to the famished crops. This was followed by a great thunderstorm on the Saturday evening, and the rain continued steadily for a week. There was more rain at Aurangabad than in any other part of India.

Not long afterwards, several of the Christians having been stricken down by the plague which was raging with great severity, there was a united service in the Marathi church to implore the removal of the visitation. The sequel is narrated by Mr. Thorne as follows:—

A Hindu's belief in the efficacy of Christian prayer.

> The next day a Hindu who lives in the bazaar near the mission-premises met our Indian pastor and said to him, "What were all your people praying and singing for in your church last evening?" Mr. Kurhade replied: "We were having a special service of intercession in our church against the plague." "Ah! then," said the Hindu, "it will soon stop. When there was no rain last month, and consequently every prospect of famine, you had a day of intercession for rain, and God sent wonderful rain in answer to your prayers, and now that you are asking Him to stop the plague we may look forward to a speedy cessation of the trouble." And he was right! It has nearly died out of the cantonment, and we have not had a single case among our people.

The grace of giving as well as faith in the efficacy of prayer was manifested by the Christians, for the accounts of the District Church Council showed an increase of Rs. 200 over the contributions of 1903. The Sunday-school contained 160 children, and sixty adults. The majority of the former appeared for the Indian Sunday-school Union Examination, and fifty-five obtained certificates. Several new organizations were set on foot—a branch of the Gleaners' Union, a Christian Endeavour Society, and a branch of the Children's Scripture Union. Good health was enjoyed by the pupils of the Orphanage Schools, whose industrial work included carpet-weaving, carpentry, and smithing, for the boys, and drawn-thread work for the girls. Mr. Smith's special charge was the Mohammedan Work, in which he had two Indian helpers, Chanan Khan, a Punjabi Christian, and Qazi Aziz Masih, whose baptism was recorded in the Annual Report for 1902–03 (page 260). The boys' school had to be closed for three months because of the death from plague of the Parsi who conducted it, but it was re-opened in December. A school for Urdu-speaking girls was also opened; it began with four pupils, and the number soon rose to twenty. Preaching was steadily carried on in the weekly bazaar and in the preaching-hall. The latter has an interesting history. Mr. Thorne writes :—

Industrial Work.

How a preaching-hall was obtained.

We were driven out of our preaching-hall in the town, where much good work had been done, by troubles in connexion with an inquirer. How hard it is for any one to embrace the Gospel in this dark land; how terrible and bitter is the persecution they are often called upon to endure!

We were in great difficulty about another hall, when an old Mohammedan gentleman came forward and offered to let us have a small place belonging to him, farther down the street. We accepted the offer at once with pleasure. But this place proved to be next door to the Mohammedan library and reading-room! And so here we were, as fresh as ever, preaching the Gospel to a lot of Mohammedans who had been instrumental in getting us turned out of the old place. They threatened to slay the old mullah who had let the hall to us. He was a good man, however, and said he was not going to be frightened. The position became intolerable for them. To be obliged to sit there evening after evening and listen to the Gospel which they had opposed so bitterly was more than they could stand, and so in great wrath they vacated the premises and established their library elsewhere. As the place was larger and more commodious than that which we had, we seized the opportunity and rented it ourselves, and so here we are, duly installed. Mohammedanism has gone out and Christianity has come in—and (D.V.) come to stay.

"Mohammedanism has gone out and Christianity has come in."

Mohammedans baptized.

Three adults were baptized as fruit of the Mohammedan work. One was the wife of Qazi Aziz Masih. When he embraced Christianity she left him, as in accordance with Mohammedan law she had a perfect right to do, but she soon returned. At the beginning of the rainy season her husband took her to her father's house, and there a son was born to her. In her illness she prayed to Christ for help, and as soon as she recovered, she resolved to delay no longer her confession of Him in baptism. She was received into the visible Church in September, 1904, two years, almost to a day, after her husband's baptism. There was good reason to be hopeful, also, concerning a man, the physician in charge of a hospital supported by the Nizam's Government, who died of the plague, albeit he was never baptized. Mr. Smith says of him :—

A Mohammedan doctor who "called" the Great Healer to all his cases.

Although a Mohammedan, he had taken his degrees at Edinburgh, and he had always been a real friend to the children and sick poor of the Mission. Hearing that he was ill, Mr. Thorne and I went to see him, but found him much worse than we expected. He felt sure he was going to die, and asked for prayer to Jesus, the Great Healer, "Whom," said he, "I call in to all my cases." Mr. Thorne prayed and spoke a few words with him, and we went again the next morning, hoping to see him, but he had passed away a short time before our arrival. We were told that the doctor was all night calling upon Christ to save him, and that he refused to repeat the Mohammedan forms of prayer and invocation which were recited to him. The mullah who was with him at the time of his death told me he had heard him call on Christ for salvation!

The 2,000 Christians under Mr. Kurhade's charge are scattered about in a number of villages, and he made a couple of tours in order to minister to the converts and baptize such inquirers as were fit. In one village he came across a number of robbers who had accepted Christ and turned over a new leaf. One of them confessed that when a young man he had once gone to Aurungabad, where he committed a great robbery and escaped by jumping over a high wall, but added that since he had embraced Christianity all inclination to steal had gone, although he was hard pressed by adverse circumstances.

Robbers embrace Christianity.

The Rev. C. W. Wooton resided at Aurungabad, and was chiefly engaged in language study.

SOUTH INDIA MISSION.

The Tamil country south of Madras was the scene of the S.P.C.K.'s Missions in the eighteenth century. But the first two clergymen of the Church of England who went to India as missionaries were sent to Madras by the Church Missionary Society in 1814. The East India Act of 1833 made provision for a new bishopric of Madras, and Daniel Corrie was consecrated in 1835. His successors have been Bishops Spencer (1837), Dealtry (1849), Gell (1861), and Whitehead (1899). Work was commenced at Ootacamund, on the Nilgiri Hills, in 1870.

The Telugu Mission was begun in 1841 by two of the most devoted men on the roll of C.M.S. missionaries, Robert Noble and Henry Watson Fox. Noble started the famous English school at Masulipatam, now known by his name, worked it for twenty-four years, and died at his post in 1865. Many Brahmans trained in it have embraced the Gospel, and it has sent forth several Indian clergymen to labour among their countrymen. Fox was a preaching missionary, and set the example of those itinerating and rural missionary efforts which have resulted in the foundation of an increasing Native Church, chiefly drawn from the Malas and other low-caste or out-caste people. Ellore was occupied in 1854; Bezwada, 1858; Raghavapuram, 1872; Khammamett, 1888; and Hyderabad, 1901. A Mission among the Kois, a non-Aryan tribe on the Upper Godavery, was founded at Dummagudem by General Haig in 1860.

In 1820 the Rev. J. Hough, Chaplain at Palamcotta, drew the attention of the Society to the claims of Tinnevelly, where there was already a community of 3,000 professed Indian Christians, an offshoot from the S.P.C.K.'s Lutheran Mission in Tanjore. Two missionaries were at once set apart for this work, and from that time to this, through the labours of Rhenius, Pettitt, Thomas, J. T. Tucker, Hobbs, Sargent, and others (not to mention workers of the S.P.G., which has a fruitful Mission contiguous to that of the C.M.S.), the Gospel has not ceased to spread among the Tamil population, chiefly among the Shanars, or cultivators of the palmyra tree. In North Tinnevelly a vigorous Itinerant Mission was established by Ragland, D. Fenn, and Meadows. Dr. Sargent and Dr. Caldwell were consecrated in 1877 as Assistant Bishops to the Bishop of Madras for the Native Churches. The former died in 1889 and the latter in 1891. Dr. Morley was consecrated in 1896, his jurisdiction (consensual) extending over Tinnevelly and Madura. He resigned in 1903, and has been succeeded by Dr. Williams.

South India Missionary Conference.

The South India Missionary Conference met on May 19th, 1904, at Ootacamund. At the morning service (eight o'clock) the Rev. A. H. Lash presided, and the Rev. Dr. Downie, of the American Baptist Missionary Union, gave an interesting sketch of the rise and progress of the Telugu Mission of the Society with which he is connected. In the afternoon Mr. C. T. Studd was in the chair, and among other speakers were Miss A. J. Askwith, who described the work of the Sarah Tucker Institution at Palamcotta, Miss Tenneate, of the American Baptist Mission, and Mr. R. T. Archibald, of the Children's Special Service Mission. Sir James Bourdillon, K.C.S.I., British Resident in Mysore, presided at the evening meeting. At its close a letter was read from Captain N. M. C. Stevens, Recruiting Staff Officer, Ootacamund, to the effect that Government had approved of raising one company of Tamil Christians, of the strength of one hundred, with their own Christian officers, in each of the twelve regiments resident in the Madras Presidency.

Death of Mrs. N. C. Miller,

The death occurred at Liverpool on July 20th, 1904, of Mrs. N. C. Miller. Last year's Report (page 267) recorded the acceptance, the sailing for India, and the death of her husband, and the acceptance of Mrs. Miller's offer to labour on as a missionary of the Society. Her term of service, however, was but brief. For a few months she resided at Bangalore while engaged in language study, but in June she was obliged to leave for England on medical certificate. She arrived in London on July 19th, and, on the following day, as already stated, was called to her rest.

the Rev. J. S. Peter,

Another worker in the South India Mission died the day after Mrs. Miller, viz., the Rev. J. S. Peter. He was the son of the Rev. Pakkianadhan Peter, who was for forty years a C.M.S. missionary in Ceylon. He received his early education at Colombo, and after a time joined the S.P.G. College at Trichinopoly, and subsequently the Madras Christian College, from which institution he passed the B.A. degree examination in 1886. For a year or two he was in the Collector's office at Trichinopoly, but being anxious to enter the ministry, he joined the C.M.S. Divinity School in 1887, and passed the Oxford and Cambridge Theological Examination in the first class in 1889. For some time he was a teacher in the Harris High School, Madras, and afterwards in the Doveton Protestant College. After his ordination he was appointed head-master of the Harris High School, and held that position from 1895 to 1904. His influence at the school was great, and he succeeded in retaining a large number of scholars, in spite of the various attractions held out by other schools in the district. He also took part in the work in connexion with the Southern Pastorate of Madras, and did much literary work in Tamil. The Rev. Canon Sell speaks of him as having been "one of the ablest of the native clergy."

the Rev. D. Devaprasadham,

The death of three of the Tinnevelly pastors has also to be recorded. The Rev. D. Devaprasadham was born of Christian parents at Sitthakulam, and for sixteen years previous to his ordination laboured as a catechist in the Mengnanapuram district. He was admitted to Deacons' Orders in 1865, and Priests' Orders in 1869, by the Bishop of Madras, and at the time of his death was the oldest of the Indian clergy in Tinnevelly. He had retired from active service, but continued to render what help he could. He died in 1904.

the Rev. I. Gurubadham,

The Rev. Isaac Gurubadham died on April 30th, 1905, at Palamcotta. He was the Chairman of the Palamcotta and Pannikulam Circle Committees.

and the Rev. J. Paul.

The Rev. Joshua Paul, pastor of Anandhapuram, died in 1904. He was admitted to Deacons' Orders in 1883, and to Priests' Orders two years later, by Bishop Sargent, and was stationed first at Palamcotta and then at Kadachapuram. He was a son of the Rev. Daniel Paul the great Tamil preacher (see History of the C.M.S., vol ii., pages 183, 188), and a brother of the Rev. Samuel Paul, whose death was recorded in the Annual Report for 1899-1900 (page 292).

Reinforcements.

The Mission has been reinforced by two missionaries of the New South Wales Association, viz., the Rev. George Edward Brown, M.A., Sydney University, and Moore Theological College, Sydney, and Mrs. Brown. They sailed for India from Sydney in January, 1905.

The Committee have accepted the resignations of the Rev. E. A. Douglas, for family reasons, the Rev. E. G. Roberts, on medical grounds, and the Rev. W. J. Williamson. The Rev. Malcolm Ján has been transferred to the United Provinces Mission.

Ordinations.

The following were admitted to Deacons' Orders by the Bishop of Madras: Mr. Govadi John at Ootacamund on Trinity Sunday, May 29th, 1904; Messrs. Deckolu Mark and Pendwiti Satyanandam at Bezwada on October 30th; and Mr. Pakalapati Daniel at Nandyal on February 9th, 1905. The Bishop of Tinnevelly admitted the Revs. S. Devadasen, A. Savarimuttu, and M. Vedamanikam to Priests' Orders at Palamcotta on Palm Sunday, April 16th, 1905.

The following are the members of the Madras Corresponding Committee:—The Bishop of Madras, the Bishop of Tinnevelly, the Hon. A. W. B. Higgens, the Hon. W. B. de Winton; Mr. A. S. Cowdell; Mr. W. H. Dobbie, Mr. E. S. Hensman, and the Revs. H. D. Goldsmith, W. Muspratt, and Canon Sell (Secretary).

I. MADRAS AND THE NILGIRIS.

MADRAS.

Madras.

The condition for progress in India.

The chief object kept in view by the Rev. W. D. Clarke, the Chairman of the Madras District Church Council, in his work in the Southern Pastorate, is to arouse the members of the congregations worshipping at Zion Church and Trinity Chapel from their spiritual lethargy, for he feels that the Kingdom of God will not make much progress in India until everyone bearing the name of Christ is truly led by the Spirit of God. He laments that the standard of piety of some of the Christians is low, and that with the majority religion consists in the mere observance of outward ordinances. His efforts met with some response. The observance of the Day of Prayer for the Conversion of India, which originated at the time of the Three Years' Enterprise, was more devout; in several cases there was a marked deepening of the spiritual life; and some members of the congregations came forward expressing their desire to devote their lives to the extension of their Master's Kingdom. The Thirty-sixth Anniversary of the Pastorate took place in February, 1904, and the Bishop of Madras, who presided over the meeting, stated that the contributions of the members during the previous year had amounted to Rs. 2,400, an average of more than two rupees from each member, and Rs. 20 from each household. Two adults were baptized. The Rev. H. D. Goldsmith writes of one of them:—

Fear of foul play towards a convert.

> He had been brought to Christ by a Malayalam C.M.S. catechist, and when he had gone to the missionaries for further teaching had twice been carried off by his relatives. It seemed unsafe to baptize him in Cottayam, as his life would be in danger from the fanatical Mapilahs, generally called "Moplahs," so he was sent to Madras, and was with us for about two months only; for his father died, and he was anxious to go home to settle affairs, being his father's heir. As he seemed quite ready for the rite, he was baptized in Zion Church on October 23rd, and returned to Travancore next day, but I am grieved to say he has not been heard of since. We fear foul play, but commend him in prayer to Him in Whose Name he said he was willing to die.

In the Northern Pastorate, under the Rev. J. Satthianadhan, which comprises the congregations at Black Town and the Tinnevelly Settlement, the ingathering service in September, 1904, was the occasion of a number of thankofferings in kind, which, when sold by auction realized Rs. 300, a much larger sum than was obtained in the previous year. The general contributions of the people also showed a decided increase. Services and meetings were held as in the past, and the lectures to educated Hindus, arranged by the Centenary Hall Association, and delivered by some of the leading clergy and laymen in the city, drew large audiences. Twelve adults and the same number of children were baptized. Of these, one man was brought to a decision by hearing the Parable of Dives and Lazarus; a woman and her daughter, sixteen years of age, were impressed by the text, "the wages of sin is death;" and two children of a Hindu mother, who gladly consented to their baptism, were won at one of the schools of the pastorate. The Mount and Pallaveram Pastorates were temporarily under the charge of Mr. Clarke. The Rev. S. Vedhanayagam has six congregations under his care in the Poonamalee Pastorate, with a total of 521 baptized Christians. Most of the Christians belong to the depressed classes, but their contributions, though small, yet amounted in 1904 to almost twice the sum given seven or eight years before. Mr. Vedhanayagam is also the leader of the Tamil Itinerating Band, which, during the year, camped in thirteen centres and succeeded in visiting 300 villages. At one place, Seriperambuthoor, which was reached for the first time, the Brahmans would not allow meetings to be held in the main streets, and the preachers had to take up their post beyond the limits of the Hindu processional routes.

Twelve adults baptized.

Divinity School.

Two of the students at the Divinity School, under the Rev. H. D. Goldsmith, who has completed twenty-five years of missionary service, left in January, 1904. One, D. J. Harris,

B.A., obtained a first class, with distinction in Hebrew, in the Universities' Preliminary Theological Examination, and the other, V. Enoch, a second class. The prizes offered by an Indian Christian gentleman for the study of Hinduism were won by the same two men. Mr. Harris proceeded to occupy his former post in the Tinnevelly Itinerancy, and Mr. Enoch, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders in February, was assigned to Ellore. In July a new student was received from Mauritius, and in January, 1905, four men were expected, one of them hailing from Ceylon. Mr. Goldsmith again had a discussion with the two Shiah moulvis referred to in last year's Report (page 270), this time on the subject of 'sin,' and he occasionally visited them in their home, and was able there to preach Christ to them. At the invitation of Miss F. M. Reede, an independent missionary, Mr. Goldsmith paid a visit to Panruti, South Arcot, where he had a ready hearing from the Mohammedans, and to Cuddalore, where he gave an English lecture to a Brahman audience. With the help of the Rev. L. S. Dhan Singh, Mr. Goldsmith was able to see St. John's Gospel in Urdu through the press. The Harris High School suffered greatly through the death of its head-master, the Rev. J. S. Peter, which has been recorded above. Mr. Dhan Singh, who assisted Mr. Goldsmith at the Divinity School, also superintended the Hindustani Mission. A patient hearing was often gained, but no direct fruit of the work was apparent. Once a month, Mr. Dhan Singh visited Bangalore where, through the kindness of the S.P.G. clergymen, he had the use of St. Paul's Church in which to minister to the workers of the C.E.Z.M.S., and other Hindustani-speaking people. In October three Hindustani lectures were delivered in the town by the Rev. J. Ali Baksh, of Lahore. The magnificent Mayo Hall had been engaged, and was crowded for the first two lectures, but then the more orthodox Mohammedans issued a circular calling upon their co-religionists to avoid the meetings, and the Government authorities simultaneously forbade the further use of the Hall, on the ground that they apprehended a disturbance. The last lecture, consequently, had to be delivered in a smaller and less convenient building, but nevertheless it attracted an audience numbering about 300. Two interesting services also took place at Bangalore. At one a young moulvi who had been baptized in Bombay by the Methodist Episcopal Mission, but had apostatized, publicly confessed his sin, and was received back, afterwards joining Canon M. G. Goldsmith at Hyderabad; and at the other a young Rajput woman and her child were baptized. Mr. Henry Goldsmith writes of the latter :—

> Her husband, a Sepoy in a Bhartpur regiment, on becoming a Christian, had to take his discharge, because there were no other Christians in his regiment. He accordingly came South to seek admission to a Madrasi regiment in which there were Christians. Miss A. M. Smith, C.E.Z.M.S., took an interest in the family, and offered them a temporary home. Through the kindness of the colonel he soon was admitted to the "Sappers," but unfortunately could not eat the food supplied to the men, fell sick, and had to leave this regiment also. He has since returned to his own country. But while with Miss Smith, his wife learnt more of her husband's faith, and asked for baptism.

THE NILGIRIS AND THE WYNAAD.

Ootacamund. The Rev. A. H. Lash resumed charge of the work at OOTACAMUND on his return from England with Mrs. Lash in January, 1904, and in April he received the Indian clergyman, the Rev. A. S. Devapiriam, formerly of Ambasamudram, as his colleague. The Congregation increased slightly, and were liberal in their contributions, but some of them yielded to the snare of strong drink, to which they were specially exposed by the cold climate. Lectures to educated Hindus were delivered by the Bishop of Madras on "Education in India in Olden Times," by Major Williams, I.M.S., and others, and attracted larger audiences than in former years. Great advance has been made in the schools since 1893, when Mr. Lash first went to the station. There was then only one C.M.S. school with sixty boys: during the year under review the schools connected with the Growth of educational work. Society had the names of 430 pupils on their rolls, and the number in attendance increased daily. None of the parents offered any objection to their children attending the Bible teaching, and the boy who gained the first place in the Scripture examination was a Brahman. Besides these day-schools there is a boarding-school with twenty-five Christian pupils. At Mr. Devapiriam's suggestion a "children's day" was held with complete success.

Coonoor. The influence of the Rev. D. S. Joseph, who was transferred from Ootacamund to Coonoor, twelve miles to the east, in April, 1904, was successfully exerted to restore peace to the congregation, numbering nearly 400, who had been sadly divided among themselves.

The Wynaad. The Wynaad covers an area of 1,332 square miles, and contains a population of more than 100,000, consisting of Hindus, Mohammedans, Jains, Kurichers, Kadirs, Kurumburs, Badagas, Kothars, Todas, Paniyars, Tiyas, Nawis, Chermers, &c. Among these the Society has five centres of work, with a congregation and school at each. Four Kurumbur children, whose parents had embraced Christianity, were baptized, and Baptism of the first Toda convert. the first Toda convert, the fruit of the work of Miss Ling, of the C.E.Z.M.S., a boy who for three years had been under the care of the Rev. T. Walker at Dohnavur, in Tinnevelly, was received into the visible Church at that place.

II. TELUGU COUNTRY.

Mrs. W. C. Penn came home in October, 1904; the Rev. and Mrs. E. S. Tanner in March, 1905; and the Rev. and Mrs. C. W. A. Clarke in April.

Striking progress in the Telugu Mission.

The progress of the work in the Telugu Mission during recent years has been most encouraging. The number of Christian adherents has just doubled in the past decade, and is now about 22,500. In 1904 there were more than 1,000 baptisms and over 2,000 new catechumens were enrolled, while 2,000 others asked to be placed under regular Christian instruction. The Conference of the Telugu Mission have reported on the imperative need of further funds for the training and employment of Indian schoolmasters, evangelists, and catechists if the growing spirit of inquiry is to be at all adequately met.

ITINERANCY.

Itinerating Band.

The work of the Itinerating Band, consisting of six men, was superintended by the Rev. R. W. Peachey until November, 1904, when he was transferred to Khammamett, and his place was taken by the Rev. E. E. Hamshere, of Masulipatam. Although the Itinerancy has been carried on for several years, no single conversion can be traced to it, and there are no signs of any movement towards Christianity as its outcome. In many villages, however, the attitude of the people has completely changed: the bitter opposition formerly manifested has given place to friendly attention, and the total indifference to a spirit of inquiry. At some old centres of work which were revisited the people seemed "almost" glad to see the preachers. Mr. Peachey says:—

> We are never really welcomed. Think of that and the effect it must have on the workers—always to be working in an atmosphere of opposition. The district missionary has his trials—weaknesses of Christians, slackness of fellow-workers, failures and disappointments in places where he looked to have seen much fruit. But he has also a welcome, and a hearty one, from his people in almost every congregation he visits. There is no lack of appreciation. But the Telugu Itinerancy—I speak from experience—never has a real welcome. The most we ever attain to is that "almost." It needs, therefore, great love for this work to keep up the needful earnestness and enthusiasm, and great faith to labour on where for the most part all is opposition, or, worse still, indifference.

"The most we ever attain to is 'almost.'"

The doctrine of the Atonement a stumbling-block.

In one village the doctrine of the Atonement was a stumbling-block. A man remarked, "It is a great mistake to believe in such a doctrine. If Jesus Christ was God, why did He die on the cross?" When told that it was "for us men and for our salvation," he replied, "Rama saved his worshippers with a word. He is, therefore, greater than Christ."

In the Peter Cator Scripture Examination a Brahman student of the College won the third prize in the Presidency, and five others obtained certificates in the Higher Grade, while in the Lower Grade three of the High School students gained prizes. Two candidates were sent in for the Diocesan Prayer-book Examination: one of them won the first prize and the other the third. Mr. Penn says that the influence of the religious teaching on the minds and conduct of the men was clearly discernible, and specially mentions the senior student, who displayed unusual fearlessness in the religious discussions which took place, openly expressing his convictions even at the risk of unpopularity among his companions. Towards the close of the year Mr. Clarke received visits from two former students, and in the course of the conversations which he had with them certain facts came out which showed indirectly how real is the work accomplished by means of Christian education. He wrote in April, 1905:—

A former mission-college student sets prayer-meetings on foot.

One morning I received a note asking me whether I could find time to see a former student of the College who had left us some years ago after taking his degree, and had risen through his ability and force of character exceptionally rapidly in Government service. I invited him to come one morning, when we could get an hour quietly together, and he told me all about his life and work. What interested me most of all was to find that he was still an earnest seeker after truth, striving honestly to live up to the light he possessed, and establishing prayer meetings and religious meetings wherever he went as opportunity offered. He described the effect that one of these meetings held in his own house, had upon his wife and mother and some other ladies living with them; how after the meeting they had decided to give up various idolatrous and superstitious practices common to all Hindu women, and to try and trust God more simply and directly. A few weeks later, just before I left India, this same friend met me at his railway station as I was travelling to Madras, and spent the ten minutes during which the train waited with me. He apologized for not accompanying me, as he had intended to do, a few stations down the line, but explained that he was obliged to attend a meeting that same afternoon in the town. On inquiry I found that he had brought one of his old schoolfellows, who had developed a considerable gift of song, to the town for the purpose of giving some public recitals in the true Oriental manner on the life and work of Ram Mohun Roy. They consisted of a musical rendering of verses describing the life of the Reformer and inculcating moral virtues, and exhorting the people to forsake idolatry and evil customs, and to follow a life of strict righteousness. He explained that the day before they had started the meetings, having hired the largest hall in the town, and that an audience of some 400 people had assembled. I asked how long the meeting lasted, and he said about four hours, but he seemed distressed because about 100 of them had left after two hours. He was expecting better things that day, however, when they proposed to have their meeting for five hours, and keep them better together. He told me that this bold denunciation of idolatry and impurity and the evil of caste had stirred up a great deal of opposition in the town among the orthodox community, and they had greatly feared that the committee who owned the hall would have refused to let them use it again, but they had not done so as yet.

Denunciation of idolatry and impurity.

On my return journey my friend met me again, and the first thing I asked him was how his second meeting had gone off. He said, "Oh, it was much better; the hall was crowded and we went on for five hours and hardly any of the people went out." He lamented that it was so hard to get his educated friends to do anything. They would come to meetings and talk in favour of reforms, &c., but they dared not stand out against orthodox opinion when it came to the pinch. He also mentioned incidentally that he had been unable to join the Social Club in this town, although much pressed to do so by his friends, because it was largely in the hands of a man who was leading a notoriously evil life. As my friend was the leading Government official in the town, his influence in thus taking a bold stand for righteousness, and actively fighting against what he believed to be wrong, could not fail to produce a very real effect upon his countrymen. Several times he told me how thankful he was for the religious instruction he had received at the Noble College, and that it had formed the most powerful moral stimulus in his life, especially the short addresses delivered daily at College Prayers before beginning the day's work.

A bold stand for righteousness.

Another old pupil came to bid me good-bye on the last Sunday before I left, and we had a delightful hour together, closing with prayer in which we both joined. Very touching was his prayer for God's help to be true to his conscience, and to live up to what he knew to be right. At parting he begged me to remember him in my prayers, especially at that time, because he and a number of his friends had banded themselves together to actively support the widow re-marriage movement, and they were expecting to be put to the test in a few weeks' time, as one of the Noble College students, a Brahman, who had lost his wife, had determined to marry a widow, and there was likely to be much opposition and possible persecution of all who had anything to do with the affair. Since then I have heard from other sources that the marriage took place, and that these men boldly supported the student.

Noble College students and widow re-marriage.

The Rev. E. E. Hamshere was transferred from Ellore in November, 1903, to take over the charge of the Preparandi Institution from the Rev. W. J. Williamson, but circumstances prevented him from assuming the reins of office until the end of the following January. The four members of the Divinity Class having finished their course, Mr. Hamshere was able to devote his attention entirely to the Normal School (containing sixteen students under Mr. G. Nathaniel's head-mastership), and the Central Boarding-school. The forty-one boys belonging to the latter school did not enjoy very good health, but it was noticeable that those who joined in the athletics suffered less from malaria and beri-beri than the others. The football team entered for the new silver cup offered by the District Judge, and succeeded in carrying it off, the defeated teams including those of the Noble College and the Hindu High School. Mr. Hamshere superintended the publication of a Telugu Christian monthly magazine, the Hitavadi, the first number of which was published in January, 1904: he also brought out translations into Telugu of the two booklets, Safety, Certainty, and Enjoyment, and Truth in a Nutshell. Early in November the Rev. J. B. Panes, of Khammamett, was transferred to Masulipatam to relieve Mr. Hamshere, the latter proceeding to take charge of the Telugu Itinerancy. Mrs. A. E. Goodman superintended the Sharkey Memorial Girls' School, which contained sixty-eight pupils.

One girl was called to her rest, her last words being, "Thank God that I was taught to love Jesus: now I am going to meet our Lord."

The Pastoral and Evangelistic Work in the district was supervised by the Rev. A. E. Goodman: until March, 1904, he had the assistance of the Rev. E. S. Tanner, who was then transferred to Raghavapuram. At the beginning of the year under review the Society's grant to the District Church Council ceased. Unfortunately the floods and heavy rains which prevailed destroyed the crops and caused a diminution in the church collections and other offerings, thus rendering it necessary for the Council to withdraw from its evangelistic work in order to maintain the pastoral work. Among the difficulties connected with the latter, Mr. Goodman includes the overlapping of the Protestant Missions, which, he says, is misunderstood by the people, and affords discontented Christians the opportunity of leaving one Mission for another, and by this means avoiding responsibility and Church discipline. Besides the C.M.S., the district is occupied by the Canadian Baptist Mission, the American Lutheran Mission, the Salvation Army, the Dravidian Mission, the Indian Christian Realm Mission, and the Indian National Church Mission; the Roman Catholics also are at work in it. Most of the new inquirers spoken of in last year's Report (page 275) continued steadfast, but in Narsarapollem only twenty-five out of 119 remained on the rolls. Early in 1905 Mr. Goodman took up his residence at Gudivada, which will in future be the head quarters of the district. The cases of three of the eight adults baptized in the Masulipatam Pastorate were of special interest. Sayamma was the wife of a pensioned Sepoy. She was first instructed in Christianity by the Rev. J. E. Sharkey, who laboured in the Telugu Mission from 1843 to 1867. She soon desired to receive baptism, but her husband refused to give his consent, and for fifty years held her back. During all that time she constantly prayed about the matter, and when he died in May, 1904, she sent at once to the Indian pastor, the Rev. M. Devanandham, asking him to baptize her. She was received into the visible Church in July, and two months later was called to her rest. The story of the other two adults referred to, Kshatriyas, is given by Mr. Devanandham as follows:—

Over-lapping of Protestant Missions.

Baptism of the wife of a Sepoy, and two Kshatriyas.

Bapi Razu, the head of the family, worked as a kind of head man over the gangs of coolies working on railway-lines, &c. While in his own village he had heard of Christianity through some Roman Catholic preachers, but evidently it did not much impress his mind. He knows well his own religion, and is naturally a man of a religious turn of mind. But his own religion did not commend itself to him. He had seen the bitter persecution and end of a young man of his own caste, who tried over and over again to join the Protestant Christians at Vizianagram. So he remained undecided for a time, and scarcity compelled him to leave his own village. During his wanderings he met a Christian bookseller, of whom he purchased copies of Pilgrim's Progress, The Way of Salvation, and The Dispeller of Darkness, all in Telugu, and set himself to study them carefully. A member of this Pastorate found him and brought him over to Masulipatam. The family consisted of himself, his wife, and a boy of three years. Both husband and wife know how to read. They both called on me and expressed their desire to become Christians. They received from us systematic instruction for nine months. The day before their baptism Bapi Razu called on me, took off the sacred thread which he told me he had worn for twenty years, and requested me to baptize him by the name of Samuel. They were baptized on October 2nd.

BEZWADA.

Bezwada.

In his general review of the year at BEZWADA the Rev. J. Harrison speaks of the hindrance to the work caused by the caste feeling between the two classes from which the great majority of the 2,907 baptized Christians in the district are drawn. He writes:—

Caste feeling among Christians.

The real caste people, i.e., the Brahmans and Sudras, look down with contempt upon the two classes called Malas and Madigas, and call them out-castes, and yet these people among themselves show the same foolish pride that the Brahmans and Sudras do. When the Malas see a catechist go to visit and eat with the Madigas they often refuse to listen to him or receive him in their houses, and thus he becomes unpopular with his own class among the Heathen, and his usefulness is greatly diminished. If, on the contrary, he tries to ingratiate himself with his own class by eating and sleeping with them, and at the same time there are Christians in the village from the Madiga class, they often feel much offended and charge him with keeping caste. Although they are Christians, converts from the Mala caste will not give to a catechist or evangelist of the Madiga class either food or a place to sleep in their houses. The Madigas resent this, and sometimes claim a superiority over the Malas. However, those who have been Christians for the longest time are the least inclined to contend for caste, and, therefore, patience is the only method. They all come to the Holy Communion promiscuously, and they do not come the less to church or send their children the less to school on account of the class from whence the minister or schoolmaster springs.

Greater progress was made in teaching the converts than in gathering in the inquirers. Mr. Harrison does not altogether regret the fact, for he says that when there are more converts than the teachers can instruct the quantity of the work may be large but the quality is poor. He adds that it seldom happens that one who has been baptized lapses, and that if some of those who are enrolled as inquirers fall back, it is usually only for a time. Ninety-three adults were baptized in the district, and 197 persons were confirmed. The Rev. D. Anantam had 650 boys under his charge in the High School and three branch schools, twenty-four of the lads being Christians. Six out of twenty passed the Matriculation Examination; twelve out of eighteen the Lower Secondary Examination; and thirty-two out of thirty-nine the Primary Examination. The results of the Peter Cator Scripture Examination were better than in 1903. Several deaths occurred among the boys, some of the lads first confessing their faith in Christ both to their head-master and to their companions. Mr. Anantam is the editor of the Hitavadi, mentioned above (page 273), and he also edited the Telugu Messenger of Truth for the Tract Society.

The Rev. K. Adam was in charge of the Bezwada Pastorate. There was a slight increase in the Christian community in the Tiruvoor Pastorate, under the Rev. B. Daniel, the converts numbering 1,130. They dwell in thirty-eight different villages, scattered over an area of 400 square miles. At the end of 1904 there was much distress in consequence of the failure of the rains, and the people were on the verge of famine. Four adults were baptized.

Many of the villages have their own deities, and the Bishop of Madras quotes Mr. Harrison's account of the rise of two of these local cults as follows :—

The origin of local deities.

About sixty years ago a Hindu widow, named Ramamma, lived in a village between Bezwada and Hyderabad, farming some land left her by her husband. After a time she contracted immoral relations with her servant, a Mohammedan named Budda Sahib. Her brother was so enraged that he murdered them both. Then the cattle-plague broke out, and the Hindus began to connect it with the wrath of the spirit of the murdered Ramamma. Accordingly they instituted special rites to pacify her spirit whenever cattle-plague broke out. Two rough wooden images of Budda Sahib and Maddha Ramamma are made about two feet high, with two images of local goddesses as their attendants. All the images are then put on a small wooden cart and dragged in procession at night round all the principal streets of the village, attended by nautch-girls, fireworks, and music. Then, finally, they bring the cart and images to the boundary of the village, and throw them all over into the land of the next village, presumably to transfer the angry spirits to their neighbours' territory. A village of some 800 or 1,000 people will spend as much as Rs. 400 on a ceremony of this kind.

Another instance occurred in Bezwada a few years ago. A boy of about twelve years old, the son of well-to-do parents, was murdered for the sake of his ornaments, and his body was found on the banks of the canal. The parents then built a small shrine of brick and plaster under a large tree near the spot, and worship was paid to the spirit of the murdered boy. Gradually the shrine has been enlarged, and, if the authorities do not interfere, it will probably grow into a small temple in time.

ELLORE.

Ellore.

The Rev. F. W. N. Alexander superintended the work at ELLORE. The High School, which celebrated its jubilee in September, 1904, contains over 400 boys. Mr. J. Gnanamuttu, the acting head-master, reports that the results of the public examinations were better than those of the neighbouring schools, and that twenty-six of the thirty-one boys who went in for the Peter Cator Scripture Examination obtained certificates of merit, one of them gaining a prize. All but one of the twenty-six were non-Christians. The boys take a keen interest in sports, and in 1903 the tennis team went to Madras and there won the silver cup in open competition. About twenty of the pupils voluntarily attended a Bible class on Sundays.

The district of which Ellore is the centre is about sixty miles long and thirty broad, and contains about 5,000 baptized Christians besides catechumens. It suffered severely from the drought. The early crop, cut in October, failed entirely, and the millet crop was much below the average. Scarcity of work and high prices naturally followed, and the native contributions were in consequence smaller than usual. Six new schools were opened during 1904, some of them being for high-caste pupils. It seems as though before many years the need for special schools for the sons and daughters of the caste people will cease, for Mr. Alexander says that the parents are beginning to waive their prejudices and send their children to be educated with Pariahs and Chucklers. The difficulties caused by the opposition of the Salvation Army continued without abatement (see last year's Report, page 278), and fresh trouble was caused by the Roman Catholics—who had previously confined their efforts to chief stations—commencing to work in the villages. Both the Rev. G. Krishnayya and the Rev. A. Sabbarayudu, who conjointly ministered to the Ellore Pastorate in 1903, retired, their place being taken by the Rev. V. Enoch, the Indian deacon. He has about 1,000 Christians under his care, and is also responsible for the Itinerancy, which lies thirty miles from Ellore and contains some 300 Christians.

Caste people beginning to waive their prejudices.

The Rev. G. H. Asirvatham had charge of the Nuzveed, Chekkapalli and Chintalapudi Pastorates, containing between them 1,495 baptized Christians. There was a widespread movement towards Christianity among the Madigas, but difficulty was experienced in obtaining sites for prayer-houses owing to the opposition of the zemindars. Seventy-two adults were baptized in the three pastorates. The Rev. P. Satyanandam, the newly-ordained deacon, has been appointed to the Chekkapalli Pastorate. He has already laboured in the district as catechist and schoolmaster for twenty years.

RAGHAVAPURAM.

At the beginning of March, 1904, the Rev. E. S. Tanner was transferred from Masulipatam to RAGHAVAPURAM to take the place of the Rev. H. W. Eales, who shortly afterwards left on furlough. The Bishop of Madras, who visited the station in October, describes the village, and the endowment of Hinduism in it by the Government as follows:—

Raghavapuram.

> The actual village covers about an acre, and contains some 200 homesteads. The population is about 1,100, of whom 250 are Christians, and eighteen are catechumens. The total area of cultivatable lands belonging to the village is 3,290 acres. The Christian church is by far the finest and most ornamental building in the village. There are three Hindu temples, one, supported by a rich Komati, dedicated to Hanuman, the monkey god, and two others to local deities supported by inams of thirty-one acres of land assessed by Government at Rs. 53 for land-tax, and held rent free. Hinduism is, therefore, the established religion in the village, and is maintained by a Government grant of Rs. 53 a month. This fact is often ignored when the question of the very moderate grants made by Government towards the provision of religious ministrations to their own Christian servants is considered. It is constantly assumed that this constitutes an injustice to the Hindus. As a matter of fact, the injustice, if injustice there be, is entirely on the other side. The taluq under the Tahsildar of Nandigama may be taken as an illustration. It contains 120 villages, and the inams granted by Government amount to 4,032 acres, which involves an annual Government grant, in the form of remission of land-tax, of about Rs. 6,000 a year. If this may be taken as typical of the endowment of Hinduism all over South India, the amount granted for Christian ministrations to Christian servants of Government shrinks into insignificance.

There are 130 congregations in the district, scattered over an area of 1,200 square miles, among whom there is no Telugu pastor at work, and only one Tamil assistant missionary. The spiritual destitution of this portion of the mission-field can be appreciated when it is understood that over eighty of the 132 villages in which Christians or inquirers are found are without a resident teacher, and that more than one hundred of them are without a school. Nine new village schools, however, were set on foot during the year, and there were signs of increasing vitality about this part of the work. The people welcome the opening of schools in their midst, for more than once the remark was made to Mr. Tanner by elderly men and women, "Sir, we are too old to learn, but give us a teacher that our children may learn." The number of adults baptized up to December 2nd, when Mr. Tanner wrote his Annual Letter, was 173: two or three of them had had a probation lasting eight years, and several others had had one of four years. In addition there were many inquirers, the names of 2,000 being registered in eight months. Mr. Tanner writes:—

Christians in eighty villages without a resident teacher.

"Give us a teacher that our children may learn."

2,000 inquirers in eight months.

They have given up idolatry, and some of them have given me their idols. One of these had been worshipped for 100 years. They all know that to become an inquirer means that they must not marry those who have not become Christians; that they must not assist in heathen festivals, which often bring in what to them seems a good deal of money; that they must not work on Sunday, and this to most of them means giving up a seventh part of their scanty earnings. Sometimes their masters are angry and dismiss them, and some of them have even been beaten.

The Christians and those who are now coming out are terribly poor. As a rule a whole family cannot earn more than three annas (threepence) a day on the average for the year, and to earn this they must work from sunrise to sunset. Hence they are very ignorant, and the only time to reach them is before they go to their fields (and then they are in a hurry), or at night, which is the usual time the teacher has prayers with them and instructs them. But this latter work is more than difficult, because for generations and generations these people have never been taught to think, and then the only time available is when they are tired out (except Sundays). Yet they come night after night and try to learn when they have a teacher.

Considering the poverty of the Christians and the fact that their staple food cost nearly twice as much in 1904 as in the previous year, their gifts were commendable, indeed they were larger than ever before. One poor man who desired to contribute towards a prayer-house which was to be erected in his village, sold his buffalo for Rs. 18, and gave Rs. 14 to the new building and the balance to different Church collections.

Liberal gift of a poor man.

During the latter half of the year under review the Jaggiapett district was under the charge of the Rev. J. Gnanapragasam, who was transferred to the town of that name, containing some 10,000 people, from Nandigama, sixteen miles distant. The former district covers an area of 700 square miles, part of which lies in British and part in the Nizam's territory, and Mr. Gnanapragasam describes it as enveloped in heathen darkness and Mohammedan superstition, and says that there are still some places where the Gospel has not yet penetrated. The Anglo-vernacular school, which had been doing so badly that there were some thoughts of closing it altogether, took a new lease of life with the appointment of two Christian masters. Until June, 1904, there were few signs of blessing in the general work, but then inquirers began to come forward in such large numbers that it was difficult to arrange for their proper instruction. Bishop Whitehead wrote in October:—

> A few months ago, in one of the villages under his charge, the village kurnam exercised his power in an illegal way, and got the son of the village vetty (the lowest class of village servants) into trouble. Mr. Gnanapragasam represented the case to the Tahsildar, and the vetty's son got off with a small fine. Thereupon the vetty himself, who is a leading man among the Madigas in those parts, and who had been receiving Christian instruction for some time, announced that he wished to be baptized. His example was followed by 150 Madigas in different villages. There are also about 300 others, both Malas and Madigas, in that part of the Raghavapuram district, who have been inquirers for many months past. This illustrates one motive that, undoubtedly, often gives the last impulse to waverers. The Christian Church is a protector against oppression, and the champion of justice. Naturally it makes a powerful appeal to the downtrodden and oppressed.

The Christian Church a protection against oppression.

It is said that one man confessed that among the motives which led him to come forward as an inquirer was a desire to obtain a civilized wife, by which he meant a girl belonging to the Christian boarding-school!

KHAMMAMETT.

The Rev. J. B. Panes, who in November, 1904, removed to Masulipatam to take up the work at the Preparandi Institution, reviews in his Annual Letter the advance which has been made in the KHAMMAMETT district during the last fifteen years of his residence in it. The number of villages occupied has increased fourfold, from twenty-four to eighty-nine; the number of school or prayer-houses has grown from four to twenty-six; of baptized Progress in fifteen years.

Christians from 365 to 1,345; of catechumens from 83 to 714; of inquirers not on the roll of catechumens from none to 298; of communicants from seventy-five to 609; of Indian agents from fourteen to fifty-three; the baptisms during the year 1889 numbered forty-three, and during the year under review 155; and the contributions of the Christians have advanced from Rs. 250 to Rs. 1,087. These figures are really more significant than appears at first sight, for Mr. Panes says that not only has there been a "steady, continuous, all-round growth," but the growth has also been "increasing in ratio in later years." Nevertheless much remains to be done. At the end of 1904 there were thirteen important openings for fresh evangelistic work and five new schools were urgently required, and in addition 298 villages were totally unoccupied by Christian workers. The large number, over 1,000, of catechumens and inquirers calling for systematic instruction, constituted a difficulty in spite of the increasing efficiency of the Indian workers. It was partially met by certain of the communicants devoting their Sundays to teaching, but something more than such desultory efforts was requisite.

"Steady, continuous, all-round growth."

A miscellaneous offertory.

The first harvest festival in the Khammamett Pastorate was held in April, 1904. Representatives came from many different villages, and the offerings, which were afterwards sold by auction, included buffaloes, goats, fowls, pigeons, toys, needlework, and other hand-made articles, as well as gifts of corn and money. Altogether a sum of Rs. 242 was realized. Nearly 150 candidates were confirmed by the Bishop of Madras in October: many of them had walked thirty or forty miles in order to be present, some carrying their babies in their arms, while all who came from a distance lost two or three days' pay. The Rev. P. Yohan, the Indian pastor, was cheered by the baptism of a family living in the Madiga hamlet close to the mission-compound. The matron of the girls' school and others had visited them in spare hours, and induced them to attend church regularly and receive instruction. The teaching received led a grown-up daughter to decline a proposed marriage to a Heathen, and then the whole family resolved to embrace Christianity.

Walking forty miles to be confirmed.

Thirty-seven persons baptized.

In the Kalukudem Pastorate of which the Rev. K. David is in charge, fourteen Malas were baptized, the firstfruits of a village called Malloram. A young man baptized some eight years before was the chief instrument in winning these people for Christ. About the same time thirty-seven persons were received into the visible Church at Chinna-Beeravally, and the evening after their baptism six men, heads of families, belonging to the next village, had a long conversation with Mr. Panes, and joined in prayer to God for the first time.

HYDERABAD.

The hopes of extension at HYDERABAD, which the Rev. M. G. Goldsmith, who has been appointed to a Canonry in St. George's Cathedral, Madras, was led to entertain by the arrival of the Rev. N. C. Miller at the close of 1903, were frustrated by the death of the latter in the following February (see last year's Report, page 267), and the work had to be carried on under the old restrictions as to staff. The preaching in the rented mission-hall met with less opposition than in former years, and a fair business was done at the two book-shops, while the distribution of handbills and other Christian literature proceeded steadily. Much assistance was rendered by the Rev. J. Ali Baksh, of Lahore, who spent the Divinity School vacation with Canon Goldsmith. One adult, Abdul Masih by name, was baptized in February, 1904. The following account which is given of him illustrates the opposition with which converts in Mohammedan lands are confronted. Canon Goldsmith writes :—

Hyderabad.

Sufferings of a convert from Mohammedanism.

> He had come to us on January 3rd, viâ Bombay, from Bushire, and was son of a Persian merchant there. Both in Bushire and at Bahrein he had been in touch with Christians, but alleges a dream as first having led him to feel it his duty to follow Christ. Dr. Zwemer, of Bahrein, helped to send him to Bombay, but friends he had hoped to meet were away, and he came across some who advised him to come on to us at Hyderabad. His immediate reason for leaving home was that his mother (his father had died) had twice tried to poison him, but had been frustrated by a sister. This sister, three months later, endeavoured to send him some money to Hyderabad. His elder brother resented this, and was advised by the mullah, whom he consulted, to shoot the sister. This he accordingly did, and along with her (apparently) a niece and the girl to whom Abdul Masih had been engaged! The next news was that the brother was in prison, and that the mother had become blind. Abdul Masih shows an earnest and intelligent Christian spirit, and is likely to be a useful man.

His life twice attempted by poison.

On the invitation of the Methodist Episcopal Mission Canon Goldsmith visited their station at Bedar Shorapur, on the south-western side of the Nizam's dominions, and there held daily Hindustani meetings, and he also accompanied Mr. Ali Baksh to Ellore, Masulipatam, and Bangalore.

Canon Goldsmith was joined in January, 1905, by the Rev. and Mrs. G. E. Brown, of the New South Wales Association.

DUMMAGUDEM (KOI MISSION).

The work at DUMMAGUDEM was under the superintendence of the Rev. J. Cain, who had as his helpers, besides Mrs. Cain, two Australian missionaries of the C.E.Z.M.S., and an Indian clergyman, the Rev. M. Sadhuvu, of whom he speaks in high terms. The Girls' Boarding-school had a good year, and Mr. Cain says that the stability of the work in some of the remotest villages of the district is due to the fact of their containing Christian women who have been educated at the school in the past. The darned-net lacework industry increased, and afforded employment to more than one hundred workers, the majority of them Christians. In 1903 Mrs. Cain suggested to these women that they should show their gratitude to the Society by giving their labour for a few days as a contribution to the deficit fund, she, on her part, providing the material. The proposal was cordially adopted, and the work, when sent home and sold through the Ladies' C.M.S. Depôt, realized more than £5. More than 6,000 attendances were registered at the dispensary. The lack of Indian agents of real spiritual power was sorely felt by Mr. Cain, who says that some of the people are apt to think that ability to talk is a sufficient recommendation for employment. He writes:—

Merely "apparent" power.

Evangelistic work by a coolie woman.

> One of our best educated Christians was lamenting the other day that he had not followed the advice of his wife and owned his sin—a sin apparent to the whole district—and he excused himself on the ground that she was uneducated, whilst he was educated. At the time he was persevering in his headlong course he gave an address (not in the Dummagudem district) which startled his hearers with its apparent power. I say apparent, for the friend who heard it, and knew nothing of his previous career, told me that he detected a note of unreality through the whole of the address. One of our best evangelists is an uneducated Christian woman who lives by coolie work. Wherever she goes to work she tells what she knows, and the good seed she sows has fallen into good ground and is springing up in a marvellous way. Four days ago I was talking to some people who have lately placed themselves under instruction, and I asked, "Who has taught you most of this?" They at once replied, "Piramma: whenever she gets opportunity in the evening and on Sunday she comes down to us and talks to us and prays with us."

Mr. Eugene Stock's Lessons on the Life of Christ, which has been adapted and translated into Telugu, was invaluable to the Christians, especially to those at a distance from Dummagudem, for whose spiritual oversight it was difficult to arrange. In some places where the people had previously resisted the Gospel they began to seek for admission into the Christian Church. In the Malkanagiri and Rampa Taluqs the Rev. M. Gnanasigamoni, the Indian pastor, lost some of his most earnest workers, and he was prevented by sickness from visiting the more distant Christians as often as desirable. Some of the elder converts went at their own charges to carry the Gospel to the villages beyond.

III. TINNEVELLY.

Consecration of Archdeacon Williams as Bishop of Tinnevelly.

THE consecration of Archdeacon A. A. Williams to the See of Tinnevelly took place in St. George's Cathedral, Madras, on February 2nd, 1905, the Feast of the Purification. The ceremony was performed by the Metropolitan, assisted by the Bishops of Madras, Bombay, and Nagpur.

The Rev. and Mrs. Ll. G. S. Price came home in March, 1905.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Schaffter sailed for the Mission in September, 1904; and the Rev. T. Walker in November.

PALAMCOTTA.

Palamcotta.

Preparandi Institution.

The Preparandi Institution at PALAMCOTTA was under the charge of the Rev. T. Kember. Sixteen of the students of the Senior Theological Class were sent forth in January, 1904, to work in various parts of the country, and good reports of their zeal and efficiency were received from time to time. The new class consisted of twelve students, who within six months of its commencement sat for the Bishop Gell Bible Prize Examination. Five passed in the first class, one gaining a first prize and another a third. The Junior Theological Class contained eight students, all of whom, even those who were backward at first, improved greatly. In the Normal Department seventeen were in the Lower Secondary Class and rather more in the Primary Grade Class. Of the former thirteen out of fourteen passed the written Government Examination, and five out of six were successful in the Practical Test, the corresponding numbers in the Primary Grade Class being thirteen out of twenty and eight out of nine. The Practising School attached to the Training Institution has 109 names on its rolls, the majority of them Christian boys. Four of the five who were presented for the Primary Examination were successful. Many even of the Hindu boys attended the Bible-classes, which were held on Sundays by men belonging to the Theological Classes. All the Institution students are members of the Y.M.C.A., and every care was taken to afford them practical experience in Christian work. In this respect they had exceptional advantages during the year, for the work of Mr. R. T. Archibald, of the Children's Special Service Mission, who for five months conducted meetings for the young in Tinnevelly, afforded the men an object-lesson by which they could hardly fail to profit. To quote the words of Mr. Kember, used chiefly with respect to the Junior Theological Class, but doubtless applicable to all the men, "The great aim has been to keep the practical side of their studies steadily in view. Our daily endeavour has been to show how the Bible is a book to live by; for we are sure that unless they know that they can be of little use in giving spiritual help to others." Mrs. Kember continued the class for the wives of the theological students.

"The Bible is a book to live by."

High School.

The examination results at the High School compared favourably with those of other schools. Eight boys passed the Matriculation Examination, eleven the Lower Secondary Examination, and six the Primary Examination. Under the fostering care of the Rev. R. F. Ardell the number of boys increased to 273, as compared with 221 in 1903. About half the boys are boarders. Of recent years the character of the school has changed, for it used to be mainly for Christian lads, but several Hindu boys, most of them Brahmans, have lately been admitted from other schools, chiefly the Roman Catholic and Hindu High Schools of the town, in the former of which no religious teaching of any kind is given. Many Mohammedan lads, too, have entered since the Mary Arden Lower Secondary School, exclusively for Hindus and Mohammedans, was opened in memory of the daughter of the late Rev. A. H. Arden, for some time the Secretary of the Mission. The last-mentioned school has grown rapidly, and has 220 names on its rolls, although it meets with a good deal of opposition and once or twice some of the boys were seized by their friends or the masters of the Hindu school and carried off to that institution. Mr. Ardell says that if a stranger were to visit the Mary Arden school on prize-giving day he would think it was a Christian boarding-school, on account of the number of Scripture texts the lads repeat. The majority of the boys voluntarily attended Sunday-school; many of them evinced a desire for a deeper acquaintance with Christianity, and a few asked for baptism, which, however, had to be delayed because of uncertainty about their age. The Dohnavur Boys' Boarding-school is an Anglo-vernacular school in a village about twenty-five miles from Palamcotta.

Mohammedan boys repeat Scripture texts.

Sarah Tucker College.

The staff of the Sarah Tucker College consisted of Miss A. J. Askwith, the Principal, and the Misses A. M. Naish, M. L. Pawson, F. E. Henrys, and R. E. Howard. The girls directly under their charge numbered nine in the College Department, forty-seven in the High School, 126 in the Lower Secondary Department, 118 in the Upper and Lower Primary Departments, and thirty-nine in the Training School. In addition there were twenty-one boys and thirteen girls in the Blind School. The object of the institution is not so much to impart higher education as to train teachers, and in this direction a forward step was made by opening a class for those who have passed the First Arts University Examination. Two students in the Upper Secondary Training Department were presented for examination and one passed; all the three presented in the English Division of the Lower Secondary Department were successful, but only six of the fifteen belonging to the Tamil Division; all the four presented in the Primary Department passed. In the F.A. Examination three of the four girls who entered passed; in the Matriculation Examination four out of eight; in the Lower Secondary Examination thirty-three out of thirty-nine, one appearing at the top of the Presidency List; while in the Primary Examination there was not a single failure among the twenty-two candidates who went in. Nineteen of the twenty-six girls who entered for the Peter Cator Scripture Examination passed, one of them winning a prize of Rs. 20.

The above figures are for the year ending March 31st, 1903, those for 1904 not being available when the Annual Letters of the missionaries were written. The spiritual welfare of the girls is cared for in a variety of ways. There is a branch of the Gleaners' Union with a membership of just over one hundred, another of the Y.W.C.A.; the members, partly by means of boxes and partly by the proceeds of their working-party, were enabled to help Pandita Ramabai's Home, &c. There is also a Sowers' Band, and a branch of the Tinnevelly Children's Mission; and Bible-readings, Prayer Meetings, &c., are frequently held. Some of the girls in the higher classes appeared really desirous of becoming Christians, but, as Miss Pawson says, "humanly speaking they have no hope of being able to confess Christ openly. They are under age while at school, and are married very early, after which it seems they have even less legal right than before." Three of the Sarah Tucker children, however, were baptized in August, 1903, and the same number of the Blind School girls. Of the former, one was a child who had been given to the missionaries; another was the daughter of a woman who herself had been baptized a little while before; and the third was the child of Christian parents. Besides their work at the Sarah Tucker College the staff are responsible for the oversight of two village boarding-schools with 120 Christian children, and also of a number of Branch Schools, which have in the aggregate about 2,000 pupils. The influence and teaching of the master of one of the latter led a man and his wife to embrace Christianity, and the attendance of the children fell off for a time in consequence.

Girls have "no hope of being able to confess Christ openly."

The Girls' Boarding School, of which Mrs. Kember was in charge, had the names of 108 children upon its rolls. Most of them are the daughters of pastors, catechists, schoolmasters, or Bible-women, but three heathen children were among the number. All the latter were baptized during the year with the full consent of their relatives. The meetings conducted by Mr. Archibald were a means of blessing to many of the girls, about half of them avowing their decision to serve the Lord.

Girls' Boarding School.

TINNEVELLY TOWN.

In the absence of the Rev. H. J. Schaffter on furlough, the Rev. Ll. G. S. Price was Acting-Principal of the College in Tinnevelly Town. Two of the students were placed in the first class in the F.A. Examination, one of them gaining the fifth place in the Presidency, and a larger number than usual were sent up for the University Examinations. Intelligent and sympathetic interest was manifested in the Scripture lessons, and it was evident at times that the boys were deeply touched. Mr. Price mentions as a practical outcome of the Christian teaching which was given the formation by the students of an association for the suppression of idolatry and the creation of a public opinion hostile to the evils of Hinduism. The members met together once a week, and published some tracts against idol-worship and the immoralities of the Hindu religion. This made a great stir in the town, and called forth a series of lectures in defence of Hinduism. But the lecturer seemed more desirous of impressing his hearers with an idea of his own ability than of advancing solid arguments which could be understood by the people. A number of Brahman boys, some of whom appeared to be in earnest, attended the flourishing Lower Secondary School at Tenkasi, which is connected with the College, but the similar school at Srivaiguntum had a hard struggle to contend with a rival school which was opened some years ago during the commotion caused by the conversion of a student at the C.M.S. institution.

THE TINNEVELLY DISTRICT.

Itinerating Band.

At the beginning of 1904 Mr. E. Keyworth relieved the Rev. E. A. Douglas of the leadership of the Itinerating Band, which consists of ten evangelists, who work in Tamil, Telugu, and Hindustani. The Band suffered a great loss by the sudden death of its leading Indian member, who was called the Shastriar because of his great knowledge of Tamil poetry, and who was a famous player on the violin and a sweet and powerful singer. The custom followed by the evangelists is to meet at a different centre each month, and remain away from their homes for three weeks, going both morning and evening to one of the villages within a radius of three miles of the centre. At most of the villages the men were treated with civility, but they were stoned three times, happily escaping injury, and on a few occasions were hooted down. Once in particular the Band had a narrow escape. It was at Melapalaiyam, a Mohammedan village, where they had been silenced on previous visits and threatened with stoning. They preached as usual at three different spots, but discovered afterwards that an influential man had arranged to lead them into a part of the bazaar where some other enemies of the Gospel lived, that they might stone or otherwise maltreat the evangelists. Mr. Keyworth fell into the trap, but unaware of the fact went on talking to the opponent in Hindustani, putting his hand on his shoulder and introducing him to the Band as a friend. Apparently the use of Hindustani pleased him, and his hostility was further disarmed by Mr.

Death of an Indian musician and evangelist.

Evangelists stoned.

Keyworth writing a few Arabic words on a writing-board, which led the Mohammedans to credit him with a great knowledge of the Koran. Some strange people were met with in the course of the itinerations. At Pulam there are over thirty celebrated robbers, watched over by a special police force, and compelled to answer to their names three times every night so that it may be certain that they are not engaged in any marauding expedition. Nevertheless they contrived one night to answer to their names, and then run or drive nine miles and rob some house, returning in time for the next roll-call. These people listened quietly to the preachers, and two old men of the village asked for instruction with a view to baptism. A sad incident occurred at Nanguneri. A young man opposed the evangelists, using insulting words. In the same night he became very ill and sent for some of the Band to pray with him and pardon him, but he died before any of them could reach the house. It transpired afterwards that both he and his uncle, who acted as his messenger, for several months had been much exercised in their minds about Christianity, and had in reality been striving against their convictions of the truth of the Gospel. At Tenkasi Mr. Keyworth was invited to give an English lecture in a room of the great Hindu temple. Notwithstanding very inclement weather he found a large audience of lawyers, officials, and students, who received him cordially and listened attentively.

A robber village.

Striving against their convictions.

In the course of an interview with the Committee in November, 1904, Mr. G. S. Eddy, of the Y.M.C.A. and S.V.M.U. of South India, gave a cheering account of the work which had come under his notice during his journeys over nearly the whole of India. He enumerated the following encouraging circumstances:—The growth of native missionary societies planned and carried out by Indians, missionaries having gone from Ceylon to South India, and from Tinnevelly to the Telugu Mission; the commencement of a spiritual movement entirely by Indians—a movement which was growing, especially in the Tinnevelly Mission; the awakening of the Native Church to a considerable measure of "self-consciousness," which has brought with it a spirit of not unkindly criticism of the various missionary societies, and which is leading to greater efforts for self-support and self-government; and lastly, the growing measure of union between the different churches labouring in India.

Encouraging signs in South India.

The Rev. E. S. Carr, the Chairman of the District Church Council, deals in his Annual Letter with the general position of the work. He finds several "signs of progress and blessing." Although from 300 to 400 persons were excommunicated for marriage irregularities and other causes, yet many who had been subjected to discipline in previous years sought restoration, and were even willing to lose the thali (marriage badge) and be married properly, a course which indicated genuine repentance. Mr. Carr says that "the pastors and circle chairmen take upon themselves more of the responsibility of their charges," and he adds that the increase in the contributions of the people to the Native Church Fund, which amounted during the year to Rs. 51,760, is mainly due to the efforts of the pastors and chairmen in enlisting the aid of independent laymen. Not only were the gifts to the Fund just mentioned larger than usual, but the contributions to the British and Foreign Bible Society were nearly half as much again as in the previous year. A special effort was made in connexion with the Centenary of that Society, sermons being preached on "Bible Sunday," March 6th, and collections made on the following Easter Day. The people of late years, too, have subscribed nearly one-third of the sum of Rs. 37,000, which represents the cost of the new hall, built to commemorate the Centenary of the C.M.S., which was opened in July, 1904. Mr. Carr spent nine weeks in visiting a number of the village congregations, and returned with deepened sympathy with the Indian pastors and other teachers. He says:—

Observance of "Bible Sunday."

The trials of Indian pastors and teachers.

> Their isolation from much spiritual help, the unreasonableness of the ignorant, the secret and open opposition of those who are reproved for inconsistency in life, the inability of the very poor to remember for a single day what they have been taught with great care, the frequent indifference and callousness of those who are prosperous, the open sin and vice in many quarters, combine to depress and discourage, and to make the workers content with a perfunctory performance of their duties. Thank God for those who rise high above such temptations, but it must be confessed that there is need of a much deeper spiritual tone and experience among many. They are practically the only teachers of thousands of ignorant nominal Christians.

These difficulties, in themselves sufficiently great, were increased by the activity of the Roman Catholics, who spent large sums of money on their work, and were quick to avail themselves of the opportunity of increasing their numbers afforded by the exercise of discipline in the Protestant Church.

The Tinnevelly Indian Missionary Society.

The formation of the Tinnevelly Indian Missionary Society, referred to in the remarks of Mr. Eddy quoted on the previous page, was recorded in last year's Report (page 287). Its first missionary, Samuel Pakkianadhan, was sent forth during the year with a view to work in the Mankottai Taluq, in the north-western corner of the Hyderabad State, which contains a population of about 60,000. Mr. Pakkianadhan is temporarily staying at Khammamett to learn Telugu. The Indian Missionary Society also organized bands of voluntary preachers to proclaim the Gospel in their own neighbourhoods. Its income for the year was Rs. 1,443, exclusive of gifts from Europeans. A candidates' committee has been appointed, and several small publications explanatory of the object of the society have been issued.

Mr. Pakkianadhan, who has just been referred to, was one of the principal instruments in establishing the Children's Mission in Tinnevelly, and was its first secretary. The Scripture Union connected with that Mission gained 500 new members during the year, and the Children's Friend, its monthly magazine, had a circulation of 4,000, and carried the Gospel into a number of heathen as well as Christian homes. The visits of Mr. Archibald to the branches resulted in 500 boys and 300 girls forming themselves into "Swordsmen's Bands" and "Lightbearers' Bands" respectively, pledging themselves to prayer, the study of the Bible, and efforts to win others. Children's Mission.

The C.M.S. Printing Press and Book Depôt were superintended by the Rev. R. F. Ardell. Printing Press.

Several adults were baptized in the Palamcotta Circle, which is almost self-supporting. Among them were the servant of the Rev. A. N. MacTier, whose time was chiefly occupied with language-study; the son of Mr. Carr's old "horse-keeper"; a young barber and his family, who had to give up most of his work among Hindus, since barbers are expected to perform certain funeral and other heathen rites; the cousin of a small zemindar; a Telugu youth of eighteen, who first heard the Gospel in his own village, and for some time accompanied the Itinerating Band for probation and instruction; and a Brahman matriculate, employed in the Government Training School, Tinnevelly. The story of the last-named is deeply interesting. He was originally impressed at a Bible-class held by Dr. Washburn of the American Madura Mission, and for upwards of ten years had been a student of the Bible and of other books bearing on Christian evidences. The Christian Patriot says:— Baptism of a Brahman matriculate.

He was so far convinced of the truth and saving power of the religion which he wished to adopt for himself that he felt he could no longer delay open confession of his faith. But what was to be done with his beloved wife and child? He made up his mind that theirs should also be the lot he chose for himself. Slowly he opened his mind to his wife, and at last prevailed upon her to place herself for tuition and private instruction in religion under the ladies of the Sarah Tucker College. Here she felt she was breathing a new atmosphere, and signs were not wanting to show that she was veering round to her husband's way of thinking. At this stage it was arranged that the boy should first be dedicated to Christ in Holy Baptism, and on October 25th, 1904, the boy, with the consent of the parents, was baptized under the name of Devathanjam Paul. The same day, however, the mother felt troubled at heart and was restless the whole night. The result of her mental struggle was that she secretly managed to make her way to the Tinnevelly railway station to take the first train to Tuticorin, which is her father's home. But her husband, missing her, hastened to the station and prevailed upon her to return with him. With persuasive words and loving and growing sympathy for her in her troubles, and with assurances of ultimate happiness for all of them in Christ Jesus, she was brought round again, and right glad she was to be baptized and follow her earthly lord where he would go. She chose to be received into the Church before her husband, and so she was baptized on Saturday, October 29th, at the evening service under the name of Gnana Lakshmi Ammal. Her father, who was called in to dissuade her husband from embracing Christianity by open confession, was simply dumbfounded at the marvellous change that had come over his own daughter, and could but accede to her wishes.

Clear of all his troubles, the Brahman gentleman was now ready for his baptism by immersion—a method which he much desired. The following Sunday as the bell rang for evening service a large number of the Indian Christians of the place assembled in the Rev. T. Kember's garden adjoining the Tamil Church, as was previously arranged. While hymns of praise were being sung the Rev. E. S. Carr and two Indian ministers led the Brahman gentleman to a large tub filled with water. He was named Christados Paul.

A reserve fund.

The Mengnanapuram Circle maintained its own pastorate work and primary schools, and in addition raised a considerable sum as a reserve fund. The offertory at the service held to commemorate the Centenary of the British and Foreign Bible Society evidenced the love of the people for God's Word. The Rev. E. A. Douglas wrote at the time:—

"The Word of God has wound its tendrils round the heart of the people."

Many brought gaudy-coloured bags containing 100 coins each, one pice, three pice, six pice, annas, and one a pretty coloured wooden box with 100 four-anna pieces done up in rolls. The schoolboys seem to have made a run upon the vendors of peppermints, for various paper boxes of 100 red, yellow, and white peppermints were offered with smiling faces by them. Nor were boxes of 100 ink-balls wanting, nor 100 slate-pencils. Bundles of 100 palmyra sweet roots, 100 chillies, 100 betle-leaves, and betle-nut (arica), jaggery bags (about Rs. 10 worth) and sweetmeats, a large sack of rice carried up, not without difficulty, by the sexton, and gifts of money were all included amongst the things the people of the village offered willingly. Truly the Word of God has wound its tendrils round the hearts of the people.

The Rev. D. M. Pakkianadhan was transferred from Surandei to take up the position of chairman of the Seval Circle, in which he had worked seven years before. He speaks of Sabbath-breaking, irregular marriages, unchristian lawsuits, and worldliness as still existing, but adds that several of the congregations have members who are faithful to their profession. The Idayunkulam Pastorate, which was under his charge, contains twenty-three congregations and 1,541 baptized Christians. Twenty-four adults received baptism.

At the end of 1903 the Rev. A. Savarimuttu succeeded the Rev. A. S. Devapiriam, transferred to Ootacamund, in the charge of the Ambasamudram Pastorate in the Nallur Circle. The Native Christians under his care number about 800, and they showed a deep interest in the Indian Missionary Society, while some of them voluntarily engaged in evangelistic work. At the same time many of them caused sorrow, some even continuing to pay taxes to the heathen temples in order to maintain their union with their non-Christian relatives. In certain quarters, too, the custom of seeking for auspicious days and months for marriages still prevailed. Sixteen adults were baptized.

Nominal Christians comply with heathen customs.

The Rev. F. W. Breed, who resides at Sachiapuram, and is the Chairman of the Sachiapuram and Vagaikulam Circles, in North Tinnevelly, arranged a series of special devotional meetings for the agents of each of the two Circles. In both cases good results were seen, but the gatherings for the Sachiapuram Circle were characterized by a deeper spirit of devotion than those for the Vagaikulam Circle. Special meetings for Indian agents.

In the Sachiapuram Circle a novel offering was made at the harvest festival in the form of a baby eighteen months old. The parents before his birth had dedicated him to the Lord for His service. At the festival they brought and presented him. Then they redeemed him for five shekels of silver, Rs. 10, and received him back to be trained in godliness. During Mr. Archibald's visit thirty-one boys in the boarding-school at Sachiapuram were moved to confess their sins and give their hearts to God. The work at Vadapatti, one of the Maravar villages near Sachiapuram mentioned in last year's Report (page 289), in some measure disappointed the hopes which had been formed, for the enthusiasm subsided considerably, and the most prominent inquirer was almost induced to join the Roman Catholics. Strangely enough, he was dissuaded from doing so by his wife, who herself showed no inclination to become a Christian. Caste difficulties also proved a hindrance. A school, however, was opened, and several women began to attend the Sunday services. A Tinnevelly Samuel.

The Rev. S. A. Daniel, of the Kovilpatti Pastorate, was transferred to Achampatti in the spring of 1904. In the Panaiyadipatti Pastorate several people who had been excommunicated asked to be restored to Church fellowship. The Srivilliputhur Pastorate is under the Rev. J. Albert. New buildings for the High School were opened at Srivilliputhur by Mr. R. Maconachie in February, 1904, and a few months later two of the boys were baptized at Palamcotta. Both of them belonged to the Brahman community, and their conversion "was like an electric shock through the town." When the School re-opened after the summer vacation nearly 200 boys applied for leaving certificates, but by degrees some of them returned. Although none of the Brahmans came back, yet there were about 200 boys in the school at the close of the year, and the High School classes had an average of fifteen each. Baptism of two Brahman school-boys—"Like an electric shock through the town.

Mr. Albert describes his pastorate as a rather barren field, since it contains less than 2 per cent. of the Christians, but the number of converts was considerably increased by the baptism at Derigapuram of twenty-six men and twenty women on the same day. In another village, the name of which is not mentioned, the people, though poor, bought some land for a church, and a small prayer-house was erected. Forty-six adults baptized on one day.

The work among the Paliahs (see Annual Report 1902–03, page 291, and 1903–04, page 290) was hindered by the action of the contractors for the produce of the hills, who maltreated both the Paliahs and the evangelists to such an extent as to call forth the intervention of the Government authorities.

The "black man's grave."

In the Vagaikulam Circle, the Rev. S. A. Daniel, formerly of Kovilpatti, was transferred to the Achampatti Pastorate. He describes it as the "black man's grave" in the Tinnevelly district, two pastors, one of them his own father, having died there in comparatively recent years. The pastorate contains nearly 1,000 adherents. Those at Nilianallur were much persecuted, but bore the taunts and abuse of their heathen neighbours with patience and unmoved. Twenty adults were baptized, and six who had been excommunicated were received back into the Church. The Rev. A. Devadas is in charge of the Sankaranainarkoil Pastorate, with more than 600 baptized Christians scattered in thirty-six villages.

A man seventy years of age was baptized at Vagaikulam, and a blacksmith and his family at Senthati.

TRAVANCORE AND COCHIN MISSION.

The Mission in the semi-independent Native States of Travancore and Cochin, which occupy a narrow strip of country on the south-western coast of India, between the Western Ghats and the sea, was established in 1816 at the invitation of Colonel Munro, the British Resident. For twenty years it was worked by Benjamin Bailey, Joseph Fenn, Henry Baker, sen., and others, mainly with a view to the reform of the ancient Malabar Syrian Church, which claims to have been founded by the Apostle St. Thomas. Since 1837 the missionaries have worked independently, the result of which has been not only the adhesion of many Syrians to the purer worship of the Church of England, but an active reforming movement within their own Church, which was much fostered by the late Metran, Mar Athanasius. The labours of Peet, Hawksworth, H. Baker, jun., and others, among the Heathen, particularly the lowest castes and the Hill Arrians, have been also greatly blessed. Allepie was occupied in 1816; Cottayam and Cochin, 1817; Mavelikara, 1839; Trichur, 1842; Pallam, 1845; Tiruwella, 1849; Kunnankulam, 1854; the Arrian Mission was begun in 1855; and the Alwaye Itinerancy in 1881.

On July 25th, 1879, the Rev. J. M. Speechly, a C.M.S. missionary and for some time Principal of the Cambridge Nicholson Institution, was consecrated first Bishop of Travancore and Cochin. On his resignation in 1889 the Rev. E. N. Hodges, who had previously been Principal of the Noble College, Masulipatam, and of Trinity College, Kandy, Ceylon, was nominated to the See, and was consecrated on April 25th, 1890. Dr. Hodges retired in 1905, and the Rev. Charles Hope Gill, a missionary of the Society, has been appointed to succeed him.

Bishop Hodges, who came home in April, 1904, and during the remainder of the year gave assistance to the Bishop of Durham, has resigned the See of Travancore and Cochin, which he has occupied since 1890. The Rev. Charles Hope Gill, Secretary of the United Provinces Mission, has been selected by the Archbishop of Canterbury as his successor. Dr. Hodges adduced some interesting figures concerning his diocese on the occasion of his interview with the Committee two months after his return. He stated that the Christians represent more than one-fifth of the population, and are 900,000 out of a total of some 4,000,000. Roman Catholics number 600,000, Syrian Christians 200,000, and Protestants 100,000—of whom 60,000 are connected with the London Missionary Society in South Travancore, and 40,000 with the C.M.S. There are still 2,600,000 Hindus of all castes, and 300,000 of the backward classes—Pulayans, Hill Arrians, and others—and 245,000 Mohammedans. The stations in Travancore and Cochin have increased since 1890, the year of Bishop Hodges's consecration, from 152 to 212; the clergy have about doubled in number; the lay agents have advanced from 264 to 655; schools from 189 to 290; schoolboys from 5,000 to 9,000, and girls from 1,300 to 4,000; and baptized Christians from 22,000 to 40,000. Their contributions since 1890 have advanced from Rs. 8,700 to Rs. 24,000, and Rs. 1,750 (£110) was sent by these Christians to the Million Shilling Fund.

Resignation of Bishop Hodges.

Progress in the Mission in fourteen years.

The Native Church has suffered a heavy loss by the death of the Ven. Archdeacon Oomen Mamen, who passed away at Mavelikara on August 23rd, 1904. The Archdeacon was the senior native clergyman in the Society's Indian Missions, having been ordained by Bishop Dealtry of Madras in 1856, after passing through preliminary training at Cottayam College. His first sphere of labour was at Allepie; subsequently he was in charge of Mallapalli and Changancheri; and on the death of Dr. Koshi Koshi in 1900 he succeeded him as Archdeacon of Mavelikara. In an In Memoriam notice of the Archdeacon, which appeared in the C.M. Intelligencer for February, 1905, an incident in which he played a prominent part is narrated as follows:—

Perhaps the most remarkable thing he ever did was what he did just four days previous to his death. He bought about fifteen copies of the Malayalam New Testament and a few story-books and picture-cards. With these books in a bundle, he went to the rajahs' school in the Fort. He had his curate and two of the agents with him. The young rajahs and their masters received him gladly, as he was a great friend of theirs. He then took a piece of chalk and wrote on the board in Malayalam the text: "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ." This done, he unpacked the bundle, and, taking out a copy of the New Testament, called out the name of a palace. A boy rajah of that palace came forward and received the book just as he would receive a book during a prize distribution. In this manner all the fifteen copies of the New Testament were given out, and afterwards he distributed the other books and cards among the students. He then delivered an address which the whole school enjoyed very much. It is not often possible to sell or present a copy of the Holy Scriptures to a member of the royal family. The Archdeacon succeeded very well in sending a copy to each of the palaces in Travancore.

The Bible sent to the palaces in Travancore.

Archdeacon and Mrs. J. Caley came home in April, 1905. The Rev. W. A. Stephens married Miss Margaret Ann Dennis at Colombo, on March 1st, 1905.

CHURCH COUNCILS.

Archdeacon J. Caley, in a review of the condition of the Native Church in Travancore, says that the Christians are pressing on towards self-support, but are handicapped by having to spend large sums annually on temporary buildings. There is need for a greater spirit of reverence, especially among the young people, and this it is difficult to inculcate when public worship is held in some instances in tumble-down sheds hardly so good as ordinary stables.

Cottayam Council.

There are twelve pastorates connected with the COTTAYAM CHURCH COUNCIL. The Rev. P. J. Joshua, who is in charge of the Kunnankulam Pastorate with its four stations, is happily able to report that two of the men whose excommunication was recorded in last year's Report (page 294) showed signs of repentance and true amendment of life, and were received back into the Church. Two Brahmans and three Nairs were baptized. House to house visitation was diligently carried on, and was of value as giving opportunity of individual dealing with souls. In the open-air work attention to the message of salvation was the rule rather than the exception, and this was especially the case at the Guruvayur festival. While it lasted, preaching was maintained by the Kunnankulam agents of the C.M.S. reinforced by the Rev. J. H. Bishop and his band of workers, for several hours both in the mornings and afternoons, and when a pause was made for rest some young men of the Syrian Reformed Church filled the gap. There was practically no opposition and little interruption, and the Rev. F. Bower says that never before in his long missionary career has he seen Hindus and Mohammedans listen so seriously and respectfully to the story of the Cross. He adds that the hearers were so well-behaved that the evangelists were several times able to conclude with prayer. Ten adults were baptized in the Trichur Pastorate, which is under the Rev. A. E. David. He writes as follows concerning two of them, a man and his wife, who were the fruits of educational work :—

Attentive listeners to the Gospel at a heathen festival.

A small school was kept up in their village, and these two were students there when they were children. The seed then sown remained buried in their hearts, and as they grew up it began to work. Consequently, the man came to his teacher, and told him some three years ago of his desire to become a Christian. His teacher sent him back, advising him to try to bring his wife and child (he then had only one), who at the time were unwilling to become Christians. He went back, and after three years' patient work he returned one morning to his teacher, bringing his wife and children with him. The teacher sent them to me. When I asked him whether he knew anything about the way of salvation his answers were very satisfactory. He knew the way more clearly and fully than most of the Christians who are brought up in our religion, and told me that he came to accept Jesus as the only Saviour. I was very glad, and placed them in a God-fearing family. While they were there his wife's brother came and took away her and her children. The poor man was very sorry, and as he was unwilling to part with them he followed them, sending me word that he would soon return. As a general rule such persons never return. I had no faith in his word, but, to my great surprise, a fortnight later he returned with his family, and after a time of probation they were all baptized. The names were chosen by himself. He told me that as he was called by God from Heathenism to serve Him he desired to be called Abraham, his wife Sarah, and his children Isaac and Jacob.

Fruit of educational work after many years.

Another of the newly-baptized converts was Sankunni, the young man, twenty-five years of age, whose story was briefly given by Mr. Bishop in last year's Report (page 301). Mr. David now relates it more fully as follows :—

He learned in the same school under the same teacher where Abraham learned. As he grew up the words sown in his heart began to work, and at last he also came to see the foolishness of idolatry, and wanted to accept Christ as his personal Saviour. He also had his own difficulties to overcome. His parents and his grandfather, who loved him more than his father, were living. He could not bear the thought of leaving them, and he was wavering for some time. A way was opened for him to leave them. He got work in the railway, and left his people to take up his work. There he met with another difficulty. His immediate superior was a bigoted Hindu. When he saw this young man reading the New Testament which he had bought and used to read during his leisure time, he told him that it was a dangerous book, and prevented him from reading it. The young man then told him that he was thinking of becoming a Christian. The man was very angry, and tried to dissuade him from doing it. But he was firm in his resolution. The Hindu therefore brought a false charge against him, and one night made a Mohammedan coolie beat him severely. A few days after this the young man, finding it was difficult to work under him, came here and expressed his wish to become a Christian. When I examined him I found him ready for baptism, but as it is the custom to keep new-comers as probationers I admitted him as a catechumen, and after some months baptized him by the name of John.

A former mission-schoolboy baptized,

and wins his relatives for Christ.

Mr. Bishop states that this convert is leading a consistent life, and has been the means of winning some of his relatives for Christ. A fourth convert was influenced by his Roman Catholic brother, who, however, sent the young man to the Protestant pastor for instruction rather than to the Romish priest. The Rev. M. P. Matthew has charge of the one congregation of the Cochin Pastorate. There are 300 Christians connected with it, but the lives of many of them are not consistent. Notwithstanding the opposition of a Mohammedan preacher and of the Roman Catholics, there were several additions to the little band of Protestant Christians, numbering over 1,000, in the Allepie Pastorate, to whom the Rev. M. T. Chakko, an Indian deacon, ministers, under the supervision of the Rev. Dr. W. J. Richards. Among them was a woman, the daughter of a former mission-school inspector, who had been a schoolfellow of Bishop Sargent, but fell through drink, and allowed his children to become "very wicked and vile." The woman referred to married a Romanist, and had her two sons and her daughter brought up in that faith, but at length repented of her sinful life, and asked to be received into the Protestant Church. She died within a fortnight of her reception. On September 15th, 1904, Dr. Richards wrote concerning some converts from Heathenism:—

Conversion of a devil-priest.

On Saturday we had a very pleasant surprise; nothing less than a devil-priest of the Pulayan Freedman caste coming, brought by his two Christian sons, to turn to the living and true God. In 1892 we began a school for the Heathen at Karimadi, ten miles distant by water. The teacher was a man formerly of the same caste. The result was seen in a few years in the conversion of six boys, who were baptized during my furlough in 1893-94 by the Rev. C. A. Neve. Hitherto none of their parents had accepted the Gospel openly in baptism. It now appears that the wife of the devil-priest had been hindered by her husband, under threats of death, from joining the Church. Nor were these vain words. He was believed by all to be the dwelling-place of a foul spirit—as of a suicide—and was much consulted by the Heathen in cases of sickness, when he would be plied with strong drink. The Arakula (literally "Dreadful Murder"), as the spirit was called, often spoke, threatening him with instant death if ever he became a Christian (for his sons and the other Christians had often prayed for him with tears). Just a month before he came to us, on the occasion of one such prayer, he had submitted himself to the love of the Good Shepherd, and to the amazement of all, and especially of the Heathen, no harm had overtaken him. Seven or eight adults besides have already joined, no doubt greatly influenced by his example. Then an expected cluster of fruit was gathered into the Church on Sunday, the 11th. At Chettiyad, four miles north of Allepie, lived a family of Komeroms, priests of the Shanar or Chokan caste, also physicians and barbers. The senior member came to me in 1890, begging that I would receive his son at special rates into our boys' English school, then taught in the mission-compound. I admitted the boy at half fees on account of the great distance. I also visited the father and gave him a Bible and other books. Giving up his priesthood and barber work, he practised as a physician until his death by cholera more than a year ago. On his death-bed he exhorted his family to become Christians. The pastor of Allepie and I baptized his brother and his wife and four children on Sunday.

A former priest exhorts his family to become Christians.

The Rev. C. C. Thommen had the oversight of the Olesha Pastorate. In the town of that name there were signs of a spiritual awakening, and the Y.M.C.A. was a power for good. The Rev. A. J. Pothan, of the Arpukara Pastorate, mentions a young man who was instrumental in winning his uncle and seven others for Christ during the year, and says that, speaking generally, hatred and prejudice against the Gospel diminish as knowledge increases. Ninety candidates were confirmed at Muttuchira, and forty catechumens were under instruction at Thalayalam, a new out-station. Thirty-four adults were baptized. The congregation of the Cottayam Pastorate, under the Rev. T. K. Benjamin, manifested a want of real interest in spiritual matters. The Rev. J. Chandy has nearly 3,000 baptized Christians gathered in ten different congregations under his charge in the Pallam Pastorate. More than one-quarter of the converts are found at Veluthuruthy. The Erikatta Pastorate includes six congregations. At Erikatta itself the Rev. W. C. Cherryan was much troubled by the action of some other bodies of Christians. The Rev. M. C. Chakko superintends the Kanam Pastorate. Work in what is now the Pampadi Pastorate, under the Rev. C. I. Mani, was commenced in 1872, when the Rev. H. Baker stationed a teacher at Pampadi. The opposition of the Namburi Brahmans compelled his withdrawal after a few months, and it was not until 1885 that the place was permanently occupied. Since then a community of baptized Christians numbering nearly 2,000 has been formed. Unhappily the work among them is hampered by the dissension between the Pulayans and Parayans which was sown at the beginning of 1903 by some schismatics. The adult baptisms during the year numbered 134. Troubles somewhat similar to those at Erikatta were experienced by the Rev. T. I. Cheryan in the Nedugadapalli Pastorate with its eight stations.

Diminishing prejudice against the Gospel.

The Tiruwella Church Council has three pastorates connected with it. The Rev. K. P. Oomen has charge of the seventeen congregations of the Tiruwella Pastorate, which needs sub-division before it can be effectually worked. The Kaviur Pastorate, under the Rev. A. O. Matthai, has eleven stations, and the Puwattur Pastorate, under the Rev. T. K. Joseph, nine stations. Some of these are sadly unprogressive. The largest congregation in the latter pastorate is at Ayrur, where there are just over 600 baptized Christians.

Tiruwella Council.

Mavelikara Council.

There are eight pastorates connected with the MAVELIKARA CHURCH COUNCIL. Real improvement was manifested in the Tallawadi Pastorate under the Rev. K. T. Koshi, and also in the Elantur Pastorate, of which the Rev. M. C. Thomas is in charge, but in the latter there was also much that was weak, and great room for development. The Kodawalangi Pastorate is described as "strong," albeit, as in other pastorates, there is much to be desired in the way of better church buildings. The Rev. M. C. Thoma speaks of the building used as a school and prayer-house at one station as "more miserable than a cattle shed." The Mavelikara Pastorate, under the Rev. K. M. Matthan, suffered greatly through the death of Archdeacon Oomen Mamen. There are 400 baptized Christians at Mavelikara itself. The character of the Christians belonging to one of the largest of the six congregations of the Kattanam Pastorate, of which the Rev. P. M. Curien was in charge, was so utterly unsatisfactory that it was a question whether it might not be wise to give them a drastic lesson by withdrawing the agents for a time. The Rev. P. O. Matthan ministered to the four congregations of the Putupalli Pastorate. That at Klapana is said to be feeble, and to contain very few vigorous Christians. The Mallapalli Pastorate, under the Rev. K. P. Varkki, contains 1,997 baptized Christians. During the last two years the out-stations of this pastorate have suffered severely. Punnavely has been abandoned owing to the action of some opponents who attacked the converts, beating and wounding them and burning their houses, and at Mittathumavoo the Protestant Christians have been evicted from their homes and scattered far and wide. At Walliakulam, a rich Jacobite Syrian erected a prayer-house for the backward classes close to that of the pastorate, and persuaded most of the converts to join him. A catechist was in charge of the Kannit Pastorate.

Converts beaten and wounded.

Melkavu Council.

The MELKAVU CHURCH COUNCIL has four pastorates in connexion with it. The Rev. W. C. Kiruwella ministers to the five congregations of the Melkavu Pastorate. That at Melkavu contains 749 baptized Christians, and "heads all the congregations for spiritual vigour." Archdeacon Caley says:—

> For the Bible Society's collection, Native Church Missionary Society's collections, and all kindred calls, you can always rely on a hearty response from Melkavu. The people live on the slopes of the hill, and know what hardships are, but they can sing, rejoice, and give thanks. Henry Baker found these Arrians terribly down-trodden and depressed, but he nobly beat down their enemies and set them free. The Melkavu people are his memorial.

Memory of a missionary cherished.

Henry Baker's memory is cherished also at Koowapalli, in the Erumapara Pastorate, under the Rev. K. M. Matthai, where "his place is still empty," though he has been dead twenty-six years. Good work was done in the Mankompu Pastorate, where a catechist was in charge. The Mundakayam Pastorate, under the Rev. E. V. Mani, has given considerable anxiety, and, though not strong in 1904, was improving.

NATIVE CHURCH MISSION.

Native Church Mission.

In 1904 the Rev. T. K. Ninan devoted most of his time to the villages around those places in the Pandalam and Adoor district in which workers had been stationed. Open-air meetings were conducted; some 650 Hindu homes visited; and a large number of tracts and handbills distributed. While the attitude of the people of Adoor was friendly and active opposition was the exception, yet few inquirers came forward; Mr. Ninan, however, writing at the beginning of 1905, thought that he might regard as such three persons who came to him regularly for instruction. Discord unhappily prevailed among the Christians at Eanath, and at Puthuval some persecution was experienced; at Ayekala, however, five Pariah families put themselves under instruction, and at Kalampanad the work of the medical evangelist was evidently appreciated.

COTTAYAM AND PALLAM.

Cottayam. Cambridge Nicholson Institution.

The Rev. J. J. B. Palmer resumed his duties as Principal of the Cambridge Nicholson Institution, COTTAYAM, in January, 1904, soon after his return from furlough, and after August had the Rev. W. A. Stephens as his European colleague. In February the year's course of preparation for evangelistic work terminated, and four men went out, two of them to return to work and two to begin work as catechists. Six men were admitted in their stead, four of them studying with a view to the ministry, all but one of whom read for the Theological Preliminary Examination. The normal classes contained nine men in their second year, and twenty-one new students, who began their course in January, 1904; nineteen of these were about to leave when Mr. Palmer wrote his Annual Letter, ten of them to take up work in the Society's schools. The Practising Schools had the names of 170 children upon their rolls. The students manifested increased zeal in voluntarily undertaking work on Sundays. Three new Sunday-schools were opened and served by the men in addition to the one which they previously worked; open-air preaching was regularly carried on; and two of the Divinity students conducted services twice a month at the out-stations of one of the pastorates. The students also prosecuted evangelistic work at some of the heathen festivals held in the neighbourhood of Cottayam. Some young Hindus occasionally came to Mr. Palmer for conversation on religious topics, and he had a few opportunities of speaking at the meetings of the local Hindu Young Men's Association.

The College.

The Principal of the College, the Rev. F. N. Askwith, who was assisted by the Rev. J. Booth so far as the latter's language study would allow, had a hearty reception on his return from furlough in the autumn of 1903. The examination results of that year (those of the year under review were not known when Mr. Askwith wrote) were fair as compared with those of other institutions, but no first classes were secured, and failures in the Matriculation Examination were numerous. A former Christian student, however, who had been at the College for seven years, obtained the first place in the Presidency in English and History in the B.A. Examination. Students were sent in for the Higher Grade Peter Cator Scripture Examination for the first time in the history of the College. One of them came out second and was awarded a prize of Rs. 20; another was eighth on the list; and twenty others succeeded in passing. The College Association, which has three departments of usefulness—open-air preaching, Sunday-school work, and a weekly prayer-meeting—was developed under the fostering care of Mr. Booth, and some of the senior members proposed to devote part of the Christmas vacation to a preaching tour in the company of one of the masters.

A Christian student first in the Presidency in English and History.

Baker Memorial School.

The Baker Memorial School was under the management of the two sisters, Misses I. and A. Baker. The school contains close on 200 girls, including seventy-nine boarders. It had to cope on the one hand with the opposition of the Government to all Scripture instruction in aided schools, and on the other with the rivalry of a Roman Catholic convent school, which welcomed the C.M.S. girls, when they could be obtained, without charging any fees. Nevertheless Miss I. Baker speaks of much blessing as having been vouchsafed to the work. There are two branch day-schools, the one at Nagampadan, and the other at Kuttekalkunoo. The attendance at the former increased to such an extent that the schoolroom had to be enlarged.

Pallam.

Buchanan Institution.

The Rev. and Mrs. E. Bellerby of the Buchanan Institution, PALLAM, met with some trouble in their work through the action of the Native Government, which put forth a circular about religious instruction in aided schools, containing an ambiguous phrase which appeared to indicate that attendance at the Scripture lesson was optional, and that it was on that condition that grants were made. A strong appeal was promptly sent, and there was reason to hope that the circular would remain a dead letter and eventually be withdrawn. Happily there were no special reasons for anxiety concerning the inmates of the institution, 173 in number, for the general tone was good; and cheering reports of former students were received from those under whom they were working. The Normal Department contained twenty-two students, some in the Lower Secondary and others in the Primary Grade. Fifteen of the latter appeared for the Lower Grade Peter Cator Scripture Examination, and eight obtained certificates of merit, one gaining a prize of Rs. 15. Ten students belonging to the Lower Secondary, and four belonging to the Primary Grade, sat for the Madras Teachers' Written Test, and all but one of each Grade were successful. Nine girls in the School Department entered for the Madras Lower Secondary Examination, and six of them passed. Five candidates out of six from Form I., and three out of six from Standard IV., passed the Madras Fifth Standard and Primary Examinations respectively. Every effort was made to develop the spiritual life of the staff and students. The former met each Monday for a short prayer-meeting, and had the supreme importance of the Scripture teaching continually impressed upon them, while for the students Gospel meetings, the Sunday-school, and the Scripture Union were diligently worked. The Buchanan branch of the Gleaners' Union had more than eighty members. Every Saturday morning they met to do needlework, from the sale of which Rs. 300 was realized, a portion of which amount was applied to the support of an orphan at Onitsha. The work in the eleven branch schools in different parts of the district, with the names of 598 children on their rolls, was hindered by the difficulty of securing regular attendance caused by early marriages, the poverty of the children, and the ignorance and interference of their parents, but the teachers are said to have worked on patiently and steadily. Besides looking after the needs of the boarders, superintending the needlework, and discharging other duties connected with the Institution, Mrs. Bellerby treated some 2,000 cases of sickness among the Natives, while Mr. Bellerby discharged the responsibilities attached to the secretaryship of the Madras Bible Society for Cottayam, of the C.M.S. Educational Board, and of the Cottayam Branch of the Scripture Union, and also acted as local chairman of the Madras Primary Examination.

TIRUWELLA AND ETTAMANUR ITINERANCY.

Archdeacon J. Caley was in charge at TIRUWELLA, where the Rev. W. A. Stephens also resided for a few months, while engaged in language study. The Boys' Boarding-school was reconstructed and raised to the vernacular Middle School standard. The names on its roll numbered 120, about one-quarter being those of boarders. Just half the pupils at the Girls' Boarding-school are day-scholars. Six of the ten boys sent up for the Middle School Examination passed, as also did all the eight boys and all but one of the seven girls who entered for the Madras

Schools.

Primary Examination. The institution known as the Hindu Girls' School contains sixteen Hindu and thirty-one Christian pupils. Three new vernacular schools were opened in the district, one of them at Kidangra, once a stronghold of devil-worship. Archdeacon Caley mentions, as a step in advance, having had at the station for some time a Pandaram, or jungle boy, who came with a Heathen of a less timid race. The Archdeacon writes:—

A jungle boy.

> The boy was about fourteen years of age, fairly intelligent, but very nervous when he first came. He had been born and brought up among elephants, tigers, bears, and numerous other wild animals, but he had never seen anything so terrible as a Christian church and schools, with numbers of decently clad people passing to and fro. People of all classes came in large numbers to see him. He kept very close to the man who accompanied him, as if afraid he would be seized and carried off. We let him see the schools at work, and tried to interest him in what other children were doing. We hope he may return to school before long, and then go back again to the jungle to instruct his people. The agent who is working among the Pandarams returned with him and his friend, hoping they would introduce him to others.

Ettamanur Itinerancy.

When the Rev. C. A. Neve left for England, in March, 1904, the superintendence of the ETTAMANUR ITINERANCY fell to the lot of Archdeacon Caley. The work in the Itinerancy is chiefly among outcastes and slaves. The Rev. P. A. Samuel, an Indian clergyman, had his head quarters at Peer Maad, whence he visited the plantations in the neighbourhood. Several persons were under instruction with a view to baptism.

ALLEPIE.

Allepie.

At ALLEPIE the Rev. Dr. W. J. Richards managed the educational work, and also exercised a general supervision over the evangelistic work in the district, which contains about 250,000 people. One of the preachers allotted to the district, the senior evangelist in the diocese, himself formerly a Brahman, delivered a Malayalam lecture on Transmigration, which was attended by all the educated people of the high castes. A native judge presided, and for two hours the lecturer riveted the attention of his audience. A boy, the firstfruits of the English school, was baptized, and the usefulness of the vernacular schools was shown by some ten families becoming inquirers during the year who had formerly in some way been connected with them. One of the nine inmates of the Leper Asylum was received into the visible Church. Dr. Richards paid frequent visits to the native gaol, and in March, 1904, was privileged to baptize there a man who was under sentence of death for murder. His story was a very sad one. He had two step-brothers. One of them, although the man had brought him up, so abused his confidence that he had to send his wife away. Then, in order to get rid of a document, the same brother set fire to his house, and with the help of false witnesses got off scot-free in the police court. Then he and his two brothers, including the one above-mentioned, had a dispute over some money due to him, and suddenly in his anger he sprang upon them: the man who had most deeply wronged him escaped with some wounds, but the other died and he was convicted for his murder. Writing on March 5th, Dr. Richards gave the following account of this man's conversion:—

Conversion and baptism of a murderer.

He admitted as the result of conversations that he was a sinner before God, and that he was guilty of murder. Relying on the Divine promise to those who confess their sins, I explained the way of salvation. . . . He seemed to grow in knowledge and in simplicity. His very face, naturally not bad, had been defiant. Now at times he looked quite pleasing and bright. The catechist carried on the instruction in the afternoon, explaining the sacrifice of Christ for man's sin. Late that evening I had word that the convict wished for baptism, and so on Friday I went with the catechist at about 9 a.m. On arriving we found that one of our allies, a Bible corporteur, was explaining the parable of the Prodigal Son. The man had got hold of the word Jesus, and that Jesus was God, and when the colporteur said that "against heaven" meant "against God," he said, "that's Jesus," and the colporteur had to keep to that explanation throughout the story. So the father of the prodigal stood for Jesus. When he left we explained St. Paul as the type of a forgiven criminal. The catechist began by saying, "There was once a man who injured many people. You killed one, he many." Then he explained 1 Tim. i. 12–18. We taught him how to pray, and explained the meaning of baptism, and the reason of a new name as picturing his separation from old sins, old ways, and old hopelessness. I pointed out to him that as water washes and cleanses the body, so the blood of Christ cleanses the soul. . . . And so with a short service, for he was only a babe in Christ, I baptized him into the Name, and called him Paul after the catechist and "the chief of sinners." At six this morning (5th) we were at the gaol. We prayed with him, and about half a dozen Native Christians were allowed to be present. Then the magistrate asked him: "What are your last requests?" "I made my will yesterday; please do according to that paper. No, I have nothing more to say except that I have confessed my sins, and I am rejoicing in forgiveness." At 8 a.m. his spirit went to God who gave it. . . . As I stood by him with the catechist on the scaffold his last words were, "The blood of Jesus Christ, God's son, cleanseth me from all sin."

"I am rejoicing in forgiveness."

Literary Work.

Dr. Richards revised and saw through the press Archdeacon Oomen Mamen's Noble Women, and took part in the revision of the Malayalam St. Luke's Gospel, printed in Arabic characters, which was originally brought out by the missionaries of the Basle Society.

ALWAYE ITINERANCY.

Alwaye Itinerancy.

The ALWAYE ITINERANCY was worked by Mr. A. V. George, a graduate of Madras University, under the supervision of the Rev. J. H. Bishop. Alwaye and its six out-stations lie, roughly speaking, on the circumference of a segment of a circle about sixty miles long, the base line being some forty miles in length. At Perumbawoor the evangelist sometimes had the assistance of some of the Christians of the Reformed Syrian Church. The roof of the school at Moovattupuzha was destroyed through the act of an incendiary, and soon afterwards the Romanists opened a rival institution and drew away a large proportion of the scholars. A family joined the little church at Koothattakolam, which for sixteen years had consisted of the members of one family only, and at Vellore, a new out-station, seventy-four Pulayans were baptized on the same day in October. Wykium is one of the chief seats of Hinduism in Travancore, and possesses a famous temple. This temple is the scene of the annual Ashtami festival, which was attended in 1904 by the Maharajah of Travancore. The Rev. W. A. Stephens, and some of the Divinity students of Cottayam were also present, and preached the Gospel in the midst of a good deal of opposition. Mr. Stephens says that he was impressed by the "quiet enthusiasm for the work" which the students manifested, as well as by "their tactful and patient bearing under a hot fire of interruption and insult."

"Tactful and patient bearing under interruption and insult."

COCHIN: TRICHUR AND KUNNANKULAM.

"Dark Cochin."

In his general review of the work in what he calls "dark Cochin," the Rev. J. H. Bishop says that although there are many favourable and encouraging signs, there are also many adversaries, and he asks for special prayer that the Christian community may shine brightly amid the "caste, love of money, utter worldliness, drunkenness, Papal superstition, and Pagan darkness," which "reign supreme," and have even infected the Church.

Trichur.

The High School at TRICHUR, where Mr. Bishop was in charge, suffered through the death of one of the masters to whose Christian character and earnestness the Rev. A. E. David, the Indian pastor, bears cordial testimony. He says that he worked hard for the extension of his Master's kingdom, speaking to his Hindu colleagues on the High School staff of the wonderful love of Christ, assisting in the open-air preaching, and, when free from other work, visiting the Hindu houses in the town and the surrounding villages. As time passes Mr. Bishop becomes more and more impressed with the value of the vernacular schools, "both as a preparation for and as an adjunct to evangelistic work." Many of the pupils, he says, would embrace Christianity forthwith, if they were not bound by the chains of caste and by family ties. When he wrote his Annual Letter in December, one young man of high caste, who declared that he had been a secret believer for eight years, was begging for immediate baptism, lest his friends and relatives should get hold of him and forcibly prevent him from carrying out his purpose. The Anglo-vernacular schools at Uragam and Shalakudi were a great success, but at Eringalakude Mr. Bishop was refused permission to erect a church on the land belonging to the Mission, because once every two years a Hindu procession for bathing the idol passes along the road which forms one of the boundaries of the property. Much antagonism was shown by the Syrians and Romanists at Tripunterah, the royal capital, and it was found impossible to obtain a site for a building.

Kunnankulam.

The Rev. and Mrs. F. Bower received a hearty welcome on their return to KUNNANKULAM in December, 1903, after their visit to England on furlough, the Syrians joining their greetings with those of the Protestant Christians. Inquiry showed that some of the Namburi Brahmans who in former years had accepted copies of the Bible, had not utilized them as they should, certain of the most orthodox Brahmans evidently believing the Scriptures to possess a wonderful power and to be capable of converting them to Christianity in spite of themselves. In the course of his visiting Mr. Bower enjoyed exceptional opportunities of preaching the Gospel, sometimes having an attentive audience composed of from twelve to fifteen Namburis, besides a number of Nairs. He says that it was most touching to see the Brahman women and girls listening with the deepest attention at the windows and doors, with only a part of their faces visible. They are practically out of the reach of the Gospel, for the men will not allow them to read the Bible. Thus one of the latter one day remarked when questioned on the subject, "Oh, it would never do for us to allow our women to read it because their minds would immediately be changed by it. We men, possessing intellect and strong wills, can struggle against it."

Brahman believe the Scriptures to possess a wonderful power, and will not let their women read them.

CEYLON MISSION.

Ceylon, which became a British possession in 1796, was one of the first fields to which the fathers of the C.M.S. turned their eyes. It was not, however, until 1817 that the Mission was commenced among the Singhalese and Tamils, the two races (with distinct languages) which form the population of the Island. For the Singhalese population, work was begun at Kandy in 1818; at Baddegama, 1819; at Cotta, 1822; and at Kegalle, 1880. For work among the Tamils, Jaffna was occupied in 1818; Colombo, 1852; Galle, 1903; and the Tamil Coolie Mission was begun in 1855.

The first Bishop of Colombo, Dr. Chapman, was appointed in 1845, and has been succeeded by Bishops Claughton (1862), Jermyn (1871), R. S. Copleston (1875), and E. A. Copleston (1903).

Conference of missionaries.

THE half-yearly Conference of missionaries connected with the Society was held at Galle Face, Colombo, from July 5th–12th, 1904. Each day's proceedings were prefaced by a devotional meeting, at which an address was given by one of the lay members of the Mission. The Conference sermon was preached by the Rev. J. W. Balding.

Death of Mrs. J. Ilsley.

The death occurred at Dresden on February 4th, 1905, of Mrs. Ilsley, wife of the Rev. J. Ilsley of this Mission.

Reinforcements.

The Ceylon Mission has been reinforced by the following:—The Rev. Robert Hugh Phair, B.A., Manitoba University, and Islington College, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders in St. Paul's Cathedral by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, May 29th, 1904, a son of Archdeacon R. Phair of the North-West Canada Mission; Miss Edith Gertrude Bennitt, who has been appointed Vice-Principal of the Ladies' College, Colombo, on a special agreement for a term of years; Miss Sophia Laura Ketchlee, of East Finchley, trained at The Olives; and Miss Ethel May Poole, of Eastbourne, a daughter of the late Bishop Poole, of Japan, trained at The Olives. Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Fraser, formerly of the Uganda Mission, whose resignation on the ground of Mrs. Fraser's health was recorded in last year's Report (page 105), have been re-accepted and assigned to the Ceylon Mission. All the above, with the exception of Mrs. Fraser, who followed in the next month, sailed for the Mission in October, 1904. The Committee have accepted the resignation of Miss H. E. Finney for family reasons.

I. WESTERN AND SOUTHERN PROVINCES.

THE Rev. J. I. Pickford came home in August, 1904, sailing again for the Mission in December; Miss H. E. Payne came home in December; the Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Heinekey, in February, 1905; the Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Balding, and Miss L. E. Nixon, in March. Miss H. P. Phillips left Australia for Ceylon in May, 1904, but was obliged by ill health to come to England in March, 1905. Miss E. M. Josolyne was temporarily transferred to the Central Province section of the Mission in April, 1904, to assist the ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Gampola, and the Revs. T. S. Johnson and J. I. Pickford to the Northern Province section in August, 1904, and March, 1905, respectively. The Rev. W. Booth married Miss Constance Magdalene Clift at Bangalore on December 7th, 1904.

The Rev. D. J. Perera was admitted to Priests' Orders in Colombo Cathedral, by the Bishop of Colombo, on Sunday, September 25th, 1904. Ordination.

COLOMBO.

The numerous and varied tasks which fell to the lot of the Rev. A. E. Dibben prevented him from devoting as much time as he could wish to the English Work in connexion with Galle Face Church, Colombo, and he says that he was able to be little more than Sunday lecturer to the congregation. The services are attended by English-speaking Natives, as well as by Europeans. One of the former, a Singhalese gentleman, passed away during the year. Mr. Dibben says that he was a man of blameless life, and a diligent Christian worker, visiting the patients in the hospital and the poor in their homes, and seeking also to win for Christ those belonging to his own station in life. The usual parochial agencies were carried on, including the Sunday schools, which accomplished a good work. As a rule there are some non-Christian boys among the scholars, attracted primarily by the desire to improve their knowledge of English, and some of these from time to time appeared to be impressed by the teaching. A former non-Christian scholar, since grown to manhood, who had joined the Y.M.C.A., and so come again under Christian influence, became a candidate for baptism. Mr. Dibben writes of him :— Colombo. English Work. A former Sunday-scholar asks for baptism.

> In the midst of much opposition from his heathen relatives he determined to be baptized, but has since had even greater difficulties in his home. One day, when being almost compelled by his parents to accompany them to the Hindu temple, he fell upon his knees and prayed to God for help, whereupon they beat him with a broom, thus subjecting him to what is considered among Tamils a very great indignity. He seems, however, to be standing firm. It is noteworthy in this case that the young man's former Sunday-school teacher, on being told of his conversion, remarked that she had never removed his name from her prayer-list.

The Rev. T. S. Johnson assisted in the various branches of the English work until August, 1904, when he left for Jaffna. In the discharge of his Secretarial duties Mr. Dibben had the help of Mr. J. W. Ferrier, the Accountant of the Mission. The latter was licensed by the Bishop of Colombo as a lay reader, and occasionally conducted the English services at St. Luke's, Maradana. He was also secretary of the Colombo branch of the Gleaners' Union, which undertook the support of its own missionary in the person of a Singhalese catechist.

Ladies' College.

Miss L. E. Nixon had Miss E. Whitney as her colleague in the work at the Ladies' College, and they were joined in November by Miss E. G. Bennitt, one of the year's recruits. The institution continued the uninterrupted growth which has characterized it since its foundation, and in November had the names of 140 girls upon its rolls, besides those of thirty-four boys belonging to the Preparatory School. Since the college was opened in 1900 more than 300 children have entered, including the present pupils, among them being Christians, Jews, Mohammedans, Buddhists, Hindus, and Parsis, representing the English, French, German, Russian, Telugu, Moorish, Tamil, Singhalese, and other races. Three of the girls passed the Cambridge Senior Local Examination, one gaining third class honours, and another distinction in drawing; while two were successful in the Junior Examination. Fourteen girls passed the different music examinations of Trinity College, London, and of the prizes offered for Ceylon four were carried off by the College pupils. Two of the children were confirmed, and a former pupil was baptized. The teachers' class had twenty students. Four of them entered for the examination for the Government Teachers' Certificate. The first class is only awarded as a result of five years' teaching, but three of the candidates obtained a second class, one of them gaining the first place. Miss Nixon left on furlough in February, 1905.

Singhalese Work.

Towards the end of January, 1904, the Rev. R. W. Ryde relieved Mr. Dibben of the superintendence of the Singhalese Work, which had fallen on him after the death of the Rev. J. Ireland Jones. There were three students in the training class for catechists. The continually increasing requirements of the Government in educational matters led to an important step being taken in the autumn by the opening of a vernacular Training School for Singhalese Female Teachers. Miss H. P. Phillips, of the New South Wales Association, superintended the work of the ten students until December, when Miss K. Gedge, of the C.E.Z.M.S., took up the duties of Principal. The two Singhalese Congregations, containing 273 persons, were under the pastoral charge of the Rev. D. J. Perera, who, as recorded above, was admitted to Priests' Orders in September. The working party connected with the Galle Face congregation assisted the pastorate fund and the sale in connexion with the Ceylon C.M. Association, and also contributed Rs. 75 for the support of a bed in the hospital at Pakhoi. The attendance at the two vernacular girls' schools, superintended by Miss A. Higgens, showed an upward tendency, and the examination results were good. One girl, who was only kept back from baptism by her father's opposition, gained about ninety per cent. of full marks in the Diocesan Scripture Examination. In the Training School for Singhalese Teachers.

Singhalese Evangelistic Work great use was made of tracts, which were supplied by the Colombo Christian Literature Society, and freely distributed. They, and also Gospel portions, were usually accepted gratefully, but once some of the former were deliberately burnt before the workers, and on another occasion a young man who had bought a Gospel immediately tore it in pieces. His action, however, evoked expressions of disapproval from the bystanders. Visits were paid at the gaol to the prisoners awaiting their trial, two of whom appeared to embrace Christianity. One of them was a man involved in a murder case, who was eventually acquitted. In the work among women, Miss Higgens had the assistance of Miss E. M. Josolyne until April, 1904 (when the latter was transferred to Gampola) and of five Bible-women. Two of these were new workers, appointed to fill the places of others whose health had failed, partly through their faithfulness to their duties. Of these latter, Miss Higgens writes :—

The health of Bible-women suffers through their zeal.

> The elder was our first C.M.S. Bible-woman in Colombo. She came to us late in the eighties, and since then has steadily worked on, till old age and weakness compelled her to give up. The last time she went out visiting her friends begged her to stay at home, reminding her that she had been ill and the weather was threatening, but they could not keep her back. That day she caught a fresh chill and for weeks was very ill, so that she never thought she would recover, but God has raised her up so far that she is now comparatively well, though she will never be fit for work again here below. Hers was pioneer work for many years, but her labour has not been in vain in the Lord, and she can point to more than one whom she has been the means of turning to the Lord. The other Bible-woman who has had to retire was a younger woman, a very energetic worker, but alas! not strong enough for the constant strain. Unheeding the remonstrances of her wiser friends, she would labour for hours in the heat of the day, visiting from house to house, without rest or food, until at last mind and brain gave way and the re-action set in. Now nothing can persuade her to go out for even a short walk, and she keeps at home under the mistaken idea that all her labour has been in vain and that in the streets everyone will mock and laugh at her.

There was perhaps some foundation for the delusion under which this woman laboured, for the Bible-women often had to face both opposition and ridicule, and the efforts of the Buddhists against Christianity were more systematic and determined than in previous years. Miss Higgens herself had at least one unpleasant experience. She was visiting a house to which she had been invited, and was surrounded by a crowd of interested listeners, when the eldest son of the family suddenly appeared, and so terrorized the whole assembly that they fled, leaving only Miss Higgens and the Bible-woman to confront him. He was so angry that it was felt that he might resort to actual violence, and accordingly the workers left, after quietly delivering a simple Gospel message. There were several signs of blessing on the hospital visiting, two patients accepting salvation through Christ on their death-beds, and others showing signs of being impressed by the truth. Most of the baptisms which took place were the result of the work in the schools and of the Bible-women, but one man, a young doctor, who had originally heard of Christianity at Balapitiya from the Rev. G. A. B. Perera, was baptized in the hospital. He was kept from confessing Christ in baptism at that time by his fear of his aged parents; especially of his mother, who threatened to commit suicide if he took that step. Mr. Ryde got into touch with several Buddhist priests. One of them proved to be the man mentioned in last year's Report (page 308) as having disappeared; he had resumed his robes without embracing Christianity. Of another, Mr. Ryde wrote:—

A man kept back from baptism by fear lest his mother should commit suicide.

> He has a considerable knowledge of Buddhism, has travelled to Burmah, Siam, and India, and knows many of the points in which Buddhism contradicts itself. We have been able to give him a certain amount of Bible-teaching, and for two months he has earned his own living as a colporteur, and is now asking for instruction with a view to baptism. His colporteur's work has been a good test of sincerity of purpose, for it requires considerable grace of humility from one who has been a priest, and as such addressed in language of respect, to be pointed at as being engaged in the "mean work" of selling books.

A Buddhist priest becomes a Christian colporteur.

Tamil Work.

The Rev. J. I. Pickford was in charge of the Tamil Work until August, 1904, when he left for England, his duties being taken over by the Rev. W. Booth in September. The number of baptized Christians was 1,369. The vernacular schools suffered from the competition which they experienced, and in some degree from the lack of thoroughly good teachers. The number of pupils in the Boys' and Girls' Boarding Schools, under Mrs. J. D. Thomas, was fifty-eight and forty-three respectively. All but four of the former and all but two of the latter who were presented for the Government examination passed. The year 1904 is said to have been one of "much blessing," and one girl was under instruction for baptism.

Miss E. S. Young and Miss A. E. M. Thomas, who were responsible for the women's side of the Tamil Evangelistic Work, received some help in the autumn from Miss B. Child, who was a missionary of the Society in Ceylon from 1891 to 1898. They were obliged to curtail their operations in consequence of the lack of Bible-women, of whom there were seven instead of twelve. There is always a difficulty in arranging for the continuity of the work, for the Bible-women go to Ceylon from India for a few years only, and then return for family reasons. Several persons were baptized. One was the wife of a Christian, and two others were boys in the Victoria Home for Incurables, in visiting which Miss Young met with much kindness and sympathy from the Matron. The story of another woman, who was connected with the Ceylon Mission, but was received into the visible Church in South India, is given by Miss Thomas as follows:—

I was taken by one of the Bible-women to see a young Christian woman. On inquiring about her, and asking how she was led to Christ, I was told that some years ago, when Miss Child was working in Colombo, this woman was a learner. After a time she expressed a wish to become a Christian, but her parents strongly opposed her, and prevented her learning with the Bible-woman by leaving that neighbourhood and going no one knew where. But she had learnt to read, and had a Scripture portion which she used to read secretly. Then the mother married her to a man who had been baptized in infancy, but who apparently was not a Christian except in name. These two went back to the man's native village in Tinnevelly. There she had more opportunities of learning, so, getting her husband's consent, she became a candidate for baptism, and was baptized by the Rev. E. A. Douglas, a short time before he left for furlough. When they returned to Colombo she came across our Bible-woman and begged her to come and read the Scriptures and to pray with her. Her father was dead, but her mother was living with her when I went to see her. Her mother is still opposed to Christianity, and would not stay in the room while I read and prayed. Two days afterwards the Bible-woman asked if I remembered seeing another heathen woman there, who listened most attentively while I was speaking, and when I said I did remember her, she said that after I had left that woman had exclaimed: "Oh! why was I never told this before? Why did no one ever teach me about these things? You must come and teach me; I want to hear more."

"Why was I never told this before?"

The Sunday-schools at Maradana and Hulsdorf improved, and two or three of the boys who belonged to the former gave evident tokens that they wished to follow Christ. Among the Mohammedans, several women appeared to be Christians at heart, but they had not the courage requisite for an open confession of the Saviour, a confession which, it is said, would mean "certain death." One girl, however, seventeen years of age, was accustomed to read the Bible aloud to her family every evening, and told the Bible-woman that she wished to be a Christian. The workers were able to gain admission to some houses which they had not previously entered. One day an elderly man requested them to visit his daughters, whom, he said, they had taught some years before, when his family lived in a different house. On going to his home Miss Young was warmly welcomed by a couple of girls. After speaking to them for a time, she asked whether they would not like to have a Bible like hers. Lowering her voice, one replied that they had one, and, when Miss Young asked to see it, she looked round timidly at one or two men who were listening to what was being said, and answered that she would bring it next time. These girls persuaded their relatives living in another large house to put themselves under instruction. The Bible-women met with opposition in their work among the Mohammedans, and once were told that they would be beaten if they did not desist from teaching Christianity. They replied: "Though you beat us, we will not cease to teach about Jesus Christ. He has commanded us to teach all men. We love Him, and will tell all whom we can about Him."

The Rev. J. V. Daniel was the native pastor at Slave Island. An English Boys' School there was taken over by the Society in October, 1904. For two years it had been worked by a former student at Trinity College, Kandy, and on his death his father entered into negotiations with the Society for the transfer of the school. At the end of the year it had an average attendance of fifty-seven, and the number of girls in the school connected with it averaged thirty. Many of the children are of Malay parentage.

GALLE.

Galle.

The work among Mohammedans at GALLE, seventy-five miles from Colombo, and not to be confused with Galle Face, which is a suburb of the latter town, was commenced by Miss E. C. Vines and Miss H. E. Payne, in May, 1903. During the year under review, the former trained the Bible-women and took the lion's share of teaching the women and elder girls in their homes, and the latter was especially responsible for the conduct of the little day-school, which contained twelve children of Moorish gentry. Great assistance in the educational work was rendered by a young Tamil girl, the daughter of one of the Bible-women at Kandy. Some fresh openings occurred in the villages, but the difficulty of obtaining suitable Bible-women prevented advantage being taken of them. Several causes conduced to that difficulty. The life of the workers is hard and exposed; they are often looked down upon and treated with scant courtesy; and the ideas of the Mohammedans are utterly different from those to which the Tamil Christians, from whom the Bible-women who are either converts or descendants of converts from Hinduism are drawn, have been accustomed. Three of the teachers at work during 1904 had been educated at the Elliott Tuxford School, Mengnanapuram. Miss Payne left Galle for England in November, and her place was taken by Miss S. L. Ketchlee, one of the year's recruits.

COTTA.

Cotta.

The Rev. J. W. Balding of COTTA commenced his Annual Letter with a description of the varied duties which fell to his lot, some of them due to his station being so near to Colombo. As Chairman of the District Church Council, he was responsible for ways and means; he had to keep the accounts of the district; his letters numbered some 2,000 during the year; he served on seventeen Committees; he was called upon to be present at house-warmings, stone-layings, fancy bazaars, prize-givings, &c.; and he received a constant stream of visitors with trials, troubles, difficulties, and petitions. He had just 100 workers associated with him, including Mrs. Balding and Mrs. R. T. Dowbiggin, but unhappily there were only two Bible-women, and the consequence was that the efforts among the women of the district were altogether inadequate. The educational work is on a considerable scale. The Boys' English High School with over 300 Singhalese pupils, is under Mr. W. de Silva, who has been head master for fifty years. Among his former scholars are four Singhalese clergymen. Mrs. Dowbiggin is in charge of the Girls' Anglo-Vernacular Boarding-school, which had seventy-seven pupils in October, 1904. Eighty-one per cent. of those who entered for the Government Examination succeeded in passing, and five of the twelve girls who went in for the examination of the Royal Drawing Society gained certificates. One of the elder scholars left to enter the new Training School for Singhalese Female Teachers in Colombo. Nine of the pupils were confirmed, five of them, who had been baptized as adults, belonging to Buddhist homes, while six were under instruction for baptism. Mrs. Dowbiggin mentions that one day a piece of paper fell out of the Bible of a former pupil, which proved to contain the following prayer, "God, take my poor sinful heart and make it Thine. Not half the heart, Lord, the whole heart." The reports of other "old girls" which were received were sufficient to establish the usefulness of the work of the school in the past, though in one instance the news was such as to cause grief. The Girls' English Day-school, which was superintended by Mrs. Balding, contained forty-one girls, and fourteen boys under ten years of age, twenty of the children being Buddhists. The school entered for the Government examination during the year under review for the first time: twenty-eight children were presented, and gained excellent marks. Besides these institutions there are nearly forty other schools in the Cotta district, containing an aggregate of about 2,500 pupils. The Government grant earned was Rs. 171 in excess of that of the previous year. In the course of an interview with the Committee in April, 1905, Mr. Balding stated that during his twenty-five years of service in Ceylon he had been permitted to baptize 1,250 Singhalese, about half of them adults, and that most of them had found Christ in the schools.

Striking results of educational work.

The contributions of the Native Christians, which for the previous two years had shown a gratifying upward tendency, amounted in 1904 to Rs. 1,762, an increase of Rs. 305 over the total of 1903. The Cotta Pastorate, which was under the Rev. G. A. B. Perera, accounted for the greater part, Rs. 292, of the advance. The Christians belonging to the pastorate determined to build a new church, and a large sum of money was collected for the purpose, which is not included in the amount mentioned above. Four deaths occurred. One of those called to their rest was an old lady who had been married to a Heathen. Just before she died she asked her friends to put clean clothes on her, saying, "Do you not see what a host of angels there is around me in white raiment?" Five adults were baptized. In the course of their visiting, the workers met with many young women, educated in the mission-schools, who had been married to Heathen, but some of whom still read their Bibles. Other women there were, who, after listening to the reading of Scripture, exclaimed, "We are too old to change our religion; our grandfathers and grandmothers were Buddhists; we cannot change now." The Rev. D. L. Welikala, a Singhalese deacon, was in charge of the Talangama Pastorate under the supervision of Mr. Balding. Many of the people of Upper Welikada showed little desire to attend the church services, alleging poverty as their excuse. The Sunday-schools in the pastorate had an average attendance of 225, and more than half of the children gained prizes at the examination. Four of the day-school pupils received baptism. The Mampe Pastorate, containing more than one hundred villages, with only 350 Christians (including Roman Catholics) among a population of 10,000, was under another Singhalese deacon, the Rev. J. H. Wickramanayaka. Two adults were received into the visible Church. Special efforts were made to arouse some evangelistic zeal in the hearts of the converts. They were not without success, for Mr. Wickramanayaka mentions, among others, a medical man who would not permit his patients to perform devil ceremonies, but spoke to them about the Saviour, and also held a prayer-meeting with the Tamil Christians, and conducted divine service in the chapel in his village when the pastor was not able to be present. The total number of adult baptisms in the district, including those already mentioned, was fourteen, and 124 candidates were confirmed, ninety of whom had been originally won for the Saviour through the educational work. Mrs. Balding wrote as follows of one of the converts in November:—

Pastorates.

"We are too old to change our religion."

A Christian doctor speaks to his patients about Christ.

> Nearly three years ago we visited a young woman who had three little children. During our visits we found that she knew a great deal about Christ and Christianity. She said she had as a child attended the vernacular school in this compound. She still had her Bible, which she showed me, and in many places texts were marked. Her other books had been destroyed by her husband, who was strongly opposed to Christianity. About two years ago she was very ill and was hardly expected to live. During that time the husband became more softened, as he saw that his wife believed in Christ and that she derived much comfort from her faith in Him. After months of weakness she recovered. She was anxious for baptism, but this was denied her. However, in August last she asked to see me; I went with the Bible-women, and we had reading and prayer. She told us again of her wish to be baptized. I said, "You had better talk to your husband about it; try and get his consent." A few days afterwards she sent me word by the Bible-women that he had given his consent, and so it was arranged that on September 4th she, with another young convert, should be baptized.

Baptism of a former mission-school-girl.

Another of the converts, all of whose relatives are Buddhists, had also been a pupil in one of the mission-schools. The Rev. G. S. Amarasekara was in charge of the Nugegoda Pastorate. One adult was baptized, and thirty-one candidates confirmed.

BADDEGAMA.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Heinekey were the only European missionaries of the Society at BADDEGAMA throughout the year, for Miss S. H. M. Townsend left on furlough in April, 1904, while Miss M. S. Gedge, who was transferred to the station from Kegalle in May, proved unable to stand the climate, and in July returned to Kegalle, and in the same month Miss A. T. Board removed to Kandy for a similar reason. Baddegama.

The Girls' Boarding School was under the charge of Mrs. Heinekey, who until July, 1904, had such help as her study of the language would allow Miss Board to give. A great loss was suffered by the death, at the age of seventy-five, after a month's illness, of Mrs. Mary Perera, who for sixteen years had filled the post of matron. All the girls joined the Band of Hope which was set on foot, and it was evident that the religious teaching made an impression on the pupils. The twenty-seven other schools in the district contained about 1,700 children.

The absence of women missionaries for so great a portion of the year naturally affected the Work among Women, for the three Bible-women had to carry on their work after July without the advantage of any effectual supervision. The people were willing enough to listen to the Bible, and often even requested that it might be read to them. Many, indeed, went so far as to confess that they believed the Scriptures to be true, and God to be their Creator, but when urged to abandon Buddhism and forsake their evil ways, they remained silent, thereby showing their unwillingness to do so. People unwilling to forsake their evil ways.

With a view to helping the Christians and mission-agents, an eight days' convention was held at Baddegama in March, 1904, conducted by the Rev. G. S. Amarasekara and Mr. A. de S. Wickramatilike. It was attended by the great majority of the workers and by a good many others, and the services appeared to be much appreciated. The Rev. R. T. E. A. Gunatileke was in charge of the Baddegama Pastorate, under the supervision of Mr. Heinekey. He writes :— An eight days' convention.

> Although there are about two hundred Christians within this pastorate, yet only a very few of them are out-and-out followers of our Lord; the rest are either half Buddhists or nominal Christians. They are full of superstitious ideas, and many of them have horoscopes and consult lucky hours in Very few out-and-out followers of Christ.

their different pursuits, and sometimes get devil-ceremonies performed secretly over them in times of sickness, while at the same time they call themselves Christians. The number of backsliders who were formerly baptized and confirmed is very alarming, and they are now not a bit ashamed to call themselves Buddhists. The Buddhists have very little confidence in most of our Christians, which is a very great hindrance to their conversion.

Reclamation of backsliders.

Accordingly, Mr. Gunatileke devoted much of his time to the reclamation of the backsliders, and his efforts were seconded by the convention just referred to. The cottage meetings which he held were instrumental in leading back to the Saviour three elderly women, who had been baptized in their infancy, but had lived as Heathen during the greater part of their lives. A Total Abstinence Society and a Band of Hope were formed, and gained about forty and 120 members respectively. Seven adults received baptism during the year. The catechist stationed at Lelwela reports the baptism of a boy and three girls, the children of a Christian mother, who proceeded to open a school in her village. Some of the Balapitiya converts who had embraced Christianity from worldly motives reverted to Buddhism. A former pupil of the Karandeniya school was baptized, and there were several candidates for that rite under preparation by the catechist at Kitoolampitiya. Temperance organizations similar to those at Baddegama were established at Patuwata. The total number of adult baptisms in the district, exclusive of the Baddegama Pastorate, was five.

Dodanduwa.

Industrial Schools.

Mr. G. A. Purser resided at DODANDUWA, where he had charge of the Boys' Industrial School. The Girls' Industrial School at Patuwata, as the northern end of the Dodanduwa district is now termed, suffered greatly through the absence of Miss H. P. Phillips, of the New South Wales Association, on furlough; so much so that she cut short her time in Australia (whither she had proceeded after a short visit to Ceylon en route thither from England) in order to work up the attendance before July 1st, as it was necessary that all who were to be presented for the Government Examination in the following March should join the school not later than that date. Her efforts were eminently successful, for the average attendance at the lace school rose from thirteen in May to forty in December, and that at the vernacular school from twenty-five to fifty. Miss Phillips attaches great importance to the schools, for she says that almost all the baptisms which have taken place in the district during the twelve years since she began work in it have been due in some way or other to the educational work, and that, in addition, there are many pupils who would have been baptized but for the determined opposition of their relatives. As already stated, Miss Phillips spent some weeks in Colombo superintending the new Training Home for Singhalese Female Teachers.

II. CENTRAL PROVINCE.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. N. C. Storrs came home, the former invalided, in November, 1904; and Miss H. E. Finney in March, 1905. The Rev. J. Ilsley paid a brief visit to Dresden in March, 1905, leaving again for Ceylon in the following month. The Rev. and Mrs. S. M. Simmons, who have been transferred to the Western and Southern Provinces section of the Mission, sailed to return to Ceylon in December, 1904; and Miss V. M. L. Franklin in April, 1905. The Rev. R. P. Butterfield married Miss Clara Herbert at Colombo on May 3rd, 1904.

KANDY.

Kandy. Trinity College.

When the Rev. J. Carter, Principal of Trinity College, Kandy, left for England in April, 1904, on the expiration of his term of service, the Rev. H. P. Napier-Clavering, Rector of Stella, Blaydon-on-Tyne, a former Principal, filled the gap for three months, and in November Mr. A. G. Fraser, who has been appointed to succeed Mr. Carter, took up his duties. The Rev. A. MacL. MacLulich, the Vice-Principal of the College, reports the baptism of five of the lads, three of them being those from whose letters quotations were given in last year's Report (page 315). Thirteen boys were confirmed in the autumn. Mr. MacLulich was in touch with some old boys, and was permitted to lead back to a simple faith one, a law student, who had been led astray by reading Atheistical literature, and had contracted habits of intemperance. During the Easter holidays in 1904, Mr. MacLulich was the guest in the country of the father of one of the boys, and while staying with him met a young priest, the lecturer in a Buddhist monastery, with whom he had frequent conversations concerning the Saviour.

Baptism of five school-boys.

The Singhalese Congregations at Kandy, Katukele, and Gaetembe, were under the pastoral charge of the Rev. H. Gunasekara, who suffered much from ill health. Six adults were baptized, and several others were under instruction. Mr. Gunasekara laments the want of evangelistic zeal among his people. The congregations at Gampola and Nawalapitiya were ministered to by a native deacon, the Rev. C. Wijesinho, under the supervision of Mr. Gunasekara. Five adults were being prepared with a view to baptism.

KANDIAN SINGHALESE ITINERANCY.

Singhalese Itinerancy.

The South-Eastern District of the Singhalese Itinerancy was superintended by the Rev. J. G. Garrett. He describes the 4,600 children who attend the fifty-three schools under his charge as constituting the "great preaching-ground" for the country, and traces more than half the adult baptisms of the year (eleven in all) to the educational work. On all hands there was a wonderful readiness to listen to the Gospel. In the village of Ganhata a Buddhist priest and the leading villagers offered to hand over to the Mission a school-building, with a school already gathered, which had an average attendance of sixty boys and girls, and that notwithstanding Mr. Garrett's outspoken declaration that the whole purpose of such work is to spread the knowledge of Christ, and the fact that the Government was ready to give them a better school on non-Christian lines. In another village, Kalugomuwa, Mohammedans and Buddhists combined to ask for a Christian teacher, and erected a building to serve as a school. One was accordingly opened, and was soon attended by over thirty children. The chief interest of the work among Singhalese Women carried on by Miss A. M. Denyer and Miss A. L. Earp after the departure of Miss L. M. Leslie-Melville for England in April, 1904, centres around the Converts' Home, in which girls are received who desire to become Christians and are in danger of being forced into Buddhist marriages. Since the Home was opened at the end of 1899, it has had fifty-two inmates. Of these sixteen have been baptized, and in December, 1904, six of the twenty-two inmates were under instruction for baptism. Early in the year the Home had to be removed, and much difficulty was experienced in finding any suitable premises. At length a house was obtained, but it proved to be damp and unhealthy, and the ladies accordingly purchased a different building, standing in two acres of ground, which with some necessary additions will meet their requirements. The industrial work flourished, orders for lace being received not from Ceylon only, but also from England, Mauritius, South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand. After paying for the materials and the salary of the teacher, the girls earned Rs. 800 towards the expenses of the Home. They devoted eight hours a day to the work, and in their spare time earned another Rs. 100, which was applied to religious work in China and elsewhere. Seven of the girls were confirmed, but the rite could not be administered to the girl mentioned in last year's Report (page 317) as suffering from mental trouble, for although her condition improved, the recovery was only temporary. Even in her madness, however, she stood firm, and when devil ceremonies were performed over her, she broke the yellow threads which were used in connexion with them. Three of the inmates of the Home were baptized. One of them, a girl of nineteen, was afterwards the means of influencing her father, mother, and sister in favour of Christianity to such an extent that they all seemed likely to become candidates for baptism. Another girl within a few days of her baptism was taken away by her mother to marry a Heathen. As she was under age she yielded, but not without inducing her future husband to promise that he would in no way interfere with her religion. A few months after her marriage the girl wrote, eagerly asking for baptism, and saying that she had gained her husband's consent. He brought her to the Home, offering to pay all her expenses; supplied her with a simple white silk cloth for the service; began to read the Bible earnestly; and eventually asked that he, too, might be baptized. In other cases besides those just mentioned, some of the relatives of the girls were won for Christ through their influence. Miss Earp says that fourteen members of the family of the first inmate of the Home have been baptized, and that others are under instruction. Of one girl's father, a man eighty years of age, who was received into the visible Church during the year, she writes :—

Girl converts winning their relatives.

> Before he became a Christian his sight and hearing were defective, but now he seems to have renewed his youth. He hears quite plainly and spends all his spare time in reading the Word of God. He pointed to the bull in our compound one day, and said: "I used to be just like that; now I am a new man in Christ Jesus." Another time he said, speaking of Buddhism: "I have been taking in poison all my life; I did not know this good food (meaning the Bible) was just at hand." He had the offer of a home with rich relatives, but that meant never being allowed to go to church or have any further instruction in Christianity, so he chose to come to us. At first he thought he would not like it at all, but the other day he quaintly remarked that if heaven was any better than this he thought it must be a very fine place.

"I did not know this good food was just at hand."

The six day-schools, three in Kandy itself, and three in the district, which were under Miss Earp's supervision, and also the Sunday-school, encountered bitter opposition, the priests frightening the women by telling them that if they sent their children to the latter they would all go to hell. Visiting in the town, too, was carried on with difficulty. One young woman who listened earnestly to Christian teaching was sent for by a Burmese monk, living on a high hill near the town, and was made to do penance because she had welcomed Miss Denyer and the Bible-woman. Her Buddhist neighbours, also, worried her so much that she appeared likely to be bereft of all faith in either Buddhism or Christianity.

Bitter opposition to a Sunday-school.

The Rev. A. E. Dibben continued to supervise the pastoral work in the NORTHERN DISTRICT of the Itinerancy, and Major G. H. F. Mathison the educational and evangelistic work. The latter, who resided at Anuradhapura, carried on the preaching in the town with the help of a number of catechists, and was cheered by six Singhalese inquirers coming forward, some of whom he hoped would be baptized. One of them was a former student of Trinity College, and another owed his conversion to what he had learnt at one of the mission-schools. The schools in the district are seven in number, and contain about 300 children. The Tamil congregation in the town was under the Rev. C. T. Williams. A Bible-woman visited the high-caste Hindu and Mohammedan women, some of whom are said to be convinced of the truth of Christianity.

The European staff of the Society in the WESTERN DISTRICT consisted of the Rev. W. G. Shorten, Miss M. S. Gedge (excepting during the two months in the summer when she was at Baddegama), and Miss S. C. Lloyd. The Christians in the district numbered 787, and were under the pastoral charge of the Rev. J. Colombotantorige. Their contributions were Rs. 1,200 in excess of those of the previous year. A considerable portion of their gifts was appropriated to the erection of new schools, which increased the number in the district to seventeen. The head quarters of the work are at Kegalle, where Miss Lloyd superintended the work of the Girls' Boarding-school. There was an increase in the number of pupils, and thirty-one were presented for the Government examination, as compared with twenty-three in 1903: the percentage of passes remained about the same. Soon after the examination several of the elder girls left, two entering the new Training School at Colombo, and two taking posts in village schools in the district. Three of the pupils were confirmed and one baptized, while another who left during the year was received into the visible Church soon after she went home. The lace school was in a prosperous condition. Among those who belonged to it were some of the girls living in the mission-bungalow with Miss Gedge and Miss Lloyd, three of whom were baptized during the year. Open-air preaching took place in the little town twice a week. Mr. Shorten writes as follows of an incident which occurred at one of the meetings:—

Increased contributions of Native Christians.

An unexpected ally.

After the catechist had spoken of the love of God and the way of salvation a tall, well-built man stood up in the crowd, and in a very earnest manner said: "Gentlemen, what you have said is good; I want to hear more. You know all my people are Buddhists, but there is no hope in Buddhism for me. I do not believe in it. I believe in what you have preached to-day, and if God helps us not to lie, not to steal, and not to do harm to others, then I want to believe in Him." All the other people who were standing round were astonished, and thought the speaker was going mad, but all kept quiet. We talked quietly to him, and soon felt that God the Holy Spirit had indeed begun the good work in his heart. He said to us afterwards: "It is now some years since I was arrested and cast into prison on a false charge: all my friends turned against me, and in my prison cell I began to feel that I was alone in the world. Then, with all my heart, I prayed to the great God, the Creator of the world, about Whom I had heard once before from another preaching gentleman. I prayed to Him to deliver me from my enemies, to save me from a false case worked up against me, although I had no one to take my part or say a word for me. God answered that prayer. I have been a believer in Him from that day, and am still seeking to know more about Him."

Mr. Shorten, who afterwards saw a good deal of the man, says that his growth in grace has been wonderful, and that he goes about in his village telling everyone of the Saviour. The ladies visited many of the villages, but found it practically impossible to teach the women to read, so great was their ignorance. Testimony to the character of their work was borne by a heathen woman, who said to one of the catechists, "Whatever their religion is, I am sure those ladies will go to heaven for their works of merit! Their religion must be good, or they would never do such kind acts." Three adults were baptized at Kurunegala, where great help was rendered by a young Singhalese, a former student at Trinity College, who dates his conversion from his college days. He remarked one day to Mr. Shorten, "All my relatives are Buddhists, and my father was very angry with me for becoming a Christian. He turned me out of the house, and would scarcely speak to me for three years. I prayed about it, and did all I could for my father when I got into Government employ. Now he tells others I am his best son!" The Christians of Talampitiya built a new school, concerning which Mr. Shorten writes:—

"Their religion must be good or they would never do such kind acts."

The leading Church members subscribed and collected about Rs. 150. They also gave valuable trees free to be cut up for the new building, and one member presented a site and sufficient land for a playground. The school is now complete, a fine substantial building fifty feet long by fifteen broad, and standing on fourteen solid brick pillars, which again stand on stone foundations. There are 3,500 bricks in those fourteen pillars, and every one of those bricks was brought by the school-children a distance of about a mile and a half. They did this before and after school-hours, and did it willingly and without any expense to the Mission. There are 6,500 tiles on the roof, every one of which was delivered at the new school by the parents of the children without any expense. They had to bring them about a mile and a half on their heads across the rice-fields, and, as they were very busy in the fields during the day, much of this work had to be done by moonlight. In the same way they brought the wood for the roof from the saw-pits. Both parents and children helped in many other ways, such as supplying the workmen with lime, sand, and stones; and three Christian carpenters made the school doors, and did all the woodwork of the roof, &c., without charging a penny. The people tried hard to complete the school before the Bishop of Colombo's visit for confirmation services. It was the time of full moon, and the Christians divided themselves into two parties; one party worked all night and the other party all day for three days and three nights before the Bishop arrived!

Zeal of Christians in building a school.

Eight persons were confirmed at Talampitiya on the occasion of the Bishop's visit, and twenty-two received baptism during 1904, ten of them being Buddhists unconnected with any Christian family, and five being women. One of these latter has a heathen husband who did his best to prevent her from attending church by giving her extra work to do on Sundays and by asking for his breakfast about service time, but she used to finish off the work quickly, prepare breakfast and set it before him, and then run off to church with a bright, happy face.

The total number of adults baptized in the district, including those already mentioned was twenty-four. Three of them were converts from the schools.

TAMIL COOLIE MISSION.

Tamil Coolie Mission.

Early in 1904 the Rev. R. P. Butterfield was placed in charge of the KANDY District of the Tamil Coolie Mission, which had been under the superintendence of the Rev. J. I. Pickford. The former dwells thankfully upon the fact that some of the Christians appeared to be alive to their responsibilities with regard to their fellow men. Acting on their own initiative they established an organization called the Ceylon Prayer and Evangelization Union, one of the rules of which is that every member should speak of the Saviour to at least one soul each day. The Union set on foot some Sunday Schools; and meetings for prayer in behalf of the heathen Tamils, some of which last half the night, are a special feature of its work. The agitation conducted by two members of the Ceylon Parliament concerning the education of the Tamil Coolie children aroused great interest in the subject among the planters, and three new schools were registered by the Government, and five others opened with practically no expense to the Society. Many more could be established if the funds were forthcoming, for Mr. Butterfield received applications from all quarters, in some cases half the expenses being guaranteed. Unfortunately the difficulty of providing for the other half of the cost prevented him from taking advantage of the offers. The number of adults baptized was twenty-six, most of them having first heard the Gospel at the early morning muster preachings. Among them were a family, consisting of father, mother and daughter, and an old man, Ravasinha Rajah by name, belonging to the Kshatriya caste, who fifty years before had emigrated from Hyderabad in the Deccan to Ceylon, where he joined the police. He left after some years' service, and at length found himself an old man, in broken health, and with but few friends. Miss E. J. Howes, who came across him in a dirty little courtyard in Kandy, writes:—

Evangelistic zeal of converts.

Interest in education shown by planters.

Twenty-six adults baptized.

> He is the father of a woman who has been taught for many years, and who says she believes in the Lord Jesus as her Saviour, but still does not see the need of confessing Him openly in baptism. After she had finished reading, and I had spoken a little about it, a voice from an inside room said in English: "That is quite true; I have often read about it." On inquiring from the woman, she said the man was her father, who had been discharged as incurable from the hospital, as he had broken his leg. He was a dear old man, with such a fine face, and his age eighty-three. He knew all about our religion, he said; but he had not seen Christ as his personal Saviour. I left, promising to send him a New Testament with certain passages marked. After a short time he went to stay with a younger daughter in the jungle, as he had heard there was a Singhalese man there who would cure him. From time to time I heard of him from his daughter, who attended my mothers' meetings. One day she asked me to send the Testament, which I did. After a few weeks he sent to say he wished to be baptized and come into Kandy again. I then thought I would go and see him, and ascertain whether he would like to go to the Victoria Home for Incurables if I could get him admitted. We found the old man lying in a sort of shed, with hardly anything on. He was very cheerful, and his face seemed quite softened. He had read the Testament, and said he had received Christ for himself and that he was very happy, and he looked it. I asked him about going to the Victoria Home, whether he would like to go, &c. "I would like to go, but I must first be baptized," he said, and seemed much more eager about this than going to Colombo. About two weeks later, we had him brought into Kandy with great difficulty, and the next day, Sunday, he was carried into the Tamil church and baptized by the name of Peter. When questioned he answered: "I believe, yes, I believe," many more times than it comes in the service. The next day he went down to Colombo to the Victoria Home, and I hear such good accounts of him. He is so bright and contented, and is now teaching two other Tamils there all about Christ, and is very anxious they should be baptized too.

"I believe, yes, I believe."

The work among the women was in the hands of Miss H. E. Finney and Miss Howes, who were joined in the autumn by Miss E. M. Poole, one of the year's recruits. The Girls' Industrial School has about forty pupils, among whom are included Hindus and Mohammedans as well as Christians. One of the best of the workers, a bright little girl, was suddenly called to her rest. She was to have been baptized some time before, but her parents kept on postponing the service. The child's Prayer-book and Testament were buried with her. The eight Bible-women were able to continue their visiting without interruption, strangely enough meeting with the greatest manifestations of intelligent interest in the homes of Mohammedans. Miss Finney stayed for a week at Gampola, whither Miss E. M. Josolyne went in the summer of 1904, to help the ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. The people were very willing to accept tracts, and some even asked for them as they passed Miss Finney on the road. A large proportion of the families under instruction are Mohammedans. One young man who was baptized at Matale, appeared three months later with his sister, whom he had induced to place herself under instruction, and she too received baptism after due examination.

A convert wins his sister for Christ.

Following the precedent of 1903, the Rev. J. Ilsley, who was in charge of the CENTRAL DIVISION of the Tamil Coolie Mission, commenced the year under review by gathering the mission-agents of his district and many of those belonging to the Southern District for three days of special prayer. The happy effect was seen throughout the succeeding twelve months in the spirit of prayerfulness which characterized the work and especially the bi-monthly catechists' meetings. The Tamil clergyman, the Rev. A. Sathianathen, ministered to the Christians in the district, most of whom were punctual in their attendance at the means of grace and generous in their response to appeals for funds, but were lacking in the "glow of Spirit-filled lives." In order to encourage them to witness definitely for Christ cards were given on New Year's Day to as many as would receive them, on which were printed a promise that the holder would endeavour to lead at least one soul to the Saviour in the course of the year. Mr. Ilsley wrote as follows in December, 1904, of the results of this effort :—

and its results.

Two Christian kanganies (overseers) received two of these cards. When the catechist handed the cards to them he said : "Now, if you set yourselves to do this work unitedly, with prayer, you will shortly see it prospering." To this they agreed, and asked the catechist to go as often as possible to them, which he did, and the three worked frequently together. Often did they pray, and ask God to prosper the little they were endeavouring to do, and those prayers were answered. From that estate, through the efforts of these two Christian people, six adults and fourteen children were brought to Christ. A Christian woman on another estate received one of these cards, and by her efforts a girl of sixteen has been won for Christ. A Christian man who took a card has been the means of inducing two persons to become inquirers. They attend the Sunday services regularly, but they have not yet been baptized. They are being prepared, and we hope they will be ready for baptism early next year. In another part of the district a young man has been led to Christ by a Christian living on the same estate. It was known that the latter had received a card in January. When the question was asked one Sunday, "You received a card on New Year's Day, did you not? Where is the fruit? What result have you got to show?" he replied, pointing to the young man he had brought to be baptized, "This is the result. Here is the fruit." Since his baptism, this young man has been living an exemplary Christian life. Yet another Christian man who received a card has been the means of bringing to a better mind some who had backslidden. They were baptized in India seventeen years ago, but had practically abandoned their Christian profession, and were, to all intents and purposes, Hindus. Through the efforts of this Christian brother they have been led to acknowledge their grievous sin. They seem now to be truly penitent. They attend the Sunday services, and are endeavouring to live worthy of their vocation. These persons number seven in all, and consist of two families.

Hindu children offer the Lord's Prayer daily.

The mission-schools, four in number, contain about 150 children. Some of the Hindus among them use the Lord's Prayer night and morning, and others express their objection to engaging in heathen ceremonies. Including those already mentioned as won by the holders of the cards, forty-four adults were baptized. One was a coolie woman, brought to Christ by the instrumentality of one of the Christians, who after her baptism of her own accord formed the following resolution :— "By God's grace, I will never leave the Christian religion and go back. I will not do any kind of work on the Lord's Day. I will come regularly to the Lord's House and to meetings for prayer." Another was the son of parents who had lapsed into Heathenism from Christianity before his birth. Though educated for a short time at a mission-school he was entirely in ignorance of Christ. As he heard the Gospel preached at the muster and in the lines, the teaching of former years came back to him; he realized his state as a sinner, and that his only refuge was in the Saviour. He spoke to his wife and children about the change which had come over him, and all four of them determined to abandon Hinduism and ask for baptism. Gurubathem, as the man is named, and his wife were diligent in preaching the Gospel to others, and one of those to whom they spoke were received into the visible Church later in the year.

The Rev. A. N. C. Storrs took up his residence at Haputale in September, 1904, and relieved the Rev. J. Ilsley, who was temporarily in charge, of the superintendence of the SOUTHERN DIVISION of the Mission. In November, however, Mr. Storrs had to return to England on medical certificate, and Mr. Ilsley again became responsible for the oversight of the division, the Rev. R. P. Butterfield, as at the beginning of the year, assisting him by visiting the Rakwana and Morowakka districts. At Rakwana the Christians did not live up to their light, but at Morowakka the church was crowded, there were a number of inquirers, and sixteen adults were baptized. Much help was received from the conductor of the estate, and the planter who employs the greater number of the Christians gave them a good character, claiming that his coolies were the best behaved in Ceylon. Six adults were baptized besides those already mentioned.

Baptism of sixteen adults.

III. NORTHERN PROVINCE.

THE Rev. and Mrs. J. Thompson came home in September, 1904; and Miss A. C. Goodchild in October.

The Rev. W. J. Hanan, who was in charge of the work in the Northern Province of Ceylon, had 173 native workers associated with him. There was plenty of organization, and every opportunity of preaching the Gospel, but he could not feel that the results of the work accomplished were adequate. He says that while on every hand the Sivites were rebuilding and restoring their temples, and the Roman Catholics were aggressive, Protestantism did not appear to be advancing. "We may be educating the people of the land, but we are leading very few of them to Christ." The Centenary of the British and Foreign Bible Society was celebrated by a meeting attended by about 1,500 Tamil Christians. The Jaffna Auxiliary of that Society supports four colporteurs and ten Bible-women, and also defrays the expenses of the Union Bible meetings, or moonlight meetings, which are held annually in the peninsula. The subjects appointed for the speakers in 1904 were: (1) The Bible worthy of God; (2) the Bible needed by man; (3) the Bible effective in man. The vernacular schools, numbering fifty-nine, earned grants amounting to Rs. 10,615, a rather larger sum than that earned in 1903. In the Diocesan Examination for teachers, one of the two candidates who went in for the second year course gained a prize, and of the ten who sat for the first year course seven passed, and two won prizes.

Jaffna. St. John's College.

St. John's College, JAFFNA, which is situated in Chundicully, a suburb of that town, was in a very different condition when the Principal, the Rev. J. Thompson, left for England in August, 1904, from that in which he had found it four and a half years before. Shortly before his arrival the roof of the main building had collapsed, and for nearly a year the teaching had to be carried on in the dormitories of the boarding-house, the vestry of the church, and under the shade of a large tree. Now the College possesses the finest buildings in Jaffna, and the hall and class-rooms are well furnished with benches and desks. Some of the money required for the purpose was collected during the year under review by the Rev. C. C. Handy, the head-master, who visited for the purpose a number of old boys who have settled in Singapore and elsewhere. He was happily able not only to raise some of the needed funds, but also to win back several who had fallen away from Christianity. When Mr. Thompson left Mr. Hanan became Acting-Principal, though the main responsibility lay with Mr. Handy, who had the assistance of a staff of native masters. One of the latter, the head mathematical master, on becoming a Christian, sacrificed the large revenues which he obtained as the owner of a heathen temple, and now receives a smaller salary than he would get in the employ of the Government. Efforts were made during the year to win this man back to his old faith. The Rev. T. S. Johnson, who was transferred to Jaffna from Colombo in the summer, writes :—

Sacrifices made by a Christian teacher.

> His mother and relatives were very anxious to induce him to return to his old religion. Accordingly, when a noted "Swami" from India visited the neighbourhood they mentioned the matter to him. He caused a large hole to be dug in the mother's garden, and was placed therein. The top was then almost covered up, leaving him just room to breathe, and according to report he stayed down in the hole for twenty-four hours, going through religious ceremonies in order to win back the son to Hinduism.

In February, 1905, the College contained 406 boys, of whom forty-seven were boarders, as compared with 258 boys in January, 1904. Three of the six boys who entered for the Cambridge Junior Local Examination passed, and four were successful in the Entrance Examination of the Calcutta University. Three boys were baptized, and Mr. Handy reports "very hopefully" of the spiritual work, and says that he has four inquirers under instruction. Miss A. C. Goodchild, the Principal of the Girls' High School, was joined in May, 1904, by Miss S. L. Page. The school, which is practically self-supporting, contains ninety girls and eighteen small boys, forty-one of the pupils being boarders. The increasing demand in Ceylon for a good English education for girls as well as for boys has the happy result of causing the children to be sent to the school at a much earlier age than formerly; they are also allowed to remain until their education is fairly complete, instead of being taken away after only a year or two at the school. There were few failures in the Government Examination held early in the year, but in the autumn the secular work suffered through the sickness of the principal master, which kept him away for the greater part of the term, and in November caused his death. Two of the Sivite girls were baptized, and a weekly Bible-reading was established at the request of some of the pupils. The Rev. G. Daniel is the Tamil pastor of Jaffna.

Nellore.

Two miles from Jaffna Fort is NELLORE, where Mr. and Mrs. Hanan reside, the latter superintending the Girls' Boarding-school. The Christian girls for the first time were presented for the Diocesan Scripture Examination, and acquitted themselves with credit, one of them taking the first place out of 126 candidates in the Fourth (the highest) Grade, and two others being placed second and seventh respectively in the Third Grade. Two pupils were baptized; the baptism of another was arranged to take place shortly after Mrs. Hanan wrote in November; and the class for catechumens contained fourteen members. Many of these were anxious to be received into the visible Church, but were kept back by their parents and by the marriage difficulty. Two former pupils were, unhappily, married to Heathen; but the Tamil pastor, the Rev. J. Backus, who visited them, says that they read their Bibles regularly, and are true Christians at heart.

Copay.

At COPAY, five miles from Jaffna Fort, the Training and Practising Institution had eight students and forty-eight boarders Two of the former passed the Entrance Examination for Teachers; two were successful in the examination for first year students; and one in that for students in their second year, the last-named taking the first place in the Island. Three of the boys were baptized by the Rev. A. Matthias, the Tamil pastor. The Boys' English School is a branch-school of St. John's College, and has 200 names on its rolls.

A missi student takes firs place in a public examination.

Miss L. A. Case and Miss E. G. Beeching had thirteen Bible-women under their superintendence, but two of them were really past work. One, who is over seventy years of age, is said to have brought at least one woman to Christ and to baptism during nearly every year of her long service. The reports of a several of the women speak of inquirers. One tells of a girl who professed to cast out devils and who was almost worshipped as a goddess, but who began to read the Bible and to commit verses of it to memory; and another of a woman who abandoned all her superstitious practices, and nearly persuaded her husband to embrace Christianity. Bible-classes were held in various centres for the schoolmistresses and any Christian women who cared to attend. One week was devoted to special evangelistic work, the aim being to visit every house in the various villages, and to hold a special service in a schoolroom each night. Mr. Hanan, who superintended the effort, says that many were met who professed to take an interest in Christianity, and, alas! many also who had been baptized, but were living as Heathen. Among the latter were a number of women who had been married to heathen men. The Rev. S. Morse is the Tamil pastor at Pallai, twenty miles from Jaffna Fort.

Successful work of a Bible-woman.

Jaffna Native Missionary Association.

The contributions to the Jaffna C.M.S. Native Missionary Association, whose agents labour in the Wanney District, were a little in excess of those of 1903, but the workers were able to report little apparent result of their efforts. Accordingly the following resolution was passed at the anniversary meeting of the Association held in August, 1904:—"That while we thank God for the improvement in last year's contributions, we deeply regret the absence of visible spiritual fruit, and pledge ourselves to pray earnestly and ceaselessly for the out-pouring of God's Holy Spirit upon our workers during the coming year."

Mr. Hanan devoted several days in July, 1904, to a tour in the Wanney. At Vavoniya, where the Rev. T. D. Satthianadhan is at work, special services were held for the Christians, and a couple of magic-lantern services for the Heathen. One adult was baptized. Similar gatherings took place at Tanniutto in the Mullaitivo district, one man in order to be present walking twelve miles from a village to the north, another eleven miles from one to the west, and a third twenty-one miles from one to the south.

MAURITIUS MISSION.

Though geographically more nearly connected with Africa, the little island of Mauritius is, in a missionary sense, a dependency of India. Two-thirds of the population are immigrants from Bengal and South India, brought hither to work on the sugar plantations; and among these are labouring Bengali and Tamil-speaking missionaries, whose work has been much blessed. Over 5,000 persons have been baptized, the majority of whom have returned to their own country. The Diocese of Mauritius was founded in 1854, when Bishop Ryan was appointed: his successors have been Bishops Hatchard (1869), Huxtable (1870), Royston (1872), Walsh (1891), Pym (1898), Gregory (1904).

Reinforcement.

THE Mission has been reinforced by Miss Harriott Jane North, of Leeds, trained at The Willows, who sailed for Mauritius in October, 1904. Miss H. A. Wilkinson came home in June, 1904, leaving again for the Mission in December. Miss M. L. Penley sailed to return to the Mission in October, 1904; and Miss M. B. Gwynn in April, 1905.

Prevalence of immorality.

The island of Mauritius is described by Archdeacon H. D. Buswell as "a bad ward in the great hospital that claims and engages the Good Physician's care," for a general view of the character of the inhabitants reveals the existence among them of some serious evils. Chief among these is the prevalence of immorality, as evidenced by the growing disregard of marriage obligations, and the disinclination to submit to be legally married. The average married per 1,000 of the general population of the Colony at the last census was 226, but of the Indian population it was only 109, the average among the latter in 1891 having been 137. One great cause of the social evil is said to be the immigration system, which limits the proportion of women to men who are allowed to enter the island as labourers. Among those who have fallen into sin are even some who have had the greatest advantages, such as old boys and girls from the orphanages, and others who are the children of Christian parents. In consequence of the prevalence of this grievous sin greater caution than usual was exercised before admitting persons into the visible Church, and prolonged periods of probation were enforced.

Hopefulness of educational work.

Although, as just stated, some of those who have received their education in the mission-schools and orphanages have fallen under temptation, yet the educational work is regarded as the most hopeful part of the missionary operations. The thirteen day-schools have the names of 1,196 children upon their books. The average attendance is considerably lower, but, nevertheless, Canon V. W. Harcourt considers that the higher figure about represents the number of those who are receiving Bible instruction.

Pastorates.

The services at St. Paul's in the Port Louis Pastorate were better attended than in previous years and were marked by greater heartiness, and there were indications that the discord which has unhappily prevailed of late was giving way before an awakening sense of brotherhood. The Rev. J. Ernest, of the Northern Pastorate, has five small congregations under his care. Serious illness among the workers militated against progress, and the number of Christians was diminished by death and removal. On the other hand three adults were baptized, among them being a lad, the son of lapsed Christian parents, belonging to the school at the St. Julien Estate, one of the outposts of the pastorate. Towards the end of the year his father, influenced in some degree by the death of his wife, showed signs of repentance. Archdeacon Buswell when visiting this place met a Mohammedan shopkeeper, who was convinced of the truth of the claims of Christ, but feared to come out on His side. The North Central Pastorate contains 512 Christians in five different congregations, who are under the pastoral charge of the Rev. I. F. Chorley. Eight adults were baptized during the year, and each of the three schools advanced, one of them under Mrs. Chorley having an average attendance exceeding 100. A native teacher was in charge of the Moka Pastorate, under the supervision of the Rev. C. A. Blackburn. The Rev. S. Toolsy, of the South Central Pastorate, reports the baptism of three adults and fourteen children, among them being a family of six souls. Several deaths occurred among the Christians. One of those called to her rest was an old woman, known as "Mother," who died with a smiling face upraised towards heaven, and with the words "Yes, Lord, I am coming," on her lips. Special prayer is asked for the heathen parents of a promising young lad who had been baptized and passed away early in 1904. The Southern Pastorate is under the care of the Rev. S. Susunkar. Archdeacon Buswell and his son, Mr. H. H. Buswell, who resided with him at Quatre Bornes, often attended the evening prayer-meetings which took place at the houses of the Native Christians in the various pastorates. These gatherings are held by the people when they have any special cause for thanksgiving, such as recovery from sickness, obtaining a good appointment, &c. A young man, formerly a pupil at a C.M.S. school, who was first impressed by the religious instruction there given, was baptized.

Thanksgiving meetings.

Three of the children belonging to the Girls' Orphanage at Rose Belle, under Miss E. J. Bagley, died during the year under review, which, however, is said to have been one of exceptional healthiness. The average number of inmates was fifty-five. A marked improvement in the work of the Orphanage was brought about by the formation of a "house brigade." It consists of twelve girls of the fifth and sixth standards, each of whom has some definite piece of domestic work committed to her, such as washing, ironing, starching, cooking, &c., in which she is properly trained. Each girl changes her subject every two months, and it is regarded as a great honour to belong to the brigade. There were hopeful signs of a spiritual revival. A weekly prayer-meeting was set on foot among the teachers and elder girls, and Miss Bagley says that she has never known the children so ready to come of their own accord for quiet talk and prayer after some fault had been committed; she adds that this was not to escape the punishment, for they knew that they would still have to bear it. In the absence of Miss H. A. Wilkinson in England, Miss Bagley conducted a few meetings for Christian women. Signs of a spiritual revival.

Miss E. E. Smyth resided at VACOAS, and, with the help of her sister who resided with her, carried on work among the women and girls. She speaks of four different departments of work, for each of which she asks earnest prayer. The first consists of the monthly meetings at various centres for professing Christian women, some with over thirty members; the second, of meetings in the mission-room, held on Sundays, in connexion with which two sewing-classes are held during the week, one for women and girls, and the other for boys, only those who attend the Sunday meetings being allowed to be present; the third is visiting among the Heathen with the help of the Bible-woman, and addressing the patients at a dispensary at Rose Hill at the request of the lady doctor in charge; and the last consists of two small schools of which Miss Smyth is the manager. A lad, seventeen years of age, belonging to one of these schools was baptized, and the pupils contributed largely to the funds of the Juvenile Missionary Association, which supported an orphan boy in the school at Mombasa. Vacoas.

The Boys' Orphanage at PLAISANCE had a year of "peace and progress." Canon V. W. Harcourt, who has completed thirty-five years of missionary service, reports that the inmates numbered from forty-five to fifty, and consisted of Roman Catholics and Indians, besides a few Mohammedan day-scholars. In addition to discharging his other duties, Canon Harcourt acted as civil and military chaplain of Curepipe. Plaisance. Boys' Orphanage.

The Rev. C. A. Blackburn, of BEAU BASSIN, was enabled to make 120 short evangelistic tours, in the course of which he visited many distant places which he had not been able to reach for some years. At times he experienced a good deal of opposition, as when a Mohammedan who was worsted in argument tried to strike him, or when there was a strange union of a Brahmans and Mohammedans to disturb the preaching. At one place a Brahman endeavoured, happily with but limited success, to persuade the people not to attend Mr. Blackburn's meetings, and at another the Mohammedans became so violent that the visits to it had to be suspended for a time. Such experiences, however, were exceptional, and as a rule the audiences were Beau Bassin.

quiet and attentive. On one occasion an unexpected ally was met with. Mr. Blackburn writes:—

"Christ is the True Saviour."

As we were preaching by a camp, some Hindus objected to listen to Christian doctrines. A man, on hearing this, came forward and said that they should not object at all, but listen with attention to the precious truths of God, and he started singing a bhajan. Then he preached to them himself and said, "Look here, brothers, I am a Hindu, but I have found out that Christ is the True Saviour." After this he went away, leaving them all amazed.

Eighteen conferences with Hindus and Mohammedans were held in various places, but the opponents of the Gospel became so enraged when they were refuted that Mr. Blackburn was afraid that he would be obliged to abandon this form of missionary effort in spite of the good results which have been obtained by its means. He says that the best method of dealing with those who cannot argue calmly about the way of salvation is to present them with tracts which they can read and think over in quietness. In several instances those who had received tracts in the past came asking for others, and some even of the influential merchants and miafies (priests) of the Mohammedans were reached in this way. One man said that he had been so much impressed by what he had read that he no longer believed in the Hindu gods, and that he hoped at some future time to embrace Christianity, though at present he was held back by family ties. The number of adult converts baptized by Mr. Blackburn in 1903 was fifteen, and not fifty, as erroneously stated in last year's Report: during the year under review he had the privilege of admitting five persons into the visible Church.

SOUTH CHINA MISSION.

The great Empire of China was opened to missionary effort in 1844, when the Treaty of Nanking, which closed the first Chinese War, gave England the possession of Hong Kong and the right of residence at five leading ports; and more fully in 1858–60, by the Treaty of Tien-tsin and Convention of Peking. Hong Kong was occupied by the Society's missionaries in 1862; Pakhoi in 1886; Canton in 1898; Kuei-lin and Shiu-hing in 1899; Liem-chow in 1902; and Yung-chow in 1903.

China, south of lat. 28°, is under the episcopal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Victoria, Hong Kong, but arrangements have been made for the creation of a new Bishopric consisting of the province of Fuh-Kien. The first Bishop, Dr. G. Smith; the third, Dr. Burdon; and the fourth, Dr. Hoare, were C.M.S. missionaries; and the second, Dr. Alford, was an active friend of the Society at home.

Meetings for Chinese agents.

Some special meetings were held in Hong Kong on February 14th and 15th, 1905, for the edification of the Chinese clergy and lay agents of the South China Mission. Bishop Hoare gave four Bible-readings on St. Matthew xxiv. and xxv. The other speakers were the Rev. W. E. Hipwell, the Acting-Secretary of the Mission, who took the subject of "Private Prayer"; the Rev. Mok Shan-Tsang, who dealt with "Private Bible Reading"; and the Rev. Fok T'sing-Shan, and Mr. Kwok Yat-U, who spoke respectively on "How to Preach to Christians," and "How Best to reach the Heathen."

Death of Mrs. G. Smith.

The death of Mrs. George Smith, the widow of the first Bishop of Victoria, Hong Kong, occurred at Ware, on August 1st, 1904, thirty-one years after the decease of her husband. Mrs. Smith was a daughter of the Rev. A. Brandram, a Secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society and Rector of Beckenham, Kent. She was married in 1849, the year when her husband was consecrated Bishop, and was eighty-five years of age when she was called to her rest.

An offer by Mrs. Fanny Esther Beauchamp, widow of the Rev. E. B. Beauchamp, of Pakhoi, to continue her work in the Mission has been accepted by the Committee. Mrs. Beauchamp sailed for South China in October, 1904. The Committee have accepted the resignations, on medical grounds, of Dr. H. L. Clift and Miss A. K. Hamper.

I. PROVINCE OF KWANG-TUNG.

Miss M. Johnstone came home in July, 1904; Miss A. K. Hamper in August; the Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Bunbury in December; and Miss A. A. Bolton and Miss A. K. Storr in March, 1905. Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Horder and Miss E. L. Havers sailed for the Mission in October, 1904; Archdeacon and Mrs. W. Banister in January, 1905, travelling viâ Sydney; and Misses M. Johnstone and L. A. Eyre in February. On February 20th, 1905, at Hong Kong, Mr. S. Wicks married Miss A.

Smith, who had sailed from Melbourne for the Mission in the previous month.

Ordinations. The Bishop of Victoria admitted the Rev. Fok T'sing-Shan to Priests' Orders in St. Stephen's Church, Hong Kong, on Trinity Sunday, May 29th, 1904, and the Rev. P. Jenkins in the Cathedral, Hong Kong, on Sunday, September 25th.

HONG KONG.

Hong Kong. The congregation of St. Stephen's Church, HONG KONG, was under the care of the Rev. G. A. Bunbury, until May, 1904, when the Rev. Fok T'sing-Shan, who had been assisting him, was admitted to Priests' Orders, as just stated, and assumed full pastoral charge. Mr. Bunbury was impressed with the "sanctified common-sense" which the Christians displayed in the conduct of the business affairs of the Church. The Hong Kong Church Missionary Association, which is largely composed of members of the congregation, undertook the support of an evangelist working in the New Territory on the mainland and the islands near Hong Kong. In the work at the Training College Mr. Bunbury had the Rev. P. Jenkins as his helper, and he also received great assistance in the teaching as well as much wise counsel from Bishop Hoare. During the five years since Mr. Bunbury assumed charge of the institution twenty men have been under training for longer or shorter periods. Of these seven are now working in the Mission, four are still at the College, and the remaining nine either failed to complete their course, in some cases through ill health, or refused or resigned employment in the Mission. Three of the students completed their training in January, 1904, and four new men were admitted shortly afterwards, one of them the senior catechist in the diocese of Sydney, and another recommended by the Bishop of the American Episcopal Church in Honolulu. Later in the year a request was received for the admission of a Chinaman from one of the Friendly Islands. The Christian Boys' Boarding-school had twenty-eight pupils —as many as the building would accommodate. The first of the boys to finish his course left the school at the beginning of 1904 to take up work as assistant-master at the boys' school, Pakhoi. The first class contained several boys of considerable promise, and the absence of untruthfulness, that common sin among the Chinese, was noticeable. St. Stephen's Anglo-Chinese College had a prosperous year under the Rev. E. J. Barnett. In order to meet its growing needs, some Chinese gentlemen interested in the work formulated a scheme for raising a sum of $60,000 for the purpose of acquiring land and erecting adequate buildings. Some of the Chinese also preferred a request that a preparatory Anglo-Chinese day-school should be opened for boys from the ages of five to twelve and girls of from five to fifteen. Two Chinese gentlemen approached the College Council on the subject, and spoke of the urgent need of such a school. The Rev. W. E. H. Hipwell, who regards the incident as important, writes:—

Chinese gentlemen urge Mission to open a School.

> For some time we have had under consideration the desirability of starting a High School for girls of fourteen years and upwards, but the deputation assured the Council that at present such a scheme is impracticable, as it would be contrary to Chinese custom for girls of that age to attend school. They therefore urged the importance of the preparatory school, and stated that by initiating this new work, in a short time both parents and children would become accustomed to it, and the former would lose their objection to having their girls seen on the public streets on their way to or from school.
>
> One of the gentlemen spoke of the importance of having their daughters properly trained, for, said he, "the girls of the present will be mothers in the near future, and if we now neglect our daughters, what hope is there for the coming generation?" He also spoke of the mother's influence as being greater than the father's, and in support of this said, "We speak of 'our mother tongue,' never of 'our father tongue,' because we learn it from our mother"! The other gentleman, in pleading for the young boys, instanced the case of his own son, a child of seven years, saying he cannot send the lad to a Chinese tutor until he is old enough to enter the College, for "in the meantime he would have learned more nonsense than he could ever forget"! This from a man who is not a professing Christian.
>
> Another remarkable statement was to the effect that non-Christian parents have no confidence in any educational system in which the moral training of the pupils is neglected. They expressed their firm belief that if the Bible were regularly taught in the Government College, Hong Kong, with its roll of 1,200 day pupils, much more confidence would be felt by the parents, who are almost exclusively non-Christian. They complain that at present their boys receive no moral teaching whatever, and they realize that this must have a detrimental effect on them. I think it well to mention these facts, as they illustrate the radical change which is taking place in Chinese thought.

Non-Christian parents desire moral training for their daughters.

The ladies connected with the Girls' Boarding-school were Miss M. Johnstone (who left for England in June, 1904), Miss H. S. Fletcher, and Miss W. M. Carden. A considerable proportion of the sixty girls were the children of Christians, and three of those who were not were baptized. One of them for several years had been desirous of receiving baptism, and at length was enabled to interest her mother in the Gospel and gain her consent. The grandmother of another was for long bitter against the Gospel, but the lantern slides illustrative of the life and death of Christ which she one day saw exhibited in the schoolroom so touched her heart that she withdrew her opposition. Special prayer is asked for a girl who refuses to worship idols when at home, and thereby incurs the wrath of her heathen relatives. The school had the honour of a visit from the new Governor, Sir Matthew Nathan, soon after his arrival in the colony. Miss A. M. Baker, who with Mrs. Hipwell and Miss A. M. Pitts carried on the Work among Women and Girls, devoted herself chiefly to the day-schools, which Mrs. Hipwell describes as "Sunday-schools carried on every day of the week." Most of them have as teachers girls who have passed through the Boarding-school. Entrance was gained into the homes of some of the wealthy Chinese who were anxious that their wives and daughters should be taught European ways and Christianity.

Evangelistic Work was regularly maintained at the two preaching-halls in the city, and several, who were afterwards baptized, there heard the Gospel for the first time. The attendance at the largest hall at the mid-day preaching was usually from 200 to 250 in the summer. At Yaumatei, which, though across the water, is a suburb of the city of Victoria, a schism at one time threatened to affect the work seriously, but happily the fears which were entertained failed to be justified. A boy belonging to the vernacular school was baptized. The teacher at the day-school at Stanley, a village on the island, has an interesting history. Mrs. Hipwell writes:—

A beloved but crippled teacher.

> She has no hands! When she was a little girl her mother sent her out on the hills to herd pigs, and a tiger came and ate off her hands. She was carried to the hospital, and there heard of Jesus and His love. Her mother would not have her back; she did not want a girl without hands to work. She came to the C.M.S. boarding-school, eager to hear more of her loving Saviour. She soon became very clever with her stumps; she can write, and even sew, and loves to sing. Now she is a teacher, loved and respected by her pupils.

Kowloon. Victoria Home.

The Victoria Home and Orphanage at KOWLOON, on the mainland, six miles from Hong Kong, was superintended by Miss A. K. Hamper until May, 1904, when she became seriously ill. The charge of the institution then devolved on Miss S. L. Hollis and Miss E. S. Houlder, the latter being transferred from Hong Kong for the purpose, until September, when Miss A. K. Storr, of Shiu-hing, took over the work. The Home contains just over fifty children, and the need which exists for it is shown by the following extract from the Annual Letter of Mrs. Hipwell, in which she describes the cruelty with which many of the Chinese girls are treated. She writes:—

Cruel treatment of Chinese girls.

> They do not like little girls in China. There is a rock in the harbour covered with the bones of girl-babies. If more than two girls come to a home, the third is carried out there and left alone with the waves dashing all round her—left there to die! Sometimes they are found on the hills and carried to the Foundling Home, where they are fed and taught, and when they grow up they are trained as teachers. I have one as matron in the Shiu-hing School; her parents were both blind beggars, and although their babe had perfect eyes they threw her away, as she was only a girl. Now she is a valued teacher, bringing many of her native sisters to know and love the Lord Jesus Christ. For the girls who escape infanticide there is the horror of foot-binding. When the girl is about five, the feet are crunched and bound with bandages which are never taken off, except to bind them tighter, and the little one screams with pain, but is forced to walk on them. All girls are not bound, but for many of the girls who have natural feet there is slavery. Yes, girls are bought and sold like goods and chattels, and are thought no more of than a pig or a cow. Every girl in China has her market value, and is sold to be either a wife or a slave. The C.M.S. Home and Orphanage is the refuge of many girls of all ages who run away from their cruel mistresses and find protection under the British flag, bruised bodies and broken spirits telling the sad tale of cruel suffering. Infant betrothals are another cruel custom. They are considered as binding as the marriage tie: no matter what the children grow up to be, they are bound to each other for ever. To-day I heard of a bright young convert who has been betrothed from infancy to a girl who now refuses to learn anything or listen to the Gospel. He and many others are groaning under this cruel custom, and wish they were allowed to choose for themselves, but the old folks shake their heads at this reform.

Every girl has her "market value."

Seven of the children were baptized in December, 1904, and the conduct of some, especially of a girl who suffered from a violent temper, improved greatly. On the other hand certain of the elder girls caused much anxiety by their deceitful conduct. The new church referred to in last year's Report (page 331) was dedicated in April, 1904. The pastoral work in the city was in the hands of a Chinese clergyman, the Rev. Fong Yat-San, and his wife assisted Miss Storr in conducting a class for women, which had an attendance of from twenty to thirty. Miss Houlder, who did a little visiting, says that many of the people are ready to listen to the Gospel, but go no further, and mentions one street all the Chinese in which say that they no longer believe in idols, but yet have not the courage, possibly not even the wish, to cease from worshipping them. The day-school at To-kwa-wan was utilized for a meeting for Christians, held each Sunday afternoon. At first but few came, but in process of time the attendance grew, until about nine women and fifty children were usually present. A new school was opened at Peng-shau, a large village farther inland. Visits were paid to some of the great local feasts held on Chinese territory. On the occasion of the feast of the goddess of mercy at Chik-wan, an earnest Chinese voluntary worker gathered a band of preachers round him, and with the aid of the College students carried on evangelistic work for three successive days. Both within the precincts of the temple, and on the steamers during the outward and homeward journeys, ready attention was gained, and books and tracts were in such demand that the supply was soon exhausted. The total number of adult baptisms in the city of Victoria and in the district around was sixty-two.

asking for baptism. Both the father and son, unhappily, are opium-smokers, but they are seeking for grace to abandon the habit, which has to be given up before they can be baptized.

Two meetings of the Canton and Shiu-hing Church Council were held, the one in March, 1904, and the other in September. The Council was inaugurated in 1901, when the annual payments to the Native Church Fund, from the four stations of Shiu-hing, Hok-shan, Kong-moon, and Heung-shan, and from the East River district amounted to $140; in 1902 the amount guaranteed was $210; in 1903, $280; and in 1904 $465, being an increase of over 200 per cent. in three years. In estimating the value of these contributions it must be remembered that all the Christians are poor, and that one dollar to the ordinary Chinese peasant is as much as £1 to an Englishman in the same position of life. The pastoral work at all the stations in the East and West River districts, with the exception of those connected with Shiu-hing, is superintended by the Rev. Mok Shan-Tsang, but the catechists, being agents of the Society, are under the supervision of Mr. Hipwell.

Contributions of Christians more than trebled in three years.

In the Tsang-shing or East River district, a preaching-hall was erected by the Christians at Wong-chung, in the neighbourhood of which place eight adults were baptized. The plague raged furiously there during the year, and many of the people left the town, and lived in the country round in sheds made of mats. Several persons were baptized at Lo-a-shan, a village a little distance from Shap-tsz-kau. Travelling in the Heung-shan district was dangerous because of the pirates who infested the river. Their chief, for whom a reward of $20,000 had been offered, had been captured, but his band, either to revenge him, or because he was not with them to keep them in control, became more and more violent, seizing men, women, and children, and if the large ransoms demanded for them were not paid, putting their prisoners to death. In Heung-shan itself several new applicants for baptism came forward, among them a blind lady who, when she found that her sight was going, diligently worshipped the idols in order to obtain a cure. Her sister, one of the Christians, told her of the Saviour Who when on earth opened the eyes of the blind, and persuaded her to put herself under instruction. Another interesting case is narrated by Miss Jones as follows:—

Pirates make travelling dangerous.

> Au Sz-Nai had received no news from her son for years before she believed in our Lord. She worshipped many idols, going from one temple to the other, praying for news of her son. After her husband and she gave up idolatry, they prayed about this to our Lord, and after a few months a letter came from the son, and later on he returned to Heung-shan to his home. He had become a Buddhist priest. His parents and friends preached Jesus to him and begged him to give up idolatry, and although he said he did not yet believe, he promised them to go to a Christian school in Hu-Nan and study the doctrine.

The widow and her daughter from Po-t'au mentioned in last year's Report (page 333) were baptized in November, 1904. The former remarked one day, "I am so glad that I believe in Jesus. My heart has peace"—a contrast to her cry of only a year before, "I do want comfort and peace." Miss Jones visited a number of Buddhist convents, and was kindly received by the nuns. There was shade as well as sunshine, however, in the work, for a Christian, who had been baptized in Australia, hearkened to the words of his heathen father and relatives, who told him that a serious illness from which he suffered was due to his having given up idolatry: accordingly he restored the images to their old position. Mr. Hipwell, who accompanied Bishop Hoare in the spring of 1904 when he went to Kong-moon, the head quarters of the work in the district of that name, on a confirmation tour, speaks of a manifest revival of spiritual life as having taken place there of late years, and says:—

"My heart has peace."

The catechist now in charge, Fong Fuk-cho, is from the Training College, Hong Kong. Four years ago I knew Mr. Fong as the most earnest member of a small Bible-class which I conducted in Hung-hom; the man was a bricklayer by trade. From his earnestness and desire to study the Scriptures I then hoped he would go forward for training as a catechist, and now my joy is great to find that after two years' training he has been sent to one of the most difficult places in the Mission, and that there the Lord is using him. He is a man of great humility and a faithful worker, who I believe has experience of the Spirit's power in his life and service. In twelve months twenty-three persons have been added to the Church by baptism on confession of their faith in Christ—thirteen women and ten men.

Successful work of a catechist.

Miss Jones paid several visits to the town, and conducted some happy meetings for women in the house of the daughter-in-law of Mrs. Wong (see last year's Report, page 334). While there she received a pressing invitation to go to the family of a Christian man at Kau-t'au. She writes:—

On my first visit to this house, some months before, Mrs. Hui listened to the Gospel, but was not willing to give up the idols. She is a second wife, the first having died, and after her marriage she was often suffering, and the heathen neighbours said it was the devil of the first wife, who came and plagued her and made her ill. The Chinese pastor went to the house and prayed for her one day when she was ill, and he told her that if the idols were all destroyed the devils would not come and torment her. She consented to the idols being destroyed, and since then she has been in good health, and she now firmly believes in the "Lord Who casts out devils," and is preparing for baptism and attends church and meetings diligently. Mr. Hui seems an earnest Christian. Some heathen women came in to see the foreigner and listen to her message, and one asked, "How often ought one to worship God—every day?" and Mr. Hui answered, "Three or four times, at least, each day." If our converts would only keep to this rule, surely they would live very near to God, and keep unspotted from the world.

"How often ought one to worship God?"

In the Hok-shan district six men and five women were confirmed in the town of Hok-shan. During the year there was a remarkable movement towards Christianity in the large district city of Tai-leung, where, thirty years ago, the Rev. Fok

T'sing-Shan, of Hong Kong, was stoned for attempting to preach the Gospel. Mr. Hipwell wrote in January, 1905:—

A remarkable movement towards Christianity.

> The movement may have a political significance, as it is the literary and wealthy classes who are found in it, but, be that as it may, the opportunity of preaching the Gospel there is presented to us. A member of the Hong Kong congregation for some months has been urging us to open a preaching-hall in Tai-leung, and now he and five or six heathen friends in the city have purchased a house for more than $900, and undertake to make it over to the Society if we commence work there. I have visited the city, and it has been decided to send a catechist for a period of three months as a tentative arrangement.

SHIU-HING.

Shiu-hing.

Several changes took place in the staff of the Society at SHIU-HING in 1904; Miss A. Walsh was married in February to the Rev. C. I. Blanchett, of Pakhoi, and Miss A. K. Storr was transferred to Kowloon in September, while in that same month the Misses M. E. Commin and E. G. Lear arrived at the station from Pakhoi, where they had resided while learning Chinese. Some interruption was caused to the work by sickness in the family of the Rev. A. Iliff, the superintending missionary, which obliged him to go to Hong Kong for some weeks, and left Shiu-hing for a time without a clerical missionary. The Chinese Christians were hardly so diligent in their attendance at meetings, &c., while Mr. Iliff was away, and certain of the baptized converts failed to commend their profession during the year, but nevertheless several of them manifestly grew in grace, and one man, who in 1903 was a great hindrance to the work, became a true helper. Each night a Bible-class was held for men; the average attendance was ten, and Mr. Iliff says that every member advanced in the spiritual life. Miss Storr carried on the station class for women until she left for Kowloon, when Miss G. E. Dunk took it over. Six of the twelve women who belonged to the class at the beginning of December were under preparation for baptism. Two former members were admitted into the Bible-women's School at Hong Kong. Another former member, whose "quiet, holy influence" was a power for good among her companions, was called to her rest in the autumn. A little later the teacher at the girls' school died suddenly. Her work among the fourteen children had been owned of God, and two of them were baptized shortly after her death. Four of the eighteen pupils of the boys' school were also received into the visible Church. Evangelistic work among the Heathen in the city was carried on every night by means of preaching in the mission-hall, and many of the business and working men came to listen to the Gospel.

Six mission-school pupils baptized.

Miss Dunk visited in the villages of the district until she was called upon to conduct the station class. Most of the women are employed in mat-making, and gather for their work in great numbers in the village temple, under the trees, or in some other cool spot, and there Miss Dunk and the Bible-women sought them out, and spoke to them of the Saviour. Many asked to be visited in their homes; indeed, more invitations were given than could be utilized. Three people in the Kwong-lei district were baptized. Of one of them, a young man, Mr. Iliff writes:—

He first heard the Gospel in one of the Hong Kong preaching-halls. He was then serving his time as an apprentice carpenter. He returned home after a while and forgot what he had heard, until again he heard the Gospel preached at our Kwong-lei hall. Then he became an attentive listener, and afterwards a candidate for baptism. His father was very angry and turned him out of his house, even continuing to persecute him in Kwong-lei, a market-town where he was working, about six miles away from home. But the man continued faithful, and soon his wife joined him as a candidate for baptism, and last month I baptized both. When he came here he told me that now his father had ceased his persecution and had himself become an inquirer and hoped soon to be baptized.

A persecutor becomes an inquirer.

In the San-hing district, where the lack of workers was sorely felt, a village schoolmaster received baptism. Mr. Iliff says:—

It appears that he has been for many years in touch with Christian workers; it was his wife's illness and death that finally brought him to the point of decision. After his wife's death he determined to go to Siam, where a younger brother was earning a great deal of money, to join him in work as a native doctor. But truly God prevented him. So many difficulties arose, and all the Christians with whom he took counsel urged him not to go, that he finally decided it was God's will he should remain. His faith was greatly strengthened when, a few weeks later, without any warning, his younger brother, whom he had intended to join in Siam, returned home ill. The Heathen at once said, "Your God knew all about it and would not let you go." The man returned a few days ago to Shiu-hing, full of joy, to say that now his father, mother, and this younger brother were all studying the doctrine, and wished me to go to his village next year to baptize them. It was a great grief two days later when an urgent message came for his recall, as his father had died. He told me before he returned home to attend to the funeral rites that his father had said that when he died he did not wish to be buried with heathen rites, as he knew they were useless. This man through his father's death becomes the head of the family, an influential one in that district, so I ask prayer especially for him at this time, that he may be able to stand firm.

"Your God knew all about it."

In all, twenty-six persons were baptized during the year, as compared with seventeen in 1903, and the same number in the four preceding years combined. Besides these converts there were several catechumens and inquirers, including a man who attended not only the nightly meetings but also the daily morning prayers, and concerning whom a Heathen remarked, "Truly the Gospel is powerful, as it has enabled this man to give up opium-smoking.

"Truly the Gospel is powerful."

PAKHOI.

The missionaries at PAKHOI were the Rev. and Mrs. C. I. Blanchett, Dr. and Mrs. L. G. Hill, Mr. N. Mackenzie (until April, 1904), Mr. S. Wicks (from that month), Dr. F. Sanger of the Fuh-Kien Mission (from March), Miss A. A. Bolton, Miss E. G. George, and Misses M. E. Commin and E. G. Lear (until September). At the end of the year, Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Horder, Mrs. E. B. Beauchamp, and Miss E. L. Havers arrived from home, and Dr. Sanger returned to the Fuh-Kien Mission. Mr. Blanchett reports that fifty-three persons were presented for confirmation, and that the Chinese Congregation displayed remarkable interest in Bible Sunday, which was observed on March 6th, 1904, contributing $48 on the occasion. Two of the Chinese agents, unhappily, had to be disconnected, the one for opium-smoking, and the other for attempting to commit suicide. Two station classes were held, and also an inquirers' class, which was regularly attended by between fifty and seventy persons. It was hoped that three women belonging to the second station class would be baptized at the end of the year. One of them had often heard and rejected the Gospel, but at length, under the ministry of the late Miss Finney, changed, and not only accepted the truth herself, but also endeavoured to lead others to the knowledge of it. Another, in her desire to lead a good life, was on the point of taking the vegetarian vow when the Bible-woman met her, and persuaded her not to carry out her intention. The Boys' Boarding-school contained eighteen pupils, two of whom were hoping to be baptized at the same time as the women mentioned above. The senior boy of 1903 entered the Training College at Hong Kong for training as a schoolmaster. Several of the lads attending the boys' day-school seemed desirous of serving Christ.

Pakhoi.

Boy's Boarding-school.

After Dr. Hill's departure the Medical Work was superintended by Dr. Sanger, the evangelistic work on the men's side being in the hands of Mr. Wicks and a Chinese agent, and that among the women patients, who were rather fewer in number than in 1903, in those of Miss Bolton, who is a trained nurse. The last named was laid aside by illness for some weeks, and then Miss Commin and Miss Lear did their best to take her place. Miss Bolton illustrates some of the calls upon the patience of the workers at the dispensary as follows:—

Medical Work.

Trials of patience.

> One woman invites me to attend to her at once, as it is very important. I take her card and see a dose of astringent mixture is to be given at once, so she is allowed into the dispensary. She was formerly a ward amah, and is supposed to be rather more intelligent than some of the women. I asked how long she had been sick, said how sorry I was, and hoped she would soon be better. She drank the medicine, and I prepared some powders which were also prescribed, gave directions when to take them and also the mixture, advised her to go straight home and lie down—and then discovered it was not she who had the sickness, but her neighbour's child! The child had seen the doctor and the mother took her home, asking this other woman to bring the medicines. I asked why she had taken the medicine. She replied "Mo shai p'a Kuneung" (No need fear, Miss). I did not fear, but inquired if she thought drinking the medicine would do the child any good, which amused her greatly. However, I go on to the others; one poor woman is sad that her medicine cannot go into a very dirty milk-tin with a hole in the bottom! another that a small shell is not large enough for six ounces of mixture. One tells me her baby is worse, that the treatment has not been good. I inquired what she had done, and found the poor wee mite had been made to eat the boric ointment given for some sores on the body, while the tonic which was to reduce the fever and help strengthen her had been used on the sores.

Five of the women inmates of the Leper Hospital and Asylum died during the year; two of them were baptized Christians, and two others passed away professing their faith in the Saviour. The man who acts as dresser to his fellow-sufferers was received into the visible Church, and twelve of the women were under instruction for baptism. Some of the lepers are full of evangelistic zeal. Mr. Wicks writes:—

A leper's evangelistic zeal.

In my bedroom hangs the motto, "I am only one, &c.," which always reminds me of one of those warm-hearted men. He is "only one"; indeed, he is not a complete one! for he is minus one of his legs. His hands are stiff and practically useless, besides which he is very weak in body. Nevertheless, the remaining words are true of him, for he can do something, and by the grace of God he does it. During the past three weeks he has been out into the country with a bundle of Gospels, &c., which he has sold to the value of 1,300 cash. You will understand what an amount of work and preaching this means when I tell you that the most expensive book he carried was worth only ten cash.

The little girls' school at Ko-tak was such a success that one for boys was opened. Miss George paid a visit to the village, and had from sixteen to twenty persons in her class for inquirers. The adult baptisms during the year numbered thirty Liem-chow.

LIEM-CHOW was occupied by Mr. S. Wicks until April, when he changed places with Mr. N. Mackenzie, who was at Pakhoi at the beginning of the year. The latter, comparing the commencement of missionary work at a new station to laying the foundations of a building, regards the preliminary steps of removing obstacles, levelling the ground, and digging the trenches as accomplished at Liem-chow, and the work of actually laying the foundation-stones as having begun. Writing in November, he briefly related the past history of the station as follows:—

Suspicion and distrust removed

An entrance to the city was attempted some fifteen years ago, when a house was rented in one of the principal streets and one or two Chinese agents went to reside there. Almost immediately, however, the house was pulled down and the workers were stoned out of the place, and for many years after this Liem-chow refused entrance to the messengers of the Gospel. But in the meantime the hospital at Pakhoi was carrying on its good work; patients from the city increased in numbers; and thus suspicion and distrust were gradually removed, until the people who hitherto had resisted all attempts to bring the Gospel to them, were now willing to invite teachers to come. Frequent visits were made by the late Rev. E. B. Beauchamp and others, and since the beginning of 1902 the city has been occupied permanently. And when at the beginning of this year three men and six women from Liem-chow were confirmed at Pakhoi by Bishop Hoare, we believed that some of the foundation-stones were being placed, and that in due time the Church which is in Liem-chow would be completed, a part of that "glorious Church, not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing."

Mr. and Mrs. Blanchett paid frequent visits to the city, the former to administer the Holy Communion, and the latter to conduct a class for women. From September to November Dr. Sanger went over every fortnight to dispense medicines and perform minor operations, the attendance each time ranging from 100 to 150. Several of the pupils at the boys' school were anxious to learn to follow Christ. The majority of the people who gathered to listen to the open-air preaching appeared utterly indifferent, but there were a few who asked questions with an evident desire for information and who bought books.

Good work of an ex-Buddhist monk.

In selling these Leung Kin-Chung, the ex-Buddhist monk mentioned in the Annual Report for 1902–03 (page 337), did excellent work. In November a large number of the students who had gathered for the triennial examinations, visited the mission-house. In a conversation with one of them Mr. Mackenzie remarked that the "Jesus Doctrine" is for all kingdoms, since Jesus Christ is the Saviour of the world. Whereupon the reply was made, "If Jesus is the Saviour of the world, why has China not heard of Him before?" One man was baptized and two others were admitted to the catechumenate.

"Why has China not heard before?"

II. PROVINCES OF KWANG-SI AND HU-NAN.

Mr. P. J. Laird came home on medical certificate in January, 1905. The Rev. F. Child married Miss Alice Beatrice Sutton at Hong Kong on November 11th, 1904.

KUEI-LIN.

Kuei-lin.

The missionaries at Kuei-lin, a city containing a population of 150,000 souls, at the opening of 1904, were the Rev. and Mrs. L. Byrde, the Rev. F. Child, and Mr. J. Parker, but in August Mr. and Mrs. Byrde left for Wu-chow, on account of the ill health of the latter: in October Mr. Child proceeded to Hong Kong for his marriage; and soon afterwards Mr. Parker had to accompany thither Mr. Laird, of Yung-chow, who was invalided home. Kuei-lin consequently was left for a time without any missionary of the Society. During the first part of the year careful instruction was given to the few Christians at the station and also to the catechumens, and in June, five of the latter—a former Mohammedan who was Mr. Child's teacher, the carpenter and the gardener employed at the mission-house, and a woman and her grand-daughter, all of whom had been tested for at least eighteen months—were baptized. Good use was made of the preaching-hall, and portions of the Bible and other books, to the value of £28, were sold at the book-room. Mr. Parker carried on some dispensary work. Soon after his arrival at the station a boy was brought to the mission-house suffering from a poisoned hand. Lancing and dressing it gave him so much relief that he noised abroad the fame of the missionary, and soon people came with all sorts of diseases, begging to be healed.

Yung-chow.

Mr. P. J. Laird made YUNG-CHOW his head quarters, and had the joy of witnessing the ingathering of the firstfruits of the Society's work in the Province of Hu-Nan by the baptism on May 1st, 1904, of Liu Cheng-Shan, apparently the friend mentioned in last year's Report (page 339), and his wife Cho Cheng-Shan. Mr. Liu rendered great assistance in the work among the students who gathered at Yung-chow in April for the triennial examinations, and also accompanied Mr. Laird on a prolonged itineration which he made a few months earlier. The sales of Gospels and tracts were good, and the people appeared to listen with a greater desire to profit than they had previously displayed. Considerable interest was shown at Tao. Mr. Laird had a house in the city placed at his disposal, whose owners also invited him to their country residence, and in the houses which he visited he found no signs of idolatry, though incense was burnt to heaven both morning and evening. Crowds came to listen to the preaching in the city, including a number of people from the surrounding villages. At Kiang-hua some of the audience asked questions which made it clear that they had, at least, been giving a little consideration to Christianity, but at Yung-ming the people were less ready than at the other places visited to buy books or hearken to the Gospel. Mr. Laird went to Kuei-lin early in the autumn to take charge during the temporary absence of Mr. Byrde and Mr. Child, and while there was seized with fever which eventually compelled his return to England.

FUH-KIEN MISSION.

The Fuh-Kien Mission has a truly remarkable history. Fuh-chow was occupied in 1850, and the first eleven years passed without a single convert appearing. Two out of five missionaries died during this interval, and two retired. The fifth died soon after gathering the firstfruits of his labours, leaving a new-comer, the Rev. J. R. (now Archdeacon) Wolfe, in charge. Up to 1864 the work was confined to Fuh-chow city. In that year and the following other large cities were occupied by Chinese evangelists. In 1866 the first two or three converts from these were baptized. Fuh-ning was occupied by European missionaries in 1882; Ku-cheng, 1887; Lo-ngwong, 1889; Kien-yang, 1891; Hing-hwa and Kien-ning, 1894; Ning-taik, Keng-tau, and Ko-sang-che, 1896; Deng-doi, 1897; Huok-leng, 1903; Du-sung, 1904.

Formation of a Diocese of Fuh-Kien.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made for the division of the diocese of Victoria, Hong Kong, and the formation of the province of Fuh-Kien into a separate diocese.

Dr. Hoare, the Bishop of Victoria, visited many of the stations of the Fuh-Kien Mission in 1904, and confirmed 1,069 persons, although he was not able to touch the Lieng-kong, Lo-ngwong, or Ning-taik districts. Writing in June of that year from Hong Kong, he said:—

"The Holy Spirit is working with power in the Church."

> I have returned from Fuh-Kien full of thankfulness to God for what He is doing there. . . . The large numbers and the increased earnestness of the candidates for confirmation; the number and the well-attested qualifications of the candidates for Holy Orders; the solidity of the work done by the Chinese pastors; the growth of the spirit of self-government and self-support,—all these things are a manifest witness that the Holy Spirit is working with power in the Church.

Later in the year, after referring to the improvement noticeable in respect to the reverence of the converts during public worship, and the marked increase in the knowledge of the Gospel shown by the confirmation candidates, Bishop Hoare wrote as follows concerning the character of the average Christians:—

Simple faith of the Christians.

> They know nothing of the many controveries which have rent the Church of Christ in times gone by. They know nothing of Calvinism or Arminianism, or of the controversy about election, and they would be amazed to hear of two Churches in Scotland being divided by a bitter dispute on such a point; but yet they will, without hesitation, ascribe the fact that they are members of Christ to the grace and the calling of God. They know nothing of the controversy about Justification by Faith; they are probably not aware that that was at the root of the controversy which separated us from Rome; but yet they do know that they are sinners, and that Christ has died to make atonement for their sins, and that "by Him every one that believeth is justified from all things." Their faith is a simple one. They have turned from idols to serve the Living God. They believe in the redemption wrought by Christ the Son of God. They have, as it seems to me, a very real belief in the power of the Holy Spirit to help them in all the many temptations and trials of their lives. And as to those lives, what shall I say? They have indeed many temptations, and not infrequently have we to lament over their stumbles and falls. But more frequently are we permitted to rejoice over their victories. As in Apostolic times we see some who are "babes" and some who are "full-grown men." But we see the "babes" growing. Like the Christians of St. Paul's time, and like ourselves after centuries of Christianity, they need to be constantly warned to put away sin, and to lead new lives in Christ Jesus. In some respects, for instance in the matter of drink, or of gambling, they stand on a higher level than we do. The drunkard, the opium-smoker, or the man that played for money, would be put under Church discipline by the Chinese Church without hesitation.

Bishop Hoare's estimate of the work coincides with that of the Rev. Ll. Lloyd, the Secretary of the Mission, who after many years spent in Fuh-chow and elsewhere, was again for a time in charge of some of the country districts. He speaks, it is true, of certain of the older catechists as having lost their early zeal and earnestness, and of a good deal of stagnation and inertness in towns and villages where once all was life and activity, but he says that there are at the same time three great causes for thankfulness. The first is the changed attitude of the people, due to the work of the hospitals, colleges, and schools; the foolish rumours, once so prevalent, as to the evil practices and diabolical motives of the missionaries, now find little credit. The second is the growing independence of the Native Church, to which the annual diminution of the Society's grant-in-aid to the Church Councils, leading the lay brethren to come more to the front, has conduced. Of the third cheering feature, the growth of the Native Church and of the Society's work in general, he writes:—

Three great causes for thankfulness.

> Looking back fifteen years, I find that the number of missionaries in Fuh-Kien was less than twenty all told, of whom only three or four were single women. Now we number eighty-seven, of whom about half are single women. Then we had only seven Chinese clergy, now we have nineteen. To the above must be added the devoted band of women, forty-two in all, sent us by the C.E.Z.M.S., all of whom, side by side with their C.M.S. sisters, are rapidly solving the problem which so long perplexed us in bygone days, how to reach the women and children of Fuh-Kien, and of whose self-denying labours and quiet fearlessness it is impossible to speak too highly. Fifteen years ago we had only one medical man and one hospital; now we have seven medical men, six qualified women doctors, and no less than eight hospitals. Surely this large increase in our staff of workers calls for loud praise to the Giver of all good.

Increase in the staff of the Mission.

A number of special services were held in the Mission during the year by the Rev. Stuart Holden, of the Church Parochial Mission Society. Many of the missionaries refer in grateful terms to the help which they themselves, as well as the Chinese Christians, derived from them.

Special services.

The death occurred at Fuh-chow on October 28th, 1904, of Mrs. M. Mackenzie. She went out to China as Miss Aston in connexion with the C.E.Z.M.S. in 1899, and was married to the Rev. Dr. Mackenzie in February, 1904.

Death of Mrs. M. Mackenzie.

The staff of the Mission has been reinforced by the following:—Mr. Herbert Melville Churchill, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., Superintendent of the St. Pancras Medical Mission; Mr. Arthur

Reinforcements.

Walter Goldsmith, B.A., M.B., B.Ch., B.A.O. Trinity College, Dublin; Mr. Ernest Charles Hugh Moule, a son of Archdeacon Moule, of Mid-China, and brother of the Rev. W. S. Moule and Messrs. A. J. H. and W. A. H. Moule, of Mid-China, and of the Rev. G. H. Moule, of Japan; Miss Elizabeth Maude Scott, of Norwood, trained at Highbury; and Miss Christiana Moore Taylor, trained at The Willows, a daughter of Dr. B. Van Someren Taylor, of Hing-hwa. Dr. Churchill and Misses Scott and Taylor left for the Mission in October, 1904, and Dr. Goldsmith and Mr. Moule in January, 1905. Miss Amy Kathleen Wolfe, a daughter of Archdeacon J. R. Wolfe, of Fuh-chow, has been accepted as a missionary in local connexion.

Miss A. E. H. Burton came home in September, 1904; the Rev. Dr. M. Mackenzie in January, 1905; and the Rev. and Mrs. S. J. Nightingale, the Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Pakenham-Walsh, and Miss J. H. Poulter in March. Dr. Mabel C. Poulter sailed for the Mission in September, 1904; the Rev. and Mrs. F. E. Bland, and Miss C. Lambert in October; Miss A. F. Forge in February, 1905; and Mrs. J. R. Wolfe and Misses M. E. and A. M. Wolfe in April. The Rev. and Mrs. J. R. S. Boyd, and the Rev. and Mrs. W. C. White sailed from Canada for the Mission in October, 1904. The Rev. J. Hind married Miss A. Carpenter at Fuh-chow on December 15th, 1904.

Ordinations. The Bishop of Victoria admitted the Rev. H. B. Ridler to Priests' Orders in the Cathedral, Hong Kong, on Sunday, September 25th, 1904; the Rev. Do Sieng-Do at Fuh-ning on November 23rd; and the Revs. Ngoi Ki-Seng, Lau Cong-Ing, and Sioh Su-Sieng at Fuh-chow on May 6th, 1905.

FUH-CHOW DISTRICT.

Fuh-chow. The missionaries of the Society residing on NANTAI ISLAND, the Foreign Concession of Fuh-chow, were the Rev. Ll. Lloyd, the Secretary of the Mission, who, however, was at Lo-ngwong until September, 1904, and Mrs. Lloyd, Archdeacon J. R. Wolfe, whose work was situated in the Native City, the Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Pakenham-Walsh, the Revs. J. Martin and H. B. Ridler, Mr. W. Muller, who was Acting-Secretary during Mr. Lloyd's absence, and Mrs. Muller, Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Scatliff, Mrs. E. Saunders, and Misses E. S. Goldie, M. E. Barber, E. M. Brooks, E. Little, and J. Bushell. Mr. Ridler and Dr. Scatliff gave most of their time to the study of the language.

Theological College. In the work of the Theological College Mr. Martin, the Principal, had the help of Mr. Pakenham-Walsh and of the Chinese tutors, the Revs. Ngoi Kaik-Ki and Ding Ing-Ong. One of the twenty-four students had to leave in consequence of ill health, and five went out to take up work as catechists. Two former students were ordained as Deacons, and six received Priests' Orders.

High School. Mr. Pakenham-Walsh had charge of the High School, of which the Rev. Wong Hung-Huong is the Chinese head-master. Five of the boys belonging to it completed their four years' course and went out as schoolmasters. The boys read all the native books taken up for the Chinese first degree, and with a view to preparing them to meet objections which they may have to meet in the future, Mr. Pakenham-Walsh went through the Analects of Confucius with them, comparing the teaching there given with that of the Bible. He believes that the boys thoroughly enjoyed the study, and that their love for their Saviour and for the Bible was deepened by it. The Rev. F. E. Bland resumed charge of the school on his return to the Mission in November, 1904. Miss E. S. Goldie rendered some help in the work of the Junior Boys' Boarding-school, and took the place of Mrs. Pakenham-Walsh at the Bible Women's School, when the latter left on furlough in February, 1905. The Girls' Boarding-school, with more than 200 pupils, was under Misses Bushell, Barber, and Brooks, who were joined by Miss C. J. Lambert in the autumn. Miss Barber, who was seriously ill with typhoid and malaria at the end of 1903 but has mercifully been restored to health, speaks of marked spiritual blessing among the girls. Early every morning a prayer-meeting was held, at which petitions were offered for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the school and upon the Native Church. At one of the meetings of the Christian Endeavour Society in November, Mr. Diong, of Ku-cheng, addressed the girls on the subject of "Sin, its Power and Penalty, and the Importance of putting in away." Miss Barber thus relates the sequel:—

Girls' Boarding-school.

> The following Friday, quite unexpectedly, we had the privilege of having an address from a clergyman, the Rev. Frausen, from Chicago; and he, never having heard of the address of the previous Friday, and all unknowing that the girls, many of them, were under deep conviction of sin, took for his subject "The Forgiveness of Sins," and at the close of his most solemn address asked those who wished to know that their sins were forgiven to stand up. At least sixty girls rose, and afterwards prayed one by one, confessing sin and seeking forgiveness. The following Sunday evening a great many more made a similar decision, and we have every reason to praise God for the real work then begun; and this goes steadily on. Quarrels have been made up, and other visible results are before our eyes of the reality of this work of grace. The girls are holding prayer-meetings among themselves, getting up early to pray and to read their Bibles; and I notice a definite desire to pray for and to seek for the great army of those who have never heard the joyful sound.

In the Evangelistic Work Mrs. Saunders was cheered by the baptism of several of those whom she taught, including two mothers of pupils in the schools supported by her, and a woman who for ten years had been an opium-eater. This woman, having heard the Gospel, abandoned her idols, left off working for the temples, and set herself diligently to learn the Way of Life. She also spent two months in a hospital with a view to being cured of the opium habit, but the remedies failed to bring about the desired result. Mrs. Saunders made the case a matter of earnest prayer, and one day when she was visiting the woman the latter took her hand and said, "When Satan tempts, I look to Jesus." The school at the village called Gwae-sau prospered. An old woman there astonished everyone by the way she learned to read, and appeared to be a true Christian. She said one day, "Though I am poor and in rags, and have but little to eat, I know Jesus loves me, and shortly He will take me to be with Himself for ever." Miss Little devoted herself to work among the boat-women on her return from New Zealand in March, 1904, relieving Miss Goldie. The school was attended on the average by about thirty women in the spring, but in the autumn the numbers were rather smaller as the people were busy lading and unlading the large junks which came in with provisions, &c. Some of the women know and profess to believe the truth, but have not the courage to confess Christ openly. In the afternoons Miss Little and her Bible-women rowed up and down the river visiting the boats. They were often told that the girls were too busy to listen, but many nevertheless contrived to spare time for the purpose. An old boat-woman is mentioned who, after hearing who God is and why He should be worshipped, replied, "What you say is very good, but as we Chinese have worshipped our idols for hundreds of years, I do not think it would be right to leave them now to worship your God."

Literary Work.

Such time as he could spare was given by Mr. Lloyd to the work of revising the Wen-li Bible, and he was also engaged, together with Archdeacon A. E. Moule, of Mid-China, in the preparation of a Referenced Chinese Bible.

Native City.

The general aspect of the missionary work in FUH-CHOW CITY and the two neighbouring counties, is dealt with year by year by Archdeacon J. R. Wolfe in his Annual Letter (see Annual Reports, 1900–01, p. 417; 1902–03, p. 341; 1903–04, p. 344). Writing at the close of the year under review, he said:—

> The interest shown in Christianity has considerably decreased compared with what was manifested a year or two ago among all classes of the people both in town and country. There is certainly not that keen interest in the religion of Christ now which has been so prominent in recent years, and the Chinese authorities do not seem so friendly as a year or two ago. I believe this is principally due to their very great admiration for and reliance upon the Japanese, who are gaining great influence among the gentry and the authorities of this country. The Japanese are prominent in almost every department of Government employment here, especially in military affairs. They are found everywhere in the province, trading and securing the monopoly from the local government of some of the important trades of the province. I do not think the influence thus gained by them in this place is at all favourable to Christianity; indeed I have reason to fear that it is the very opposite, and that much of the present feeling and prejudice against Christianity on the part of the local government is entirely due to the hostile influence of the Japanese who are in employment.

Japanese influence in China.

In the summer the plague raged in the city with great virulence, among those carried off by it being a son of Mrs. A Hok, and the wife of one of the C.M.S. catechists. During the visitation the callousness of the Heathen, their horror of death, and the futility of their efforts to combat the disease were strikingly shown. Miss M. I. Bennett writes :—

Passing through one of our streets a short time ago, I saw a small crowd of people standing and gazing at something on the roadside. As I came up to it I found that something to be a man lying on a rubbish-heap, apparently dead. The bystanders, with their usual horror of death, were standing at a respectful distance. On my return journey that evening I noticed the man was still there, and not dead, as I had supposed, but living. On inquiry I was told that the man, who had been acting as chair-bearer to one of the mandarins, had contracted plague, and had been turned out of doors to die on that dust-heap. I passed on my way utterly sick at heart, and feeling my utter powerlessness to help such a poor creature either bodily or spiritually. During this hot weather we often hear at nights the beating of gongs and other instruments. This is done by people who parade the streets with the object of propitiating the evil spirits, and of beseeching them to send away the various sicknesses which are so prevalent during the summer. Often they are accompanied on their rounds by two tall "devils." These are made of bamboo frames about ten feet high or more, covered with clothing. A man walks inside, and a small hole is made in front so that the man who bears the frame can see where he is going. I passed two of these awful-looking things last week in one of the streets. They were dressed in bright red, their faces being black, and bearing the most diabolical expressions. The very sight of them would strike terror into any English child.

Propitiating evil spirits.

The Rev. Yek Siu-Mi ministered to the five Congregations in the city and suburbs. That worshipping in the church situated in Back Street was increased by the baptism on Whit Sunday, 1904, of several persons, the fruit of the labours of Misses Mead and Kingsmill, of the C.E.Z.M.S. One of the converts was a woman, seventy years of age, whose son died of the plague in the spring of 1903, leaving her with two little grandchildren in her charge, their mother having died in 1902. Until the death of her daughter-in-law she had never seen a foreigner, and did not wish to do so, but the loss of her son was the means of softening her heart and making her willing to learn of the source of true comfort. Miss Bennett laboured among the women of the North Street congregation, and found that the little day-school had done much to pave the way for admission into many of the homes of the Heathen. One of the pupils attending the school in the South Street district died in the summer. The parents, who were Heathen, brought the idols, and wanted the boy to ask them to restore him to health, but the little fellow stoutly refused to have anything to do with them, and told his parents that he was taught in the school to pray to Jesus, and that He alone could save him. He died with the words, "Jesus only, Jesus only," on his lips. A Sunday-school for the women connected with the congregation of the church at Chong-a-chiu, a suburb of the city supposed to contain a population of half a million, was conducted by Miss A. K. Wolfe, who, as already recorded, has been received into local connexion. She also visited the non-Christian women so far as was possible. Those belonging to well-to-do families, having little occupation, were usually glad to see a foreign lady, and Miss Wolfe and the Bible-woman received more invitations to pay visits than they were able to respond to.

Medical Work.

Dr. G. Wilkinson superintended the Medical Work, in which he had the assistance of Dr. Ding, a Chinese doctor, and four students. Pending the completion of the new hospital, a house outside the mission-compound was rented and fitted up to hold twenty beds, thus enabling the doctor to receive many more in-patients than in 1903. The attendance of out-patients, too, showed an increase. The Chinese helpers took it in turns to give the evening address to the inmates, a duty in which some of the boys of the Blind School occasionally shared. An old man who while in the hospital was very diligent in reading the Word of God, was baptized at one of the city churches. The women's hospital was carried on by Miss E. E. Massey and Miss M. E. Baldwin, both of them trained nurses. The latter, who had to spend several months at Nantai Island nursing some of her colleagues, took charge of the in-patients, and the former of the out-patient part of the work. The in-patients frequently were accompanied by a number of friends, so that although the hospital had but thirty beds, there were often as many as sixty people accommodated in it. This fact was not altogether a matter of regret, for missionaries in China are still regarded by some Natives with suspicion, and it was felt to be an advantage to have independent witnesses as to the character of the treatment in cases of serious illness. In addition the opportunity of reaching others besides the patients with the Gospel was welcomed. Each person on admission was given a small book, containing the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments, and those who stayed long enough to finish that book proceeded to study St. Matthew's Gospel. Miss Massey visited the sick in their homes, but the mandarins and the wealthy classes were not so ready to receive her as in former days, and instead of being invited to go she often had to ask whether she might do so. At the alms-houses, containing 500 inmates, where she went occasionally for medical and Gospel work, she met with opposition from the Roman Catholics, and at length had to cease announcing the days on which she would come, for a priest made a point of following her about and telling the people not to listen to her because she was very wicked. A dispensary was opened in West Street, and another in the Tartar Settlement, but the former had to be given up because of the death of the woman who lent her room for the purpose, and the ladies in the neighbourhood of the latter, when the novelty had worn off, declared that they had no time to be ill. Two former patients in the hospital were baptized, and others who received treatment were hopeful. Miss Baldwin writes of one girl, a daughter of a wealthy family, as follows:— "No time to be ill!

She is very well educated, and can read and write as well as any English girl. She says they do not worship idols—they quite understand that a piece of wood or stone cannot do them any good—but they are followers of Confucius. They worship heaven and earth. Then we told her of the God of heaven and earth, of the creation, of sin, of redemption. Day by day she heard more and more; then Miss Massey gave her St. Matthew's Gospel, and this she read most diligently. I often went into her room and we read together, and talked over passages. Our nurses, too, spent much time teaching her; she is such a ready listener. The result is that now she understands perfectly the need and the way of salvation. So the other day I asked her if she had given herself to be Jesus' disciple, and she said, "I do believe in Jesus, and I love Him for what He has done for me, and because He loves me." Then I said, "Will you always worship Him?" and she said very sadly, "Yes, I will worship Him, but I am going home, and none of the people there understand," and I could see and feel that her faith at present is not strong enough for the coming test. Her name is Huong, and will all who have any interest in our work make a special point of praying for this girl in her home-life? I suppose in her home there are about fifty or sixty people. "I love Jesus because He loves me."

Mrs. Wilkinson had forty-seven boys under her care in the Blind School. Twelve of them were confirmed and eleven baptized during the year. Blind School.

Owing to the shortage of funds a small charge was made for admission to the Women's School, of which Miss Bennett assumed charge when Miss A. M. Wolfe left for England in March, 1904, but nevertheless twenty-three women entered after the Chinese New Year, and nineteen in the following term. Eleven of the women were confirmed in May. Miss Bennett was cheered one day when out visiting by being told that one of the women had greatly changed since she went to the school, and had become more patient with her mother-in-law. The young widow who was saved from committing suicide by hanging (see last year's Report, p. 345), after staying with the women missionaries for a time, returned to her home and taught her heathen relatives about the love of God. Later, she asked one of the Bible-women to go over, saying that her friends having heard of what God had done for her were desirous of becoming Christians. Women's School.

Archdeacon Wolfe superintended the catechists in their Evangelistic Work. The progress at the country out-stations was unequal. Kwa-sang, situated in the midst of a group of large villages, each with from 1,200 to 1,500 families, and Ngwong-tie had to be left unoccupied because of the lack of Chinese agents, and Siong-tong was abandoned in favour of a larger place eight miles distant. On the other hand, at Pa-tieng and Chia-seu, where for many years the work seemed at a standstill, great interest in the Gospel was suddenly manifested, while at Iong-tie, which was occupied early in the seventies, but abandoned at the close of the decade, the four baptized Christians begged that the out-station might be re-occupied, offering to provide a house for the catechist, and to furnish his room and a little hall for worship. A man was sent, and by the end of the year the services were being attended by upwards of one hundred persons.

Occupation of Du-sung.

In October, 1904, Mrs. E. Saunders and Miss E. E. Merchant proceeded to occupy DU-SUNG, which is south of the river, about four hours' journey from Nantai Island. It contains some 600 families, and is in a populous neighbourhood. The village of Sai-tieu, about half a mile to the west, contains 1,200 families; the village of Siong-ka, about the same distance to the east, has a population of 1,000 families. One mile and a half to the north is the village of Au-wang-su with 800 families; about a mile to the south is a large village called Chang-chiu; and at distances of between three and four miles there are several large villages, some containing 10,000 families, others 12,000, while Nang-seu has 30,000 families. The people soon flocked to see the foreign ladies, and within six weeks of their arrival they had received more than 1,000 visitors, three families had destroyed their idols, and two women had unbound their feet. One of the last-named joined the school for women which Mrs. Saunders commenced, and Miss Merchant had eight children coming to her to be taught. In November it was hoped shortly to establish a weekly service in the house of one of the few Christians in the village, the front door of which bears the inscription, "Thanks be to God for His grace being preached in this fertile land. Let the doctrine of Jesus expand and increase in our hearts."

LIENG-KONG DISTRICT.

Lieng-kong.

The Rev. J. Martin, who was in charge of the Lieng-kong District, speaks with thankfulness of the indirect evidences of the influence of the Gospel. He says that some literary men banded together and issued proclamations, advising the people to give up opium, excessive drinking, and extravagant expenditure on weddings and funerals, and to strive after righteousness, purity, and temperance. Certain members of the educated classes offered a site for a hospital in LIENG-KONG CITY, where a Chinese pastor, the Rev. Ling Sing-Mi, did as much as his feeble health would permit, and others took a similar step in a large village called Ma-pe.

Deng-doi

The missionaries of the Society at DENG-DOI in 1904 were Miss M. Searle, of the Victoria Association, and Miss S. S.

Newton and Miss N. O. Marshall, both of the New South Wales Association; Miss E. E. Goldie also was at the station for a few months. The Sunday services and the Saturday afternoon prayer-meetings were fairly well attended, but the character of many of those who bore the Name of Christ, nevertheless, caused much sorrow. Miss Newton says that the Christians "lack foundation; they seem to go under so quickly"; and she adds, "continually we are brought to our knees in deepest grief as we hear of one and another falling into sin, and apparently little notice being taken of it." Some special services held in November, 1904, brought about an improvement in several persons, and they appeared more responsive to spiritual teaching. Both the mission-house and the building used for the Women's School suffered greatly in the summer from a typhoon which did much damage in the province, and the students had to be accommodated in one of the churches. They were instructed first by Miss Newton and then by Miss Searle. Miss Marshall was cheered in her dispensary work by a visit from Dr. Wilkinson, of Fuh-chow. She had about 5,000 patients, many of whom came to be cured of the opium habit. She gives some sad particulars concerning the prevalence of that evil:—

The Christians "lack foundation."

In visiting in the villages you go into a house and see the opium-lamp burning, and the pipe, &c. Some are ashamed, and try to hide these things from view, but for all this one sees them far too often. Then again you will see the process of preparing the opium which goes on in some homes. Only a short time ago I saw a poor wife, with a weary, sad face, busy over a bowl of this poison, which she was preparing partly for sale and partly for her husband, knowing all the time it meant his ruin and her own. In one of the villages a poor mother told me about her only son, a lad of sixteen years, who was taking opium regularly, and breaking his mother's heart. Again, in a large house where I had gone to see a patient in a distant village, the poor old mother of the family told me in sorrow that two of her boys had died, and that the last and youngest was a slave to opium, and truly he looked it. Though quite young he is taking large quantities daily. He has promised to go to the hospital in Fuh-chow when the wheat is sown; he wanted to come to Deng-doi, but I had to tell him we had no refuge here. A woman in the same house has taken opium for twenty years. While we were talking in this house, crowded with people from outside, somebody said, pointing to quite a young girl, "She takes opium too." A few minutes later I tried to find her to speak to her quietly, but she was gone. Oh, the many victims whom we do not see and cannot touch!

Evils of opium-smoking.

LO-NGWONG DISTRICT.

The Rev. Ll. Lloyd assumed the superintendence of the work in the Lo-ngwong District on his return from England in the autumn of 1903.

Lo-ngwong

There was no Chinese pastor stationed at Lo-ngwong City, and the duty of baptizing the new converts therefore fell on Mr. Lloyd. Among those whom he admitted into the visible Church were several persons who were won for Christ by the instrumentality of the ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S., including an old woman, belonging to the aboriginal tribe which occupies the mountains in the district, the first of her people to receive baptism. Another convert was baptized at Heng-jong, a small market town, nine miles west of Lo-ngwong. This young man had first heard of Christ in the C.E.Z.M.S. hospital in the city, whither he had gone for treatment for his blindness. He was successfully operated upon, and through his visit not only regained his physical sight, but also had his eyes opened to see his Saviour.

NING-TAIK DISTRICT.

Ning-taik.

The work in the Ning-taik District was superintended by the Rev. Ll. Lloyd, who describes the Church as gradually growing numerically, and, he trusts, spiritually also. A weak point in it is the indifference of many of the Christians to the welfare of their women-folk. This is illustrated by the following account given by Miss J. C. Clarke of a conversation which she had:—

Indifference of Christians to the spiritual welfare of their female relatives.

"How long has your husband been going to church?" I asked a woman. "Over twenty years." "Do you know the Lord's Prayer?" "Yes." "The Commandments?" "No." I try to use the short hour to supply, as far as may be, the deficiencies of twenty years, and begin on the first commandment. But before long her son breaks in. "It's no good teaching her. What she learns to-day she forgets to-morrow. She cannot even say the Lord's Prayer right two days running."

The staff of the Society in NING-TAIK CITY consisted, besides Miss Clarke, of a Chinese pastor, the Rev. Wong Hung-Ong, Miss K. L. Nicholson, of the Victoria Association (until February, 1904), Miss E. E. Merchant (also until February), and Miss A. Carpenter, now Mrs. J. Hind (from February to July). An increased spirit of prayerfulness was manifested in the Women's School. One of the members was the wife of a Christian shopkeeper, who asked that she might be received as she was possessed with a devil. She proved to be merely weak and hysterical, and was taught to offer the prayer, "Lord Jesus, save me, and make me well." In a few days there was a marked change in her face, and by the end of November she took part freely in the weekly prayer-meetings, and was received into the catechumenate. Trouble was experienced in connexion with the Girls' School through the insubordination of the senior pupil teacher, who had to be expelled, and through sickness. One of the children was taken to her home ill, and there died; and another, who had been baptized early in the year, but had left the school, was called to her rest. A third girl, a former pupil, thirteen years of age, also died. When near her end, she called her parents, brothers, and sisters to her bedside, and said that she had seen the Saviour, and that He had told her to sing the hymn, "Jesus calls me, haste to Me; Lord, I gladly come to Happy death of a mission-school-girl.

Thee." Some of the Christian women in the city were taught by the pastor's wife, Miss Clarke taking the more ignorant Christians and the inquirers. The latter tells of a family, every member of which has been baptized, who shut their shop on Sundays. Their heathen neighbours responded by writing up, "All dead here," "There is small-pox in this house," or similar taunts, which are extremely trying to the Chinese. These revilings, unhappily, led the converts to compromise by leaving the door open. Persecution of a more violent form was met with by a young widow at A-tak, who had been in the Women's School. In spite of the reproaches cast at her, she attended church regularly, but one day in the summer, as she was on her way to the service, four men set upon her in the street and beat her. She was obliged to escape to the city, for all her husband's household were Heathen, but there she continued to attend classes. The little company of Christian women at Lek-tu received a heavy blow in the sad relapse of one of their number. Miss Clarke writes:—

Persecution of Christians because of their observance of Sunday.

Sad relapse of a Christian woman.

"Received Truth" was the daughter-in-law of an old "Church mother" named Patience, and both were well known there as having borne much persecution from the men of their household for the truth's sake. Well do I remember her calm and earnest face, and I have noticed her quietly reading her Bible instead of joining in the usual gossip preceding Sunday service. And yet to her temptation has come and conquered. Why, I cannot say, but last year she began to absent herself from church, and then did not come for months. Then she cooked an idol-feast for her husband, and immediately after was taken ill, and as her sufferings and misery continued, heathen relatives took the opportunity of urging the power of the spirits, and induced her to consult a witch. She yielded, saying her suffering was so great she must try anything, and when she died she was buried with heathen rites.

Towards the end of the summer Miss Clarke itinerated near the western border of the district. In one tiny mountain hamlet she met four families who had put away their idols, and in another village, where interest in Christianity had long been dead, she found that some workers from Ku-cheng had been instrumental in arousing the Christians, who were building a room in which to hold services.

The ladies at HUOK-LENG, Miss M. D. Boileau and Miss L. F. Bradley, were able to leave the church premises on which they had been living, and take possession of the new house in February, 1904, but after a few months they were obliged to return to their old quarters, for in July, while they were attending the Convention at Ku-liang, a flood washed away the two side walls of the house, and thieves took advantage of the opportunity to steal a number of its contents. Application to the mandarin resulted in the capture of one thief, and in the restoration of most of the property. Some things, however, could not be recovered, and the village was assessed to pay as compensation a sum which the people regarded as moderate.

Huok-Leng.

The Eastern habit of honouring success.

The event apparently made them more friendly to the missionaries than ever before, but, as Miss Boileau remarks, something must be allowed for the Eastern habit of honouring success. The Chinese pastor, the Rev. Ding Huai-Ngie, who was admitted to Priests' Orders in May, 1904, has five churches in his district; this, however, covers so wide an area that some of the Christians have to walk long distances in order to attend the services. The ladies busied themselves with the work among women, conducting a Women's School, examining the day-schools, receiving visitors, &c. They enjoyed special opportunities at the time of the Chinese New Year of making new friends among the women. Miss Boileau wrote in November:—

Faithfulness of converts under persecution.

> The second moon in Huok-leng this year was the occasion for a large amount of idolatrous practices, it being the fifth year from the last. For twenty-five days, twenty-five hideous idols were carried round Huok-leng and the neighbouring villages, men and children following. Large sums of money had been subscribed, or rather extorted, for each householder is told what to give. Some of our Christians were badly beaten, and otherwise persecuted, for refusing to pay this money, but they stood firm. The reply of one was, "You may beat me to death, I do not mind. Jesus did more, He died for me. I will not pay the money." It is sad to hear, as I did one day when visiting, and a large black-faced, gaily-dressed idol was carried down the street to the beating of drums, the little children calling out, "Come and see! Grandfather is coming!" They are taught to look on the idols as their ancestors, and even to call them so. The Devil defeats his own object, for the processions brought hundreds of visitors to the place from far and wide, and we must have had from two to three hundred women to see us in our new house, which, though small and plainly furnished, they thought beautiful. The Gospel was preached to every party; many were mere sightseers, but some seemed to have the open ear, and some few came to Sunday services.

Itinerations in the district were made so far as the station work would permit. In June, Miss Boileau paid a visit of ten days to Ciu-dong, a small walled city but an important place, where she called upon the two wives of the mandarin, and one day in a Confucian temple, another in an idol-temple, and a third day in the street was able freely to proclaim the Gospel. In the same month Miss Bradley went to a village, apparently Chiah-ka, about three miles from Huok-leng, which was opened as an out-station during the year, and remained there for more than a week. The women were very ready to listen to the teaching.

FUH-NING DISTRICT (DUBLIN UNIVERSITY FUH-KIEN MISSION).

Fuh-ning.

The Rev. J. Hind was in general charge of the Fuh-ning district from March, 1904, when the Rev. T. de C. Studdert left for home. There are twenty-one day-schools, in which excellent work is accomplished.

The staff of missionaries in FUH-NING CITY was diminished in the early spring of 1904 by the departure of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Synge and the Rev. and Mrs. T. de C. Studdert on furlough, and in October it suffered a sad loss by the death of Mrs. M. Mackenzie, which was followed in January, 1905, by the return of her husband to England. Mrs. Mackenzie had won her way to the hearts of the people in the short time she was at the station, and in the Hospital in particular her work was greatly valued by both helpers and patients. Among the latter were three fishermen who had been tried by ordeal. Being accused in Fuh-chow, together with a fourth man, of stealing some money, they agreed to go to a heathen temple and there determine by casting lots what means should be adopted for trying the case. According to the lots cast, these four men were to submit the palms of their hands to be touched with the hot ends of a bundle of lighted incense-sticks. Should the application burn them their guilt was to be considered as proved. Of course these foolish fishermen got well burnt. They put to sea, and steered north. Their hands becoming very sore, due partly to native medicines and possibly also to the salt sea, they were compelled to make for Sung-Sang, the port of Fuh-ning, and enter the hospital. In the spring term Miss J. E. Clarke had nine women in the Women's School and ten in the station class, and in the autumn the numbers were six and fifteen respectively. Two women who finished their three years' course in the former in January, 1904, took up work in the women's hospital, one of them as nurse and the other as assistant Bible-woman. Good news was received of another, the wife of a chapel-keeper in the district, for she was instrumental in sending three women from her village to the class. One young woman who was in the station class in 1903, and seemed so real that she was admitted to the catechumenate, fell under evil influences, and resorted to a spiritualist. Miss E. M. K. Thomas attributes the exceptionally good behaviour of the pupils of the Girls' Boarding-school in part to the capacity of the matron, and in part to the fact that every year increases the number of girls who are the children of Christian parents, who in their turn have had the advantage of a Christian education. The parents were more willing than before to pay the small fees required, and also to respect the rules of the school, such as that which lays down that the girls are not to marry until they are at least eighteen years old. Although many of the children are in earnest it was necessary to controvert the idea entertained by some that giving up idolatry and "accepting the doctrine" are equivalent to being true Christians. The Boys' Boarding-school took possession of its new premises in the summer. The number of pupils increased by fifty per cent., and four of the lads passed the entrance examination of the Fuh-chow High School. The congregation was under the pastoral care of the Rev. Do Sieng-Do, who, as already stated, was admitted to Priests' Orders at Fuh-ning in the autumn of 1904 after the dedication of the new church. The lives of some of those under his charge caused sorrow. Two women communicants married heathen men, and expressed no sorrow for their action; a Christian father sent a baby girl to a foundling home where she will be brought up as a Heathen; and two other Christian parents contemplated taking a similar step.

A spirit of inquiry among villagers.

During the holidays at the Chinese New Year Miss Clarke and Miss A. M. Heard visited the Fuh-ang portion of the district, and in the autumn they went to the south. They found a remarkable spirit of inquiry at each of the eight villages which they visited during the latter tour. Miss Thomas's experience was equally encouraging. At one place she met a woman who had been in the Women's School for three months, and since her return to her own village had gathered a number of women for a Sunday class, all of whom could repeat the Lord's Prayer, and some of them the Creed and Ten Commandments. Buildings were purchased to serve as churches at Sien-ning, which was twice visited by Mr. Hind, Ka-nang, and Sang-swa.

HOK-CHIANG DISTRICT.

Hok-chiang.

The need of Chinese agents was sorely felt in the Hok-chiang District, which was under the superintendence of the Rev. J. B. Carpenter. One of the catechists was ill for several months; another was dismissed for immorality, and two others for general unsatisfactoriness; and three young men who had been trained at the College, and who it was hoped would become catechists, went abroad. Though some of the agents thus showed themselves unworthy, others worked carefully and prayerfully—more so, it is said, than in previous years. Two special efforts to assist the workers were made. At the end of August the wives of the catechists were invited to the station for four days' Bible-study, and a Convention was held in December, 1904, the meetings being conducted by Mr. Diong, a Native of Lo-ngwong. Mr. Carpenter wrote soon after the meetings:—

Special meetings for Christians.

> We had for some time been having much prayer for the station and we sent many requests to friends in England, Australia, and elsewhere to remember us at that time. We had invited the pastors, catechists, churchwardens, and principal Christians to meet together, those from Hai-tan and Upper Hok-chiang, in the city; those from the lower district, and places near, at Ngu-cheng. We had meetings for three days in each place. Mr. Diong is a man who lives very close to God, and, while he realizes his weakness very much, is one whom God has used mightily. At first the men and women hardly realized why they had come together, and there was a great deal of laughing and chattering, but on the second evening, the end of the first full day, Mr. Diong's subject was, "What price will you give for Jesus?" and then he spoke of the price Jesus had given for us. Never before had I heard Christ and Him crucified so powerfully preached, or the love and sacrifice of Jesus so vividly set forth. Many hearts were melted that night, and many heart-broken prayers followed, and sin was openly confessed. During the next day again God's Word was like a hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces, and like fire purging out the dross. The Chinese are far from being an emotional people, but several were broken down and could not pray for weeping; they seemed to realize that all their past work had been in vain and had been done from false motives. During that day the prayers showed how really God was working in their hearts; the revelation of their own sinfulness was something quite new to them, and they very earnestly prayed that they might be different in future. On the third day Jesus was held up as the place of refuge and rest, and many were comforted. The last meeting was a very searching one. God's Word went home with power to many hearts. The subject was the need of daily setting apart a time early in the morning to get alone with God for Bible-study and prayer. Mr. Diong also spoke on the great need of preparing for addresses and of having family prayers. Many have made up their minds to do these things. I could give names of pastors, catechists, and others, to whom God's messages have been richly blessed. I have heard how some have gone home to make up old quarrels, and to tell forth to others what they have heard. I have only been in China five years, but I never saw anything like it here before. I looked on with a very glad and thankful heart as I felt and saw how God was working. I should like to add how much I have enjoyed my fellowship with Mr. Diong. His life is such a power. I do not think I ever met anyone in England or China who lived nearer to God: he seemed to depend on and to be clinging to God all the time. He spends most of his time in prayer. I was so glad to meet him, too, because I sometimes had felt one ought to lower the standard for the Chinese, they have so much against them, and so much to drag them down; but, praise God, I have seen He can do every bit as much for our Chinese brothers and sisters as for us.

"What price will you give for Jesus?"

A Chinese evangelist's life "is such a power."

Mr. Carpenter was able to make a couple of tours round his district, and was cheered by the number of persons eager to join the catechumenate and for baptism, but he says that there is a good deal of irreverence at the services, and that many of the older Christians do not care to come to the Lord's Supper. The native contributions of the year showed an increase of about $80.

The missionaries residing in HOK-CHIANG CITY during the whole or part of the year, besides Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter, were the Rev. Lau Taik-Ong, until April, when he was transferred to Ku-cheng, the Rev. Ho Seu-Hok, who took Mr. Lau's place, the Rev. Ngoi Ki-Seng, Miss A. L. Leybourn, Miss J. H. Poulter, Dr. Mabel L. Hanington, and Dr. Mabel C. Poulter from November. Miss A. Carpenter left the station for Ning-taik in January, 1904.

The women of Miss Poulter's station class appeared to profit greatly by the Convention, and nine of the fifteen gave in their names as candidates for baptism. Several former members who were met with in the district were found to be leading bright consistent lives, and in some of their homes daily family worship was held. The Medical Work grew, the men's hospital, under a Chinese doctor, having more in-patients than ever before, and the women's hospital containing an average of thirty-two patients. The cases of some of those who were treated were very sad. One was a boy, a slave, whose owners after a time sent a special message to Dr. Mabel Hanington, asking that she would kindly "kill him now," as it was a great pity that she should be troubled with him any longer. Of two others Miss Leybourn says:—

Heathen cruelty to children.

A blind girl of about four was brought into our dispensary one Sunday morning by a boy of fourteen, who said, "I have brought this child to you; no one wants her." The poor baby was sadly bruised, and looked a most pitiful little object; her name is "Silver Child," and if her relatives saw her now I doubt if they would recognize her. The other child's story is sadder still. She is ten years old. Her betrothed husband, a man of twenty-six, sent word she was to be destroyed because she was so ugly and useless, and said that if she were alive when he got home he would kill her himself. Her mother-in-law tried to persuade the child's mother to take her back, but did not succeed, and so one night tried to strangle the poor little thing. She was rescued by a poor relative and eventually sent up to us. She is learning in our "Convalescents' School" at present, and getting on very nicely indeed.

The workers at the hospital were deeply grieved by the discovery that the cook and ward-woman for some time had been robbing the hospital, although they preached to the heathen patients and professed to be Christians. Twelve persons were baptized at the Leper Settlement, and ten men and five women were confirmed. A great opportunity for evangelistic work occurs annually at the Feast of Lanterns, held on the fifteenth day of the first moon. Miss Leybourn writes:—

Twelve lepers baptized.

The Feast of Lanterns.

It is the custom here for the women to "make holiday" these early days of the new year, but this 15th is the day of days. There is a native superstition that every one who on this day crosses a bridge ensures health, wealth, and happiness for the whole year, and so the people turn out in crowds, and the South Bridge (the favourite and most lucky) is a moving mass of travellers all day. To make the day still more fortunate, each traveller must purchase a sugar-cane, and so they come to us carrying these (with the green streamers still hanging), reminding us of a Palm Sunday procession. I do not know who first suggested that a visit to our compound was an excellent entertainment, but the fact remains that they evidently think so, and for the past three years we have received crowds on this day. The visitors began to arrive about ten o'clock in batches of from six to twenty. They were received by one of our workers and invited to partake of tea, peanuts, and melon seeds (the orthodox refreshments of the season, of which we had laid in a large stock in expectation). After this they were escorted over the hospital and visited the chapel, where the baby organ was a great attraction. Hymns were played, sung, and explained, and the Gospel story was told to them in simple language. Before they left, each one was given a card with a text in simple "colloquial," which was explained to them. It was very encouraging, because so many of the visitors were really interested in the "old, old story," and, as nearly 300 heard, many of them for the first time, we trust that one day there will be a rich harvest from the seed sown.

Mr. Carpenter found four or five new places in the district where the people were most anxious to be taught, but at Hong-a, one of the earliest of the out-stations, the Christians declared that they had been baptized and confirmed, and that they needed nothing more.

The special services conducted at KENG-TAU by Mr. Diong were instrumental in great blessing among the children of the Girls' Boarding School. A deeper love of the Bible grew up; there was a greater willingness than before to confess sin; and more of the girls were ready to take part in the prayer-meetings. Miss F. E. Oatway, who managed the school, speaks of the good results of the services as apparent among the older Christians as well, and says that there was much more real prayer among them, and that many began to rise early in the morning so as to secure a quiet time for devotional exercises. Once a month an all-day prayer-meeting was held, which was attended by the workers, the school-girls, and some of the converts from the surrounding villages. A few women were baptized, and several entered the class for catechumens. The day-schools in the district were spots of bright light in the midst of the prevailing darkness. Miss I. Suttor, of the New South Wales Association, who devoted herself to itinerating work, speaks of advance in several villages. At Cieng-ga a movement towards Christianity was originated by the conversion of a former leader in devil-worship. Two deaths in his household made him dissatisfied with his idols, which he had worshipped diligently, and growing angry, he declared that he would worship them no more, and that he had made up his mind to become a Christian. He commenced to attend church, induced a number of his people to do the same, and at length was baptized.

More real prayer among converts.

The island of Hai-tan, twenty-five miles in length, lying off the south coast of China, between Fuh-chow and Amoy, is worked as part of the Hok-chiang district. Miss E. J. Harrison and Miss A. M. Hitchcock reside at TANG-TAU, the chief town, containing a population of from 15,000 to 20,000, where a Women's School and station class are conducted by the former. Some of the Christians attended the special meetings held in Hok-chiang city by Mr. Diong, and one man in particular is mentioned as having received great blessing through them. For long he had been a quiet, steady-going Christian in the face of much opposition from his mother, who used to blow out the lamp when he wanted to read at night, but he was unwilling to pray in public, and was almost unintelligible when he did so. He returned home from the services deeply grateful for the help they had been to him, and prayed simply and touchingly, "O sinner's God, have mercy on me. O my Saviour, have mercy on me. I have no strength." Almost all the boys of the day-school are from heathen homes; they are taught by an earnest Christian man, and every week attend the mission-house for a Bible-lesson. Miss Hitchcock looked after the girls' day-school. One of the pupils who left at the beginning of 1904 was in trouble because she had unbound her feet, and the youth to whom she was engaged refused to marry her unless she bound them up again. This, however, she declined to do. About 4,000 persons were treated at the dispensary, and 100 visits were paid to patients in their own homes. A woman who was sent to Hok-chiang hospital with what proved to be an incurable disease left it determined to follow Christ, and her brother, himself a Christian, remarked, "Though her body is not cured and is very miserable, her soul is cured, and that is very good." The medical work was instrumental in opening several houses to the missionaries. One day Miss Hitchcock was invited to see one of the two wives of the third mandarin on the island, and always afterwards had a welcome at the house. Some of the village schools had to be closed for a time because of the plague, and those which continued without interruption were attended but irregularly. When visiting the villages Miss Hitchcock was everywhere welcomed by the women, many coming up and introducing themselves as old patients. She states that some of the people seemed to accept the truth readily, but others made excuses for not doing so, declaring that they must wait until some person or other had been buried with heathen rites, and then they would become Christians, or saying, "Our forefathers never worshipped your God, and we do what they did." In one large village a man expressed his pleasure that the women were being taught, "because," he said, "several of us want to become Christians, but the women are not willing, and scold us if we think of going to church to hear the 'Doctrine.'"

"Her soul is cured."

Women scold their husbands for going to church.

Strenuous efforts in the direction of self-support were made at KO-SANG-CHE, where the Rev. Yek Twang-Mi is the Chinese pastor. Some of the catechists of their own accord returned one-quarter of their already insufficient salaries, and by November a capital sum of $2,000 had been raised. In the absence of Miss M. E. Wolfe, Miss A. McClelland was responsible for the Women's School. Funds being low, only half the usual number of women could be accommodated. One of the three day-schools had a very small attendance, only just enough pupils coming to justify its continuance. A former pupil, who had been married, was the means of her husband's family becoming inquirers. The dispensary was in the charge of Miss K. Andrews, a trained nurse, who often had more patients than she could conveniently manage. She says that though the spiritual results of this work have not been striking, yet it has in many cases been the means of removing the first barriers of ignorance and superstition, and has led the people to feel that Christianity so far from being a foreign religion may after all have something in it for them. Visits were occasionally paid to some of the villages of the district. In one of them lives a tailor, of whose patient submission in trouble the following story was told by Miss Andrews in December:— Patient submission in trouble.

His wife, hearing a married daughter was ill at a village some distance off, went to see her, and was with her when she died of plague three days afterwards. The mother came back, and herself became ill and died. Then the youngest boy, a lad of thirteen, took it and also died. The tailor is now left with one remaining son. Last Sunday (his boy died on Friday) he came to church to show to all around that his faith in God remained, in spite of all his trouble. In the afternoon, when it is customary for some of the Christian men to get up and speak, he took his turn as usual, and said, "Because I have been through all this trouble, you must not think that God is not gracious to me. I can still say thank God for His grace and goodness." And then the poor old man quite broke down. The village this tailor lives in is a very dark one. Although there are one or two families professing Christianity, I think he is the only Christian there. The heathen relatives laugh at him and say, "You who worship God so regularly, and give so much of your time and money, what have you got to say now?" The Chinese feel ridicule acutely, and it is very hard for them to endure it from their heathen relatives and clansmen. They need all the prayer and sympathy that we can give them. Converts need prayer and sympathy.

HING-HWA DISTRICT.

At a meeting in May, 1904, of the Church Council of the Hing-hwa district, which is under the chairmanship of the Rev. C. Shaw, the accounts which were presented by the various catechists and schoolmasters spoke of a general advance both in the number of adherents and in their contributions. Among those who called themselves Christians the evil was mingled with the good. Some ran well for a little time and then fell back. Others expected to be shielded from the unjust laws of their country, and finding that they were not helped as they wished, grew cold and ceased to attend church. Among others, again, strife and jealousy were sadly prevalent. But with all these drawbacks there was a real extension of the Kingdom of Christ. One hundred adults were baptized, and ninety-seven persons were confirmed in the autumn. The latter number would have been greater but for a village fight, which prevented about twenty persons from reaching Hing-hwa for the service. The Christians were not in any way implicated in the fight, but the villages in which they lived were, and they were unable to leave their homes on pain of being caught and imprisoned. Hing-hwa. One hundred adults baptized.

The Theological Class in HING-HWA CITY, conducted by Mr. Shaw, had fourteen members, four of whom supported themselves. All the men were diligent in their studies, and made good use of their opportunities of gaining practical experience in evangelistic work. Mrs. Shaw took considerable part in the tuition of the sixteen lads attending the Boys' Boarding School, and Mrs. Van Someren Taylor carried on a station class in the early part of 1904. All but two of the women were baptized when the class broke up. A Chinese deacon, the Rev. Sioh Su-Sieng, who was formerly the head catechist in the district, and was ordained Theological Class.

in May, 1904, was quasi-pastor of the City Congregation, which consisted of representatives of all classes of society, including well-to-do tradesmen, members of the reading and official classes, and many farmers and field-labourers. Mr. Shaw dwells with satisfaction in his Annual Letter upon the greater liberality displayed by the people, which he regards as significant. They contributed $40, which for the Chinese is said to be equivalent to a sum of £40 at home, to the British and Foreign Bible Society at the time of its Centenary, and a quarter of that amount towards the painting and repairs needed by their church. Concerning these and other gifts Mr. Shaw writes :—

The grace of giving displayed by the Chinese.

> We had two special offertories, and about $9 was given. This, too, was a new departure. Formerly the people wanted to see their names recorded on red paper, so that everybody might know how much each person gave. This time we said they were simply to place the money on the plate and no one would know what any one else had given. The Chinese truly love the praise of men, and do not like "to put their light under a bushel." So it was a test for them, and we rejoice in the response made. We also asked our people to give this year towards building churches in other places. Formerly only church workers gave, those that were in church employment, but this year we exhorted the Christians to do so also, and the result was very gratifying. We hope the experiment will be tried in other places. The Chinese character is essentially selfish; they have inherited this from their heathen training; every one worships the idols only for what gain they can get or what evil they may avoid—no one from love. We must try, then, to enlarge their sympathies and get them to think of others.

Baptism of a former military mandarin.

A former military mandarin was baptized, and another member of the official class was admitted as a catechumen, together with his son. Mr. Shaw says :—

> I think we can hardly understand at home what it means for a man in the position of this man, dressed in his satin robes, &c., to stand beside the poor barefooted field labourer, with coarse clothing and rough exterior; it shows what a power there is in Christianity, and it requires a good deal of courage and reality for a man of this class to submit to this ordeal. This man frequently stays for some days at a time at the College, and he always comes to the Bible lectures I give, and seems most interested in them.

Medical Work.

Dr. B. Van Someren Taylor had such assistance at the Hospital as his study of the language would allow Dr. F. Sanger to give, until March, 1904, when the latter was temporarily transferred to Pakhoi. The nursing was in the hands of Miss F. A. Forge. Among the patients was a crippled woman, who soon after she was admitted into the hospital said, "I know you are going to cure me, for when I arrived you were standing on a stool healing the clock, and if you can do that you can heal me!" Happily her confidence was justified, for in less than three months she was cured. She afterwards sent several people from her village to the hospital.

"Healing the clock!"

The revival at Dang-seng, spoken of in last year's Report (page 358), continued and three adults were baptized and several catechumens enrolled; while at Chih-doi-li five persons were admitted into the visible Church, and at To-boi a new out-station was opened. From To-boi, Mr. Shaw went to visit some isolated Christians at an old station six miles distant. He writes:—

Formerly we had a day-school in this place, but it was discontinued owing to the small number of boys who came to read. The Christian family here have kept on the Sunday service themselves, and also hold family prayers in the evening. One room they set apart as a little church, and a few others meet with them on Sundays for worship. They have no catechist or teacher, but do the work themselves; I had not been to the place for seven years. They gave me a warm welcome, and I was so delighted to find them still holding on, and being a light in the terrible darkness all around them. "Still holding on."

The Rev. Ting Chung-Seng, the Chinese pastor at SIENG-IU, who has 664 baptized Christians under his charge, mentions that although the Church in the district has been established for some "tens of years," nevertheless it still is in the "childhood stage," and he enumerates several matters, especially in connexion with the supply of Chinese workers, which cause him anxiety, and concerning which he asks for prayer. He writes: Sieng-iu.

(1) Fuh-Kien Church workers are not altogether alike in character, and do not with their whole heart think of doing God's work. Will you pray for them that they may learn from St. Paul's example as in 1 Cor. ix. 21, 22? (2) Again, in Fuh-Kien, because there are not self-supporting workers, we have not very strong men. Some, because they depend on grants of money from England, then do according to the wishes of C.M.S.; others, depending on the subscriptions of Natives, do according to their will and watch their faces! They dare not speak straight words among the Christians. I hope you will pray that China ere long may have independent workers to do God's work, who, on the one hand, will only do according to the mind of God, and, on the other, will not seek for man's approval, but live as St. Paul did on his own labour, and cause the Gospel to be spread abroad, nothing hindering. (3) The children of workers desiring to follow in the steps of their parents and do God's work are few. Carefully consider why this is. Many a whole-hearted man ready to give up all for Christ, although he has enough food to eat, yet has not enough provisions for times of sickness; and supposing he meets some unexpected difficulty he can do nothing, therefore the children look for other means of livelihood. This is a great weakness in the Church. (4) The wives of workers, many of them are good and well-instructed in the truth, but those able to go out and teach are very few. "We have not very strong men."

Several of the Christians were carried off by the plague, which broke out at the end of March, 1904, and committed terrible ravages. Among the first victims were the father of one of the boys belonging to the mission-school, and many of the members of his family. The trial was blessed to the man's wife, who for years had opposed Christianity, for the kindness shown by the Christians in her sorrow greatly impressed her and she became a candidate for baptism. Some of the converts were persecuted because they would not contribute towards idol worship, their crops, trees, or property being secretly destroyed. Many of them stood firm, but in some instances the money Converts persecuted for not subscribing towards idol worship.

demanded by the Heathen was paid in fear by the wives of the Christians. The Rev. S. J. Nightingale superintended the boys' boarding-school, and with the help of Mrs. Nightingale carried on the dispensary. The medical work was set on a more permanent footing in the autumn by the purchase of a house to serve as a hospital and the arrival of a Chinese doctor from Hing-hwa to take charge of it. The need for such an institution was sorely felt, for the district, though small, contains a population estimated at 500,000, and there is no medical work among them excepting at the C.M.S. hospital, although a women's hospital is about to be opened by some American ladies.

Opening of two new out-stations.

Two new out-stations were opened, the one at Lai-na, three miles from Sieng-iu, and the other at De-lang. Mr. Nightingale says that when he made an attempt a few years ago to hold a lantern service at the former place, he was hooted by a mob, and had to take refuge on the roof of a shop, but now the people gladly send their boys to the mission-school, and a small congregation meets every Sunday morning for worship. One of the out-stations is occupied by a catechist who is a Chinese doctor. During the summer all his family, with the exception of one son, were carried off by the plague, and he suffered much pecuniary loss besides, but his faith never wavered. At another place a Taouist priest, whose ancestors for 200 years had performed the rites of that religion, gave up the implements which he used in his worship. In September Mr. Nightingale itinerated in the mountainous region of Hing-tai, to the north-east of the county, where there are some seven or eight little churches. During the trip he baptized twenty adults. Seventy other adults were baptized during 1904.

A Taouist priest gives up his implements.

KU-CHENG DISTRICT.

Ku-cheng.

The Rev. J. Martin superintended the work in the KU-CHENG District until November, 1904, when the Rev. J. R. S. Boyd, of the Canadian C.M.S., who had just returned from furlough, resumed his former duties. There are four Chinese pastors labouring in the district. Of the senior of them, the Rev. Li Sie-Mi, Mr. Martin writes:—

> It was a great pleasure when accompanying our Bishop on his confirmation tour in the district to see how our brother enjoyed his pastoral work, and to watch him as he went in and out among the Christians, to say nothing of our conversations while on the road. It was manifestly plain to me that he was adorning the doctrine of God our Saviour.

At Cie-tau, in the Ping-nang portion of the district, great interest in the Gospel was manifested by the heathen villagers on the occasion of Mr. Martin's visit. He observed with much thankfulness the change in their attitude, for when he first went to the village in 1895 he was treated with marked discourtesy, and about the same time Mr. Li Sie-Mi was stoned by them, and turned out of the place. The friendly reception given in the year under review is attributed in part to the dispensary work of the ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S.

KIEN-NING DISTRICT.

Kien-ning.

The same courteous and friendly attitude which the officials of the Kien-ning district have shown towards the missionaries since 1900 was maintained during 1904. On the petition of the Prefect and General of the city, the Viceroy presented the Rev. H. S. Phillips, who was in general charge, and Dr. H. R. Pakenham, with gorgeously lacquered complimentary tablets, which were nailed over their front doors, the ostensible reason being that the yamens of the district had not been troubled on account of the Church in lawsuits and other matters. While the officials thus showed themselves friendly, there was at one time in the summer a prospect of disturbance among the people. Mr. Phillips wrote from Kien-ning city in November, 1904:—

Friendliness of Chinese officials.

Anti-Christian rumours.

> A number of most mysterious murders and mutilations had taken place in the prefecture, and as they were absolutely unaccounted for a rumour like those of previous years sprang up that the foreigners were in some way responsible for them. These rumours were persistent in the city, and really threatening in the country; however, the head of the city gentry sent for the village elders and argued with them as to the absurdity of connecting these murders with Europeans; about the same time some of the perpetrators were arrested, and it was discovered that they belonged to a Taoist club in the neighbouring province; and the magistrates here immediately issued a strongly-worded proclamation making known these facts, so that all danger quickly passed away.

Cannibalism in China.

Dr. Pakenham says that the murders were chiefly of children, and that some boatmen were discovered in the act of cooking and eating a child by the riverside. Although the danger was happily averted, the rumours adversely affected the work, especially among the women, and the number of adult baptisms—thirty—was little more than half that of 1903.

The missionaries of the Society in KIEN-NING CITY, besides Mr. and Mrs. Phillips and Dr. and Mrs. Pakenham, were the Rev. J. J. Butler and Messrs. J. Blundy and C. W. Reeves, and they were joined in the autumn by Dr. H. M. Churchill, one of the recruits of the year. At the Chinese New Year, i.e., in February, 1904, two "quiet days" were held, the one for the European missionaries of the Society and the C.E.Z.M.S., and the other, which was conducted by the Rev. Diong Ing-Do, the Chinese pastor, for both Chinese and foreign workers. The station was visited in May by the Bishop of Victoria, who admitted Mr. Diong Ing-Do to Priests' Orders, and confirmed nearly one hundred candidates at five different centres. Mr.

Phillips conducted a Training Class for agents, which was joined by four new students in the autumn; he asks for earnest prayer in their behalf. Mr. Reeves was in charge of the Boys' Boarding-school and of the day-school, the only institution of the sort in the whole of the great prefecture. One of the sixteen pupils of the former was under instruction for baptism. In the summer the Hospital was removed to new quarters in the city. It is capable of accommodating thirty-eight patients, and most of those who come for treatment are very poor. One of the medical assistants left in order to take up work on his own account, and another, and also the dresser, had to be dismissed. The gross misconduct of these two men affected the attendances of out-patients. There was an interesting baptism in connexion with the work of the women's hospital which was under the management of the ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. Mrs. Phillips tells the story as follows :—

Hospital.

Influence of a copy of a Gospel.

A man living in one of the mountain villages went, on one of his business expeditions, into the little church at Nang-wa, and heard for the first time the story of the Saviour's love. He bought a copy of a Gospel, took it home, read it, and became much interested; so much so that he determined to see the Christians worship, and went down to the service for several Sundays. Two of the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies spent part of a summer in his mountain village, and had a service each evening. The man attended, and as he was truly in earnest and could ask for explanations, he soon had a grasp of the Christian faith, and later on was baptized. His wife came down to the women's hospital in Kien-ning for medical treatment, remaining there for some months, and she too was baptized. The following year she again visited Kien-ning, and when the rumours of a probable riot occurred, she was sent back with many misgivings to her home in the mountains. When she arrived, she found all the village in a ferment, her long absence being attributed to the action of the foreigners, who it was supposed had murdered her. Her opportune appearance, well, strong, and happy, and able to read, dispelled their fears, and filled her little house day by day with a crowd of visitors anxious to hear her read and expound the Word of God.

Branch dispensaries were carried on at Ciong-bau and Nang-wa, with some spiritual results. At the former place a family of two relapsed into Heathenism owing to the death of a son, but several catechumens were awaiting baptism. The dispensary at Yen-ping, the chief city of the prefecture of that name, was abandoned, and one was opened in its stead at Pu-chin, five days' journey from Kien-ning. It had to be closed temporarily at the end of 1904, because the Chinese doctor in charge, Dr. Ngoi Ngiong-Gi, was required at Kien-ning in view of the approaching furlough of Dr. Pakenham, and none of the medical students were willing to take his place. A Chinese doctor, one of the elders of the village, and his son were baptized at Siung-to. A few weeks before the service the man's wife died, but no heathen rites were practised at her funeral, which was made an opportunity of preaching to the non-Christians. One of Mr. Phillips's students, a native of Kien-ning, was appointed as catechist at Wang-tiang, and a new out-station was opened at Su-gi, an important market town forty miles to the north of Kien-ning city. Mr. Blundy made a short preaching tour in the southern portion of the district.

KIEN-YANG DISTRICT.

From February, 1904, when Miss M. E. Sears left for Australia, the work in the Kien-yang district was carried on by Miss M. E. Molloy, of the Victoria Association, Miss A. B. Ramsay, and Miss F. L. Coleman, the Rev. H. S. Phillips superintending from Kien-ning. A few patients were treated at the dispensary in KIEN-YANG CITY, where Miss Ramsay and Miss Coleman resided, and visiting was diligently carried on. The attitude of the people, however, was less favourable than in former years, for although they manifested no hostility, yet there was not the same cordial feeling towards the missionaries, who received but few invitations to visit the Chinese homes. The villagers were more hopeful, and at some places the knowledge, imperfect it is true, of the True God displayed by the people was surprising. Fewer visitors than in 1903 came to the ladies during the time which they spent at Cu-dong-gai, but still there were several women and girls anxious to be taught, and some of them accompanied the missionaries to villages in the neighbourhood where the people were a little timid. Two blind men were baptized. Some progress was made in revising and correcting the translation of St. Matthew's Gospel into the Kien-yang colloquial. Miss Molloy spent a good portion of the year at Tsung-ang, where there were two elderly catechumens, and enjoyed good opportunities of proclaiming the Gospel. Kien-yang.

MID CHINA MISSION.

China, north of lat. 28°, became the sphere of a separate episcopal jurisdiction, "North China," in 1872, Dr. Russell, of the C.M.S., being the first Bishop. In 1880, after his death, it was divided into two, North and Mid China, and Dr. G. E. Moule, of the C.M.S., became Bishop of the latter See. The Protestant Episcopal Church of America appointed a Bishop to supervise the congregations connected with that Church in China in 1844, who resided first at Han-Kow and then in Shanghai, and in 1901 a second for Han-Kow. Shanghai was occupied by European missionaries in 1845; Ningpo, 1848; Hang-chow, 1864; Shaou-hing, 1870; T'ai-chow, 1892; and Chu-ki, 1894. In the earlier years of the Mission much success was, by the Divine blessing, achieved in the numerous towns and villages around Ningpo. Later, in 1877, the Gospel was introduced under striking circumstances into the Chu-ki district from Hang-chow, and again in 1886 into the district of T'ai-chow from Ningpo. Many of the Christians in these districts have manifested exemplary Christian steadfastness and zeal.

Bishop Moule's movements.

A BRIEF account of his work during the previous twelve months was given by Bishop Moule at the meeting of the Mid China Conference held at Ningpo in October, 1904. He then stated that he had visited each of the principal stations of the Mission, some of them more than once, and twelve of the out-stations, his absences from home lasting for 100 days, and his journeys extending over 3,000 miles. In the course of his sermon before the Conference the Bishop referred as follows to the outlook in the Mission:—

A discouraging outlook.

You cannot be unaware how much ground for anxiety presents itself to the eye as we look over the wide fields of our missionary ministry. Vastly interesting, and offering ground for true encouragement, no doubt, are many features of the prospect. But as, in the course of my duty, I study each district of the great region, my heart misgives me that I find little ground for thinking that the Christian character of our people, laity, agents, or clergy, is rising, or has risen in any perceptible degree these twenty years or more.

If I instance one notable exception to the general character of the prospect, it shall be the Chinese C.M.S., in the origin of which, and I trust in its working hitherto, we do, I think, see something to balance our general discouragement. On the whole, however, the reports that reach me, no less than my own observation, oblige me to conclude that spirituality and the evangelistic spirit are, from year to year, rather less than more evident in our schoolmasters, lay evangelists, medical missionaries, pastors, and other ordained Natives. I have allowed for exceptions which, I trust, exist.

On the other hand, preoccupation with the present world, the acquisition and development of property in money and other forms, seem more and more to absorb the thoughts and energies of some of the ablest, and, but for this defect, the most estimable of our brethren. One or two, moreover, have been by the same spirit betrayed into the dangerous paths of litigation and—I know no quite expressive English word for the failing—πολυπραγμοσύνη. What would I infer? A single concrete inference is hard to formulate. The excitement of the times, the worldly opportunities of some posts of missionary employment, all have to be allowed for, and I do allow for them.

The dangerous paths of litigation.

Nevertheless, I am inclined to trace the cause, or at any rate the aggravation, of the disease to something within ourselves. The Pharisees, who were hypocrites, made hypocritical proselytes, only more so than themselves. If we are worldly, if we are not through and through and conspicuously unworldly, it will be wonderful if our pupils, associates, employés, are not worldly too.

Five of the year's recruits were assigned to the Mid China Mission, viz., the Rev. Joseph Edward Denham, of Islington College, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders in St. Paul's Cathedral by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, May 29th, 1904; Mr. Arthur Frederick Cole, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., a son of Canon Cole, of the Bengal Mission; Mr. Percy James King, of Islington College; Miss Martha Minnie Clark, of the Victoria C.M. Association; and Miss Alice Davies, of Liverpool, trained at Highbury, The Willows, and Bermondsey. The staff has also been strengthened by the transference of the Rev. H. Castle from Sierra Leone to Mid China. Messrs. Castle, Denham, and King, and Miss Clark (from Australia) sailed for the Mission in October, 1904, Miss Davies in November, and Dr. Cole in December. Reinforcements.

On St. Mark's Day, April 25th, 1904, Bishop Moule admitted the Rev. W. Robbins to Priests' Orders, and the Rev. Liu Shing-Ming on Whit Sunday, May 22nd. The Bishop admitted Messrs. Tsong Tsae-Seng and Tsong Kying-Fu, of the Chinese C.M.S., to Deacons' Orders at Hang-chow, on August 14th, 1904, and to Priests' Orders on Sunday, March 19th, 1905. He also admitted the Rev. J. E. Denham to Priests' Orders in the Cathedral, Shanghai, on Sunday, April 9th, 1905. Ordinations.

I. PROVINCE OF KIANG-SU.

SHANGHAI.

The staff of the Society at Shanghai consisted of the Rev. J. B. Ost, the Acting-Secretary of the Mission, and Mrs. Ost, the Rev. W. G. Walshe, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. H. Moule, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. H. Moule, Miss E. Onyon, Miss M. J. Godson, and the Chinese pastor, the Rev. Dzing Kyi-Doh. The Congregation to which the last named ministered consisted chiefly of men, but the attendance of women, though still not what it should be, was better than in previous years. Mr. A. J. H. Moule and Mr. Walshe continued their Literary Work. The former completed the translation of the fifth and last volume of the Religious Tract Society's Commentary on the Old Testament, and says that in all 16,000 copies of the various volumes have been printed. He also made a beginning with the translation of the Commentary on the New Testament; proceeded with his translation of Gardiner's English History, reaching the end of the reign of Elizabeth; and added to his Phrase Book, which contains nearly 35,000 different phrases. Mr. Walshe completed his Vocabulary of Biographical and Geographical Names, and wrote several magazine articles, but much of his time was taken up with editorial duties in connexion with the Society for the Diffusion of Shanghai. Literary Work.

Christian and General Knowledge, to which his services are lent. Among the books published by that Society during 1904 were Modern History and a Primer of Church History, edited by Mr. Walshe, and histories of Greece and Rome, which he had translated. He continued his duties in connexion with the Revision Committee of the Chinese Book of Common Prayer. In his Annual Letter Mr. Walshe speaks of a falling off in the demand for Christian literature by the Chinese due to the pro-Japanese attitude in vogue, and says that education in all secular departments, general, medical, military, and political, is now in the hands of the latter people. Referring to this same matter Archdeacon A. E. Moule affirms that "Japanese influence is an undoubted fact, and a feature in China's history which must be reckoned with in any attempt to forecast her future," and adds:—

Education in China in the hands of the Japanese.

> Growth of Japanese influence. The possible growth of Japanese influence may perhaps check and modify the almost "rage" for the English language and Western learning which has prevailed and still goes on, which some have thought only a passing craze, but which most imagine as "having come to stay." It may be that the Japanese will urge the Chinese to imbibe and absorb Western knowledge by translations alone, and not by Western language. They (the Japanese) are already, alas! publishing Chinese versions of infidel books. If this consideration is at all correct, it would seem to point to a double duty, (i.) to take prompt advantage of the present thirst for English, &c., among the intelligent non-Christian Chinese, by opening schools for them and bringing them under Christian influence and instruction; (ii.) while sympathizing with this ambition for Western knowledge among our Christians, and perhaps giving some initiatory help, not to encourage them in the adoption of Western tongues and customs to the neglect of their own, so far as they are good and decorous.

Anglo-Chinese School.

The Anglo-Chinese School, of which Mr. W. A. H. Moule, the Archdeacon's son, is the Principal, is an institution of the character just described, which has an average attendance of about eighty boys. Fifteen of those who have passed through the school in past years have become Christians, including two, baptized about four years ago, who are now on the staff; one lad was baptized in 1904; and another head form boy was anxious to be admitted into the visible Church, but was forbidden by his father. Many former pupils of the school occupy good positions. One is the compradore of the P. & O. Company, another the second compradore of one of the largest shipping houses, others are in the Customs, and others again in various places of business in Shanghai and elsewhere. Three "old boys," all Christians, are in England, and two of them hope soon to enter Cambridge University. The Old Boys' Society, formed some years since with the object of keeping in touch with former scholars by means of monthly lectures and social gatherings, was revived, and had about sixty members. The station class, which was opened by Miss Onyon in the autumn, had six members, four of whom were inquirers. There are five day-schools through which entry is often gained into the homes of the Chinese. One of the seven adults baptized during the year was the mother of a girl attending one of the schools. Evangelistic Work was carried on by two catechists, under Mr. Ost, and by the ladies in conjunction with a Bible-woman. A few men were admitted as catechumens, and there were some hopeful cases among the Cantonese, but on the whole the progress was slow. Mr. Ost mentions the following as among the reasons for the fact:—

"Lives of rush and pre-occupation."

People in a place like this seem to think of but little but making money. Rents are high, and consequently cost of living is also high. Competition is keen, so people, as a rule, live lives of rush and pre-occupation. Then the population is to some extent a floating one, and people are frequently changing their place of residence, so that one often loses touch with an interested attendant at the preaching-hall.

II. PROVINCE OF CHEH-KIANG.

The Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Coultas and Miss M. A. Wells came home in December, 1904; the Rev. and Mrs. H. Barton in March, 1905; and the Rev. and Mrs. E. Thompson in May. Miss I. Hughes (from Australia) and Miss D. C. Joynt sailed for the Mission in October, 1904; and Miss A. M. Maddison in February, 1905. The Rev. W. Browne married Miss Emily Melita Harkness in Shanghai on February 22nd, 1905.

NINGPO.

Ningpo.

The English Services at Ningpo for the members of the European settlement were conducted by Archdeacon A. E. Moule, who also presided over the monthly clerical meetings which were attended on an average by four English and five or six Chinese clergy. Some change was made in the organization of Trinity College, and its work is now divided into three departments. At the beginning of 1904 four students of the Theological Class completed their course; one became a master in the College, another took up work under the Chinese C.M.S., and the others were appointed to Ningpo and T'ai-chow respectively. In November the class consisted of three men. A second department of the College is the Normal School, which contains twenty-one students. Those who are in the last year of their course form what is called the Schoolmasters' Class, before entering which they have to be examined and accepted by the Conference of the Mission. Five members of this class received their certificates in October. The Preparatory School contains thirty-six boys, seven of whom were accepted in the autumn for admission to the Normal Class. The boys did well in the Scripture examination, the lowest of them obtaining seventy per cent. of the full marks. The Cobbold Scholarship, founded in memory of Archdeacon Cobbold, one of the early missionaries of the Society in China, was divided equally between the two lads who obtained the highest marks. The Rev. W. S. Moule, the Principal of the College, who had the Revs. Sing Tsae-Seng and Mô Kw'un-Yü as his Chinese clerical colleagues, says that no serious difficulties occurred during the year, but adds:—

> It would be idle to ignore the fact that the materialistic doctrines and revolutionary propaganda that are so rife throughout China (I almost said throughout Christian China) have a very strong influence over the minds of our elder boys. And it is not easy to gain attention to anything that does not immediately bear upon material progress or profit. But, at the same time, I see with pleasure that the books of the Society for the Diffusion of Christian Knowledge and the Commercial Press, with which our College Library is well supplied, are taken out and read a good deal by the elder boys. Also and far more thankfully do I acknowledge the freedom from sinful temper and act, and the ready cheerfulness of the boys generally; and in questioning applicants for admission to the Normal School—that is, those who are making definite application for preparation for native agency—I have been very much cheered indeed by the quiet purpose of the boys.

Record of a Training College.

Sixty-one old Trinity College boys are now working in the Mid China diocese. Fourteen of them are in Holy Orders, of whom eight are acting as pastors, four as evangelists, and two as schoolmasters; sixteen are lay evangelists; twenty-seven are schoolmasters; and four are medical evangelists. There were forty children under Miss M. E. Turnbull's charge in the Girls' Boarding-school.

Girls' Boarding-school.

Inspired by the account of the blessing vouchsafed at the Osaka Girls' Boarding-school (see infra, page 400), the teachers and elder girls commenced a daily prayer-meeting which did not supersede, but was in addition to, the regular school prayer-meeting held on alternate Saturdays with the gatherings of the "Preach the Doctrine Union," or Sowers' Band. Mrs. E. A. Walker gave instruction to the children in singing. There are several elementary schools in the city—two for boys; two for girls, managed by Mrs. W. S. Moule; and one mixed school, conducted by Mrs. A. E. Moule.

The "Preach the Doctrine Union."

Medical Work.

The Hospital attracted an increasing number of patients, forty of them coming to be cured of the opium habit. Dr. R. Smyth says that the vast majority of the people appeared irresponsive or indifferent to the Gospel, but many acquired at least a head-knowledge of the fundamental truths of Christianity, and some appeared to be deeply impressed. Among the patients was a Buddhist priest, from whose account of himself and of his conversion, written early in 1904, the following extract is taken:—

A Buddhist priest's account of his conversion,

> At the age of forty-seven I met a priest of the "Creeping Dragon" Buddhist temple. He spoke of the emptiness of all earthly positions, and urged me to leave the world and become a priest. "You will have a large house to live in, and can associate daily with the Buddhas. Clothes, food and money you will have in plenty, and at death will go to the Western World of Extreme Bliss." At that time I was distracted in heart and wandering in mind, and I thought "these words are good." In the eighth month I determined to leave the world and take this guiding priest as my master. Thus, at the age of forty-eight, in the second month, I went to the Hill Pass Monastery and took orders as a priest (this is done by branding the head with moxa in nine or more places). When a month was fulfilled I was given a passport enabling me to go to all monasteries and stay there free of cost without any difficulty. At the Hill Pass Monastery they made me accountant for a year and three months. I had during that time clothes and food and money in abundance. But I also began to know that I had gone the wrong road, and knew that what I did was not in accordance with the things of the truth of Heaven. Then I noticed how many women of rich families came to the monastery and were required to pay $600 for a seven days' mass, the head of the monastery telling them that thus they could save the souls of their ancestors of many generations, and also the desolate spirits of friendless ones who had died either on land or at sea, and bring them out into the Western World of Extreme Bliss. Also if for three days they repeated the "Liang Wông Kying" (prayer to Buddha) for $120, the peace of the whole family was guaranteed.

Taking the priests as a whole, only two or three in every hundred keep the rules, and these not thoroughly. What they consider most important is eating, drinking, adultery, and gambling.

and description of his former colleagues.

At the age of forty-eight, in the tenth month, I came to the Hospital, and at the age of forty-nine, was still not well. So last year, on the nineteenth day of the fifth month, I came again to the Hospital to be healed. Praise the grace of Almighty God, Dr. Smyth's skill healed my disease, and preachers of the truth daily taught me the truth of the Lord Jesus.

At that time I was already conscious of great sin. I did not believe in God's saving truth, but on the contrary I believed in a false religion and false things—all great sin. I felt I ought quickly to repent with all my heart, to reject the false and turn to the true.

Once I was in the midst of darkness; now already I am trusting in the Lord's shining upon me.

The Printing Press was worked by four apprentices under Mr. W. S. Moule's superintendence. An Old Testament History in Roman character for use in the elementary girls' schools was completed, and some advance was made in the production of a translation of Daily Light.

Two meetings of the Native Church Council were held under the chairmanship of the Rev. W. H. Elwin. The question of the provision of the funds needed for the work was faced more fully than before, and Committees were appointed to arrange for a Conference for the deepening of the spiritual life, and for the proper working of the station class. That class was attended in February, 1904, by forty men, more than half of whom came for the first time. Before they separated some of them narrated their experiences. One, a gun and brass smith, told how he had often been "in the Devil's set," but added that for the last six months or more he had been "listening to the Doctrine;" and of another named Yiang, Mr. Elwin wrote in December, 1904:—

In the spring of last year he became interested in the truth through a friend—a Shanghai inquirer. According to his own account, the following conversation took place between them:—"This truth has many advantages," said his friend. "What advantage?" inquired Yiang. His friend read to him the account of Christ's virgin birth as told in St. Matthew's Gospel and spoke of His life. "Well," said Yiang, "what good do you get from believing this?" The friend went on to tell him of our Lord's death for us. "What proof is there of that?" asked Yiang. For reply his friend merely quoted the words of the Creed: "Jesus Christ, His only Son our Lord . . . was crucified, dead and buried . . . the third day he rose again from the dead." Still talking on the subject, they went to a temple festival, the god of that temple having been reported at that time to be particularly on the alert in the way of answering prayers, &c. Yiang said to his friend, "Try cursing that idol, and see what happens. Then I will believe." His friend, facing the idol and addressing it, defiantly said, "Lay hands on me if you can," but "there was neither voice nor any to answer." "This is the place of death," thought Yiang—"believing in Christ must be the place of life." But the doubt still haunted him, "Did he really rise from the dead? The Bible says he did, but is the Bible authentic?" He could arrive at no conclusion.

Challenging an idol.

When he came up to the station class, after asking some of the helpers, he was satisfactorily answered by Pastor Song Vi-Sing, who had been reading up the Bible Society publications prepared for the Centenary, specially those parts dealing with the old MSS. During the class his heart, as he said, "got warmer." An address from one of the helpers, contrasting heathen and Christian customs at marriages and funerals, greatly impressed him. The words of St. Mark x. 45, which I had given him in the country months before, had not been forgotten, and seemed to come back to him with fresh force. When, after giving this account, he sat down, I asked him if he could believe now. He said, "Not yet." A few weeks later I met him at his country home. He told me then that an inquirer's catechism, lent to him by a young Christian schoolmaster, to whom I had just entrusted it for such purposes, had been the means of leading him definitely to believe in Christ.

Twice in the year for three months at a time, Mrs. W. S. Moule carried on a Women's School for Christians and inquirers, most of whom came from the country districts. One girl is specially mentioned, whose deceased father had been a Christian, but whose mother is a Heathen. Mrs. Moule says:—

A young woman prevents idolatrous ceremonies at her father's funeral.

She has a particularly gentle, attractive manner, but she can be very firm indeed when it is a matter of right and wrong. Her mother told me that she insisted in the face of all the heathen relatives that nothing idolatrous was to be done at her father's funeral, and she carried her point. The mother said, "I could do nothing against her." She would not come to the school last term because she was needed at home, but this term she wrote to tell me that her mother could spare her, and she was overjoyed to hear that she might come. She reads well, and has taught her younger sisters to read too. She is most anxious that her mother should be brought to Christ, and is constantly praying for her.

Pastorates.

The Rev. Wông Yiu-Kwông was in charge of the Ningpo City Pastorate. Work among the women and children was carried on by Mrs. A. E. Moule, who conducted a sewing-class and some Bible-classes, while Mrs. W. S. Moule superintended the work of the Bible-women, through whose patient efforts several backsliders were reclaimed. One of these Bible-women was first interested in Christianity through the instrumentality of her children who repeated to her the texts and hymns which they were taught in one of the mission-schools. The Ningpo Western Pastorate was under the Rev. Ing Djün-Yüih. The room used for the services at Moh-ts-in, on the East Lake, became too small for the numbers who attended and had to be enlarged, nearly one-third of the requisite funds being provided by the Christians, who also increased their pastorate subscriptions. A woman was baptized at Yu-ko-da-ao, where the Rev. and Mrs. T. Goodchild had a hearty reception from the people in the spring of 1904. Miss M. A. Wells, who worked among the women in the pastorate, speaks of the Christians as growing in grace, and says that many of the younger women took a keen interest in the Gospel, and even endured persecution from their elders for the sake of Christ. She found a series of Sunday-school lessons on the Gospels, prepared by Mr. Elwin, most useful. These were used by the catechists in the country churches, and contained six questions on each lesson, which were put to the congregations. Miss Wells says that whereas previously her inquiry as to the subject of a sermon often elicited the response, "The taste was good, but I forget what it was about," after the introduction of the lessons the subjects were better impressed upon the memory of the hearers. The Z-ky'i Pastorate, which extends over an area twenty miles in length and ten in breadth, was worked by the Rev. 'O Kwông-yiao. Mr. and Mrs. Goodchild paid several visits to the district, and Miss Wells hired a house to serve as her head quarters while she laboured among the villagers. A blind woman at Z-ky'i is mentioned, who anxiously inquired whether her infirmity would be any bar to her acceptance by Christ. In one of the villages containing a population of 10,000, Archdeacon Moule met a lady, the only baptized Christian in the place, who was the fruit of the medical work. A number of inquirers came forward at Tsong-gyiao, fourteen miles from Z-ky'i, but Mr. Goodchild had some doubts as to the genuineness of the revival. In the San-poh Pastorate, under the Rev. Song Vi-Sing, the outlook was hopeful, the old catechist who worked there surpassing himself in energy, and preaching "tersely and directly." Miss E. Green spent some time both at Kwun-hae-we and Ming-ngoh-dziang, visiting the surrounding villages. Mr. Mô Kw'un-Yü inspected the schools at the latter and other places, and reports the baptism of two of the boys and of the parents of some of the children.

"The taste was good, but I forget what it was about."

Terse and direct preaching.

Systematic Evangelistic Work was carried on in the city for three weeks in the summer, and led to several giving in their names as desirous of further instruction, and to five men placing themselves under instruction with a view to baptism. Among the inquirers was a man named Kwu, quite paralyzed and helpless as to his lower limbs, and with both arms emaciated and shrunken, who eked out a small living by teaching two or three scholars, and by making "magical art" papers, horoscopes, charms, &c. He cast away his books of divination, abandoned all his superstitious practices, and began to study the Bible. Archdeacon Moule believes him to be in earnest, and quotes him as saying, "My soul is saved; my heart at peace; hope has come to me; my body is of little value, but God will care for me." A school was opened at Loh-ko-bu, thirty miles from Ningpo, and one of the boys and also four adults were baptized. The work at Ha-p'u was in many respects disappointing, and five of the catechumens withdrew from instruction. At one place a woman over forty years of age was met, who said that she remembered a missionary coming to her village and preaching the doctrine when she was a little girl, but she had never seen one since.

"Hope has come to me."

Literary Work.

Archdeacon Moule's Literary Work included the translation of Goulburn's Personal Religion and the preparation of a new edition of his own Letters to Scholars. Mrs. A. E. Moule translated some Christian stories and allegories for the Society for the Diffusion of Christian Knowledge.

T'AI-CHOW.

T'ai-chow.

The European missionaries of the Society at T'AI-CHOW were the Rev. and Mrs. E. Thompson, the Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Wallace, the Rev. W. Robbins, Dr. and Mrs. S. N. Babington, Miss A. O. Stott, and Miss A. Gilbert. Much of Dr. Babington's time was taken up with the superintendence of the building of the new Hospital. There was an increase of about thirty per cent. in the number of in-patients, and the attendances of out-patients during the first nine months of the year exceeded those for the whole of 1903 by 400. The doctor speaks of the "personally conducted trips" to the dispensary organized by old patients, and says that on one occasion forty persons came for treatment from a place called T'a-bing, many of them taking lodgings in the city, and staying for three weeks. The hospital preacher died of typhoid fever in the summer.

Medical Work.

Several members of the Northern Pastorate under the Rev. Seng Dziang-Kyiae, were confirmed in the spring by Bishop Moule. The Bishop during the same visit dedicated the new church in the city, which has been built from the designs of Mr. Thompson, and has a seating capacity of 400. Such time as Misses Stott and Gilbert could spare from the study of the language was devoted to visiting. They had more invitations to the homes of the people than they could utilize, and both of them dwell on the urgent need of more women workers. In this connexion the former quotes the words of an old woman who said, "It is too late for the old people. We cannot take it in. The words are good, so good, but we can understand such a little because we never heard before." And "It is too late for the old people."

Miss Gilbert writes of a bed-ridden boy who exclaimed, "Do teach me quickly because I want to be one of God's children. Why did not someone come before and tell us about His love?" "Why did not someone come before?"

The Southern Pastorate was under the Rev. Lo King-Nyao, and the Rev. Liu Shing-Ming was in charge of the Far Southern Pastorate, and resided at Tsu-meng, a small city by the sea. Mr. Wallace superintended the work of the catechists in this portion of the district, being sometimes accompanied by Mr. Robbins. He examined about 100 candidates for the catechumenate and for baptism, and was able to pass a goodly number.

SHAOU-HING.

Shaou-hing.

The work at SHAOU-HING, where the Rev. H. Barton was in general charge, was sorely crippled by the sickness of most of the European workers, and by the scarcity of Chinese agents. Every month a doctor attached to Dr. Main's staff at Hang-chow paid a visit of a couple of days to the city for the purpose of dispensary work. The average number of patients seen on each visit was 150. The man and his wife who were mentioned in last year's Report (page 373) as led by what they heard at the dispensary to place themselves under instruction, became irregular in their attendance at the services, and eventually relapsed into idolatry, the man resuming the habit of opium-smoking of which he had been cured. The services at the city church, of which the Rev. Tsong Sieh-En is the pastor, were well attended and there was quite an influx of inquirers, who at the close of the year numbered over fifty. A station class for Christian women and inquirers was held by Miss E. F. Turner and Miss I. S. Clarke at the Chinese New Year, and the former also conducted Bible-classes for Christian women, while the latter was responsible for the instruction of the women inquirers. One of the boys' schools had to be closed in consequence of the resignation of the master, who obtained a more lucrative appointment in the Post Office, and the impossibility of finding anyone to take his place, but there was a slight increase in the number of pupils at one of the two girls' schools. One adult was baptized during the year ending September 30th, and early in the next month four women were received into the visible Church after careful preparation and probation. Among them was a former servant of the ladies. While she was with them she became interested in the Gospel, and on her return to the country she began to work earnestly among her neighbours. After her baptism she attended the services regularly, although her home is at a considerable distance from the city; she frequently arrived on Saturday, bringing her rice with her, in order that she might attend the Saturday afternoon class and remain for the services on the following day.

An influx of inquirers.

Zeal of a former servant of the missionaries.

The Christians at Hao-po had to endure some persecution, chiefly from members of their own clan. They failed to display much zeal for the evangelization of the Heathen around them. Six persons received catechumens' cards at Zia-ko-gyiao in January, 1904, and at the end of the year the church register, after careful revision, contained the names of fourteen men and three women. Miss Clarke in her Annual Letter mentions a striking instance of the value of village schools. She writes:—

Usefulness of a school with only three pupils.

At the beginning of the year 1900, the year of the troubles, I was led to open a girls' school at one of our country stations. Although several mothers spoke of sending their little girls, in the end we only had three pupils. One of these, however, with her mother began to attend regularly the Sunday services, and to be present at evening prayers held in the catechist's house. Notwithstanding the evil reports spread abroad, owing to the terrible persecution of Christians at that time, the mother and child continued faithful in their attendance, and after some months the mother asked for baptism. In due time she was baptized, and now her old mother expresses her desire to be a Christian, having put away all worship of idols and ancestors. The little girl who is now a pupil at one of our city schools, and who seems to be a true Christian, is very anxious to be baptized, and we quite hope she will be before long. That little school out in the country, although held for so short a time and apparently so unsuccessful, was yet the means of wonderful blessing, far exceeding our greatest hopes.

Miss M. E. Gillard resided at Shaou-hing while engaged in language study.

HANG-CHOW.

Hang-chow.

The progress made by Christianity at HANG-CHOW is shown by some statistics supplied by Bishop Moule concerning the three societies working in that city—the C.M.S., the China Inland, and American Presbyterian Missions. The communicants, who numbered 350 in 1884, had increased to 1,479 in 1902; the number of adults baptized in the years 1883 and 1903 respectively rose from 36 to 229; the unbaptized catechumens from 41 to 377; and the native contributions from $320 to $3,048.

Medical Work.

Drs. D. Duncan Main and A. T. Kember continued in charge of the Hospitals, and Mr. H. B. Morgan carried on evangelistic work among the patients. The statistics for 1903 show that 1,023 in-patients were received, and that the visits of out-patients numbered 45,496. Twelve students received systematic training. A number of adults who had been won through the medical work were baptized in July, 1904. Dr. Main quotes the testimony of one of his colleagues to the effect that whenever he visited the Leper Hospital he found one or more of the lepers on their knees, a testimony which the doctor says he can endorse. One of the Christian lepers was called to his rest.

Leper Hospital.

Anglo-Chinese School.

The hope expressed by Mr. T. Gaunt, the Principal of the Anglo-Chinese School, in his Annual Letter for 1903 that the buildings would shortly be full, was realized in the first half of 1904, when at one time there were twenty-six pupils. This success brought with it some difficulties in the matter of teaching English, which were increased by the lack of an English-speaking assistant, Mr. Yang having left at the close of 1903 to teach in a Chinese school at a salary twice as large as that which he had received in the Mission. Consequently some discontent sprang up among the boys, which found expression in the following amusing "round robin" which was presented to Mr. Gaunt:—

"Knowing the quality of your teaching, we do not grudge the heavy expense of coming to study at this school; but since the number of pupils is greater this year, you, sir, are exceedingly busy and cannot instruct each. If you do not engage another assistant master to teach English, not only shall we be unable to recommend other scholars to come here, but also the benefits which the present scholars obtain will be limited. So we venture to petition you to engage within three weeks an additional Chinese master to teach English; then our minds will be set at rest, and we need not remove to another place. We present this with our humble respects, begging you to condescend to examine it."

Since there was some reason in this "thinly veiled ultimatum," as Mr. Gaunt terms it, he appointed a pupil teacher as was requested. One of the boys was baptized in the summer. Mrs. Gaunt visited the families of six of the boys; two of the fathers are connected with the governor's yamen; another is a silk merchant; another of official rank; and the grandfather of one pupil is in the Chinese Customs. In every case Mrs. Gaunt was received with kindness and had good opportunities of speaking about the Gospel. By means of his English Class, which had over sixty members for longer or shorter periods during the year, the Rev. G. W. Coultas was able to influence a number of the better class families. As a "teacher" he was received in the home of his pupils, not as a more or less unwelcome guest, but with the respect which in China is shown by pupils to those who instruct them. He says that many members of his class are Christians from conviction and lead Christian lives. Miss J. F. Moule superintended the Girls' Boarding-school. During the winter months Miss M. Vaughan held a class for Christians and inquirers among the women. Nine of the members were confirmed in January, 1905. One of them, Ah Zen-Sao by name, was formerly a pupil in the girls' boarding-school of the American Presbyterians, but in 1892 was married to a Heathen and lost sight of. But though far from any church or any Christian, she kept true to Christ, and used to read her Bible and pray. In 1904 she moved to a village in the Hang-chow district where there is a congregation connected with the Society. When she inquired whether there was any place of Christian worship in the neighbourhood her husband deceived her by telling her that there was not, but in course of time she discovered the chapel and began to attend the services regularly.

Visiting Chinese gentry.

General Evangelistic Work was carried on under the superintendence of Mr. Coultas by Miss Vaughan, Miss L. H. Barnes (until March, 1904), Miss E. Goudge, Miss A. Graham, and Miss G. Lewin; Miss E. Parker being obliged to devote herself to language study. The book-shop had to be closed because of the difficulty of finding a capable and enthusiastic salesman, but the street preaching was continued, and special attention was given to the crowds of pilgrims who frequent the temples in the spring. In visiting the homes of the people in the city Miss Goudge found the schools a great help. She asks for prayer in behalf of a girl of eighteen who five years ago was a patient in the hospital, of whom she writes :—

Work among pilgrims.

> She and her sister were interested in the Doctrine, and got on very nicely with reading the character and committing several hymns and texts to memory. I visited them a few times after they left the hospital, and then they moved to a country place near Ningpo, and I lost all trace of them. The girl, however, had not forgotten one hymn nor text, and repeated the Lord's Prayer and Creed perfectly. In her own mind she had decided to be a Christian, and directly she got back to Hang-chow she came to tell me so. As she was going to be married we thought it better to wait before sending in her name, but she was persistent in her desire, and informed her friends that she did not mean to join in any idolatry on her wedding-day. It speaks well for her, and for them too, that they did not press her to. Her husband is willing to kneel down in prayer with her of an evening, and occasionally comes to the services. The old mother-in-law is still rather bitter, but she has agreed to let the girl come to church twice a month, and they do not object to our visiting her.

In the country districts also the value of the educational work was abundantly proved, for at Wang-dza, where Miss Graham resided for some months, several people were met who had been taught a prayer by children who attended the mission-school. One of the scholars is the daughter of a woman called Mrs. Law-of-Life, who with her family suffered some persecution. Miss Graham wrote in November :—

A convert and her husband beaten by Heathen.

> In April the Bible-woman came to tell us that Mrs. Law-of-Life had come in great trouble, her husband's relatives having beaten her. We went to see her and found her much bruised and bleeding. She told us that her husband had been beaten also. At that time the husband had made no outward profession of Christianity. He never came to any services, because he said he must work on Sundays, but he declared that he believed in his heart, and his wife told us that he prayed with her. The relatives, who beat them both, are Roman Catholics, and they not only beat and persecuted them, but also put the husband in prison. All this because this year it was Mr. Law-of-Life's turn to receive the money for the ancestral fields: since, however, he refused to do ancestral worship they said he could not receive the money. After the husband was imprisoned, Mrs. Law-of-Life was very sad indeed, and constantly came to us. She begged Miss Vaughan to write a letter to the magistrate, but nothing could be done except pray with and for her and for her husband. The man was kept in prison three or four weeks. During that time much prayer was going up for him.
> Suddenly one day, much to everyone's surprise, Mr. Law-of-Life appeared at his own home. The magistrate had heard both sides of the case, and exhorted the two parties to be at peace with each other. Mr. Law-of-Life said he knew that the Christians had prayed for him, and that his release was due to God's working. We were most thankful that the man was released without the interference of foreigners. Since then Mr. Law-of-Life has been attending the Sunday services most regularly, and very often daily evening prayers.

One man and two women were baptized at Wang-dza by the Chinese pastor, the Rev. Yü Hyien-Ding, in October. Miss Lewin resided at either Nyien-u or Ts'in-ts'ao for the greater part of the year. At Nyien-u, an old woman eighty years of age was called to her rest. When Miss Lewin prayed with her shortly before her death, she exclaimed, "I am trusting, I am trusting," and as the missionary bade her good-bye she said, "Again meet, again meet!" Three women were received into the visible Church. A woman seventy years old, who was baptized at Ts'in-ts'ao, took the name of "Evening Grace." "Again meet, again meet!"

The Committee of the Chinese C.M.S., regarding the district assigned to their evangelist as too large for one man, appointed a colleague to help him, and both the workers were admitted to Deacons' Orders by Bishop Moule in August, 1904, and to Priests' Orders in the following March, as already stated. One of them, the Rev. Tsong Tsae-Seng, was stationed at Fu-yang, and the other, the Rev. Tsong Kying-Fu, at Sing-dzing. The Chinese C.M.S.

CHU-KI.

The European missionaries of the Society at CHU-KI were the Rev. W. Browne and Mr. H. C. Wooldridge. The Rev. Nyi Liang-P'ing was in charge of the Western Pastorate, while the Eastern Pastorate was under the Rev. Dong Dao-Fah, who has since resigned. Bishop Moule visited the district in the summer, and was cheered by observing the presence of a number of women at the services. Chu-ki.

WESTERN CHINA MISSION.

The Province of Si-Chuan was occupied by a party under the Rev. J. H. Horsburgh in 1892, but for more than a year it was impossible to rent houses in any place not already occupied by other Societies. The cities of Chong-pa, Sin-tu, Mien-chuh, Mien-cheo, and Ngan-hsien received resident missionaries in 1894; Shih-ts'uen in 1895; Wei-cheng in 1899; Chong-kiang, Teh-yang, and Tsen-tao-ch'ang in 1903. The Rev. W. W. Cassels, a missionary of the China Inland Mission, was appointed, on the nomination of the C.M.S., Bishop in Western China, and was consecrated on October 18th, 1895.

Reinforcements.

THE Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. Howard Henry Taylor, B.A., L.Th., Durham University, Curate of St. Paul's, Stratford, and Miss Florence Amy Bessie Kempson, of Leamington, trained at Highbury and Bermondsey. Miss A. J. Edwards has been transferred to Western China from the British Columbia Mission. All the above sailed for China in October, 1904.

Miss G. E. Wells came home in December, 1904; Mr. W. J. Fleming (on medical certificate) in March, 1905; Miss L. Mellodey and Miss M. A. Walmsley in April; and Miss M. C. Knight in May. Miss E. D. Mertens sailed for the Mission in October, 1904.

Diocesan Bible Institute.

The object of what is known as the Diocesan Bible Institute at Pao-ning is to train evangelists intending to work under either the C.M.S. or the C.I.M. Mr. A. Lawrence,* who had charge of it, reported that there were five students in the term lasting from March to June, and nine in the autumn term, from September to December. One of the four new students came from the sphere assigned to the C.M.S., the first of the men to do so. The lengthy vacations are spent by the students either at their homes, or at stations where temporary evangelistic work is given them.

MIEN-CHEO.

Mien-cheo.

The steady increase in the congregation at MIEN-CHEO, where the Rev. A. A. Phillips, the Secretary of the Mission, was in charge, necessitated the building of a new church, capable of accommodating about 400 persons, which was nearly completed by the beginning of December, 1904. The bell was the gift of a Chinese gentleman, the owner of an iron foundry. The mission-premises were enlarged at the same time, both the reception rooms and schoolrooms being improved. Mr. A. E. Seward had eighteen lads, sons of the leading gentry of the city, in his "Class for Western Learning," the said "learning," however, not being more advanced than a knowledge of the Bible, English, arithmetic, and geography. The young man mentioned in last year's Report (page 379), the son of the principal of the literary academy, remained firm in his allegiance to Christ, but had not the moral courage to confess his faith openly. The girls' school, under Miss L. Mellodey, had a larger attendance than in 1903,

* As these pages are going through the press, news is received of Mr. Lawrence's death.

and the conduct of the children improved. The dispensary was open every other day, i.e., each market day, and on some occasions in the spring and summer about thirty patients were treated. As usual much of the work was accomplished in the guest hall, which was thronged with students at the time of the Civil Service examinations. Four times in one week lantern lectures were held for their benefit, a small charge being made for admission because of the limited nature of the accommodation. Mr. Phillips emphasizes the accessibility of these men as showing the changed attitude of the people, for but a few years have elapsed since the occurrence of the examinations was regarded as calling for the exercise of special caution lest the students should create disturbances. The building operations excited the curiosity of the people and brought many of them within hearing of the Gospel, and at the Chinese New Year, and during the feasts in the seventh and tenth months, large numbers of women visited Miss Mellodey. Five adults, four of them women, were baptized, and there were several inquirers. Among the latter were two devout Buddhist women, who for upwards of twenty years had kept the vegetarian vow. Coming with many others to the guest hall to pass away idle time, they heard the Gospel, went home convinced of its truth, talked it over with each other, and decided to abandon Buddhism. Soon afterwards they gave up their rosaries, and one of them handed to Miss Mellodey her badge of Vegetarianism. A few months later one of these women died of cancer. When she realized that her end was approaching she asked for baptism and a Christian burial, but her son opposed the former. Another inquirer was a man who was brought into contact with the missionaries at the dispensary, and began to attend the services regularly. He removed the idols from his house, and was glad to testify for Christ as he had opportunity. He died of the plague, to which it was thought he had exposed his constitution by his abandonment of opium smoking.

Services were held every Sunday at Yang-kia-tien, fifteen miles from Mien-cheo, by Mr. P. J. Turner, who assisted Mr. Phillips in the work of the Secretariat, Mr. Seward, or the Chinese catechist. The average attendance was thirty, and it increased during the year.

Miss A. J. Pownall, of the New South Wales Association, a trained nurse, had her head quarters at Mien-cheo. She visited different stations, as her services were required, to care for missionaries who were sick.

WEI-CHENG.

The missionaries at WEI-CHENG, Miss G. E. Wells (until September, when she left on furlough) and Miss C. Carleton, were greatly aided in their work by Uing-Hao, their student helper, who is spoken of as "consistent and faithful." The little band of Christians was thinned by the death of two of its members, an elderly woman and a young man named Wang, the only son of his mother and she a widow, who had been baptized with her in 1902. A Chinese heathen mother would have been inconsolable, but this Christian woman as she stood by the grave-side told her companions that she was not sorrowing for her son; he had only gone before; Jesus had called him first; and she would soon be called to meet him. Against these losses to the congregation must be set the gain from the baptism by Mr. Phillips of five people, each over sixty years of age, on one day, and of the son and daughter-in-law of one of them a few months later. A new building was erected for the boys' school, which had eighteen pupils, and classes for Christians and for inquirers, the weekly sewing-class for heathen women, and the dispensary work were carried on as usual. Miss Wells made an itinerating tour in the winter of 1903–04, and certain of the Christians visited the villages of the district, selling books and preaching, only their actual expenses being paid. Others, however, appeared indifferent to the spiritual welfare even of their relatives and friends, and Miss Carleton asks for prayer that they may be brought to a sense of their responsibility in the matter.

Wei-cheng.

CHONG-PA.

Chong-pa.

Early in 1904 some rooms near the mission-house at CHONG-PA were bought and altered so as to serve as a chapel with accommodation for 150 people. At first the building was filled several times a day, and even when the novelty had worn off about sixty persons attended the services every Sunday. Nearly 4,000 visits were paid to the dispensary, representing just one-third that number of patients. Many of them came to be cured of the opium habit, to which it is said eighty per cent. of the people of the city are addicted. Evangelistic work was continued in the guest hall, and once the missionaries, the Rev. D. A. Callum and Mr. W. L. L. Knipe, were invited to exhibit the magic lantern in a large temple, the mandarin being present and remaining throughout the lecture. Some fifty persons were enrolled as hearers or inquirers of the first stage, and the majority of them seemed to be genuine, but it was felt best not to admit them as catechumens without prolonged testing. A young and well-to-do farmer was baptized in the summer, the second person to be admitted into the visible Church at Chong-pa since work was commenced at the station in 1894.

Evangelistic meeting in a heathen temple.

Opening of a new out-station.

A new out-station was opened at Chang-ming, a city five miles from Chong-pa, in December, 1904. The civil and military mandarins, the aldermen, and some of the scholars of the place, to the number of seventy, accepted the invitation to the opening feast. About twenty men professed interest in the Gospel, most of whom bought Bibles and prayer-books, and were regularly present at the services. Some 2,000 persons came together to listen to the Gospel story as it was told and illustrated by lantern slides from the theatrical stage of the temple, the missionaries having received an invitation to address the people there. Mr. Knipe made four tours in the district, visiting the fairs and selling books. In May, 1904, he went to Kiang-hiu, a town twelve miles to the north of Chong-pa. During his journey he met with many illustrations of the superstitions of the Chinese. He writes:— Chinese superstitions.

One of the first objects of idolatry we met was a rough piece of rock sticking out of the steep bank by the side of the road, in shape something like a horse's head. Some one had made a round ring for an eye, and scratched on it the name "Ma-wang-shen," i.e., "The Horse King Spirit." Fresh incense was burning before it, and there was quite a heap of old incense sticks and ashes.

As we ascended we passed a man and three boys engaged in worshipping every idol on their way up. The man had a gong, two of the boys had small stools with sticks of incense stuck upright in a hole, and their heads were bound up with blue calico. The third boy had a basket on his back with supplies of incense, paper money, and candles.

Whenever they came to a shrine the two boys with the stools knelt down before it with their hands resting on the stools; the man stood by and beat the gong, calling on the god by name; the third boy took a sheet or two of paper money and fixed it by two or three sticks of incense on the heap of incense ash in front of the shrine. When the man finished calling on the god, the kneeling boys arose, made a bow to the idol, and went on to the next one. The man I heard was a professional and the boys were his apprentices. He is engaged by other people to burn incense and fulfil their vows for them. Professional idol-worship.

In one of the side buildings of a temple we found an octagonal structure built round a massive wooden pivot shod with iron, working in an iron socket. The panels were about fifteen feet high, well carved with numerous figures. Men pay a few cash to the priest in charge in exchange for a slip of paper which is hung on the "carriage." On this slip is written the man's age, with day and hour of birth. Then the priests put their shoulders to the huge cylinder and push it round on its axis. This ensures good health to the worshippers and protection from various ills. It is supposed to be more sure in its results than calling in an exorcist to drive away the demons.

In the larger temples the Buddhist priests are in attendance waiting to officiate on behalf of pilgrims. When a worshipper appears the priest on duty at a table endeavours to extract a few cash from him before he sounds the gong or calls upon the god. Three or four cash is about the usual payment, while the priest tries to persuade him to give ten or twelve. Then, while he kneels in front of the idol, the priest taps a big bell and asks for him happiness and health and riches for the rest of the year.

so many people that the church, which was completed in the summer, hardly sufficed to hold all who came. A dispensary for women was added to that for men, and the medical work was instrumental in bringing many people within hearing of the Gospel. The one adult who was baptized during the year was a former patient, as were several of those who were admitted as catechumens. It was hoped to baptize three women at Christmas, 1904, and also two girls belonging to the school carried on by Mrs. Jackson. Six of the pupils unbound their feet. Many visitors were received in the guest halls, especially at the time of the great annual fair in June, which in 1904 was on a larger scale than usual, and lasted for ten days instead of one as is customary. Both the guest halls were then utilized for the reception of women, the men being accommodated in the church, which they filled from morning to night. An out-station was opened at Tsao-hai-gai, five miles from Ngan-hsien, where many new catechumens, as well as the woman whose baptism has been mentioned above, have their homes. Miss Walmsley spent two days a week there, and also paid several visits to Hua-kiai-tsi and Huang-t'u-c'hang, two market towns in the district. Towards the end of the year Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hamilton were transferred from Teh-yang to Ngan-hsien.

MIEN-CHUH.

Mien-chuh.

At the beginning of 1904 the missionaries at MIEN-CHUH were the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. Squibbs, Mr. J. G. Beach, and Miss E. Casswell. They were joined in April by Mr. and Mrs. E. A. J. Thomas, transferred from Sin-tu, and a little later by Mr. W. J. Fleming and Miss A. Wied, two of the recruits of 1903. Most of the time of the new arrivals at the station, however, was taken up with the study of the language, and in December Mr. Fleming was invalided home. Dr. Squibbs, who was in general charge of the work, refers in his Annual Letter to the great changes which are taking place in China, and says:—

A sign of the times.

> She is, in fact, preoccupied with the reform of administration, the starting of commercial enterprises, military preparations, and the advance of education. For instance, it is an unmistakable sign of the times that on the ancient city gates of Mien-chuh we now read such advertisements as those which try to persuade people of all classes to subscribe capital to build a railway in Si-Chuan, and to do it quickly or the English and the French will do it for them, and that will be the beginning of the end of their independence as it was with Manchuria.

Speaking of the difference in the attitude of the people towards missionaries, and referring to some new premises which were taken possession of in the spring of 1904, Dr. Squibbs writes:—

> Where formerly the cry of "Kill the foreigner," "Beat him," &c., followed us from street to street, we are now mostly greeted with friendly smiles and words of respect. The people have found that we have come to stay, and they are now trying to make the best they can of us. So far from the mandarins issuing orders against letting and selling to us, they are rather anxious to see that we are properly accommodated, so that they may adequately protect us. Those who have property at their disposal are not afraid to consider us as customers, knowing that our silver is good and our word as good as our deed. So that, although we were a year or two in finding a house in Mien-chuh to improve on the old one in Three Stars Alley, the slums of the city, the fault was not with the people. Mien-chuh is a large and busy city, and property is at a premium. Moreover, we wanted premises inside the city walls, and the space within the walls is all too limited and none of it lying idle. Friendly attitude of mandarins and others.

As indicating the change in the attitude of the people, it is gratifying to know that our new premises, "Temple Court," as we have called them from their environments, situated in the "Alley of the Temple of the Lord of the Province," were introduced to us by men of honorary official standing in the city, and probably at the instigation of the mandarin. They are the chief part of an old family residence, built about 150 years ago.

The opening of the new premises was made the occasion of the presentation of several congratulatory tablets, one from the street elders of the north ward of the city, another from the church adherents, a third from an old patient of the medical mission, a fourth from the gentry of the neighbourhood, and the last from the official representatives of the city. The change of residence made it easier for the missionaries to reach the middle and upper classes, and one day thirty-five ladies gathered together by invitation to listen to a lantern lecture on the life of Christ. About 4,000 attendances were registered at the dispensary, the most notable patient being the chief medical practitioner of the city, a man whose reputation extends throughout the surrounding country and even to the provincial capital. A primary school was opened, but the competition of a similar school supported by the public funds militated against its success. A number of different classes were carried on for men, women, and children respectively, and the catechumens, a few of whom were admitted during the year, were visited in their homes by Miss Casswell as far as possible. Concerning the general evangelistic work, Dr. Squibbs wrote in November:— Congratulatory tablets presented to missionaries.

The work has passed through a kind of crisis. We have seen the inception, rise, summit, and decline of a wave of popular movement towards the Church. It began during the latter half of last year, and continued this year until, and for a short time after, the opening of our new mission-premises. At one time persons came to us at the rate of more than one a day, with the definite purpose of placing themselves under instruction and determining to seek the Truth. They bought books, attended services, and acquired more or less general knowledge of the main facts of Christian teaching, and this is in itself much to be thankful for, as, in the course of time, the number of such persons amounted to between 300 and 400. Then came, as it were, a series of test cases; the motives of some became distinctly apparent when the affairs for which they had sought our aid came to a head, and they were disappointed. After some such rude shocks the shallow depth of many a soil showed itself in the withering of the shoot. But, notwithstanding, there are many who now appear to be sincerely seeking the Truth who first came to us in this way. Had mere statistics been our object we might literally have A temporary popular movement towards Christianity.

gathered in people by the hundreds, but as it is the numerical increase of baptized Christians is smaller than the year before. The increase is principally in the class of "hearers" and catechumens. The native contributions at the church collections, which are some gauge of interest and attendance, are more than three times those of the previous year.

Burning an ancestral tablet.

An old scholar, named Dai, brought his ancestral tablet to be burnt before the whole congregation on his admission to the catechumenate, and many others destroyed their idols, especially during the first six months of 1904. The mission-press proved most useful, 35,000 leaflets and booklets being issued from it, and the depôt of the British and Foreign Bible Society more than doubled its sales.

Mr. Beach was busily engaged for some months in superintending alterations which were being made to the old mission-house, but he was able to make a few itinerations in the district. The people were generally ready to listen to the Gospel, and deputations came to Mien-chuh from the county town of Shih-fang and ten other market towns and villages, expressing a desire to embrace Christianity.

TSEN-TAO-CH'ANG.

Tsen-tao-ch'ang.

At TSEN-TAO-CH'ANG, which signifies "The Market that Reverences the Word," Miss L. S. Digby and Miss M. C. Knight had the joy of witnessing the baptism of their gateman, named Wang, apparently not the same man as the Wang mentioned in last year's Report (page 384), and of their cook, Mr. Uhss, the converts taking names of Fuh-Sin ("Renewed") and Ch'eng-Sin ("True Heart") respectively. Nearly twenty families burnt their idols in the courtyard of the mission-house. Miss Digby describes the procedure as follows:—

Families burn their idols.

> The men stand on one side of the court and the women on the other, the school children at the end. The idols are put in the middle of the court, paraffin has been previouly sprinkled over them. The people to whom they belong step forward and set fire to them. Then we all sing "Forward go!" After this a Christian prays for the people who have taken this step, and they give us a Chinese bow.

The doctor, named Uh, who destroyed his idols in 1903, became teacher of the school for boys. One of the lads, aged sixteen, was a catechumen, and exercised a good influence in the school. The boys' school was utilized one afternoon a week for a class of ragged children, conducted by Miss Knight, at which some twenty boys and girls assembled, and also a few women who came to listen to what was said to the children. A pupil of the girls' school opposed the entry of Taoist exorcists into her home on the death of her grandmother, and her grandfather, who had been away, supported her action on his return. Every Wednesday evening a prayer meeting was held to which all the adherents, thirty-three in number, were admitted, and in this, Miss Digby says, lay the strength of the work.

One man was baptized at Suen-lang-keo, but another catechumen relapsed, not indeed into idolatry, but into indifference, declaring that he derived no benefit from attending the Sunday services at Tsen-tao-ch'ang.

TEH-YANG.

Teh-yang.

The work at TEH-YANG, where Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gill and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hamilton resided, is still in its infancy and entirely evangelistic. During December, 1903, and the three following months, the average number of persons present at the daily preachings was about 250, but it must be remembered that the period embraced the Chinese New Year, when the numbers were larger than usual. At that time the guest hall was very crowded, and the ladies were thankful to have the help of a Chinese woman, who has since been set apart for that work. Mrs. Hamilton says that this woman was indefatigable in speaking about the Saviour, and that once, when urged to stop and have a cup of tea, she replied, "No, as long as there is a soul to preach to I must remain here and preach." Five or six women regularly came to the sewing-meeting, but the dispensary work was on a small scale, and the girls' school was but sparsely attended. A few persons threw away their idols, and suffered persecution in consequence.

"As long as there is a soul to preach to I must preach."

In the spring the missionaries received cordial invitations from the inhabitants of Lioh-p'ing, a town seventeen miles from Teh-yang, to undertake work in their midst, but in process of time it became evident that underlying the requests was a desire for help in matters of litigation. Mr. Gill believes, however, that some of the people are in earnest. A visit was paid to Han-ceo, fifty li to the south of Teh-yang, where there is one inquirer. Towards the end of the year Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton were transferred to Ngan-hsien.

CHONG-KIANG.

Chong-kiang.

Mr. T. Simmonds resided at CHONG-KIANG, a city containing a population of about 100,000. The district, which is about a hundred miles long and thirty or forty wide, includes nearly fifty market towns. In the whole area of some 3,000 square miles Mr. Simmonds is the only foreign missionary of any society. Services were held every Sunday, and evangelistic meetings during the week. A few persons came for medical treatment, and the guest halls for men and women were open daily. A tailor and a brass-worker are mentioned as coming for teaching, but Mr. Simmonds considered that they required testing.

SIN-TU.

Sin-tu.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. Andrews were joined in April, 1904, at SIN-TU, a town containing a population of 15,000 souls, by Mr. W. Munn. One man was baptized who had refused to worship his father's idols; he had left his home to follow Christ, risking the loss of 200 Chinese acres of land. Two members of the night-school were admitted to the catechumenate. Many people were reached at a new preaching-room which was obtained during the year, and is in a more convenient situation than the portion of the mission-house which was previously used for the purpose. As at other stations, some persons came forward for instruction who were actuated by unworthy motives, and Mr. Andrews gives a translation of a letter which he received from a scholar who had come asking to be taught arithmetic, and who appeared anxious also to learn about Christianity. The letter is as follows:—

Un-worthy motives.

"The venerable teacher, 'Like Rock,' worthy man.

"SIR,—I am much obliged for being instructed of late (I a little child) in arithmetic this rainy autumn, and deeply thank my teacher for civilizing me a little.

"Your slave has been falsely accused owing to a woman named Kien Cheo-Shi and a bad tenant, Huang To-Leng. These have implicated, deceived, and trumped up words to obtain 200,000 cash. The mandarin has ordered payment at once in full. Your slave certainly feels this a grave injustice, and beseeches the teacher to order the carriage and come in person to the city, or nothing will prevail to dispel the local mandarin's ignorance. If you kindly comply we are willing to take this money, viz., 100,000 cash, and give it to the church expenses.

"This is not a meaningless promise. I beseech you come quickly on the eighth or ninth day. I provide your saddled horse and all things necessary during your stay here.

"HUANG TI-HSUIN."

Mr. Andrews paid five visits to Kiu-t'ang, a new out-station, which was occupied early in the year under review.

JAPAN MISSION.

For 230 years, in consequence of the political intrigues of the Jesuit missionaries in the sixteenth century, Japan was absolutely closed to the outer world. In 1853 the long-sealed Empire began to open to European influences, and since that time the country has made most extraordinary progress in the adoption of Western civilization. Still more recent is the toleration now fully accorded to Christian effort. In 1889 a new constitution, formed somewhat on the lines of that of our own land, was promulgated. At the first General Election under this constitution, held in 1890, fourteen Christians were elected to seats in the House of Representatives; and a Christian was subsequently appointed Speaker. In 1899 new treaties came into operation by which the country was thrown completely open to foreigners.

American missionaries arrived in 1859, but for several years they could do scarcely any direct evangelistic work. In 1869, just after the wonderful revolution which restored power to the Mikado, the first C.M.S. missionary landed at Nagasaki. He also could only use quiet and indirect methods of making known the Gospel, and the few converts vouchsafed to his labours were baptized secretly. Since 1874 the Mission has been gradually extended and strengthened. In HONDO, the Main Island, Osaka and Tokyo were occupied in 1874; Gifu, 1890; Fukuyama and Matsuye, 1891; Hamada, 1893; Hiroshima and Toyohashi, 1896; and Nagoya, previously worked by the Wycliffe College, Toronto, Mission, became a C.M.S. station in 1896. In SHIKOKU, Tokushima was occupied in 1888. In KIU-SHIU, Nagasaki was occupied in 1869; Kumamoto and Fukuoka, 1888; Oita, 1894; Kagoshima, 1895; Nobeoka, 1897; Kokura, 1898. In HOKKAIDO, Hakodate was occupied in 1874; Kushiro, 1889; Sapporo, 1892; and Otaru, 1897.

Arrangements were made by Archbishop Tait for the establishment of an English Bishopric in Japan, and his successor, Archbishop Benson, nominated the Rev. A. W. Poole, C.M.S. missionary in South India, to be the first Bishop. He was consecrated October 18th, 1883; but in the mysterious providence of God he was permitted to labour for a few months only; he died in July, 1885. He was succeeded by Bishop Edward Bickersteth, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission, son of the then Bishop of Exeter. In 1893 the Committee undertook, on the invitation of Bishop Bickersteth, to support two new Bishops for the southern and northern islands respectively. Accordingly, on March 4th, 1894, and on June 29th, 1896, the Rev. H. Evington and the Rev. P. K. Fyson, C.M.S. missionaries of twenty and twenty-two years' experience in this Mission, were consecrated, the former Bishop in Kiu-Shiu, and the latter Bishop in Hokkaido. Soon afterwards Bishop Bickersteth agreed with Bishop McKim, of the American Episcopal Church, upon a division of the Main Island into the Dioceses of North and South Tokyo, Kyoto, and Osaka. Bishop Awdry was appointed to the Diocese of Osaka in 1896, and was transferred to South Tokyo on the death of Bishop Bickersteth in 1897, being succeeded at Osaka by Bishop Foss, of the S.P.G., which Society undertook to provide their stipends. Bishop Partridge, of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America, was consecrated to the Diocese of Kyoto in 1900.

IN the Annual Letters of the Society's missionaries in Japan more frequent reference is made to the effects of the war between that country and Russia upon the spread of the Gospel than to any other one subject. Those effects have varied in different parts of the Japanese Empire, and an estimate of them as concerning the diocese of Kiu-Shiu, and references to them as felt at the various stations of the Society will be found below. Here, however, it may be pointed out that the influence of the conflict upon the character of the people demands careful consideration as having a real relation to missionary effort. Bishop Awdry wrote in his diocesan magazine in the summer:—

Effects of the war on Japanese character

> We can see the effect of the war already. The serious tone of those who speak about the war and the future; the scrupulous absence of exaggeration in the official reports of actions; the unreserved freedom with which even military officers tell the people: "You must expects defeats as well as victories. It is a tremendous struggle and may be long, and will leave much distress and poverty behind"; the quiet and thorough working out of plans, and suppression of noisy excitement; the perfect good behaviour towards an enemy that publicly treats them with contempt, while itself breaking the laws of honour and of civilization towards them—things such as these show the making of a national character which, however gay and light-hearted in leisure times, means to be serious, responsible, independent, and to deserve and command the attention and respect of the world.

And in somewhat the same connexion Archdeacon H. McC. E. Price writes:—

Japanese regard for truth.

The principal of an important school told me the other day that in his opinion the greatest force which Japan had wherewith to carry on a successful struggle was the regard for truth which had been inculcated in the minds of those of her people that had come under Confucian influences. I mention the opinion for what it may be worth. It may not agree with what foreigners have been for the most part accustomed to think, possibly because they have come a good deal into contact with those classes that have not come specially under influences which tend to make men truth-loving. Anyhow, the remark quoted may serve to illustrate two points, first, the belief that the Japanese success is due to character, and secondly, the general conviction that she has been fighting for a righteous cause. And these things will, I believe, help rather than hinder the progress of the Gospel. For the belief that the righteous cause must win in the end is not far removed from two great Christian conceptions, one, that there is a Supreme Being Who judges between the nations, and the other, that suffering for righteousness is the way by which the victory for good is attained.

The war not regarded as one between religions.

A disposition to arouse racial and religious prejudices in connexion with the war was manifested for political ends in certain European circles, and to counteract so mischievous and dangerous an influence meetings were held in Tokyo in May and in Hokkaido in July, 1904. The latter was attended by representatives of all religious bodies as well as by the Governor-General of Hokkaido and a number of other officials, and it was addressed by Shintoist, Buddhist, and Christian speakers. At this meeting a resolution was passed in the following terms:—

Although religious liberty was proclaimed in the Empire of Japan some years ago, yet notwithstanding the fact that the present war with Russia is being waged only for the safety of our fatherland and the peace of the world, there are those who assert that it is a war between races and religions. Therefore we representatives of those who profess various creeds here with one accord assembled and with perfect unanimity protest for the truth, viz., that this war has nothing to do with either religion or race; and we heartily pray that peace and happiness may be speedily restored.

Facilities for Christian work among soldiers.

The attitude of the authorities has certainly made it clear that they do not regard the war as one of religions, for in the great majority of cases they have afforded the utmost facilities for Christian work among the soldiers, permitting the distribution of nearly a quarter of a million Scripture portions among the troops by the agents of the British and Foreign Bible Society during the first ten months of the year. It is not without significance of the increased estimation in which Christianity is held by those in high places that it was made a sine qua non that all interpreters who went to the front with the foreign correspondents should be Christians, and that such an incident as the following, which is related in the words of Mrs. W. W. Colborne, should occur. She writes :—

Only Christians appointed as interpreters for war correspondents.

At a hospital in Tokyo there was an entrance examination for nurses preparatory to training, and for this examination there were sixty candidates. Of these four were selected, and all four were Christians. One of the questions asked was, "What is your religion?"; a considerable number said they were of no religion, their motive in making this statement being that they thought they would be considered by the examiners as instructed and advanced, and thus more fit to be nurses.

Christians selected as nurses because of their religion.

After the selection had been made the rejected candidates were asked to meet the doctor in charge of the hospital, who is not a professed Christian; he questioned them as to why they had said they had no religion, and remarked that it was a very bad thing to have none, and the sooner they had one the better. It is evident that the four selected were selected because they were Christians.

Increased friendliness of the Japanese.

The increased friendliness of the official classes is reflected by the people in general, and Mrs. Bickersteth, the widow of Bishop Edward Bickersteth, visiting the land of her husband's and her own labours after an absence of seven years, was "immensely struck with the changed attitude of the Japanese towards Christianity." It seemed to her "as if the attractive force of Christianity, especially the attractive force of the Christian character, was drawing Japan almost to Christ Himself."

Missionary statistics.

The statistics of Christianity, as given by the Missionary Directory of Japan for 1904; show that the Roman Catholics number 58,086; the members of the Greek Church 27,366; and Protestant Christians 55,354. Of the larger bodies of the last-named the most important are the Presbyterian, with 12,471 baptized Christians; the Episcopalian, with 11,451; the Congregational, with 11,419; and the Methodist, with 8,276. The number of Japanese ordained ministers is stated as 406; of unordained helpers (men) as 474; and of Bible-women as 361. These figures show that the Christians are to the whole population but as one to 300, and the ordained Japanese workers to the whole body of Christians as one to 400. But it is acknowledged that in works of charity the example of Christians is already conspicuous. Bishop McKim, of North Tokyo, in a pamphlet written at the request of a committee of prominent Japanese, by whom a series of such pamphlets was issued to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the Perry Treaty of 1854, enumerated the following institutions that are under Christian auspices: thirty-one orphanages, four homes for discharged prisoners, three blind asylums, one home for the education of imbecile children, three houses of mercy, three leper hospitals, two homes for the aged, ten industrial schools, 183 schools for boys and girls, and fourteen hospitals and dispensaries. It is admitted that graduates of mission-schools have done the most effective work for the education of women. The only university for women was organized by a Christian Japanese, who was and is still its president. The only well-qualified school for training young women as teachers of English in Government schools was established and is conducted by an earnest Christian lady who was a teacher in the Peeresses' School at Tokyo. The crusade against the "social evil" has been conducted mainly by Christians, and has been attended with singular success. The almost moribund religions of the country have been startled into energy by Christianity, and there are now Buddhist Sunday-schools, Buddhist Young Men's Associations, and Buddhist organizations for works of charity. Bishop McKim says it is no exaggeration to assert that the influence of Christianity is one hundred times greater than its statistical strength.

Revival of Buddhism.

Reinforcements.

The Japan Mission has been reinforced by Miss Mary Brownlow, who was formerly on the staff from 1897 to 1900; Miss Edith Emily Hughes, of Bournemouth, trained at The Olives, a sister of Miss A. M. Hughes, of the Hokkaido Section of the Mission; Miss Lauretta Leonard Shaw, B.A., University of New Brunswick, of the Canadian C.M.S.; and Miss Edith Eliza Thorp, of Leeds. The three first named ladies sailed for Japan (Miss Shaw from Toronto) in October, 1904, and Miss Thorp in April, 1905. The Committee have accepted the resignations of Miss A. P. Carr and Miss L. Payne, tendered on medical grounds. The Rev. H. R. Wansey and Miss B. Nottidge, who were married in February, 1905, have retired from the Society's work.

Archdeacon H. McC. E. Price is Secretary for the work on the Main Island; the Rev. A. B. Hutchinson is Acting-Secretary for that in the diocese of Kiu-Shiu; and the Rev. D. M. Lang is Secretary for that in the diocese of Hokkaido.

I. MAIN ISLAND.

The Japanese C.M.S. workers in the dioceses of Osaka and South Tokyo held their annual convention at Maezaka, an island on the coast near Toyohashi, in April, 1904. About sixty men were present.

Miss R. D. Howard and Miss E. C. Payne came home in June, 1904; Miss A. L. Archer and Miss M. P. V. Gregg in July; the Rev. V. H. Patrick in August; Miss H. J. Worthington in November; and the Rev. and Mrs. A. Lea in April, 1905. The Rev. V. H. Patrick, who married Miss Ida Florence

Wiseman at Birmingham on September 15th, 1904, sailed with Mrs. Patrick for the Mission in October. The Misses E. Nash and A. Roberts also left for Japan that same month; and the Rev. and Mrs. G. C. Niven, and the Misses E. B. Boulton, R. D. Howard, and O. Julius, in November.

1. DIOCESE OF OSAKA.

OSAKA.

In the course of the year 1904, the Divinity School, OSAKA, received the licence of the Japanese Government, whereby it is empowered to grant diplomas in theology, which rank as equal to the degree of B.A. Students who enter the School with a Middle School certificate or its equivalent also have been given the privilege of postponing conscription. Three men left the School in the spring of the year under review to take up work in the Mission, and others were called away to serve with the colours. One of them, while he was at the School, was taken by conscription and served his time. He then returned to his studies to finish his course, and had just graduated when he was called out. He was with General Oku in nearly all his great battles, and in the battle of Shaho was in the front of the fighting line, and lost half his men. He himself had a bullet in his hat, and his gun also was struck. Writing to the Principal, the Rev. G. Chapman, from the front he said, "I cannot think of any lot happier than mine. If I live to return, there is a great work waiting for me. If I die there is a crown of righteousness waiting for me." Three new students were admitted, two of whom had given up good positions and put themselves to some pecuniary loss in order that they might enter the School. At the end of the year there were ten men in training. The Rev. P. Y. Matsui, one of the tutors, left for a two years' course of study at Wycliffe College, Toronto. Like the Divinity School, the Momoyama Boys' Boarding-school profited by Government recognition, which, being fully accorded, has made it possible for the lads to pass up into higher schools and colleges without hindrance, to postpone their term of military service until the completion of their educational course, and to claim some curtailment of the term of that service. On these privileges being granted the number of pupils increased, but a few boys afterwards left, and in November the names of 300 were on the rolls. The increased attendance, coupled with the raising of the fees, which took place at the beginning of 1904, resulted in an income of from £700 to £800, a sum sufficient to pay the salaries of the Japanese school officials, who consisted of sixteen masters, two clerks, and a head-porter. Eight of these men are Christians, and three or four more are under definite Christian instruction. One of the masters and four of the boys were baptized, the latter being among the fifty lads (nearly half the total) in the third and fourth year classes who came to the Rev. G. W. Rawlings every week for Bible-study after school hours. In addition, several of the day-boarders were admitted into the visible Church. The Principal, the Rev. C. H. B. Woodd, says that never before have the Bible-classes been so well organized nor so well attended, and adds that the school admirably fulfilled its object, which was well defined on the school speech-day by one of the Christian graduates who was leaving. "What," said he to his school-fellows, "is the object of this school? It is to promote the glory of God, and the true head-master should be Jesus Christ."

Girls' Boarding-school.

Miss K. A. S. Tristram, who had the assistance of Miss J. C. Gillespy at the Girls' Boarding-school, says in her Annual Letter that since she first went to Japan, sixteen years ago, she has never known a year giving so many causes for praise as that under review. A new head-teacher was appointed, whose "ability, strength of character, power of influence, and strong, bright faith" made him an exceptionally valuable addition to the staff, and the one non-Christian teacher who was employed left, and was succeeded by a Christian graduate of Tokyo University. At the beginning of the school year in April, 1904, more than 100 new pupils were admitted, the great majority of whom were non-Christians, but a few of them were withdrawn in the summer on account of their having shown in their homes that they were being influenced by the Christian teaching which was given.

Special meetings for school-girls.

In Lent, 1904, some special meetings were conducted in the school by Mr. Kawabe, an evangelist of great experience. Miss Tristram wrote a short time afterwards:—

> From the beginning of the meetings the power of God was felt, but it was on the second afternoon, when the subject was St. John i. 9—confession, forgiveness, and cleansing—that we were first made conscious of the greatness of what was being done among us. One after another confessed definite sins, pride, envy, untruthfulness, anger, evil speaking, ingratitude, &c., till, when the stream of confession had gone on for long, it was suggested that those who still had burdens on their hearts should pray together, and from all over the room, in which there were, I think, over sixty, came the gentle murmur of prayer. I think few in the room were untouched. Before we separated we were reminded that confession must be not only to God, but to any sinned against, or who were connected with the sin, and all were advised to lose no time in doing this by word of mouth or letter. I had to be out for part of that evening, but almost as soon as I returned the stream began, girls waiting in groups on the verandah for their turn to come in and tell me, some of things very hard and humiliating to confess, some of small things only just seen as sin. For two or three days all my evenings were occupied in this way, and I think about sixty in all must have come to me to confess something or other. There were confessions going on all over the school, pupils to teachers, teachers to pupils, girls to one another, and many letters were written to parents and friends. One brought me back a prize dishonestly gained nearly two years before. Another, after the meetings were over, brought the novels that she knew had done her harm, put them into the fire, and as she watched them burning said now she could feel comfortable. She then went upstairs, told her friends what she had done, and another immediately burnt hers there.

The last meeting, that on Friday afternoon, was, after a very short address, given up to testimony. With perfect simplicity one after another spoke. Some of these were just converted from Heathenism, some teachers of long Christian experience. How many witnessed I do not know, but the number seemed very large. Afterwards a small sum of money, collected during the day from thirteen teachers and seventy-two pupils—eighty-five in all—was handed to Mr. Kawabe for his new preaching-place as a thank-offering for blessing received during the week.

I attribute the blessing we have had chiefly to the prayers of others. This revival came little more than a month after the C.M.S. Day of Prayer in London, during which prayer for schools was included. It began ten days after a Thursday prayer-meeting at the C.M. House, at which, I was told this school was specially prayed for, and the day after Osaka and its schools had come in the Cycle.

Blessing attributed to intercessory prayer.

Happily the work accomplished at the meetings has stood the test of time, for in February, 1905, Miss Tristram was able to say :—

Now that nearly a year has passed, I can gladly testify to the lasting results of the good work then. The whole school seemed moved, and there could be no doubt that it was a real and deep work of God. There was such evident conviction of sin, such humble confessions, putting away of sins and bad habits, glad assurance of forgiveness and cleansing, and the fruit of the Spirit in its varied forms was seen practically in the daily life as never before. In some the work was superficial, but I think these were the exceptions, and the whole tone of the school was not only raised but has been kept higher ever since.

The whole tone of the school raised and kept higher.

It is of deep interest to note that the effect of these meetings has not been confined to Japan. The account of them quoted above was printed in the C.M. Gleaner, was read and marked by the missionaries engaged at the Girls' Boarding-school, Calcutta, and led to a revival among the girls at that school similar to that experienced at Osaka. Missionaries in other places, too, refer in their reports to the impression made by Miss Tristram's good news, and speak of special prayer being offered for a like revival in their spheres of work. Great blessing rested upon the ordinary teaching in the school as well as upon that given at the special meetings, for in her Annual Letter Miss Tristram speaks of thirty of the children as having recently confessed their faith before others, though some of them were not able to ask for baptism on account of opposition in their homes. She attributes the movement to the head-teacher mentioned above, who conducted a Bible-class for the older non-Christian girls, and to some of the Christian girls, who by prayer and personal effort had been endeavouring to win their companions for the Saviour. Independent testimony to the general tone of the school was borne one day by a non-Christian, who said to Miss Tristram, "Oh, yes, I know all about your school; it is the 'Spirit-power' school." Nineteen of the girls were baptized during the year,

Baptism of nineteen school-girls and eleven confirmed. Another cause for thankfulness was the conduct of one of the pupil-teachers. To quote Miss Tristram again:—

"Steady growth in grace."

> Her father is a wealthy landowner, and he and the mother are not Christians, but are liberal-minded people, and when she told them plainly she could never marry a Heathen they agreed to let her have her own way. She left us last April to be married to the head of a Christian orphanage about three miles out of Osaka, knowing well that in doing so she was going to a life of self-denial and work that but few would willingly face, but to which she knew God had called her. Ever since her conversion some years ago she has been a particularly bright Christian, and while in school I never saw a life of more steady growth in grace than hers. She was continually pressing on to something fresh, and a talk with her was always a help to me. Her father was ready to give her a handsome trousseau suited to her position, but she knew that at the orphanage she would have no special need for the costly clothes she might have had, so she asked for only plain though good ones, and spent what was over on new clothing for the seventy orphans. About her furniture she did the same, and after getting a chest of drawers and a few other necessaries, the remainder was spent on a harmonium for the orphanage services. The orphans' clothes were all made by the girls in the school here, and they were a good deal impressed by the example of unselfishness shown them. As I quite expected, the young wife is doing a splendid work in the orphanage, and exerting a strong influence on workers and children alike.

Congregations.

In the spring of 1904, the Rev. N. Fukada was transferred from Hamada to assume the pastoral charge of the congregation worshipping at Holy Trinity Church. Every week a meeting was held for the Christian women and another for inquirers, but Miss Tristram, who superintended the work of the Bible-woman in connexion with the Church, says that neither the attendance of the women at the services and meetings, nor their efforts to bring others to the light were what they should be. The Rev. P. G. Kawai was pastor of the Church of the Saviour. There was a distinct improvement in the behaviour of the congregation of Jonan Church, where the Rev. W. Seki, a Japanese deacon, was quasi-pastor under the superintendence of Mr. Rawlings. A few laymen carried on a Sunday-school, the attendance at which was rather spasmodic, and first Miss Hamilton, an independent worker, and then Mrs. Woodd laboured among the women. Two members of the congregation of the Church of the Resurrection, of which the Rev. Y. Mori was in pastoral charge, left for the front early in the year, and others expected soon to follow them.

Work among students.

So far from diminishing the opportunities for Evangelistic Work, the war served to increase them, for although some of the older methods were difficult to pursue, new opportunities opened before the workers. The Rev. C. T. Warren, who was in general charge of this branch of missionary effort, wrote in the spring of 1904 that the English night-school then contained from seventy to eighty students, and was as full as was convenient, and that the number of people attending the preachings was if anything larger than usual. Archdeacon Price and Mr. Rawlings taught ethics in English to the students, 200 in number, of the Higher Technical School, the latter speaking to some sixty students in school hours every Saturday morning on such subjects as pride, avarice, sloth, luxury, &c. He made a point of illustrating his remarks from the Bible, which came to be regarded as the text-book of his lessons, so much so that many of the young men began to bring their Bibles with them and carefully study the references. Five of them commenced to attend the Bible-class which was held on Sundays for teachers and students from various schools. A similar class for Normal School students was less successful than that just mentioned, but a teachers' class which Mr. Rawlings conducted weekly in his own house brought together a thoughtful and intelligent set of men. Some twenty girls belonging to two of the Government Schools in the city attended the classes for English followed by Bible teaching, which were conducted by Miss Gillespy. During the first half of the year Miss. E. M. S. Huhold continued her German class for medical students, which had fifteen members. She attached special value to the opportunities which she had of teaching them about Christ, because all of them came from Tokyo, where they had already learned something of Christianity, but unhappily had drawn their ideas largely from a book written by a clergyman, not of the Church of England, in which miracles were denied, and the Saviour was represented solely as a man. Miss Huhold also had a class composed of six cadets, and gave instruction to about sixteen other men who came to her regularly. Among the latter was a prominent doctor, who had two hospitals of his own. Several whom she had hoped would come out on the Lord's side were called away to the war. Miss Huhold says:—

Class for medical students.

One of them wrote to me in his farewell letter:—"Though not yet baptized, I am a Christian at heart." Another, who had always listened well, but had never expressed his thoughts, after having first answered my question, "Do you believe that we are sinners?" with "Yes," when I asked him again, "Why do you believe that we are sinners?" answered, "Because I know myself." As he had never before said anything about himself and his feelings, this self-knowledge surprised me very much. Certainly, God himself had opened his eyes, for being a rich, honoured, and highly esteemed young doctor in the big Osaka hospital, no outward things could have given him this knowledge of himself.

"I am a Christian at heart."

In the summer Miss Huhold had to modify the arrangements of her classes in order to take advantage of the openings for work among the soldiers, in which Misses Holland and King-Wilkinson, two ladies not officially connected with the Society, but closely associated with its missionaries, took a prominent part. The first named, who devoted herself to visiting the hospitals, containing 10,000 beds, established in the grounds occupied by the Osaka Exhibition in 1903, wrote:—

Visiting military hospitals.

The wards I visit contain about twenty-four beds each. I go in, look round to find a somewhat serious-looking face, go up to the man, and bow. Immediately he makes room for me and invites me to sit on his bed (for chairs there are none). Soon all the people in the ward who are able to leave their beds crowd round us, sometimes ten, sometimes twenty, and sometimes about thirty people. I question them a little to hear what they know about Christianity, and in order to find out how they are disposed towards it. Of course, sometimes it is only very little which one is able to teach them, as those with only slight wounds leave the hospital very quickly, but those who are there about three weeks or longer can be brought to understand more, and gladly they give their home address in order to be visited and to get more teaching.

Once I asked a man if he was not impressed by what he heard; he answered, "No, not in the least." But before I uttered a regretful, "Oh," six others from the surrounding group said one by one, "But I feel it, and I wish to become a Christian." But it is not only the soldiers in the hospital who come to hear. Nearly every time I have been there two or three men nurses listened as well attentively; also when there are workmen in the room they soon stop their work and come to listen. The last time I was there the soldiers stopped the working of the carpenter in order that they might be able to hear. Once on leaving the hospital one of the servants shouted to me from a distance, "Oh, I believe firmly in the Christian God. Please give me a book" (meaning one of the Gospels which I had been distributing). And not only this, the people who live in the neighbourhood of the hospitals, seeing the free entrance we have to the soldiers, are also most ready to hear.

Readiness to listen to the Gospel.

Work among soldiers at the railway station.

Another means taken to influence the soldiers was by going to the railway station and speaking to them as they passed through. A deeply interesting account of this work, written by Miss Tristram, appeared in the C.M. Gleaner for January, 1905, from which the following extracts are taken:—

Many officials at the station seemed greatly interested in the work. The military officers in attendance to see the troops through invited Miss Holland to make use of their office as much as she pleased, and have placed cupboards and drawers at her disposal for stowing away her tracts and hymn-sheets. They openly show not only their approval but their true interest and almost partnership in the work, putting themselves to real inconvenience to help her. They have taken every pains to inform her of the hours at which trains are expected, begging her not to let any be missed. Having seen the night train out at half-past one, they have begged her to stay on for the four o'clock morning one, and if she did not quite do that, she often managed to be there for it, and found the men specially grateful, and as ready to hear the Gospel then as at any other hour. The officers also have begged her to press the Japanese Christians to come, and this, notwithstanding that after the first few weeks of the troop train passing they discouraged the general public, and admitted no one to the platform without permission. The Christian work has been the only thing specially encouraged at the station, and an officer said to her one day, "If only the people of our land would live in accordance with God's will, what a happy thing it would be!" The officers have often helped to distribute the tracts, and to pacify the men if they did not go round, telling them to share.

Christian work the only thing specially encouraged by officers.

Many of the officers have been specially warm in their expressions of gratitude. One of them took great pains to introduce Miss Holland to Marquis Oyama as he passed through, and he thanked her for what she was doing for the soldiers. General Nozu specially asked to be introduced to her, questioned her about what she was teaching, and wrote to her afterwards from Manchuria, thanking her for her work, and speaking with admiration of the high ideal held up by Christianity. One day as Miss Holland began to give her books in a carriage, a man told her in a delighted tone that there were "nine Christians there together; yes, nine of us all in one carriage. May we sing to you?" A tune-book was produced by them, and together they lustily sang, "Stand up, stand up for Jesus." Another day as the men were standing at attention in ranks before stepping into the train, she asked leave to give her books there, and while doing so a soldier said in a clear voice, well heard by the men near him who were standing silently, "I am on my way to the war, and I shall be killed. I am going to be with my Saviour. I am not afraid, for I am going to heaven." Some of those who heard him laughed derisively, at which he only said in a louder tone that could be heard by more of the men, "I know where I am going, and death to me is only the beginning of life eternal." Miss Holland has had many letters from soldiers at the front, or on their way there, asking for further instruction.

General Nozu writes of the high ideal held up by Christianity.

"I am not afraid, for I am going to heaven."

At the commencement of the war all the trains conveyed troops going to the front, but as time passed many of them contained sick and wounded returning from the seat of war. The latter remained at the station a longer time than the former, and rather fuller teaching was possible. Miss Tristram says:—

If the patients have a long wait, Miss Holland often gives them tea, which they accept gratefully. Then she asks if they would like singing, which is always welcomed. It seems really to be a comfort to them, and the favourite hymns are, "Tell it to Jesus," and "Only believe," this latter beginning with the story of the Cross and the need of salvation, and going on to tell of fellowship with Christ. Another hymn much liked begins, "On the Cross uplifted, see Jesus Christ the Lord." The girls from the school constantly go to the station and help in the singing, and are glad to have this little bit of ministry for the soldiers. Once, when a train stopped only for a few minutes, Miss Holland thought she could do nothing but give her cards and papers, but a porter came and begged her to sing. "There is no time," she said. "Oh, yes, there is time for one hymn. Do sing." And she did. The officials will often come to tell her she has just five minutes more, or only two minutes, anxious for her to go on as long as she can, and they will tell her when she must get out.

"There is time for one hymn. Do sing."

Copies of the monthly evangelistic paper, entitled The Light of the World, were distributed among the soldiers, and a number were sent for the men of the navy as well.

HIROSHIMA.

When 1904 opened Miss A. C. Bosanquet and Miss M. P. V. Gregg were the European missionaries at HIROSHIMA, the work being superintended from Fukuyama by the Rev. H. Woodward, but in April Miss Gregg left on furlough, and two months later the Rev. J. Williams returned from England and resumed the supervision of the work. The Christians at the station formed themselves into a Church and chose Mr. Murata, the catechist, to be their lay pastor, his salary being drawn from the pastorate fund of the Japanese Church. Many of them assisted in the work of the Sunday-school, and made it possible to divide the children into classes more systematically. There were numerous openings for visiting the families of soldiers at the front, but they could not be utilized because of the lack of workers. Among those baptized during the year were a soldier on his way to the front, a young man who was unexpectedly called to military service, and two other young men who had been hindered by their families, but at length decided to risk the consequences of an open confession of their faith.

A soldier baptized on his way to the front.

As at Osaka, the time of the missionaries was much occupied with ministering to the soldiers. The sick and wounded in the hospitals were visited by the courtesy of the officials, the different Missions at work in the city arranging among themselves so that all the hospitals should be reached. Mr. Williams says that he only met one man who refused to accept a tract, while he was often almost mobbed by the convalescents in the corridors, so eager were they to get something to read. Miss Bosanquet also speaks of the willingness of the patients to listen to the Gospel, but she adds some words which should be borne in mind when any estimate is formed of the probable results of this form of work. She writes :—

Tracts eagerly sought for by sick and wounded soldiers.

> It must not be supposed that the attentiveness of the patients necessarily implies a wish to learn about Christianity. Anything novel attracts a crowd, and they are polite enough, generally, not to express their own views aloud in our presence. In one ward which I often visit I hoped that some of the men were really thoughtfully interested, but a Christian who was there for a long time called here on his discharge the day before yesterday, and when I asked him, said, with a smile, that he only knew of one who cared at all, and he had left. "They listened quietly while you were there, but afterwards said all sorts of things—not particularly bad things, but that Japan had her own religions, and there was no need for another, and so on." One may be easily deceived, I think, by the semblance of interest, which does not really mean much. Still, we have our opportunity to make Christ known, and a quiet hearing, and that is much.

Interest possibly only apparent.

Work was carried on among the outgoing troops, many of whom embarked for the front at Hiroshima, and a large number of Gospels were distributed among them by the agents of the British and Foreign Bible Society. Miss Bosanquet tells a touching story of one man who heard the Gospel while waiting at Hiroshima :—

> A Christian corporal, quartered near our preaching-place, asked Murata San to visit his house and talk to the men with him. Some listened thoughtfully and some seemed indifferent, but they came to the preachings, and the corporal made good use of opportunities, not shrinking from discussions and attacks, for he is a fearless, outspoken man. It was only on the last day of his stay here that we discovered that he was a skilled master in the art of flower decoration. He asked to be allowed to arrange some flowers for us and the catechist, to leave as his parting gift. Then they all went off. Now he is back again in hospital, with a bullet in his arm. He and the others were in the terrible fight at Nanshan. Thirteen of them were chosen to go forward under hot fire to cut the Russian nets. One after another fell. The Christian was only wounded in the left arm, but his gun was shattered. One of the others, who had seemed indifferent when Murata San talked to them here, had greatly changed after they started, reading the Bible earnestly and often talking about it to the Christian. He fell, mortally wounded, and when the Christian crept to his side and wanted to try to bind up his wounds, he said quietly, "Never mind me, don't trouble about me. I have believed in Jesus Christ." The Christian saw that the end was near, so he repeated, "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me." Soon after the poor fellow was hit again and died. Among his last words were, "I have been laid hold of by Christ Jesus." The Christian's own faith was much strengthened by this beautifully peaceful end to the life of a comrade whom he had worked so loyally to bring to God. I have seen the Christian twice in hospital. He talks in his big hearty voice there, not caring who hears, and one day the man in the next bed was listening respectfully. His New Testament was open by his pillow, and he took it up, saying, "I will show you the words which helped me at the war," and showed me 2 Cor. iv. 16, which might be read something like this in the Japanese version: "Wherefore we are not afraid; even though our outward man may be injured, our inward man is renewed day by day." This man took his heavy Old Testament to the war (as well as a pocket New Testament) and only gave it away to the nurses on the hospital ship on his way back.

"I have been laid hold of by Jesus Christ."

Prospects were bright at Kure, notwithstanding the hindrance arising from the constant ebb and flow of the population, characteristic of that as of many other places in Japan. At the request of the wife of Admiral Shibayama, who was afterwards appointed Commander-in-Chief at Port Arthur, Miss Bosanquet visited a naval lieutenant who was ill. He died at the end of the year, apparently trusting in the Saviour.

FUKUYAMA.

The attitude towards Christianity of the people of FUKUYAMA, where the Rev. H. Woodward was in charge, has greatly improved of late years, and the hostility which at one time was evinced has almost passed away. The services were attended by numbers of Middle School students until the near approach of the examinations, and the interest taken in religion by students in general was remarkable. Mr. Kodani, one of the catechists, one day saw a magazine published by a band of the Middle School students, and found that the majority of the articles in it dealt with religion, and that in them it was maintained that Christianity was the life of national morality. A non-Christian wrote that Christianity was the best of religions, and was awarded the first place for his article. A number of ladies belonged to the cooking and needlework classes, some of whom wished for baptism but were unable to obtain the consent of their husbands or fathers. Eight members of the Bible-classes, conducted by Miss L. A. Galgey, were received into the visible Church, besides fourteen pupils, nine of them old enough to be classed as "adults," belonging to the six Sunday-schools in the district, which at one time contained 700 pupils. Miss Galgey writes concerning some other converts:—

Fukuyama.

"Christianity the best of religions."

the change she saw in her son after he became a Christian. A father, who for a long time refused to allow his son to be baptized but at last consented, said to me the other day, "I have watched G., and now I am not only quite willing" (I was asking his consent to the baptism of another of his family) "that all my children should be Christians, but if an old man could become a Christian I should like to be one myself."

The missionaries, accompanied by some of the Christians, frequently went down to the railway station to minister to the wounded soldiers who passed through. Preaching to non-Christians was regularly carried on at Fuchu, and at Tomotsu the work among the convalescents, who for a time were stationed there, brought the missionaries much into contact with the principal ladies of the town. Mr. Woodward was invited to teach English and Christianity in a night-school organized at Onomichi, a large town about an hour by train from Fukuyama, by several people of good standing.

HAMADA.

Hamada.

Archdeacon Price was in general charge of the work in the HAMADA district until May, 1904, when the Rev. T. Makioka was transferred thither from Tokushima. A new church, towards the cost of which the Christians contributed $247, was consecrated by Bishop Foss in the autumn, among those present at the service being the Chief Justice, the Judges, the Chief of the Rural Division, and the Principals of the two Middle Schools. A number of classes were held by Miss F. M. Fugill and Miss J. Mackie, including a cooking class for teachers at the High School, officers' wives, and others; a knitting meeting; a class for girls of the High School; and two for candidates for confirmation and baptism respectively. Until war was declared Miss Fugill carried on an English meeting for officers, which had thirty-three members. All of them gladly took a Bible with them when they left, and Miss Fugill frequently had letters from them afterwards. She mentions a striking incident in connexion with a young educated soldier:—

English meeting for officers.

He came here early one morning and brought a piece of thorny briar; he showed it to me and said, "I once saw a head crowned with thorns like this, and I can never forget it; and whenever I have things to bear in the barracks the thought of this picture helps me. Can you tell me about it, and has it anything to do with your religion?" You can imagine what joy it was to put a Bible into his hands, and read and explain the trial and death of our blessed Lord. He simply drank in every word. It seemed as though his whole soul was thirsting for the Living Water. We had no pastor then, so I arranged to teach him every Sunday after the Sunday-school. I never have much voice left after teaching eighty or ninety children, but God gave me extra strength for the extra work. He very soon grasped the way of salvation, and made up his mind to follow Christ. We were talking about his being baptized, when quite suddenly his company was ordered to the front; he came to say good-bye and prayed so earnestly. I get long letters from him, full of hope and joy. He tells of wonderful peace given in the midst of battle, how marvellously his life has been spared when all around him have been shot down, what comfort he finds in reading his Bible and in prayer.

Before the regiment went to the front the ladies were invited by the commander to a farewell dinner, to which the governor of the province and other high officials were also asked. At first they declined the invitation, but the commander said that they were the only two English ladies in the province, and pressed them to go and represent the sympathy of England. Accordingly they went, and were treated with great kindness. Six adults and eight children were baptized, among them being the drawing master and one of the pupils of the boys' school in the town. Six adults baptized.

The catechist was withdrawn from Omori, and the preaching-place closed, but on the other hand a Japanese agent was once more stationed at Masuda, which had been abandoned as an out-station five years previously. Two men were confirmed there in November; one woman was baptized, and another was admitted as a catechumen. Miss Mackie spent some time at Oye and other places, conducting meetings for the women and children.

MATSUYE.

Matsuye. MATSUYE, the capital of the Idzumo province, is one of the chief strongholds in Japan of the Shinto cult, and not far from the town there lives a Shinto hierarch to whom divine honours are paid. The people are admitted to be inferior, both morally and intellectually, to those in the neighbouring provinces, partly through their being far from a railway and so in some measure cut off from the rest of Japan. The officials and teachers in consequence have a tendency to be sceptical, incredulous of the supernatural, and impatient of the foreign element in missionary work. A new church, in which 150 people can be accommodated, was consecrated in November, 1904, and was well filled during the convention which was held shortly afterwards. A Bible-class for the teachers and boys of the Middle School was held by the Rev. W. R. Gray, who was in general charge of the work, and Miss Head, an independent worker, also laboured among the student class. That class is strongly represented at Matsuye, for the town contains schools of secondary, normal, technical, agricultural, and elementary grades, with an aggregate of some 4,000 students. From time to time meetings were conducted for these young men, and two Normal School students were baptized in March, 1904. The Rev. O. H. Knight writes as follows of the importance of influencing the normal students in particular:— Importance of work among normal students.

> The Normal School in Japan is the training-place for the ordinary school-teachers, and work among them is of infinite importance. Each one as he graduates after a four years' course goes forth to this or that little village to teach in the local schools. Being a government official he is looked up to by the children and the villagers with particular veneration, and has vast opportunities for influencing his pupils either for good or bad. One of the chief obstacles to the Gospel in Japan is the strong opposition on the part of these teachers, nor is it too much to say that if they were Christians Japan would be Christianized in five years. The Spartan-like discipline which they have to undergo during the four years of training makes them peculiarly susceptible and docile while in statu pupillari, but once they get into the world they become proportionately hardened, and it is almost impossible to touch them.

A favourable time for Christian effort.

After the convention mentioned above special evangelistic meetings were held in the town, and resulted in several persons accepting Christianity. Indeed Mr. Gray regards the present as an exceptionally favourable time for Christian effort. He says:—

> The war has made the people more alive than ever before to their powers and responsibilities; and the practical sympathy it has elicited from the Christian body, both native and foreign, has opened many eyes to what is Christ-like and therefore attractive in the Gospel. The sore distress which war brings has disposed many, both among those who are now at the front and among those remaining behind, to turn to the sole Dispenser of true comfort.

Evangelistic campaigns, each lasting for a week, were carried on in several places in the district with drum and lantern processions, open-air meetings, house-to-house visitation, and Bible-selling. At Hirata Mr. Gray was allowed to speak to 600 boy and girl students of the elementary and higher schools, before the principal teachers and some of the officials of the town.

Yonago.

The congregations at YONAGO, where Miss M. Sander resided, nearly doubled during the year, and the Christians at their own expense enlarged and improved the little church. The Sunday-school is the largest of the eight in the district, and there was remarkable evidence of the working of the Holy Spirit among the children. When Bishop Foss, Archdeacon Price, and Mr. Gray visited Yonago they were allowed to give Christian addresses to the staff and students of the Middle School.

In the summer Mr. Gray paid a visit to Oki-no-kuni, a little group of islands about 100 miles north of the mainland. He found that most of the few Christians at Saigo, the capital, were there temporarily for purposes of trade, but among the resident converts were a judge and a town official. Once, as he was preaching in the open-air, Mr. Gray was taken by the people for a Russian spy. But the catechist who accompanied him pointed to him and said:—

A missionary taken for a Russian spy.

> "This is not a Russian spy. Missionaries don't bring warships and torpedo-destroyers, but they turn up weekly here and there in little country places with concertinas, Bibles, and hymn-books. They are despised as fools, but they despair of none. For they say, if only this and that poor thing may be introduced to Jesus Christ he will become a real human being."

Thirty-two adults were baptized in the district during the year, one of the converts being a prison official who was afterwards called to join the Manchurian army.

TOKUSHIMA.

Tokushima.

The Rev. T. Makioka, who superintended the work at TOKUSHIMA, in the Island of Shikoku, was transferred to Hamada in May, 1904, and his place was taken by the Rev. S. Heaslett, who had been labouring at Nagasaki. After Mr. Kuroki's departure Mr. Nuki, "a faithful and earnest worker," acted as pastor of Immanuel Church, the congregation of which displayed much enthusiasm in the matter of self-support. An interesting service took place in the spring when the young widow mentioned in last year's Report (pages 405, 406), to whose "beautiful life" Miss E. Ritson refers, was married to one of the catechists. There were many openings for work among students, and Mrs. C. F. Warren carried on a class for English and Bible study for the teachers and girls of the High School. Meetings for Christian women were conducted by Miss E. Ritson in the homes of the different members in turn, and other meetings for non-Christians were held from time to time. In the autumn a special effort was made to reach the families of soldiers who had gone to the war. The names and addresses of the men were obtained, and the families were invited to magic-lantern meetings in batches of from thirty to fifty. Gatherings for children were held at eight centres in various parts of the city, great help being rendered in this branch of the work by the daughter of Mr. Makioka, a graduate of the Osaka Girls' Boarding-school. Six of the young people were baptized, and a student of the Normal School, who as a child used to attend one of these meetings, and received a copy of St. John's Gospel, was under regular instruction with a view to baptism. Adult baptisms numbered thirteen. Miss Ritson gives interesting details of some of the converts. She writes :—

Work among soldiers' families.

Evangelistic zeal of women Christians.

I have been thankful to see an earnest desire on the part of many of our women Christians to lead others into the same joy to which they have come themselves. The mother and wife of the judge who were mentioned in last year's Report (page 404) have been especially zealous, and as a result we now have the wife and mother of another judge earnest Christians: they were baptized on July 14th. The wife is connected with the Women's Patriotic and Red Cross Associations, and uses her influence to try and draw her lady friends to come and hear about the Christian religion. She also lends books to her husband's clerks, one of whom has already been led to the fold of Christ, and was baptized on Christmas Day. It has been very wonderful to watch the growth of this mother and daughter, to whom were given the names of Naomi and Ruth in their baptism. The old lady had been desperately in earnest over her worship of idols, but when she heard of the one true God, she began to cry from her heart in the words of the Prayer Book, "O God, make speed to save us. O Lord, make haste to help us." Morning, noon, and night, and even when she awakened in the night, she was praying this prayer; and God answered her prayer, and has given her the joy of salvation, which astonishes her beyond measure.

Ruth, the younger lady, was completely won by the love of the Saviour, her eyes filling with tears again and again as she looked at the pictures of the thorn-crowned Saviour, &c., and thought of His wonderful love.

Two of the other women are hospital nurses. One of them had heard the Gospel from Miss Wynne Willson, but it was not until she knew that she might be called out at any moment to nurse the sick and wounded in this war that the thought came to her that she "must have peace in her own heart before she had to go," and so she came to ask would we teach her and help her to become a Christian. It was a great joy a few weeks later to hear her own words of thanks to God for the blessing which had now come to her; and she had the satisfaction and comfort of receiving baptism the very night before she left for Matsuyama.

Baptism of two hospital nurses.

Among the other women are a girl in a needlework school, led to be a Christian by the friend who lodged with her; then the wife and daughter of one of our Christians, whom idols and fear of relatives have kept back until now; one old lady of over seventy, whose daughter and son helped to lead her; and last, but not least, the wife of another judge, who has until lately suffered terribly from mental depression at times, and been a great anxiety to her husband and mother-in-law, but is now, through the blessings of the Gospel, an earnest and joyful Christian.

Gratifying zeal was shown by the Christians at Muya. In preparation for some special evangelistic meetings which were held, they made an effort to visit every house in the town and give a personal invitation to the gatherings, and often, armed with a magic-lantern which they had purchased, accompanied the catechist when he visited the surrounding villages. There were four baptisms in this district. The work at Wakimachi was hindered by the inconsistencies in the lives of professing Christians. At Tomioka a large number of the students of the Middle School attended the English Bible-class at the preaching-place.

2. DIOCESE OF SOUTH TOKYO.

TOKYO.

Tokyo.

THE European staff of the Society at TOKYO consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. W. P. Buncombe, the Rev. and Mrs. V. H. Patrick, Miss O. Julius (from November), Miss E. C. Payne (until April, 1904), Miss K. M. Peacocke, Miss H. J. Worthington (until October), Miss G. A. Reid, and Miss H. G. Langton. Miss Worthington had the assistance of the last named at the Hostel for Girls, which has had thirty-eight members since its institution in 1898, thirteen of whom have become Christians. During 1904 the average number of boarders was four, three of them being Christians. One girl after a few months at the Hostel asked to be received as a catechumen. Classes for married ladies, for girls belonging to the Peeresses' School, for teachers, &c., were conducted by the women missionaries, and were instrumental in winning seven girls who were admitted into the visible Church during the year. One of them was a graduate of the Technical School. She was very diligent in speaking to others about the Saviour, and was permitted to interest several other students in Christianity and to lead one of them to ask for baptism. Of the parents of two members of the second class just mentioned Miss Langton writes :—

The father was until lately a member of the Imperial Household, but owing to illness he has had to give up all his work and lead an invalid's life. We heard through a relative that he had said that they had riches and everything that money could buy, but that their hearts were cold, and they needed something to warm them and bind them together as a family. This he thought Christianity would do, and he asked whether we would go and teach them. We went and found both him and his wife most ready listeners, and the man, whose temper is not of the best, remarked most pathetically that he thought Christianity would make him more gentle. I sent them a Testament and some Christian books, and they have been reading steadily. We went again this week; the Testament was very soon produced, and my worker explained part of St. John iii., to which the man listened in silence, but the wife asked a good many questions. We were there very nearly an hour, and they were so grateful. They are most anxious for the two daughters to be baptized.

"Christianity would make him more gentle."

Visiting was carried on in the homes of the ladies who attended the classes, and Miss Worthington mentions a baroness who expressed her desire for regular teaching, influenced it was believed by the consciousness that she needed a tayorenushi, i.e. one to trust in, since her eldest son had gone to the war. Thirty-six persons were baptized at St. Paul's Church, of which the Rev. M. Tomita was pastor. The congregation contrived to raise sufficient funds to meet all their expenses in spite of the difficulty in doing so caused by the war. The weekly meeting for Christian women was well attended, thanks to the efforts of Mrs. Suzuki, the Bible-woman. Miss Peacocke, who had several girls in training as Bible-women, conducted a weekly women's meeting, in connexion with Emmanuel Church, where eleven persons were baptized. At Fukugawa mission-hall good work was accomplished by the earnest catechist and his wife.

A baroness asks for regular instruction.

The usefulness of the Whidborne Hall as a centre of Evangelistic Work continued unabated, and twenty-four of those baptized at St. Paul's Church during the year were the fruits of the meetings there conducted. A Bible-class was set on foot at the hall for those who came forward as inquirers, the members of which were encouraged to take part by prayer and praise. Mr. Buncombe says that some of the testimonies given were of much interest. He writes :—

Work at the Whidborne Hall.

A schoolboy, a quiet, nice-looking lad, said, "Before I believed, I used to spend my evenings in reading bad books; now I do my studies instead, and have no more wish to read that kind of books." Another Middle School student said that both at home and at school he had been wild and unruly, and when he first came to the mission-hall it was only for fun, but now he had become quite changed. This lad's home was just outside Tokyo, and during term time he boarded near the school. At Christmas he had to go home for the holidays, but having been baptized he was in great fear as to what his father would do if he told him that he had become a Christian, as it was one of the things his father had warned him against. We told him he must not hide the fact of his faith, and had much prayer and conversation about the matter. He went home with great trembling, and resolved to follow God's leading in the matter and time of telling his father. A few days after we had letters from him in which he said he had been able to speak to his people on the second evening, and to his surprise and delight his father expressed himself as very pleased at the change in him, and no longer forbade his being a Christian.

Mrs. Buncombe and Miss Peacocke visited the military hospitals, and many of the soldiers began to read the New Testaments which were given to them with an apparently earnest desire to know the truth. Some of the missionaries, too, joined the society formed by Japanese ladies to help the families of soldiers at the front, and Miss Worthington was appointed to visit a few houses.

A Japanese clergyman called to military service.

The work at Yokaichiba, where eleven persons were admitted into the visible Church, was affected by the Japanese deacon, the Rev. T. Katada, being called upon to join the colours. This action was unexpected, as he had passed out of the reserves into the militia, but it was supposed that sergeants were needed to drill the new recruits, and therefore the services of those belonging to the militia were requisitioned. Great advance was made at Choshi, where thirty-five persons were baptized, among them some of the elder pupils of the Sunday-school. Eleven of these converts belonged to a place called Omigawa, about twenty miles from Choshi, where work was commenced in January, 1904, by a series of special meetings. Mr. Buncombe wrote concerning this place in January, 1905:—

"How much may hang on obedience to the promptings of the Spirit."

> The leading Christians are the members of the household of a doctor who has a private hospital there. The doctor himself was the last of the household to be baptized, but he has been using his opportunities to speak to the sick, and at a place about two miles off he has been the means of leading two of his patients to Christ. One of these was baptized in December. He was a man in consumption, and had been hearing from the doctor or reading the tracts he lent him ever since February. Our catechist, Mr. Sakuma, visited him frequently. Before he was baptized he confessed to one of our workers what a bad life he had formerly led. He had been a great gambler, and in Gifu had been looked upon as the most daring gambler there. Once in Tokyo, in a quarrel with another man, his opponent drew a sword, but he avoided him and seized the sword, and with it killed the man. For this he had a term of punishment. We cannot but wonder at the way in which God found him and saved him. We first had it laid on our hearts to preach the Word in Omigawa in January. This man, living two miles off, becomes ill and needs the doctor in February; the doctor has become enough interested in the Gospel to speak of it to this patient; thereby the door has opened for the evangelist to come in. Suppose we had not preached at Omigawa when we felt drawn to! How much may hang on obedience to the promptings of the Spirit with regard to the work!

GIFU.

Gifu.

The Rev. A. Lea, of the Canadian C.M.S., dealing with the general aspect of missionary work in the district around GIFU, says that when hostilities with Russia first broke out an attempt was made by the lower orders of Buddhist priests, especially in the country, to create a prejudice against Christianity on account of the war, but that these efforts were discouraged by the more enlightened priests, while the intervention of the police effectually put an end to them. Indeed, the war has tended to the furtherance of the Gospel, for in the rural districts thousands of soldiers, who have heard of Christ from the missionaries in Osaka and Tokyo, have returned to their homes, where they are regarded as heroes, with a copy of the New Testament, and with a fair knowledge of Christianity. The Blind School, under Mr. Mori, who himself is blind, had twenty-three pupils. Twice every week an English Class for students was held by Mr. Lea in his house, Miss E. M. Walter assisting in the teaching. Most of the members, from forty to sixty in number, and including among them the nephew of a governor of a prefecture, belong to the Middle and Normal Schools, and many of them bought Bibles, and in other ways showed a desire to learn more about Christianity. Through the influence of this class a welcome change in the attitude of the students of Gifu was brought about, and some 1,000 of them gathered together in a large hall towards the end of the year to listen to addresses by two evangelists who visited the town, on temperance and kindred topics. Two children's meetings were carried on, but a third had to be discontinued in consequence of the action of the Buddhist priests referred to above. Miss M. L. Pasley, of the New Zealand Association, conducted meetings for women both in Gifu and at Kano, a suburb of the town.

Soldiers spread the Gospel in rural districts.

Blind School.

Fifty of the students at the commercial school at Ogaki received regular instruction in Christianity and English, and the work among them appeared likely to be the means of an improvement in the manner in which Christianity was regarded by the people of the place. Four adults were baptized in March, the first converts for some years. One of them was a school teacher, and another a young farmer, who some time before had received a number of Bibles from his brother, a Christian living in Yokohama, with the request that he would both read the Book himself and also distribute the copies among his neighbours. Five persons were admitted as catechumens at Sakatomi, and the meetings held there, especially those for children, were well attended. At Kitagata a young man was baptized, who in former years was a constant attendant at the children's meetings held in the place. He had no human helper, but he became a diligent Bible student, and at length asked for baptism. He was found on examination to have a clear apprehension of Christian truth. The total number of baptisms in the Gifu district was twenty-four.

all of the Canadian C.M.S. Permission was given by the military authorities for work to be carried on among the soldiers proceeding to the seat of war, and among the sick and wounded in the hospitals. Among the six women baptized at the station during the year was the daughter of a military doctor at the front. In response to her letter asking his permission for her baptism, he wrote rather urging her to take the step, and speaking of the importance of Christian teaching, thus showing, Miss Trent says, that his own attitude had changed since the commencement of the war.

TOYOHASHI.

Toyohashi.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Baldwin, of the Canadian C.M.S., had Miss A. L. Archer as their European colleague at TOYOHASHI until May, 1904, when she left on furlough. After her departure Miss E. M. Trent, of Nagoya, accompanied by her Bible-woman, paid occasional visits to the station to carry on the work among the women, and in December Miss A. Roberts returned from furlough, and took up her residence at Toyohashi. The Sunday-school, though not largely attended, did a good work, and one of the boys, whom Miss Archer calls the "little missionary," evinced much zeal for souls. Miss Archer writes:—

Zeal of a Sunday-scholar.

> We had some special evangelistic services in February, and when the evangelist asked all those who wished to hear more of God's love to hold up their hands, not a hand appeared. Our "little missionary" was heard to be sobbing during the hymn that followed, and on being asked what was the reason, answered, "Just to think after hearing so much of God's great love, not one wants to hear more." However, the next day he ran after me and said, "Archer San, one man has repented—a man with one arm," and truly it was so, for next Sunday a "man with one arm" was admitted as a catechumen.

These meetings, which were conducted by the Rev. W. P. Buncombe, of Tokyo, and a Japanese evangelist, Mr. Akiyama, were much blessed in deepening the spiritual life of the Christians. Most of the classes for women were continued as in previous years until Miss Archer left, but the outbreak of war obliged Mr. Baldwin to discontinue his English class and his class for the mounted military police. In the autumn, however, the English Bible-class for students, held on Sunday afternoons, was re-opened, and much interest was displayed by those who belonged to it, several of them being catechumens. Two men and four women were baptized. The story of the persecution endured by one of the former is so remarkable that it is given at length. Mr. Baldwin writes:—

Persecution of a convert by his mother.

> About the end of October, and on the very day that Mr. Waku (the new catechist) arrived from Hiroshima, my station writer came in and asked me for some tracts for an inquirer who had called to see him. Mr. Waku was with me at the time, so I said to my writer, "Ask him kindly to step in." He came back, however, with the message that the man was ashamed to see me at present, and would not come in. He proved to be a young man whom I had known at Nagoya some eight or nine years ago, and he had, as we subsequently learned, been leading a profligate life, and having come to the end of himself, as he was passing the house, something, he knew not what, impelled him to come in and see if there was anything in Christianity to help him in his sore need. Although I was not able to see him, he came into touch with Mr. Waku, who was privileged to lead him into the full light and liberty of the Gospel.

Now, however, having found peace in his heart, trouble from outside began. He was living with his mother, who was a bigoted Buddhist. When she found out what he was doing and where he was going, she set up a most determined persecution against him, doing all in her power to persuade him to give up his faith. All this he bore with Christian meekness, saying that Christ was his example. Poor fellow! This was not the sum of all his troubles. Up among the hills, some thirty miles away, his wife lay dying, and he was anxious to see her and impart to her his new-found hope. This his mother did all in her power to prevent. He was quite without means and in debt, and, unless he renounced his faith, she would provide him with nothing. We were, however, able to help him, and so he was enabled to visit his wife and tell her of his new-found joy. She apparently knew more about the Gospel than he did, having been taught in a mission-school. He was most anxious to bring her to Toyohashi, where she would have better attention, if it would be at all possible to move her, and he went up a second time for that purpose. He, however, only arrived just in time, and found her relatives and friends gathered round her, awaiting the end. He put them all out of the room, and for two hours spoke to her about the things belonging to her eternal peace, and, though beyond speech, she showed her assent to all he said, and shortly afterwards passed away, as we have good hope, into "heaven's perfect peace."

The day after the funeral the sorrow-stricken husband returned to Toyohashi, and now was subjected to even more bitter persecution than ever. He was being prepared for baptism, and I proposed baptizing him on Christmas Day. However, he came to me and asked that he might be baptized at once. As there were clear evidences of faith, I felt that I could not refuse such a request, and accordingly arranged to baptize him on the following Sunday morning. On the Sunday, before service time, he arrived at the mission-house with his arms tightly bound, and it took Mr. Waku some time before he could free him. It appears that the mother, with the aid of another son, knowing what he was about to do (for he never made any secret of his intentions), had bound him and locked him in, and he, with his teeth, had picked the lock and made his way, bound, to the catechist. He was baptized, and chose as his name Peter, which signifies much the same in the original that his own surname, Oiwa, does in Japanese.

Bound lest he should be baptized.

He now found the door of his home closed against him, and he purposed making his way to his eldest brother, a judge, living in the island of Shikoku, who to a certain extent endorsed his action. Accordingly he arranged to leave by a night train; but, just as he was stepping into the train, the arms of the brother who was aiding and abetting the mother were thrown around him, and he was hurried from the platform and forced into a jinrikisha and driven quickly home. Here during the whole night he was beaten, and finally branded on the legs with hot iron hashi to force him to recant. He, however, remained steadfast, and finally his mother gave in. "Now," she said, "you are free. No one shall ever persecute you for being a Christian any longer, and I myself shall never do so again." God's Spirit had surely touched her heart, and may we not believe that she is being led by a way that she knows not of as yet?

Branded with a hot iron.

The mother relents.

The next day Oiwa came limping to see us, but his face radiant with joy, and the words of St. Paul were brought forcibly to my mind: "From henceforth let no man trouble me, for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus."

II. DIOCESE OF KIU-SHIU.

Mrs. Evington came home in June, 1904. Miss C. L. Burnside sailed for the Mission in October, 1904; Mrs. Evington and Miss E. A. P. Sells in February, 1905.

The Rev. S. Heaslett, who in the spring of 1903 had been temporarily transferred to Nagasaki, returned to the Main Island section of the Mission in May, 1904.

The General Report of the Work in the Diocese of Kiu-Shiu, with which the Committee have been furnished, refers to the effects of the war upon the missionary enterprise, which are naturally felt very specially in an island within which, at Kumamoto and Kokura respectively, lie the head quarters of two army divisions, the two important ports of Nagasaki and Moji, the great naval base of Sasebo, and, in the Korean Straits, the strategic point known as the island of Tsushima. On the one hand the work has been hindered by the pressure of business upon naval and military men, especially where they formed the bulk of the inquirers; by the thinning of congregations through members being called to take their places in the ranks; by the increased taxation which has weighed heavily upon the poor; and by the success with which, in some places, the Buddhists have led the people to suppose that the terms Christian and Russian are synonymous. But, on the other hand, the great facilities for evangelistic work among the soldiers; the friendliness shown to English missionaries by the official world; the sobering effects of the grim realities of war; and the increased brotherly love displayed by the Christians to one another and to non-Christians, in rendering help to families left without their bread-winners—these have exercised an influence for good, and served to predispose the people favourably towards Christianity.

Congregations thinned by members being called to the war.

A more serious hindrance than any springing from the war is the smallness of the staff of missionaries. For the six stations of the diocese, besides numerous out-stations, the male staff at the beginning of 1905 consisted of Bishop Evington and only two others who were fully qualified to take charge of a station, and the staff of women missionaries is quite inadequate to the immediate needs.

NAGASAKI.

Nagasaki.

The work at Nagasaki was under the general superintendence of the Rev. S. Heaslett, until March, 1904, and then of Bishop Evington, the other European missionaries of the Society at the station being the Rev. H. R. Wansey, and Misses B. Nottidge (now Mrs. Wansey), A. M. Cox, and A. Griffin. The Rev. S. Ushijima was pastor of Holy Trinity Church. The bright faith of some of the Christians was most cheering, as was the steadfastness of several of the ladies among them in praying for the conversion of their non-Christian husbands. A branch of the Christian Post and Telegraph Association was formed by Miss Cox, who succeeded in inducing sixteen of the forty women employed in the telephone and post-offices in Nagasaki to promise to read the Bible daily. In the course of her visiting Miss Nottidge found it easier than before her furlough to gain admittance into new houses, and was struck with the increased willingness of most of the people to listen to the Gospel. She adds, however, that Buddhism is not dead, and thus describes a Shinto festival which took place in November :— A Shinto festival.

All the Government offices were closed, and the city seemed wholly given over to idolatry. The festival lasted for three days, and processions with the object of collecting money for the temple passed our house almost incessantly, accompanied by the beating of drums and dancing-girls. People came in from the country for miles around, and there was a constant stream of worshippers to the temple from 3 a.m. till late at night. The god of this particular temple is worshipped in the form of a looking-glass, and it made one very sad to see rich and poor, old and young, pressing forward to pray and throw their offerings of money into the enclosure where the priests were waiting to receive them.

Among the people who were received into the visible Church were a man with his wife and three children; a boy twelve years of age, who was a member of Miss Cox's Sunday-school class, and was baptized as an adult; a lady who after six years of waiting at length obtained her husband's consent to her baptism; and another lady who was brought to a decision by a long illness. Baptisms.

At Sasebo the pressure of work caused by the war lessened the attendance at the meetings. A few persons were baptized there and also at Shimabara, where several lantern-meetings were successfully held, but the workers were sometimes suspected of being connected with the national enemy. The newly-opened out-station on the island of Tsushima, nine hours by steamer from Nagasaki, with its promising little band of ten Christians, could not be visited in consequence of the island being placed under martial law. One man, the firstfruits of the village, was received into the visible Church at Isahaya. A new out-station near the scene of the great naval battle.

KAGOSHIMA.

The missionaries at KAGOSHIMA were the Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Rowlands, Miss A. C. Tennent, and Miss H. S. Cockram. Early in the year under review one of the Japanese Christians was called to his rest, and Mr. Rowlands says that while every believer's home-going is a victory, this young man's was a triumph. He writes :— Kagoshima. Triumphant death of a convert.

At times he had very bad turns, and yet in spite of great weakness and pain and almost incessant combat with a dreadful disease, I never heard him murmur. He had a great longing to get well and spend his life in the Lord's service, yet he was quite content with His decision.

On the night before his death, he was evidently in great bodily distress, and I began to feel that the end was not far off. About 2 a.m. he suddenly called out, "Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus." I spoke to him about the Lord for a little while, and then he began to tell me what he wished done in case he died. "I want to be buried here as a Christian for the glory of the Lord, and not taken back to my native place. I am not at all troubled. If God says to me, 'Return,' I am quite ready to go to Him. My one desire is that my relatives may be saved." His spirit passed away about ten o'clock that morning.

Unhappily, all the Christians were not as earnest as this young man, and the workers were saddened by the prevalence of grievous sin among them. Great anxiety was caused, too, by the question of marriage for the Christian girls. Miss Cockram says:—

Marriage difficulties.

Two of the girls have been sent to heathen men whom they had never met, both against their will, though they did not stand out against it. One was sent away to Tokyo with the understanding that she was going to relatives who were about to send her to school. I had a very sorrowful letter from her soon after, saying that she had gone to this heathen man, and on account of some evil-speaking she was coming back. She is back, and is one of the many more in this province who have been to a husband and returned. The other told us that her father (a non-Christian), before he finally chose for her, asked if the Christians had any one, and as there was no one available he decided she must go to some one. Needless to say she is far from happy in her present surroundings, and cannot come out to any meetings, not so much because of the opposition of her husband as of that of her mother-in-law. Other girls are in great danger.

In the hope of helping the converts a Japanese evangelist, a Methodist, was invited to visit the town and hold a series of meetings. Few of the Christians, however, attended, but the evangelistic gatherings which were conducted by the same worker were instrumental in great blessing, several persons being brought to conviction and confession of sin. Mr. Rowlands writes of one penitent, a catechumen twenty years of age, as follows:—

"A broken and contrite heart."

He confessed that four years previously he had set fire to a house, had done various acts of petty pilfering, and had caused the death of two children. I was amazed, for he seemed a simple-minded youth whom one would never have suspected of anything of the sort. Our evangelist always laid great stress on restitution as well as confession, so the lad boldly went to the police-station and told the whole story, including the fact that it was through the power of the Gospel of Christ that he had been led to make the confession. Up to this time, though an earnest inquirer, he never seemed able to grasp the difference between repentance and the new birth, nor to receive the grace of the Gospel. Now, however, his indebtedness to grace is his great theme, and he spends all his spare time in going from place to place on the railway (he is a railway telegraph operator) telling as much as he knows of the Gospel of the Grace of God. His favourite text is, "A broken and a contrite heart, O God, Thou wilt not despise."

There were more opportunities for direct work among women than ever before. An entrance was gained into two weaving establishments, in which from twenty to forty girls are employed, and from time to time meetings were held for them during the dinner hour. Many of the families of the soldiers were visited by Miss Cockram and the probationer Bible-woman whom she instructed, and of whose ready tact she writes appreciatively. Thirteen adults were baptized, and several persons were received as catechumens. Among the latter was a lady who was first made willing to put herself under instruction by the consistent life of an earnest Christian nephew, an army officer, in whose house she stayed for a few days. Baptisms.

Three adults were received into the visible Church in the Kanoya district, one of them a clerk in the Formosan cable station at Onejime, where there is quite a colony of Christians, and the others teachers in the agricultural school at Kanoya itself, one of these latter being the inquirer mentioned in last year's Report (page 415). Honda San, the catechist on the Loo-choo Islands, was called to the war.

FUKUOKA AND HAKATA.

The Rev. A. B. Hutchinson, who was in charge of the work at FUKUOKA, reports an increase in the number of men attending the services, a steady growth in the weekly prayer meeting, and greater facilities for evangelistic work at the central preaching-place; but on the other hand his teachers' class came to an end in consequence of the members having more work than before through some of their colleagues being called to the war, and the other classes, though still carried on, had a reduced attendance. One man belonging to the English class expressed his intention of embracing Christianity, but was held back for a time by the inconsistencies in the lives of some professing Christians of his acquaintance. Another, at the instance of his parents, divorced his wife, and when told how opposed such conduct was to the teaching of the Bible, replied, "Filial duty requires it in Japan." Besides taking the classes referred to, Mr. Hutchinson gave some instruction to a probationer-catechist, a man who threw up a good position as electrical engineer in order to become a Christian worker at a much reduced salary. Miss F. M. Freeth was practically without any European colleague in the work among women and children, for Miss O. M. Crawford had to devote nearly all her time to language study, but towards the end of 1904 the former was joined by Miss C. L. Burnside on her return from furlough. A meeting for women and four meetings for children were held every week, assistance in the latter being rendered by the Christians of the town. About sixty houses were visited as often as possible. A great change is taking place, Miss Freeth says, in the status of women in Japan. The advance of education among them has altered the conditions of social life, and has also brought with it "a rejection of the old beliefs and religions, so that the 'present-day woman' is one who scorns religion of every description as something only necessary for the weak and nervous." Many of the women consequently have no sense of need of a Power stronger than their own, and Miss Freeth instances a lady who expressed a desire to become a Christian, but who yet one day casually asked, "Do you really believe that there is a God?" In spite of having carefully read the New Testament she had not grasped the idea of a Saviour or of the need of one. On the other hand another woman remarked one day, "If only I could find some power that would govern my heart and help me to keep my temper I should be happy."

Hakata.

The Japanese clergyman at HAKATA, the Rev. J. T. Ko, refers as follows to those among whom he labours:—

People "make light" of the Gospel.

> The words of our Lord, "We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned unto you, and ye have not lamented," are the very picture of the people of this city. The people being secularists, they are walking by sight only and not by faith, and do not seek anything but gain and pleasure. When they hear the message of heaven, "they make light of it, and go their way, one to his farm, another to his merchandise."
> Among other difficulties in the way of evangelistic work, their indifference and their low moral standard are the worst. It is common among the merchants to cheat their customers. They believe that to be an honest merchant is impossible. Therefore, those who are coming sometimes to hear our preaching, before they realize the blessing, comfort, and happiness, "go away grieved." With such surroundings, the Christians are constantly in danger of becoming lukewarm and lowering their standard also. They seem contented with their present low condition, instead of pushing onward and upward. Among the enemy's stratagems that which is most successful is this stupefying influence, which unknowingly makes one a captive in his net. But the Christians in general are going on in earnest to reach the goal set before them.

Notwithstanding the difficulties alluded to above, a few inquirers came forward, meetings for children were carried on with good results, and the attitude of the people became more friendly than of old. The town, however, is still a Buddhist stronghold, and the Bible-woman, whose services are lent by the British and Foreign Bible Society, had need of all her faith and courage to enable her to persevere. The work at Kurume was re-organized, arrangements being made by which the catechist of that town paid regular visits to Oyamada and Hiramatsu.

Need of faith and courage.

A few adults were baptized and several children, seven of the latter being received into the visible Church in May, 1904. Mr. Hutchinson wrote shortly afterwards:—

> There was something pathetic in the case of six of them. The father of one, not yet a Christian, is in the victorious army with General Kuroki; the father of another died of consumption before his son's birth; the father of the third is absent in Formosa; the father of the fourth is excommunicated for evil living; the father of the fifth is also very unsatisfactory, and the mothers of these two last lead sorrowful lives, holding the faith in face of many difficulties. The sixth lost her mother in childbirth and has been adopted by a Christian because the heathen father did not want to be troubled with a baby. Only the seventh has a happy Christian home with its parents.

Literary Work.

Mr. Hutchinson's literary work consisted in translating Sir R. Anderson's The Gospel and its Ministry and compiling An Easy Commentary on the Thirty-nine Articles, with examination questions.

KOKURA.

Kokura.

There was a marked improvement at KOKURA, where the Rev. J. Hind was in charge, both in the attendance at the Sunday services and in the number of communicants. Some of the latter were of a great age, and on one occasion three old ladies communicated whose united ages must have exceeded 230 years. One of them had undertaken an hour's walk with her daughter through lonely fields at night in order to be present at the service, and of another, aged eighty-three, Miss B. J. Allen writes:—

Aged communicants.

> She was taken ill soon after her baptism in 1903, and it was hardly thought possible she could recover, but she was quite happy, and so very, very thankful to have been baptized. One day, when I called on her, I found her looking at a book of Gospel pictures I had given her, and turning to the picture of the Crucifixion she began stroking reverently the Saviour's form with her withered hand, saying over and over again, while the tears stood in her eyes, "Ah! what He suffered, ah! what He suffered; only think of it, only think of it; and it was all for me."

The women's meeting which was commenced in the summer of 1903 had a goodly number of members. Nine were baptized, and six others were admitted to the catechumenate, but three of the latter were unable to win the consent of their husbands to their baptism. A great deal of work was done among the soldiers, Kokura being the head quarters of the 12th Division, serving under General Kuroki. When the war first broke out Mr. Hind distributed thousands of Gospels to the troops as they were starting, but after a time he was requested by the head of the military hospital to devote his attention to the patients, full permission being given to preach, visit, and distribute literature in any of the 120 wards of the hospitals. Mr. Hind writes:—

Work among General Kuroki's soldiers.

> Soon after beginning to work, two pastors of Nonconformist Churches and several ladies from the Protestant Churches in Kokura went out, intending to sing hymns and preach. I was to introduce them to the head and get permission; but on arriving I found he was away. I tried to get permission from another army doctor, but he hesitated for fear of the patients being excited by the singing or tired by the preaching. On assuring him he should have no reason for saying such a result had accrued (and on the explanation of an official who I found out afterwards was a Christian) he allowed us to proceed. He came to listen, and afterwards said, "If that was the kind of thing, we might come and do it every day."

A large amount of Christian literature was distributed in the wards, and several men came to see Mr. Hind after leaving the hospitals. He writes as follows of two cheering incidents in connexion with this work :—

A Christian soldier preaches to his comrade.

One man got into the carriage I was in coming home by train one night, and told me of the joy he had found through hearing our preaching two or three times and being assured of the forgiveness of sins. Some have testified to the bright life of a comrade who fell at Liao-yang. He had first learned of Christ at some children's meetings, and had come to me for baptismal instruction a few times. When in a hospital ward a comrade spoke to me of his having been taken prisoner; but later came to see me and told me of his death, and how he had spoken to him of Christ. What he had especially been struck by was finding him reading his Testament by the light in the lavatory after the dormitory lights were out. He then asked me to teach him instead of our late friend.

A report which was circulated to the effect that the leading Christian at Wakamatsu, and indeed the missionaries and all the Christians, were Russian spies prejudiced the work in that town; inquirers refused to receive visits, children left off attending the Sunday-school, and a woman who had lent her room for meetings was told by her neighbours that if she continued to do so they would turn her out of the street. Four men who became catechumens in 1903 fell away, but on the other hand there were cases of beautiful faith and patience on the part of some who were sorely tried by sickness, poverty, and petty persecution. One poor man, dying of consumption, who had been disowned by his relatives on account of his faith, and with his child was entirely dependent on the charity of the Christians for support, said one day to Miss Allen, "I cannot call this hardship when I think of what my Saviour bore for me. I have clothes and a quilt to lie upon, but He hung naked on the cross." At Moji the wife of the head of a bank, who was being taught by Mrs. Hind, met with a great trial in the loss of her first baby, but it was the means, under God, of her finding the Saviour. Miss E. M. Keen's sphere of work was among the numerous small towns and villages in the Nogata mining district. In the town of that name a woman, the wife of an earnest Christian, who for long had stolidly held to Buddhism, at length turned to Christ, while at Nakama an official's wife, the only Christian in the place, persuaded five or six of her neighbours to assemble fortnightly in her house for evangelistic meetings. In one village Miss Keen met an old lady of seventy-two, an earnest Buddhist, of whose gradual progress towards the light she wrote in December as follows :—

"I cannot call this hardship."

She is very intellectual, and was interested in hearing what Christianity taught, though she always had something on the Buddhist side to equal or excel, as she thought, the teaching of the Bible. One day, some months ago, she asked why our Lord had been crucified, and from the first she seemed very impressed with the story of His redeeming love. "Ah, if that is true, people ought to love Him!" she said. Till then my visits had been infrequent, but she asked to be taught regularly once a week, and very happy have been the talks with her; though as the Light shone in, revealing the sin of worshipping any but the Creator of heaven and earth, and showing the way of salvation through Jesus Christ alone, the struggle in her heart became great. "I have left off worshipping the sun and I do believe in the true God, but I can't give up the other gods whom I have believed in so long. Why does God say I must give them up? Why doesn't He say, 'Oh, she's an old woman, and now that she worships Me too it doesn't matter if she does keep the others'? I can never give them up—and yet," and she would talk to herself softly, "and yet, if he sent His Son to die, it won't do to refuse Him. I am perplexed, for I have a double heart!" She promised to pray for light and strength, and last week her remarks showed that God had been leading her on. Leaning forward she asked, "You are quite sure that I shall not be punished if I take down my god-shelf?" Assuring her once more very simply of the free salvation and perfect safety of those who trust in Jesus Christ wholly, she said, "I think I shall be able to take it all down very soon!" "I have a double heart."

"People ought to love Christ."

Mr. Hind proceeded with his translation of Edersheim's Bible History, and with his Commentary on St. Matthew's Gospel.

KUMAMOTO.

At Kumamoto the Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Moule had no European colleague belonging to the staff of the Society, for the Rev. S. Painter left on furlough in January, 1904. They suffered, moreover, from a lack of Japanese agents, for the most experienced worker in the town was laid aside for some months by ill health, and one of the agents in the country was obliged by a similar cause to resign. Mrs. Moule, who spent a good deal of time in preparing the Bible-woman for her examination, opened a class for nurses, which was brought about by the earnestness of one of the Christians. His mother, herself a member of the congregation, was seized with typhoid fever and taken to the town hospital, and her son went with her to help in the nursing. He occupied many of the long hours during his mother's convalescence in preaching and teaching hymns to the nurses, gathering them together for meetings in his mother's private room. This led Mrs. Moule to commence a class for the women, who came in alternate batches of from six to ten. Thirty-four adults were baptized, some of them won through the work of the Rev. K. Nakamura, the Japanese pastor, others by that at Miss Riddell's Leper Hospital, and two of them at a new preaching-place which was opened in the most difficult part of the town. The audiences at the preaching-places, though not always large, were invariably attentive. After some difficulty permission was obtained to distribute Scripture portions to the men of the Sixth Division of the army under General Oku, which had its head quarters at Kumamoto, and even to give a short address to each group of men, but for some reason or other facilities were not granted for work among the wounded in the military hospitals. A promising beginning of work was made at Yatsushiro.

OITA.

Oita.

The Rev. H. L. Bleby, of OITA, dwells with thankfulness in his Annual Letter upon the zeal of many of the Church members, who seemed to realize that they, as well as the paid agents, were responsible for the spread of the Gospel. Early in 1904 the Christian women commenced an evangelistic meeting, at which they gave the address in turns, and which was instrumental in reaching several persons who otherwise would probably not have heard the Gospel. A similar effort by the young men of the congregation to hold a meeting for their companions met with but limited success, but they did excellent work in carrying on the weekly children's meeting and preaching at Tsurusaki, five miles from Oita, when the catechist left the latter town in consequence of his wife's ill health. Bishop Evington and Mr. Bleby paid a visit to Nobeoka in the autumn. The attendance at the service which was held and the number of communicants was larger than Mr. Bleby had ever known before in the town, and in addition one young man was baptized, the first adult to be admitted into the visible Church at Nobeoka for at least ten years, while three others asked to be received as catechumens. The preaching-place was once stoned by a mob, who had misunderstood some expressions used by the Japanese pastor connected with the American Congregationalists concerning the war. Mr. Bleby narrates the following incident which occurred at Taketa:—

Evangelistic efforts of Japanese Christians.

A vow lightly made and lightly broken.

> In the spring the child of one of the Christians was very ill, and the father had to bear much odium because he refused to have the child taken to or prayed for at certain heathen shrines. When the doctor pronounced the case hopeless, I baptized the child, and we continued in prayer for its recovery. The grandmother was especially angry with her son, and scoffed at the idea of prayer to the Christians' God being of any avail, saying, "If he recover, I too will become a believer," a vow lightly made and as lightly broken, when it pleased God in His mercy to turn the sickness, on the very evening of the child's baptism, with a suddenness which led to the recovery being popularly reported as a miracle. On my next visit to Taketa the father of the restored child was requested by a neighbour to ask me if I would not go to his house and heal his sick child also. I am glad to say that the father had grace and wisdom to tell the applicant very tactfully and faithfully of the Great Physician and His healing power.

The catechist at Beppu, Mr. Sakai, died in December, 1904, his last words being a prayer for the Christians and for the work in the town.

III. DIOCESE OF HOKKAIDO.

MR. and MRS. C. NETTLESHIP came home in December, 1904. Miss A. M. Hughes sailed for the Mission in October, 1904; and Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Colborne in April, 1905.

The Rev. G. C. Niven, on his return from furlough, was assigned to the Main Island section of the Mission on grounds of health.

HAKODATE.

The Congregations at HAKODATE are said to have shown an excellent spirit in regard to the war. Bishop Fyson wrote in March, 1904 :— Hakodate.

I was especially struck with the spirit displayed at the usual weekly prayer-meeting after the war broke out. News had just come of the victories at Port Arthur and Chemulpo, and a little elation and triumph would have been very natural and pardonable, but nothing of the kind appeared either in the address given or in the prayers that followed. The Rev. M. Ito (the Japanese pastor) in the course of a moving address and in his prayer appealed to God to recognize that although they knew Him not yet as a nation, yet their motives were honest and right; . . . and then he reminded his hearers how of old God made use of heathen nations to chastise his people Israel when they went astray from Him and His ways, and he said that so now it might be God was using a nation that as yet knew Him not, to chastise one that was nominally Christian. I thought that was a very remarkable position for a Japanese to take up in reference to his own country. And then in the prayers that followed I did not notice a single petition for victory for themselves as Japanese, but they asked that God would give the victory to the side which was in the right, and especially that the Emperor and the Court might speedily become Christian. These prayers for the conversion of the Royal Family have been very frequent of late, and are one of the best signs of the reality of the faith of the converts.

The Society has two institutions for the preparation of native agents in the town, the Training Institution for Men, under the Rev. D. M. Lang, and the Training Home for Women, under Miss A. M. Tapson. The latter contained four students who were preparing for the Bible-women's examination, besides the same number of younger girls, who have resided in the Home for some time. The matron, Mrs. Hayashi, to whom apparently reference was made in the Report for 1899—1900 (page 444), was away for some months. Miss Tapson thus recounts her sad story :— Training Institutions.

Her husband, a Government official of good standing, committed what was in our eyes only a slight legal blunder, and had the heavy sentence of seven years' imprisonment passed upon him. This spring, however, we heard he was to be released a year before the original sentence expired, and in July a telegram came saying he was free. His wife went to him, but the long term of confinement and hard labour had so weakened his constitution that he had no strength to fight against disease, and a month ago came the news of his death from typhoid fever. This would have been pitiful had it not been that in prison he had learnt, however dimly, to know Christ. He had no human teacher, but there were many praying for him, very specially one in England, who, as I learnt a little while ago, remembered him for four years every day in prayer. He was baptized by an earnest Christian—there being no catechist in Nemuro—two nights before he died. Prayed for for four years.

The Committee of the Rescue Home were several times sorely pressed for funds, the amount in hand on one occasion sinking to six rin (one-tenth of a farthing), but in answer to prayer the needed supplies were always forthcoming. Two Japanese doctors, one of them a London M.D., offered their services free of charge for any of the girls who might be ill, and the usefulness Rescue Home.

of the institution was recognized by many non-Christians. The Training Home and the Rescue Home, which are carried on in the same buildings, were moved to new quarters in November, 1904. Miss R. E. Fyson took charge of the Girls' Boarding-school in January, 1904. Six girls graduated in March, and at the close of the year there were about sixty pupils, sixteen of whom were boarders and nine Christians. One of the girls was baptized in the summer. Mr. C. Nettleship carried on the Ainu School from November, 1903, until the following April. He mentions the death of a cripple, twenty-four years of age, who had lived with him for about a year. A number of English Classes were conducted by Miss E. L. B. Norton, who was transferred from Fukuoka to Hakodate in January, 1904. That for men was attended by bank clerks, post-office clerks, Customs-house officials, schoolmasters, and students, two of whom were admitted as catechumens. The class for women, too, prospered. Miss Norton writes :—

Schools.

> Soon after I arrived at Hakodate, a request came from the teachers of the Government school for girls that I would teach them English; but I said this was impossible without teaching them the Bible too. They desired the English so much that at last they consented to the Bible-lesson, though I knew how much they disliked it. The two head teachers were specially opposed to Christianity, and I knew they had done all in their power to prevent girls who had graduated at the Government school from taking the higher course of education at the mission-schools. I have often found that one of my most difficult pieces of work was to give the Bible-lesson to these teachers, and I must confess that I have sometimes felt glad when the weather prevented me going to the school, so difficult did I find it to give the Bible-lesson. But now things are quite changed. The children of the two head teachers are now going to Sunday-school, and I believe that before long these two teachers will be attending our church services. They seem to take true interest in the Bible-lesson. One has even accepted a New Testament, and the other has expressed her willingness to do so. Among the rest of the teachers one has come definitely forward for Bible-teaching, and has already attended church.

Interest of Government school-teachers in the Bible.

Both Miss Norton and Miss A. Evans, a trained nurse, had a knitting meeting, the object being to get into touch with the non-Christian women. At first Miss Norton could not induce them to come, but in the autumn her efforts met with better success, and she had an attendance of thirty women, many of whom came as much for the Bible teaching as for the knitting. The Sunday-schools and children's meetings prospered. At the Nishikawa preaching-place there were 413 members enrolled, none being registered without a written permit from their parents, while the second Sunday-school had an attendance varying from forty to eighty. Two children belonging to the latter school were baptized, together with their mother, in the autumn of 1903, and a boy, also with his mother, in the following spring. The Hospital was closed for a time in March, 1904, when Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Colborne left on furlough. In the course of an interview with the Committee Dr. Colborne mentioned that since the medical work was commenced at Hakodate in 1898 there had been about 200 baptisms as the fruit of it. As at other stations in Japan, the missionaries were prompt to avail themselves of the opportunities for working among the soldiers. The site chosen for the military hospitals was within a stone's throw of the Ainu School, so when the Ainu lads left to spend six months at their homes, the large schoolroom was transformed into a reading-room, and made as attractive as possible with chairs, flowers, writing materials, magazines, &c. Mrs. Nettleship writes :—

Fruit of the Medical Work.

The young evangelists took charge, in turn, of the room for the day, being on hand to welcome the men, attend their comfort, chat with them, and watch for the man who was ready for a quiet talk on the deeper things of life. The tent given by a generous friend of the C.M.S. a year or so ago was erected on the rising ground behind the school-buildings, and the meetings were held there at all seasonable hours. Soldiers and convalescents came as they were able, and many very interesting meetings were held. Soon after the meetings for the convalescents were commenced two of the authorities came up, and, after inspecting the building and surroundings, and making sundry inquiries about the nature of the work, &c., they left, saying that hitherto the men had really been breaking rules by leaving the hospital grounds, but, as they were perfectly satisfied with what they had seen, they would now make it "within bounds" for them, and they might come at their daily hour of recreation, if they chose. The hymns are very popular, and it is commonly reported that the atmosphere of the hospital has quite changed since the convalescents, instead of hanging round the wards bored to death with their enforced do-nothing-ness, have met together, and tried to get up their hymns to the "point satisfactory," the nurses coming to their aid whenever they can.

Some of the most satisfactory meetings for the soldiers were impromptu ones, when a squad of from ninety to a hundred soldiers, having an hour of semi-liberty before breakfast, would march up under the charge of a non-commissioned officer to the school. The workers, tired from the late evangelistic meetings in the town the night before, roused by the sound of the tramping feet, would rub open their startled eyes, spring out of bed, hurry on their clothes, and find themselves up in the tent singing the first hymn before they had well realized that the clock had only just reached the stroke of six, after all. Tabulated results of this work there are none, but nearly every man who enters that tent leaves with a tiny Scripture portion and a hymn-sheet in his tunic, and some understanding, at least, of the trend and purpose of each in his heart.

Impromptu meetings for soldiers.

Miss Tapson joined the Relief Society for the families of Reservists, the only foreigner to do so, and observes that one good result of the war has been to lead the women who live in luxury and who would never under ordinary circumstances think of visiting the poor, to rouse themselves to help those who have lost the breadwinner of the family. She adds that she was told by one of the members of the Committee that all the members of the Society had pledged themselves to buy no new clothes until the termination of the war, her informant saying, "We do not think it worth while to buy cotton ones at present; but we are only going to wear the dresses we have until they are worn out."

Self-denial of Japanese ladies.

Mr. Lang visited many of the out-stations in the district. One young man was baptized at Iwanai, where work has been carried on for some sixteen years, but it was proposed to remove the catechist there to Kuromatsunai, where about twenty Christians from Hakodate and elsewhere have settled. Whenever Miss Norton went over they did all they could to gather the Heathen to the meetings. At Kunnui the station-master and his wife are Christians, as are the manager and doctor of a mangan-mine seven miles from the station. Miss Norton went twice a month to Ono, where a new preaching-place was opened, and Miss Evans occasionally visited Arigawa, where a schoolmaster and a teacher were inquirers. Other inquirers were met with by Miss Tapson at Nanai, where she spent her holiday. She writes of one young man whom she found at the hospital which she was invited to visit :—

"We want to hear plainly of Christ."

He had first heard the Gospel not long before at our preaching-place in the town, and when I said, "Shall we sing first?" he said at once, "Oh, I think we want to hear plainly of Christ and His salvation." It was not hard to tell them the story of the Cross after that. We went again the next day before coming away, and Miss Tristram posted him a Bible. A few days ago we heard from one who came to see us from Nanai that he was so happy, that his body, too, was much better, and that the doctor was delighted with the improvement in him. The day before yesterday I went to see him, and could scarcely believe it was the same young man whom I had seen lying so ill and weak only a fortnight before. He was up and dressed, and, oh! so bright, and fully trusting in Christ's salvation.

SAPPORO.

Sapporo.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. Batchelor were joined at SAPPORO in the autumn of 1904 by Miss A. M. Hughes and her sister, Miss E. E. Hughes, one of the recruits of the year. Miss A. M. Hughes at once resumed the superintendence of the Ainu Girls' Home, which had six inmates during the year, one of whom was endeavouring to qualify for work as a Bible-woman. Seven persons were in the Ainu Rest House in January, 1904, and forty-one were admitted for a longer or shorter period during the year. All who came received daily instruction in Christianity, and many of them accepted salvation through Christ. Some of the Christians took a lively interest in the Sunday-schools of the district, which contained in all more than 900 children, and one at least gave a touching example of the grace of giving. Mr. Batchelor wrote in December, 1904 :—

Ainu Rest House.

The "widow's mite."

Yesterday morning, December 6th, a poor, very poor, Ainu widow of some five and forty years of age, ill and tired, yet happy, walked into my study from the rest-house. Arrived here, she sat down with a sudden thump and heavy characteristic sigh upon the floor at my feet, and holding out her hand to me with one yen (two shillings) in it, said in a timid, trembling voice, "This is a yen which I should like to offer to Jesus." This little speech was altogether unlooked for, for I well knew how very poor the widow was. But it was another case of "the widow's mite," and I rejoiced and, I am bound to say, almost wept. As soon as she made known her wish, I went and fetched my offertory-box from an adjoining room, and asked her to put the money into it. She had gloves on at the time, which out of respect for her Master, her acknowledged and well-beloved Saviour, she first took off. This having been done, she devoutly saluted the box and put the yen into it.

Mr. Batchelor speaks in high terms of his one Ainu male helper, Arimahna by name, and laments the fact that the Japanese agents do not labour in earnest among the aboriginals, who, he says, are "a doomed people," and are being carried off in large numbers by consumption and tuberculosis in the bones. Striking testimony to the advance of Christianity at Kinmoruran was borne by a Pole, a Roman Catholic. Mr. Batchelor says:—

I will call him S—— for convenience. Well S—— came to me at Kinmoruran one evening and said, "It is very curious. On one hand I am seeing on hill a Buddhist temple, on other hand a Shinto shrine: in de centres isht Christian." "Just so," said I, "what about it?" "Well," replied S——, "path to Shinto shrine him not use, all grass; path to Buddhist temple, him not use, all grass. Both sides dead. Christian in middle, he very much alive." "Yes," I said, "that is so." "Ya," he said, "very, very interesting. Christ very strong. Buddha, Shinto very weak in Japan." This is exceedingly interesting, and exceedingly true testimony.

"Christ very strong in Japan."

At Piratori, Miss E. Bryant, a trained nurse, conducted a fortnightly meeting for Ainu women, attended by from twenty to thirty persons, a monthly gathering for Japanese women, and a winter class for girls. One of the six children who attended the last named class was baptized in the spring. Miss Bryant refers to the catechist and Bible-woman as excellent in their work among the young. A beginning was made in visiting Mombetsu, a Japanese town thirteen miles from Piratori, where some people from the latter place took up their residence in 1903.

Piratori.

Mr. Batchelor baptized three adults at Obihiro, where the Rev. A. Oi, a Japanese deacon, is quasi-pastor of a congregation numbering some sixty-souls. While there the former was invited to visit a large convict station near by, and on going had the privilege of preaching to 900 convicts, many of them in for murder. The total number of adult baptisms in Sapporo and its district was sixty-two.

Visiting a convict station.

OTARU.

Otaru was visited in May, 1904, by a destructive fire, which burnt down 4,000 houses, including the C.M.S. church and mission-house. The Rev. D. M. Lang, who superintended the work in the town and district from Hakodate, reports the baptism of thirty-one adults. In Otaru itself there was a difficulty in procuring a suitable site for a new church, but a few of the Christians met together for prayer in the temporary mission-house which had been obtained. There are little bodies of Christians at Asahigawa, the chief military station in Hokkaido, Fukagawa, and Bibai. At the last named place the work has for some time been hindered by the action of an influential member of the little congregation, whose example has affected the rest.

KUSHIRO.

Kushiro. The Rev. T. Ogawa, a Japanese clergyman, was in charge at KUSHIRO, where a new church was consecrated in September. Seven of the Christians at Abashiri, including the catechist, were called to the war. The little band of converts at Akkeshi began to contribute towards the support of a lay pastoral agent. Seventeen adults were baptized.

NORTH-WEST CANADA MISSIONS.

The Society's work in North-West Canada is among the remnants of the Red Indian tribes scattered over the vast country formerly known as the Hudson's Bay Territory, but now included in the Dominion of Canada. In 1822 the Rev. John West arrived at a trading settlement on the Red River, a little south of Lake Winnipeg, and began to gather the Indians round him. Now the Red River district is the flourishing colonial Province of Manitoba, and a large part of the Society's work has developed into the settled ministrations of the Church in the Colony. One of the Society's churches has become the Cathedral of the Diocese of Rupert's Land, which was founded in 1849. It was divided in 1872 into four parts, the three new dioceses being those of Moosonee, Athabasca, and Saskatchewan. In 1875 these dioceses were constituted an Ecclesiastical Province with the Bishop of Rupert's Land as the Metropolitan. In 1884 the Provincial Synod divided the diocese of Athabasca, forming the new diocese of Mackenzie River, and at the same time the diocese of Qu'Appelle was formed out of Rupert's Land and Saskatchewan. In 1887 the diocese of Calgary was formed out of Saskatchewan; in 1890 Selkirk, on the west of the Rocky Mountains, out of Mackenzie River; and in 1902 Keewatin out of Rupert's Land and Moosonee. Rupert's Land had for its first Bishop Dr. Anderson (1849), then Archbishop Machray (1865), and now Archbishop Matheson (1905); Moosonee, Dr. Horden (1872), Newnham (1893), Holmes (1905); Keewatin, Dr. Lofthouse (1902); Saskatchewan, Dr. McLean (1872), Pinkham (1886), Newnham (translated from Moosonee) 1903; Qu'Appelle, Dr. Anson (1884), Burn (1893), Grisdale (1896); Calgary, Dr. Pinkham (1887); Athabasca, Dr. Bompas (1872), Young (1884); Mackenzie River, Dr. Bompas (1884), Reeve (1891); Selkirk, Dr. Bompas (1891). All the present Bishops of these dioceses except Rupert's Land, Calgary, and Athabasca (which is vacant) have been missionaries of the C.M.S.

The Society labours in all the above-named nine dioceses; but in that of Qu'Appelle the work is confined to one station, Touchwood Hills, opened in 1857. In RUPERT'S LAND DIOCESE the Society's work was commenced in the Red River district in 1823; and Rainy Lake district was occupied in 1874. In KEEWATIN DIOCESE, York was occupied in 1854; Fort Alexander, 1864; Churchill, 1886. In MOOSONEE DIOCESE, Moose Factory was occupied in 1851; Albany, 1855; East Main Coast, 1877; Blacklead Island, 1894. In SASKATCHEWAN DIOCESE, Cumberland and Devon were occupied in 1840; Stanley, 1850; Sandy Lake (Asisipi), 1875; Battleford, 1876; Prince Albert, 1879; Grand Rapids, 1881; and Fort Pitt, 1888. In CALGARY DIOCESE, Fort McLeod was occupied in 1880; Blackfoot Crossing in 1883; Sarcee Reserve in 1886. In ATHABASCA DIOCESE, Fort Chipewyan was occupied in 1867; Fort Vermilion, 1876; Lesser Slave Lake, 1887; Upper Peace River, 1888. MACKENZIE RIVER DIOCESE, Fort Simpson, 1858; Fort Norman, 1871; Fort McPherson, 1874; Fort Resolution, 1875; Herschel Island, 1897. SELKIRK DIOCESE, Rampart House, 1882; Buxton, 1887; Selkirk, 1892; Moosehide (Klondyke), 1897; Caribou Crossing, 1900.

Election of Bishop Matheson to the See of Rupert's Land.

THE Synod of Rupert's Land diocese at its session in April, 1905, elected Bishop Matheson, who became coadjutor bishop of the diocese in 1903, to succeed the late Archbishop Machray in the See of Rupert's Land, and as the Provincial Constitution provides that the Bishop of Rupert's Land shall also be Metropolitan, Dr. Matheson became ipso facto Archbishop.

Consecration of Archdeacon Holmes as Bishop of Moosonee.

On January 25th, 1905, Archdeacon G. Holmes was consecrated Bishop of Moosonee in St. Paul's Church, Regina, by the Bishop of Calgary (under Commission from the Senior Bishop of the Province, Dr. Bompas), assisted by the Bishops of Saskatchewan, Qu'Appelle, and Keewatin, and Bishop (now Archbishop) Matheson. Bishop Holmes, who was consecrated on the Society's nomination, went out as a missionary to Peace River in 1885, the year of Riel's rebellion, but the unsettled state of the country obliged him to linger for some months at Winnipeg. He was admitted to Deacons' and Priests' Orders by Bishop Young, late of Athabasca, in 1887 and 1888 respectively.

Death of the Rev. J. Badger.

The death of the Rev. J. Badger, Indian pastor of St. James's, in the diocese of Saskatchewan, occurred on February 10th, 1905. The Bishop of Saskatchewan writes:—

> He was a pure Indian, in early days living in the Lord Selkirk's estate on the Red River, where he became a Christian, under the teaching of C.M.S. missionaries. He came to the Saskatchewan district many years ago, and was ordained by the late Bishop McLean, and appointed to the Station of St. James, on John Smith's Reserve, where he was still labouring when his call came. He was full of affection for his flock, and faithful to his duty. The funeral was largely attended by his sorrowing flock and by many neighbours, who respected him.

The Committee have accepted the resignation of the Rev. W. Spendlove, on his acceptance of the living of Drayton, near Banbury.

A large and increasing proportion of the missionaries of this Mission are supplied from Eastern Canada or are country-born, and in either case are appointed locally by the Bishops, whose Diocesan Funds are responsible for their support. The relation of these to the Society is not quite analogous with that borne by missionaries in local connexion, and accordingly, in the list of missionaries on pages lxvii. and lxviii., the distinction between them and those whom the Parent Committee have appointed and sent out from home, and for whose support the Society is responsible, is made clearer than in previous Reports. For the names which appear under the dioceses the Society is indebted to the several Bishops.

I. DIOCESES OF RUPERT'S LAND AND QU'APPELLE.

St. Peter's Indian Settlement.

In the report on the Society's work in the diocese of Rupert's Land with which Archdeacon R. Phair has supplied the Committee, he commences with a reference to the jubilee of the old stone church, erected by the late Archdeacon Cockran at St. Peter's Indian Settlement, which was celebrated in March, 1905. The proceedings began at 10 a.m. with a service, at which fifteen children were baptized and eighty-six candidates were presented to Archbishop Matheson for confirmation by the incumbent, the Rev. J. G. Anderson. In the afternoon the children of the Sunday-schools and their parents assembled in the church, and at 4 p.m. the jubilee service proper took place, the Archbishop dedicating the new tower and spire which were erected in 1903. The number of communicants on the occasion was 170. Mr. Anderson reports that of the 247 families in the Settlement, 225 belong to the Anglican Church.

At SCANTERBURY, where the Rev. and Mrs. R. E. Coates were stationed, an old blind woman, the mother of the chief medicine-man, requested to be taught how to pray, and ultimately came forward for baptism. After the service the whole congregation as they passed shook hands with her and kissed her in token of their gladness at her joining their number. A man is spoken of also, who, when he was advised by a friend to take brandy for some slight indisposition, refused, saying: "If I drink now and become drunk I shall do wrong, and so crucify my Lord and Saviour afresh." In spite of hard times, consequent upon a bad fishing season, the contributions of the people were better than usual. Mr. Coates thus describes the method of collection which was adopted. He writes:— Scanterbury.

When I spoke to the churchwardens about a "Thanksgiving Service," they suggested that it should be postponed, stating that the people could not possibly raise any money by fishing to put into the offertory. I bought a number of envelopes for the special offertory, but when distributing them one man remarked that he did not like the idea of only one envelope for the family. He would give this to his wife, but he would like another for himself. Thereupon we commenced to make small envelopes to go round again, one for each man and woman. Then a young fellow called for his envelopes and was disappointed that I could not spare one for his little girl, and offered to come again to get one extra. We worked late that night in order to make sufficient envelopes for every child who would attend church. A young girl came to say that she could only get ten cents, and would that be enough for "thanksgiving"? Others came to sell wood or hay, and some to borrow. At a meeting a councillor told the assembled company that they ought to be very careful in this matter. "If anyone makes a promise he must remember that it is a promise to God, and therefore to be paid as soon as possible." I am thankful to be able to say that every man, woman, and child used their envelopes, and every promise was kept. Those who could not manage it at the time brought the money to me soon afterwards. A "Thanksgiving Service."

Some Indians who came to the station from the north of the lake were visited and had the Gospel message proclaimed to them. When Mr. Coates had finished speaking an old man replied, "I believe that God's Son did come here on earth, but He came for the white men only, as they need a Saviour, and we Indians do not." "God's Son came for the white men only."

The Indians at FAIRFORD, one of the oldest stations in the diocese, where the Rev. G. Bruce was in charge, have been slow to provide for the maintenance of the work in their midst, but Archdeacon Phair says that they have at length begun to make an effort in that direction. Mr. Bruce paid occasional visits to Crane River, Sandy Bay, where an Indian catechist laboured faithfully, and Lake St. Martin, an isolated out-station. Fairford.

At JACKHEAD the majority of the people are still Heathen, but they nevertheless attended the services, which were conducted Jackhead.

by Mr. L. Laronde, a student of St. John's College, Winnipeg, who went to the station to gain practical experience in the work for which he is under preparation.

Shoal River.

Early in 1905 Archdeacon Phair paid a visit to SHOAL RIVER, where Mr. T. H. Dobbs, formerly catechist at Lake St. Martin, succeeded the Rev. A. T. Norquay, when he gave up his work among Indians. The Archdeacon writes:—

> The Indians have, with the exception of a few, received the Gospel, and are trying in their own primitive way to carry out its precepts. It is so nice to get away, as it were, among the little ones to whom it is the Master's good pleasure to reveal His hidden things. There are no critics up in this quarter; the people just ask, "Does God say so?" and that is final.

The simple faith of Indians.

> I enjoyed my visit very much, speaking from day to day to these simple-minded men and women, who have never had difficulties put before them, but who are enjoying the simple message God has sent them, and who believe it every word. Speaking to some candidates for confirmation, I asked if they believed in the Holy Ghost, the Lord and Giver of life? They seemed surprised I should ask the question, or that I should have any doubt about it. I did not like to doubt them any more.

II. DIOCESE OF KEEWATIN.

BISHOP LOFTHOUSE has kindly furnished the Committee with an account of the work at the various stations in his diocese. The work in the southern portion is carried on among the Ojibeway Indians, and the Bishop, who visited the stations during the year, was surprised and shocked to find that quite a number of the people were still Heathen, a striking contrast to the condition of affairs in the north, where all the Indians have embraced Christianity. Bishop Lofthouse writes:—

Demoralizing influence of certain white men.

> The Indians say they do not want the white man's religion because it is not so good as their own. This opinion is formed by coming in contact with white men who live ungodly lives and utterly demoralize the Indians. One is reminded of the story of the traveller who was asking his Indian guide to carefully put their goods where they could not be stolen. The Indian replied: "You need not fear losing anything here; there is no white man within 100 miles of us." This may be applied to far more actions than that of theft.

Fort Alexander.

The Rev. E. Thomas is the Indian pastor at FORT ALEXANDER, and has to battle with the aggressions of the Roman Catholic priests. Thirty-seven candidates were confirmed there and at Black River, one of the out-stations.

Lac Seul.

At LAC SEUL, where the Rev. M. Sanderson is in charge, many of the ninety communicants are said to be true Christians, though they need much more "power." There are two out-stations, viz. Frenchman's Head and Obuskang.

Long Sault.

Four candidates were confirmed at LONG SAULT, on the Rainy River, the station of the Rev. J. Johnston. There are but few Christians, and the facility with which the Indians can obtain strong drink hinders the work. Several persons attended the services at Manito Rapids, but none of the eighty-seven residents have been baptized.

In June, 1904, Bishop Lofthouse visited SPLIT LAKE, where about 300 Indians are found, most of them former residents at York Factory, and old acquaintances of the Bishop's. Forty-three candidates were presented for confirmation by the Rev. C. G. Fox. The contributions of the people for religious purposes exceeded $100. Split Lake.

The work at YORK FACTORY, where the Rev. R. Faries is in charge, suffered in the summer from an epidemic of measles which carried off twenty-eight persons—one-tenth of the whole population—in a single month. Forty-five candidates, five of them half-breeds and the remainder Indians, were confirmed in July. The two schools between them contain nearly 100 children. Services have been carried on at Fort Severn in past years by John Soney, a most devoted Indian, and since his death by his son. The Rev. W. Dick, a Cree Indian, is the pastor at Trout Lake. There were eighty communicants on the occasion of Bishop Lofthouse's visit in the summer. York Factory.

FORT CHURCHILL has suffered latterly from being left without any resident worker, but it was occupied in the spring of 1904 by Mr. F. Seviere, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders in July. Both Eskimo and Chipewyan Indians visit the place from their hunting grounds, but death has thinned the ranks of the latter of recent years, and their number has decreased from 200 to about 120. Fort Churchill.

III. DIOCESE OF MOOSONEE.

BISHOP HOLMES, whose consecration has been recorded above, came home in February, 1905, and with Mrs. Holmes sailed again for his diocese in April, 1905. The Rev. E. W. Greenshield sailed for the Mission in July, 1904.

The Rev. T. B. Holland, who was in charge of MOOSE FACTORY after the departure of Bishop Newnham for his new diocese, reports that seven Indian girls were confirmed, and that the work of the English and Indian day-schools, the Sunday-school, the women's Bible-class, and the sewing-class (the two last-named conducted by Mrs. Holland) was maintained on the usual lines. Some help was rendered by some members of a shipwrecked crew which arrived at the station in the summer. Special efforts were put forth to combat the evil of intemperance which has increased during the past three years, owing to the sale of hops to the Indians by the officers and crew of a trading ship. Moose Factory served to unsettle the minds of the people, and the trade rivalry unhappily caused dancing, which is attended with many evils among the Indians, to become more popular. There were some instances of grievous sin, and the Rev. W. G. Walton says that the people do not hate sin itself, but only being detected in it. He paid two visits to Great Whale River in March and July, 1904, and again received much help from Nero (see Annual Reports, 1902-03, page 428, and 1903-04, page 400), who had a sore trial in the spring, when his sister was discovered to be living in sin. The Natives as a rule will never denounce a relative, no matter how wicked, but Nero, happily, was true to his profession. Mr. Walton was again unfortunate enough to miss the Indians who go to the post for purposes of trade.

The advent of a fur-trading company, which established itself at FORT GEORGE in opposition to the Hudson's Bay Company, Fort George.

Hatred not of sin, but of detection.

Fort Hope.

The Rev. E. Richards was cheered by the attention paid to his message by some of the Indians who came to FORT HOPE, and by the regular attendance of the people at the services which he conducted during his stay at Marten's Falls. A man at the latter place, who formerly was utterly careless and indifferent, was sobered by his father's death, and showed evident signs of a good work in his heart. There were a few Heathen at Osnaburgh, but all of them were ready to listen to the Gospel.

Blacklead Island.

The missionaries at BLACKLEAD ISLAND were the Rev. E. J. Peck and Mr. J. W. Bilby. The Rev. E. W. Greenshield, who sailed in July, 1904, to join them, wrote in the following month that the sailing ship of which he was on board was fast in the ice in Cumberland Gulf, and that there was a possibility of her being unable to get out, and therefore of being obliged to winter at Blacklead Island. The eventuality mentioned by Mr. Greenshield doubtless occurred, and is the reason why the Annual Letters of Messrs. Peck and Bilby have not reached the Committee. Mr. Greenshield sent his letter by a steamer, the Neptune, belonging to the Canadian Government, which forced her way through the ice. The Neptune also brought a letter from Mr. Peck (who had just heard of the death of his daughter, which occurred in August, 1903), dated Blacklead Island, September 1st, 1904, in which he says:—

The annual ship caught in the ice.

Baptisms.

> Sorrow is turned into joy when I think of God's blessing which has been poured out upon the people and work. . . . . You will be delighted to hear that I have been able to admit some more of these poor creatures into Christ's Church, and one man has been appointed teacher for his own people. . . . . Let the people of God, as they doubtless will, strengthen our hands, so that we may win the whole of the unevangelized Arctic wastes for Christ. Then will our crosses and sorrows lose their weight, and our hearts will rejoice with exceeding great joy.

IV. DIOCESE OF CALGARY.

THE Rev. Canon H. W. G. Stocken, who superintended the work at BLACKFOOT CROSSING, writing his Annual Letter with the thermometer at fifty-three degrees below zero, quotes a testimony to the usefulness of the Hospital. The Indian Agent, remarking on the fact that the census showed that there was a small decrease in the population at the South Camp of Indians, and a corresponding increase at the North Camp, said that he attributed the latter to the medical work of Dr. W. Rose. The number of persons treated during 1904 was just over 700, seventy-two of them being in-patients. Bible-classes and knitting-classes for the women were conducted by Mrs. Stocken, who refers to the great change which recent years have witnessed in the Indian women. She writes of their condition in the past:— Blackfoot Crossing.

For generations they have been nothing better than mere slaves in their husbands' houses; made to fetch water, chop wood, and cook the food; being beaten when all was not as it should be; absolutely unloved and unloving; dirty, immoral, and degraded in every sense of the word. If sick, they knew nothing better than the attentions of some old woman, two or three degrees dirtier and more uncared for than themselves; with no privacy, but crowds of people in the lodge, and those terrible tom-toms beaten in the ears all the time. When old, left to any white person charitable enough to help them, and often having even the food and clothes given by such taken away from them. Made to walk behind their husbands; at a feast compelled to sit at the lower end of the table; and, in short, treated very little better than a dog. Such was the life of an Indian woman. Improvement in the condition of Indian women.

Now there are several Christian women, bright, happy, and clean, while among the Heathen some improvement has taken place, the husbands and wives walking together, and the former even fetching the wood and water. Undoubtedly the character of some of the Christians has conduced to this change, and it has also been instrumental in accomplishing a deeper work. As an instance, an incident related by Canon Stocken in which two chiefs, Daniel Little Axe (see Annual Reports for 1897–98, page 419, and 1898–99, page 427) and David Summakena figure, may be quoted. The Canon writes:—

Daniel and Esther Little Axe went to the Peigan Reserve for Christmas, and did what they could to teach and encourage their relatives there, and to strengthen the faith of those of them who are Christians. Soon after their return they were impressed by a sermon on "Witnessing," and set to work at once to get their neighbours together. On their way home from the village of Gleichen they called in and invited two families to drive over and have tea with them, and have a talk over spiritual things. David was invited, and Daniel said to him, "David, let us help one another; you teach what you know, and I will teach what I know, and it will be a help to all." That evening Daniel dwelt very much upon teaching of the Holy Spirit, as he so often does. What wonder that the next day a relative who was living with them should come and tell me of a work of grace in his heart? He is a young married man and a former pupil of ours, who was baptized before leaving school, and gave evidence of a real change of heart, but had been thrown in the way of grievous temptation, and wandered from the "good path." It was a beautiful testimony to Daniel Axe's faithfulness to hear the young fellow say that ever since he had lived with him Axe had never omitted to have family worship and to address words of exhortation to the household night and morning; but, Testimony to a Christian chief's faithfulness.

said Rex Back-fat, "I closed my heart against his words, but now I have yielded."

Baptisms. Another woman, who had led a very immoral life, a relative of a Christian named Naomi, was baptized. She declared that the first thing to attract her to Christianity was Naomi's life, which made her desire to live as she did. Several other persons were baptized. They included a sister of Daniel Little Axe; the wife of a Christian belonging to the South Camp; and a woman, the daughter of a Christian, married to a Heathen named Many Shots. The second of these had made a vow when seriously ill that she would give herself to God if He restored her to health, and came forward in fulfilment of that vow, after careful instruction by Naomi and her husband. The head chief, Yellow Horse, mentioned in last year's Report (page 443), attended the services regularly, and exhorted his people in favour of Christianity. Some trouble was caused by the advent of a Roman Catholic priest, who offered a meal to every Indian who attended his services, and endeavoured to prejudice the people against the Protestant missionaries. Three of the girls of the Homes at Gleichen, where the Rev. S. J. Stocken was in charge, died of consumption, and the lack of sufficient accommodation for the children caused a good deal of sickness. Thirteen boys and one girl were baptized, and outsiders have testified to the improvement among the lads in particular. One of the latter declared that whenever he went to his home he told his parents what Mr. Stocken taught him at prayers.

Sarcee Reserve. Archdeacon J. W. Tims, who resided at SARCEE RESERVE, says that whereas when he went thither in 1896 there were but two baptized Indians out of a population of 200, there are now nearly fifty. Many of the Heathen pray to God, and one of them who is unwilling even to enter the church, when inquiring about Christmas, said, "When is the day God's Son was born?" The temporal position of the people has improved, and they beg less than formerly and are much more independent. Two adults were received into the visible Church on the Peigan Reserve, where there are about 100 baptized Christians and forty-five communicants. Archdeacon Tims says that it is delightful to see the reverent spirit with which they join in the services and draw near to the Lord's Table.

V. DIOCESE OF SASKATCHEWAN.

BISHOP NEWNHAM, who entered upon his work in the Diocese of Saskatchewan in July, 1904, has been good enough to send the Committee an account of his visits to some of the Society's stations in his diocese. He found that although the Cree spoken in the North-West Territory is different from that of his former diocese of Moosonee, yet he was able to converse a little with the Indians whom he met.

The work at PRINCE ALBERT was under the superintendence of the Rev. J. Hines, the Rev. J. Taylor being in charge of Emmanuel College. Besides receiving a general education, the thirty boys in the College are trained in various branches of farm-work, while the twenty-one girls are taught all kinds of useful household work. Two of the children gained third-class certificates in the examination of the Department of Education for the North-West Territories. Sturgeon Lake, twenty-four miles from Prince Albert, is said to be the stronghold of Heathenism in those parts. Mr. Hines says :— Prince Albert.

The only reason I can give is the close proximity of the people to the town of Prince Albert. They cannot understand why white people make themselves drunk and violate the sanctity of the Sabbath, if it is wrong to do so, because, according to their idea, white people must know right from wrong. They therefore do not think it wrong to follow the example thus set them by the whites, and hence most of the Indians belonging to this reserve are addicted to drink, and if it suits them they work as freely on Sunday as on Monday. Of course, Christianity forbids such conduct, and hence it is they will not embrace it. We preach Christ to them as the Saviour from sin, but as they do not realize themselves to be sinners, they see no necessity for a Saviour. A strong-hold of Heathenism.

In January, 1905, Bishop Newnham dedicated a new church at Pahoonan. The return journey was made under trying circumstances. Mr. Hines, who accompanied the Bishop, writes :—

We sat in our sleigh for four hours, and drove twenty-four miles against a slight head-wind, with the thermometer wavering between 45 and 50 deg. below zero. The Bishop had to get out and run to keep himself from freezing, and we had to watch each other's faces, and report at once when we discovered the first sign of frost-bite, so that friction might be applied immediately ; but in spite of all our watchfulness the king of the North stole a march upon us and bit the Bishop on his cheeks and me on my nose! A trying journey.

At St. James's, on John Smith's Reserve, eighteen miles from Prince Albert, where the Rev. J. Badger laboured until his death (which has been recorded above, page 436), all the people are Christians. Mr. Badger baptized one man at Nepowewin, thirty-five miles from St. James's, where there are still a few Heathen. The Rev. E. Cook, who is in Deacons' Orders, was quasi-pastor at Sandy Lake, seventy miles from Prince Albert.

A good deal of sickness prevailed among the Indians at STANLEY, where the Rev. R. McLennan had his head quarters, and the older generation of Indians is fast passing away. There were more than 100 communicants on Easter Day, 1904. Mr. McLennan spent some time at Big Stone, and also visited Pelican Narrows and Montreal Lake. Twenty-eight children were baptized during the year. Stanley.

The Rev. M. B. Edwards was stationed at DEVON. At Cumberland, where the Rev. J. R. Settee had 217 baptized Devon.

Christians under his care, the people remained true to the teaching of the Bible, notwithstanding the efforts made to win them over to Rome.

Battleford. The Rev. D. D. Macdonald was transferred from Sandy Lake to BATTLEFORD in October, 1903. In the following spring an outbreak of small-pox on the reserves caused much trouble. At Thunderchild's Reserve the sickness made the Indians exceptionally ready to listen to the Gospel. All the people on the Assiniboine Reserve are Heathen with the exception of the woman whose baptism was recorded in last year's Report (page 444). At Red Pheasant's Reserve, where the Rev. R. Inkster continued his labours, all the Indians have embraced Christianity.

Fort Pitt. The boarding-school at FORT PITT, on Onion Lake, under the Rev. J. R. Matheson, contains about fifty pupils. Mrs. Matheson carried on the medical work, which proved a great help in making the Gospel known. Appreciative mention is made by Mr. Matheson in his Annual Letter of the colonists at Lloydminster, thirty-five miles to the south of his station. One adult was baptized.

VI. DIOCESE OF ATHABASCA.

Ordination. THE Rev. W. M. Johnston was admitted to Priests' Orders in St. Peter's Church, Lesser Slave Lake, by the Bishop of Mackenzie River on Sunday, January 8th, 1905. Bishop Reeve made a tour in the diocese early in 1905, and has kindly furnished the Committee with a brief account of the work of the various stations which he visited.

Lesser Slave Lake. Archdeacon G. Holmes (now the Bishop of Moosonee), on relinquishing his work at LESSER SLAVE LAKE, contrasts the condition of the people in 1904 with that in 1886, when he first took up his residence at the station. In the latter year there were but two baptized Protestant Indians, and he says:—

Progress in eighteen years. The total population was about 1,000, chiefly Roman Catholic in profession, but most decidedly Heathen in practice. With the exception of a very few immediately around the Roman Catholic Mission, they knew absolutely nothing of the truths of Christianity, and what little they did know was calculated to encourage and strengthen their heathen superstitions. Their Christianity consisted (as they expressed it) in having water spilled on their heads, and that was the only evidence they could think of. Their faith in, and fear of, medicine-men was unshaken. Their love for heathen feasts and practices was as strong as ever. Nearly all sickness, accidents, and misfortunes were attributed to the Superstition. use of muche muskeke (bad medicine), directly or indirectly, by the medicine-men. They supposed that the medicine-man obtained himself, or employed some other to obtain, a hair from the head of his intended victim, and that the hair was put into the bad medicine, and the effect was according to the medicine-man's intention. They believed that the antidote could be obtained from the Indian doctor, but it meant a good round sum in blankets, horses, tobacco, &c. They believed that their medicine-men had direct intercourse with the muche manito (evil spirit), through whose assistance they were able to perform most wonderful feats. Insanity was attributed to the direct possession of an evil spirit. An insane person was called a wetigo (cannibal). When any person—man or woman—manifested symptoms of "wetigoism," the old Indian doctors were called in to practise all their incantations and exorcize the evil spirit, which in very few cases was successful. The first symptoms of cannibalism manifest themselves in dreams and insomnia. The evil spirit is said to appear in a vision with a plate of human flesh, about which there is an awful and irresistible fascination. The wetigo is strictly guarded by the medicine-men, who, with the noise of their drums and rattles in order to frighten the evil spirit away, would drive any sane man out of his mind. The last and most dangerous stage is when the wetigo has accepted from the evil spirit the meal of human flesh, after which he is securely tied with cords. He refuses any kind of food, and has an intense craving for human flesh. In this stage they suppose that ice forms in the breast of the wetigo, and they firmly believe that they have seen the wetigo vomit ice. The last remedy applied is the axe. Within the nineteen years I have been at Lesser Slave Lake three wetigos have been killed with axes like animals by their own friends.

Cruel treatment of the insane.

Another heathen custom was the cruel neglect of the aged and infirm. Starvation was the means employed among the Indians of getting rid of them.

Such a description of the "noble red man," without a reference to his good points, might lead people to think that there is a good deal of truth in the saying that "the only good Indian is the dead Indian." But in the character of all Indians there are three redeeming features. First, their belief in the Kesa Manito (the Great Spirit), and I might add, their strong belief in the personality of the Devil. Secondly, their generous hospitality. They have all things in common, and would give any traveller, be he Indian or white man, their last morsel, even if they had no prospect of another meal themselves for the next week. Thirdly, their passionate love for children. I could trust my children with them under any circumstances, for I should know that so long as there was a meal left the children would get the best of it.

Three redeeming features in the Indian character.

Since 1886 a mission-house and a children's home have been built, and a saw-mill purchased and set working, and the number of baptized Protestant Christians has increased to 155, of whom forty-two are communicants. During the year under review the exposure of the traffic in intoxicants made by a geological surveyor (see last year's Report, page 445), combined with the representations of others, led to the prohibition of all intoxicants at the station. Archdeacon Holmes wrote in November, 1904:—

The change from drunkenness and rowdyism to peace and order is appreciated almost as much by the people themselves as by the missionaries. Those who were our most bitter opponents a year ago are now among our best friends, and some of the most inveterate drunkards have expressed to me their willingness to sign a petition to the Government, requesting that the Act of Prohibition should be established in Athabasca, saying that they have already experienced the benefit of it, mentally, physically, financially, and socially. The place, they say, is better, happier, healthier, and more prosperous without it. For such a decided victory over such a soul-destroying evil we cannot be too thankful.

Happy effects of the prohibition of intoxicants.

The Children's Home had the names of forty-five boys and girls on its rolls, including those of a few day-scholars; the congregations were larger than usual; and the people displayed much generosity, contributing £20 towards the fund for rebuilding the mission-premises at Wapuskaw, which had been destroyed by fire, £10 to the Canadian C.M.S., and £60 towards a new church. But while there was this outward prosperity, there was also, unhappily, "appalling indifference to the spiritual welfare of their souls."

White Fish Lake.

The continued efforts of the Roman Catholics to establish themselves at WHITE FISH LAKE, where the Rev. and Mrs. W. G. White were stationed, were strenuously resisted by the Indians, but there was, alas! some reason to fear that certain of the Natives still practised many of their idolatrous and superstitious rites. Archdeacon Holmes spoke plainly about the matter when he visited the station, and many were led to confess their guilt, one of the leaders bringing his medicine-bag and other heathen trinkets to be destroyed. One of the last of the Heathen, an old man, was baptized on New Year's Day, 1905.

Wapuskaw.

The disastrous fire which occurred at WAPUSKAW in the winter of 1903–04 (see last year's Report, page 445) involved much inconvenience and hardship to the Rev. and Mrs. C. R. Weaver, and to the two European ladies associated with them in the work of the school. In the autumn one of the buildings which had been destroyed was replaced, and there were then twenty-eight children under instruction, a number which rose in a couple of months to forty. Some of the people showed an earnest desire to know the truth, but on the other hand sorrow was caused by a young man becoming a pervert to Rome. Mr. Weaver paid a visit in the autumn to Chipewyan Lake, where he found a number of Heathen, some of whose lives were evidently being changed through the reading of a Bible left by an Indian with his sister. The Rev. H. Robinson spent two Sundays at Wapuskaw.

Influence of a Bible.

Shaftesbury.

The Rev. W. M. and Miss Johnston are said to have very uphill work at SHAFTESBURY, where the Indians are an "uncertain quantity." A new church which had been built was opened during the year.

Vermilion.

At VERMILION the Rev. A. S. White and his sisters carried on a boarding-school with some twenty children. During the year he also visited the scattered bands of Indians in the district.

Fort Chipewyan.

The Rev. A. J. Warwick, of FORT CHIPEWYAN, speaks of the services, Bible-classes, and Sunday-school as being well attended, and of the average number of communicants as higher than in 1903. Five candidates were confirmed in the summer. He narrates a pleasing instance of regard for the Lord's Day, and writes:—

Regard for the Lord's Day.

> The Roman Catholic Mission here gives each year a New Year's entertainment by the school children. It is not a sacred entertainment. They always give the Protestants (excepting the missionaries) a special invitation. This year New Year's Day fell on a Sunday, but the entertainment was to be held in the afternoon. Both the Roman Catholics and ourselves have an afternoon service. They gave notice that theirs would not be held, but an entertainment instead. Two days before the entertainment invitations were sent round, but without having said anything to me about it, our people, without exception, refused to go. The priests had to postpone the entertainment till January 2nd, and all through Protestant attachment and reverence for the "Lord's Day."

VII. DIOCESE OF MACKENZIE RIVER.

Fort Simpson.

The Rev. J. R. Lucas, who resided at Fort Simpson, was cheered by the conduct of the Indians when they came to the station in the summer after an absence which in the case of many had extended over nine months. They evidently appreciated the services, and willingly allowed their children to attend daily at the mission-house for instruction in the Bible and in reading and writing. The Sunday-school, conducted by Mrs. Lucas, was among the most hopeful branches of the work.

Hay River.

At Hay River the Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Marsh, of the Canadian C.M.S., suffered, as did the missionaries at several other stations, from the flood at Athabasca Landing which occurred in April, 1904, and spoilt many of the goods lying at the warehouse of the Hudson's Bay Company awaiting transhipment to posts further north. Providentially the bales sent by the Women's Auxiliary of Canada were delayed and so escaped. Death reduced the number of pupils in the school. Mr. Marsh was thankful to be able to detect signs of growth in spirituality among some of the people under his care.

Peel River.

Archdeacon R. McDonald, who has suffered much from ill health during the last two years, was obliged to leave Peel River in the autumn in order to put himself under medical treatment. While he was at the station he received much help from two Indian clergymen, the Revs. William Njootli and Edward Sitechinli, who were admitted to Deacons' Orders by Bishop Young in July, 1903. Mr. Sitechinli spent some time at La Pierre's House, and Mr. Njootli accompanied some of the Indians in their expeditions far afield. One adult was baptized.

VIII. DIOCESE OF SELKIRK.

Movements of Bishop Bompas.

Bishop Bompas left his diocese for the first time since his consecration, thirty years before, in April, 1904, when he went to Winnipeg for a couple of months to discharge some duties which devolved upon him, after the death of Archbishop Machray, as senior bishop of the Province. Soon after his return he visited all the stations of the Society in his diocese and, he says, was pleased with what he saw. The Bishop resided at Caribou Crossing, where a new church was erected in the summer.

Caribou Crossing.

Selkirk.

The attractions of mining camps have drawn the Indians away from SELKIRK, where Archdeacon T. H. Canham was in charge. Mrs. Canham assisted in the work of the Indian school, and her husband visited some bands of Indians at a new trading post up the Pelly River.

Moose-hide.

At MOOSEHIDE the Rev. B. Totty had good hopes of the future usefulness of an Indian who assisted him by taking the services in his absence, and by visiting the camps of Natives who came to the station. The people attended church regularly, and it is said that every person in the village made some contribution to the Society early in 1904 when its financial position became known. One of the Christians who died after a painful illness gave a bright testimony before he passed away, saying to his friends, "I shall die with my right hand in God's."

"I shall die with my right hand in God's."

Buxton.

The Rev. J. Hawksley reports the maintenance of the usual services and meetings at BUXTON. A serious flood occurred in the spring of 1904, but happily it had been anticipated and prepared for, and no lives were lost and but little damage to property was done. Two visits were paid to the Indians at Eagle City, and one to the Tanana Indians, who live at a considerable distance from Buxton.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MISSION.

In 1856 Captain Prevost, R.N., drew the Society's attention to the savage state of the Tsimshean Indians on the coast of British Columbia, and a young schoolmaster, Mr. W. Duncan, was sent out. A great blessing was vouchsafed to his labours, and in 1862 the Christian settlement of Metlakahtla was founded. In 1881, however, Mr. Duncan refused to work on the lines of the Church of England, and ceased to be a missionary of the Society, and an unhappy schism among the Native Christians resulted. But peace was in God's good providence ultimately restored, though at a heavy cost. Prolonged disputes about the land ensued between Mr. Duncan's Indians and the Government; and in the summer of 1887 Mr. Duncan removed with some hundreds of the Indians to a place seventy miles distant, within the United States territory of Alaska. Since the departure of the disaffected party the conduct of the loyal Indians has been so excellent that the Government Commissioners, sent in November, 1888, to report on the condition of these disturbed districts, stated that the Metlakahtla Church Indians were in happy contrast to all others, and were a credit to their instructors.

The Diocese of British Columbia was subdivided in 1879; and the Rev. W. Ridley, formerly a missionary of the Society in the Punjab, was appointed the first Bishop of Caledonia, the Northern Division. The C.M.S. mission-stations, with the exception of that at Alert Bay, are situated in his diocese. He resigned the See in 1904, and has been succeeded by Bishop du Vernet.

Kincolith was occupied in 1866; Massett, 1876; Alert Bay, 1878; Hazelton, 1880; Giatwangak, 1882; Aiyansh, 1883; Kitkatla, 1887; and Tahl Tan, 1898.

Consecration of Bishop Du Vernet.

THE Right Rev. F. H. Du Vernet, Rector of St John's, Toronto, was consecrated to the See of Caledonia, vacant through the resignation of Bishop Ridley, in Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, on St. Andrew's Day, November 30th, 1904, by the Archbishop of Montreal, assisted by the Bishops of Toronto and Ontario and the Coadjutor Bishop of Montreal. The new Bishop had been a prominent member of the Committee of the Canadian C.M.S. since its formation in 1894. He was the editor of the localized Gleaner, and when the New Era was issued edited the C.M.S. matter in that publication.

Miss A. J. Edwards has been transferred to the Western China Mission.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Price came home in June, 1904, and Miss R. L. Edwards in October.

Metlakahtla.

The Rev. J. H. Keen, the superintending missionary at METLAKAHTLA, speaks of the difficulty experienced through the active propaganda of the Salvation Army and the Seventh Day Baptists, and of that arising from the ungodly influence of some white men. The people made increased efforts in the direction of self-support, contributing more than sufficient to cover church expenses. Mr. Keen conducted a Bible-class for men, which had four or five members of mature years and tried character, who were taught with a view to their instructing their countrymen. They often gave addresses at the week-day meetings, and occasionally spoke from the lectern on Sundays. A Young Men's Institute was set on foot and gave promise of real usefulness. The Sunday-school, with about 130 pupils, was superintended by Miss M. West, who also carried on the work of the White Home for half-breeds with the assistance of Miss E. J. Soal. Miss R. M. Davies had thirty-four girls under her care in the Indian Girls' Industrial Home. The eldest child was confirmed, and the conduct of the girls was good upon the whole. The children belonging to the Home constituted about half the pupils of the Indian Day-school, of which Miss H. Jackson was in charge. There were signs, in the form of successful efforts to control naturally bad tempers, and of repentance after wrong-doing, that a good work was going on in the hearts of some of the children. In the summer Mr. Keen visited the salmon-canning station at Inverness. Girls' Homes. Successful efforts to control bad tempers.

The Rev. R. W. Gurd writes hopefully of the work among the young at KITKATLA, saying that almost all of them between the ages of five and twenty attend the Sunday-school, and that an improvement is manifest in the demeanour and cleanliness of the pupils of the day-school. He adds, however, that it is hard to reach the older people, whose character he sketches as follows:— Katkatla.

> The Kitkatlas are not a religious race. All their laws and customs centre in and emanate from a huge social system, which was elaborated no one knows when. They hold tenaciously to that system, and they look suspiciously at all modern teaching through their antiquated social spectacles. Their characters are set; their opinions and peculiar way of looking at things are fixed. They are stubborn and hard to move. They have a vague and low conception of sin, its nature, and effects; an inadequate appreciation of things spiritual. Love is only kindness or hospitality. Truth is a quality rarely found. They seem to revel in stating what is not true, and are concerned if you do not believe them. Each accuses the other of always lying. To unravel an Indian trouble is most perplexing, as each person will give a different account of the same matter, and will not give that account twice alike. They do not, as is only natural, easily take to Christian teaching. They rebel against its prohibitions. They desire the privileges and blessings of the Church in conjunction with adherence to old heathen customs. They resent the demands of the Gospel when it condemns their old laws. There are two forces influencing them at this stage—the Christian system, with its clear and definite truths, and a powerful though ever-weakening heathen law. Their faith is a divided one—partly centred in things divine and partly in things human, very human. They perpetuate many of the old feasts, and give them a semblance of goodness by mingling with them prayer and praise.

"They revel in stating what is not true."

Mr. Gurd spent several months labouring among the Indians at Claxton.

Heathenism is fast diminishing at HAZELTON, where the Rev. and Mrs. J. Field reside, and the few non-Christians left manifest no hostility to the Gospel. The work at the station was carried on as usual, the services being attended by an increasing number of white men. A teacher was appointed to Gishgagas in the autumn. Mr. Field visited that out-station and also GIATWANGAK, where the work was in the hands of two Natives after the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Price left for England. Hazelton.

Archdeacon W. H. Collison was in charge at KINCOLITH, and Kincolith.

Aiyansh. the Rev. J. B. McCullagh at AIYANSH. Ninety-four candidates were confirmed at these two stations on the Naas River early in 1905. Several persons were badly hurt in a drunken revel at Gitlakdamiks, a heathen village two miles from Aiyansh, but the trouble had a happy issue, for it led eighteen of the Heathen to put themselves under Christian instruction.

Massett. The work of the Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Collison at MASSETT is mainly pastoral, all the Hydahs being at least nominally Christians. Besides the usual services, classes were conducted for the six evangelists at work among the people, for the women, and for the young men, while special attention was given to the children in the Sunday and day schools. Mr. Collison says that the old spirit of Heathenism is sometimes apparent, and that there is great difficulty in keeping the young people from sin.

Alert Bay. The European missionaries of the Society at ALERT BAY were the following:—The Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Corker, and Miss R. L. Edwards (until October). The number of communicants increased, and the services were attended by practically all the people under thirty-five years of age. Mr. Corker had twenty-four boys under his charge in the Industrial School. The Girls' Home was superintended for some months by Miss Edwards, and after her departure by a lady of the congregation of Christ Church, Vancouver.

APPENDIX.

I. REPORT OF THE WILLIAM CHARLES JONES INDIA NATIVE CHURCH FUND.

The interest of this Fund is available for assisting the Native Church Councils connected with the Church Missionary Society in India to employ more evangelistic labourers among the Heathen. Two important conditions are imposed regarding grants. It is necessary, before an application for a grant can be entertained, for a Native Council to show that the Christians whom it represents have actually engaged in aggressive evangelistic work through a Native Missionary Society, or that they are prepared so to do. It is necessary, also, that the Council be able to show that at least two-fifths of the cost of maintaining religious worship and pastoral work in its district has been raised from purely local sources, and that a definite sum has been contributed towards missionary work. The scheme also provides that the amount granted from the Fund to a Council shall not exceed the amount set apart by that Council for purely evangelistic purposes, or the amount raised by the Native Missionary Society in connexion with that Council.

Grants were made during 1904–05 to the following District Church Councils for the support of seventy-three evangelists:—

	Rs.
Santal Native Church Council	295
Madras „ „ „	720

VI. NEW ZEALAND.

The Mission to the Maoris of New Zealand was the second of the Society's Missions in order of time. It was undertaken at the invitation of Samuel Marsden, Chaplain in New South Wales, who landed on the Northern Island, with the first three men—lay agents—sent out as pioneers in 1814, and preached the first Christian sermon to the natives, from St. Luke ii. 10, on Christmas Day of that year. Other missionaries followed, whose lives, which were entirely in the power of a race of ferocious cannibals, were frequently in apparently imminent danger. The first results were seen in the sphere of industrial progress. Fields of wheat began to appear, horses and cattle were imported, fruit-trees were planted, blacksmiths' shops, saw-mills and rope-walks were at work, and a few Maori children were gathered into a boarding-school. Impressed by these results Charles Darwin, who visited New Zealand in H.M.S. Beagle in 1835, wrote, "The lesson of the missionary is the enchanter's wand."

For eleven years there were no baptisms. The first conversion took place in 1825, that of a dying chief named Ranji. It was not till February 7th, 1830, that the first public baptismal service for adults was held, when a leading chief, Taiwhanga, took upon him the Christian vows. Then followed the marvellous movement which resulted in almost the whole Maori nation being brought under Christian instruction and civilizing influences, and which led the first Bishop, George Augustus Selwyn, on his arrival in his new diocese in 1842, to write: "We see here a whole nation of Pagans converted to the faith. . . . Where will you find, throughout the Christian world, more signal manifestations of the presence of the Spirit, or more living evidences of the Kingdom of Christ?"

In 1840 New Zealand was made a British Colony. The step had been rendered necessary by the influx of settlers, whose proceedings needed to be kept in order by the strong arm of authority. The missionaries, taking their lives in their hands, had gone to a ferocious race of cannibals; when these, through their efforts, had been tamed and to a large extent Christianized, the adventurers poured in; then the chiefs, on the counsel of the missionaries, acknowledged Queen Victoria as their Sovereign and accepted the treaty of Waitangi, February 6th, 1840. The benefits of civilization were introduced, but so were the vices and the greed of the white man. Continual disputes about the sale and possession of land led to prolonged and bitter wars, which shook the Native Church to its foundation. In 1864 arose the "Pai Mairiré" or "Hau-hau" superstition, a strange compound of Christianity and Heathenism, which spread with great rapidity among the Maoris. It was a party of Hau-haus who so barbarously murdered the missionary Völkner on March 2nd, 1868.

For more than twenty years after the establishment of the Mission there was no bishop to supervise it nearer than Calcutta. When the Bishopric of Australia (now Sydney) was founded in 1836, the C.M.S. asked the first Bishop, Dr. Broughton, to visit New Zealand, which he did in 1838, and held ordinations and confirmations. After the British sovereignty had been proclaimed in 1840, and the Colonial Bishoprics' Fund established in 1841, the C.M.S. undertook to contribute £600 a year to the stipend of the first Bishop of New Zealand, Dr. Selwyn. In 1854 the dioceses of Waiapu and Wellington were formed, and the C.M.S. paid the stipends of the first two Bishops of the former. On Bishop Selwyn's appointment to Lichfield in 1868, he was succeeded in the Diocese of Auckland by Dr. Cowie, and he on his death in 1903 by Dr. Neligan. All the three Bishops of Waiapu had been missionaries of the C.M.S. The first was Dr. W. Williams, who went out in 1825, before there was a single convert, and he and Henry Williams, his brother, were par excellence the evangelists of the Maori race. When in 1829 Taiwhanga, one of the most ferocious chiefs, asked to have his four children baptized, the infant son of William Williams was dedicated to Christ at the same time. That infant son is the present Bishop of Waiapu, Dr. W. L. Williams. Between the first and the present Bishop came the episcopate of Dr. E. C. Stuart (1877 to 1895), who is now labouring as a C.M.S. missionary in Persia. The first Bishop of Wellington was Dr. Abraham; and the present Bishop, the third, is Dr. F. Wallis, a son-in-law of the Society's Treasurer, Colonel R. Williams. The intermediate Bishop, from 1870 to 1895, was Dr. Octavius Hadfield, who died on December 11th, 1904. He went to New Zealand as a C.M.S. missionary in 1838, one out of only six graduates of Oxford whom the Society sent out previous to 1841, his college being Pembroke. He was one of the first missionaries to labour in the South Island, where he exerted great influence among the Natives during the troublous years of the Maori War. He was greatly beloved by Bishop Selwyn, and was offered by him the Bishopric of Wellington when that diocese was first formed, but he declined it then and other like offers. He was made Primate of New Zealand in 1889. In 1893 he retired. His last letter to the Committee was written from Marton, New Zealand, in the spring of 1902, in which he said:—

I am now in my eighty-eighth year, and have been seven weeks confined to my room, from weak action of the heart, peacefully waiting my call. I have two daughters living with me and lack nothing.

May I venture to express to you my gratitude to the Society for accepting my offer in 1837 to go wherever they might think proper as a missionary, and thus realize what had been for many years my desire, to help towards obeying the command of Christ, "Go into all the world, &c."? I think I have ever held fast to the great Gospel principles which I originally learnt from the Rev. Charles Simeon, of King's College, Cambridge, and which have been those of the Society.

In 1883 a C.M.S. Mission Board, comprising the Bishops of Auckland, Waiapu, and Wellington, and other members, was established to administer the Society's grants, which diminished gradually and ceased (subject to personal claims) in 1902. A Maori Mission Board, working under the Synod, now supervises the work.

The list of missionaries at the commencement of this Report still includes the names of Bishop Williams, by his special request; of Archdeacon Samuel Williams, and the Rev. A. F. Williams, honorary workers; of Miss R. M. Blakiston, supported by the New Zealand Association; and of the Revs. G. Maunsell, W. Goodyear, and J. McWilliam.

The Annual Letters that have been received from the four last-named tell of encouraging work among the Maoris, and hopeful in the main, but chequered. A revival of vital religion among the Christians is longed for.

PROPER FORMS OF A BENEFACTION TO THE SOCIETY BY WILL.

No. I.—Form of a Bequest of a Common Legacy.

I give and bequeath to the Treasurer for the time being of the Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East the sum of Pounds *free of duty for the general purposes of the said Society such sum and the duty thereon to be paid within calendar months next after my death. And I declare that the receipt of the Treasurer for the time being of the said Society shall be an effectual discharge for the said Legacy.

No. II.—Form of Bequest of the Residue or a share of the Residue.

I give and bequeath unto the Treasurer for the time being of the Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East for the general purposes of the said Society my Residuary Real and Personal Estate [or if a share only of the Residue is intended to be given, then, instead of the words in Italics, say "such sum of money as shall be equal to one-fourth or one-half (according to the intention) of my whole Residuary Real and Personal Estate"]. And I declare that the receipt of the Treasurer for the time being of the said Society shall be an effectual discharge for the said Residue [or sum of money as the case may be]. And as to the remainder (if any) of my general Residuary Estate I bequeath the same, &c.

If so intended.

I.—ANNIVERSARY PREACHERS AND COLLECTIONS OF FORMER YEARS TO MAY, 1904.

* * The Sermons from 1801 to 1819 inclusive were preached at St. Anne's, Blackfriars; the Sermon in 1823 was preached at Christ Church, Newgate Street; that in 1831 at St. Sepulchre's; that in 1832 at St. Clement Danes; that in 1833 at St. Andrew's, Holborn; the other Sermons were preached at St. Bride's, Fleet Street.

The Collections in 1816 and at subsequent Anniversaries include the sums contributed at the Annual Meetings.

NOTICE TO TREASURERS AND SECRETARIES OF ASSOCIATIONS.

End of Financial Year. Final Remittance.

THE COMMITTEE OF THE CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY beg to remind the Treasurers and Secretaries of Associations that the Society's Financial Year ends on the 31st of March, and that final remittances and Contribution Lists should be forwarded before that date.

No Balances shown.

Sums remaining unpaid on the 31st of March are not shown in the Accounts as Balances. The Contribution Lists should therefore agree in total with the amounts actually paid to the Parent Society to that date.

Branches.

Where an Association has Branches connected with it, the Money and Accounts of the Branches must be forwarded to the Treasurer or Secretary of the Association some time before the date for forwarding to London. Branches not doing so in good time shall be considered as self-excluded.

Branch Associations should forward their Money and Lists through the Association with which they are connected, and not direct to the Parent Society.

Contribution Lists and Accounts.

Lists and Accounts (if not sent with the money) must be forwarded not later than April 8th (see last paragraph but one). At the head of the List should be furnished the name of the Diocese, Archdeaconry, and Deanery in which each parish is situate. It is very essential that this information should be given accurately to ensure correct entry in Annual Report. The date at which the Accounts of the Association are closed, and the names of the Local Officers, should be specified. Should no Officers be named it will be assumed that they remain the same as in the previous Report, and the List will be so printed.

Accurate information essential.

Local Officers.

The Contribution Lists should be written legibly to avoid mistakes in printing, and made up in the manner in which the same are printed in the Parent Society's Report. Forms of Account and ruled paper with directions for filling up the form may be had on application to the Lay Secretary at the Society's House. Where the Account or the List is a printed one, two copies should be forwarded. It would greatly facilitate the work of adapting Local Reports for the Society's Report if under each of the several classes of contributions (e.g. Annual Subscriptions, Boxes, &c.), the items were divided into two parts and printed separately, thus:—

Forms of Account.

Printed Lists.

(1) Items of 10*s.* and over (in alphabetical order)
(2) Items of under 10*s.* ... ... } With separate totals for each.

Gleaners' Union Receipts (including "Enrolments," "Renewals," "Expenses," "O.O.M.," "C.M.S.") should be forwarded separately to C.M. House and be excluded from the Annual Associations Account.

Appropriated Contributions. Special Funds and General Fund.

Particulars of Appropriated Contributions and Contributions to Special Funds paid through Associations are printed with the Lists to which they respectively belong.

In order that the Society's General Fund Income for the year can be accurately ascertained before the accounts are closed and audited, it is essential that the total amount received through each Association for each Appropriated head of Account, and also for each Special Fund, shall be notified to Salisbury Square not later than April 4th. Should, however, the contribution list for the year have been forwarded by that date, such notification will not be needed, provided the list contains the necessary particulars, which should be in the form of a detailed list of subscriptions for printing in the Annual Report. (See also instructions respecting remittances at the head of page 1 of the Monthly Contribution List in the "Intelligencer.")

Remittances should be made early in Financial Year.

The Committee take this opportunity of requesting that Local Treasurers will remit to the Parent Committee at the end of every quarter (or oftener in cases of large sums being received) any sum in their hands, over and above the amount required to meet disbursements, &c., the balance being remitted when the Local Accounts are closed for the year. This course would tend to equalise in a greater degree the Income and Expenditure in the earlier months of the Society's Financial Year, and save the Society a considerable yearly sum.

RESPECTING REMITTANCES.

(See last paragraph but one above.)

Remittances.

Remittances may be made through Local Bankers, and their correspondents in London, to the account of the Society at WILLIAMS DEACON'S BANK, Limited, 20 Birchin Lane, London, in which case it is requested that advice of the same be sent by post addressed to the Lay Secretary.

Or Drafts may be forwarded direct to the C.M. House, payable to D. MARSHALL LANG, Lay Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, and crossed WILLIAMS DEACON'S BANK, Limited, acct. C.M.S.

Post Office and Postal Orders should be drawn on the General Post Office, and be made payable to D. MARSHALL LANG.
